As both democrats and centrists are represented in the cabinet, along with German nationalist and peoples' parties, there is no occasion, in the opinion of the government's spokesman, to involve Chancellor Luther or other members of the cabinet in the sensational drift given to the campaign through the nomination of Von Hindenburg.

"Von Hindenburg was nominated chiefly because the men directing the national bourgeois bloc considered him a good vote getter." This opinion was expressed by a member of the government in an informal talk over the issue, which he frankly admitted was likely to be viewed askance abroad.

"We cannot prevent foreign critics of our internal politics from beholding in Field Marshal Von Hindenburg the incarnation of the old regime," he continued, "but it is only fair to submit that his selection as presidential candidate may be defended on various grounds. To begin with he loyally recognized the sovereignty of the peoples commissioners when the revolution broke out, and the letter of President Ebert acknowledging his cooperation and his subsequent refusal to participate in post-war politics affords ample proof of his strict non-partisanship. In this respect his conduct is in striking contract to that of General Ludendorff."

It was also pointed out tonight that Von Hindenburg was originally proposed by the Bavarian peoples' party, and this organization, as well as the German nationalist and the German peoples' party and economic league, which comprise the bourgeois bloc, is pledged to strict fulfillment of the Dawes reparation plan.

BANK ROBBER ASKED AID OF PROBATION OFFICER

Saskatoon, April 8.—Canada's cool- [illegible] most stupid bank robber made [illegible] appearance here today.

A. S. Wright, town probation officer, homeward bound, was passing the Saskatoon branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, when the muzzle of a shot gun was thrust close to his [illegible] by a man visible to him behind the smashed window of the bank.

Wright started to comply when A. J. Ward, one of the bank's employees with rooms over the vaults, walked by, also homeward bound. Ward gaped at the smashed panes and incredulously viewed the man inside if he were repairing the window.

"Not at all, not at all," was the rather testy reply. "Both of you come in here and help me with this safe."

REV. GEORGE C. KINCAID RELEASED IN $2,000 BAIL

Laconia, N. H., April 8.—The Rev. George C. Kincaid, who pleaded not guilty in municipal court yesterday to a charge of felonious assault on a high school girl, was released in $2,000 bail today for appearance at the October term of the superior court. Mr. Kincaid has resigned from the pastorate of the South Baptist church, to which he came two years ago from Houghton, Me.

The girl whom the minister is alleged to have attacked last October lived with Mr. and Mrs. Kincaid for several months, but told no one of the attack until recently.

MERIDEN HAS AMERICAN COMMON SENSE LEAGUE

Hartford, April 8.—Common sense legislation and constitutional amendments will be the aim of the league formed in Meriden, which has filed a certificate of association at the office of the secretary of the state, under the name of the American Common Sense League, Inc. The purposes, according to the certificate are to "advocate the use of common sense in discussing legislation, to encourage and promote discussions of public questions, and to oppose unnecessary constitutional amendments." The signers of the certificate are John Bonell, Frederick W. Golinich and Fred L. Neebe.

SIX KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN ITALIAN BATTLESHIP

Spezia, Italy, April 8.—Six men were killed and twenty-five others wounded, fifteen of them critically, when the shell of a 305 calibre (12-inch) gun exploded prematurely on the battleship Caio Duilio today. Fire broke out immediately but it was hoped to save the vessel from destruction.

AWAITING ACTION IN CASE OF THURLOW H. ROGERS

Schenectady, N. Y., April 8.—Police tonight were awaiting the action of the New Haven, Conn., authorities in the case of Thurlow H. Rogers, of Waterbury, Conn., who is said to have admitted yesterday that he had killed his infant son. Rogers, who was found unconscious after an attempted suicide in a hotel here Saturday, told police yesterday he had chloroformed the child and left it in a suit case in the New Haven railroad station.

Communications from Police Chief P. D. Smith, of New Haven, indicating that he doubted the veracity of Rogers' confession, led to the statement from Police Chief William H. Funston tonight that unless the New Haven authorities promptly sought Rogers' extradition he would be released. He is now being held as a fugntive under police guard in the hospital.

Earl Rogers, of Hartford, Conn., a brother, visited the man today. He told reporters the newspapers had the "wrong slant" on the case, but refused to talk further other than to say the "right slant" would have to come from "the authorities."

THE AMUNDSEN ARCTIC EXPEDITION HAS STARTED

Oslo, Norway, April 8—The Amundsen Arctic expedition will leave Tromsoe tonight on board the steamer Fram for King's Bay, Spitzebergen. The freight steamer Hobby will take the airplanes and mechanics.

It will require about a week's work in King's Bay to assemble the airplanes and give them trial flights. After the trials the planes will go to Dane Island, from which the expedition will make the final dash for the North Pole.

Dane Island is about one hour's flight from King's Bay. He said his present intention was to return to Spitzbergen, after reaching the North Pole.

DEATH OF LAST MOUNT OF "BUFFALO BILL"

Denver, Colo., April 8.—"McKinley," the last mount of "Buffalo Bill" (Colonel William F. Cody) and known as one of the world's greatest show horses during the latter years of the noted showman's circus days, is dead.

The horse, a beautiful Arabian, dropped dead yesterday in the stall he has occupied here since the death of his master early in 1917.

LEADER OF GANG WHICH SWINDLED MERCHANTS

New York, April 8.—Harry Goldstein, of Brooklyn, arrested here today on a charge of passing a worthless check, was said by Assistant District Attorney Garrison, who will present his case to the grand jury Monday, to be the leader of a gang which has swindled merchants in many cities out of thousands of dollars worth of goods.

Predicts Expansion In American Industry

New York, April 8.—"I believe the next twenty years will see the greatest expansion and the greatest accomplishment American industry has ever known," said Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in a speech before the annual meeting of the New York Building Congress today.

"It is to this end," the steelmaster continued, "that God has endowed this country with the vastest of natural resources and a people of the most alert integrity, the bravest spirit and the finest of ideals."

"If I had my choice to be born again, I believe I would choose to be a young man today," he told the nearly 2,000 architects, builders and workingmen attending the meeting.

Co-operation between competitors in industry and democratic relations between employer and workingmen were points on which the speaker dwelt. He prided himself that in his long career, in which he had handled hundreds of thousands of workingmen he had never had a strike.

"I believe," he said, "that among the workingmen of America there is more of real sound morality, more of real decent living than among many of those who rank themselves higher. I am glad they call me Charley."

Mr. Schwab recounted the story of his first meeting with Jimmy Dugan, one of his older friends among his former employes. He was taking Andrew Carnegie through the plant at Homestead, Pa., many years ago just after Mr. Carnegie had made him manager. "I wanted to make an impression," Mr. Schwab said, "and as the dear old man and I walked around everything looked fine and I was swelling with pride until we came to the great open hearth furnace. And as Mr. Carnegie and I loked over the rail we saw an Irish workingman sitting against the wall of the pit smoking his pipe. 'My lord,' I thought, 'this looks bad for the new manager.'

"So I hollered down, 'Hey there, what are you dongZ' and he looked up and hollered back:

"'Who the hades are you?'

"'I'm the new manager,' I began but he stopped me.

"'Well, young feller,' he called up, 'you've got a good job. You better go an watch it.'

"That was Jimmy Dugan."

PLAN INVISIBLE LIGHT FOR SECRET SIGNALS

Baltimore, April 8.—Invisible light is opening up a new field for the transmission of secret signals in warfare and for the detection of chemical frauds and forgeries, Dr. Robert W. Wood, professor of experimental physics at Johns Hopkins university, asserted tonight at a public session of the 69th meeting of the American Chemical society.

Intro red rays, the long light waves which ordinarily produce no color sensation on the eye, can be employed he explained, in military signal lamps for flashing signals which can be seen only by observers using field glasses equipped with a special screen similar to that in the lamp.

"To an enemy not equipped with like apparatus," he said, "these rays are invisible. Signals can be transmitted in this manner in full sunlight for a distance of from five to eight miles, depending on atmospheric conditions.

"It has been found that these rays cause a marked change in the appearance of objects. An airplane, for instance, could be painted with an enemy insignia which, however, would not mislead friendly troops equipped with special binoculars by which the true insignia would be visible."

BODY FOUND IN THE QUINNIPIAC RIVER

New Haven, April 8—The body of Patrick J. O'Connor, 50 years old, of this city, an employe of the Connecticut company who had been missing from his home since the night of January 24, was found floating in the Quinnipiac river in South Front street. The discovery was made by a number of small boys who were playing along the banks. The man was identied by cards found in his pockets. The body was fully clothed in working clothes and as far as the police investigation showed there was no foul play.

O'Connor disappeared from his home on Saturday, January 24, the day of the total eclipse of the sun. He was traced up until 7 o'clock that night when he left a barber shop in Ferry street.

Relatives and friends of the man are of the opinion that he did not commit suicide. They declare that he was in the best of health, working and on good terms with everyone he associated with.

People along the river front claim that the body must have gone into the river some distance up-stream and floated down with the current.

No Fires In The Open In Massachusetts

Forest Wardens Have Been Instructed to Revoke All Permits — Fires Numerous.

Boston, April 8.—Chief Fire Warden Maxwell C. Hutchins today notified all town forest wardens to revoke all permits for fires in the open and not to issue any more until the woods are protected by a sufficient rainfall. More than 600 forest fires have been reported within six weeks and the weather bureau has informed the state department of conservation that no rain is expected before Saturday.

FIREMEN FOUGHT FOREST FIRE IN STRATFORD

Stratford, April 8—Firemen worked for four hours today fighting the worst brush fire that has ever occurred in the town. Territory covering four square miles in the northern part of the town was swept by the flames. It was feared at one time that the fire would spread over to the Success Hill section, where the powder magazines of the U. M. C. company are located, but by starting "back fires" and soaking down large stretches of grass on the rim of the burning area, the fire was eventually gotten under control.

A dozen buildings were saved from destruction by the work of the firemen from No. 1. company at the Center, working under the direction of Assistant Chief William Anthony, and assisted by a large number of volunteers and neighbors attracted to the scene by the great clouds of smoke which rose above the fire-swept territory.

The only building damaged was a barn on the farm of Police Sergeant Ben smith. The roof of the barn was set on fire by sparks, but the fire was extinguished before it had gained any headway.

DISASTROUS FOREST FIRE 20 MILES EAST OR WESTERLY

Westerly, R. I., April 8.—A forest fire which started nearly 30 miles east of here early todoay had burned over more than 12 square miles of timber and farm lands tonight, destroying four houses and two barns in its path. The fire was burning fiercely over a three mile front, unchecked, tonight.

Firemen from five villages, Westerly, Wakefield, Peacedale, Richmond and Watch Hill, were called to fight the flames. Although able to divert the fire from Charlestown Beach and the summer homes there, they were powerless to check its spread in the direction of the Boston Post road to the westward.

Fanned by a heavy wind, it was moving westward tonight and it was said that there was little chance that it would be checked soon. One of the buildings saved was the historic "Old Indian meeting house" in Charlestown. In this old stone structure, miles from the main highway, the Indians of this region still meet every August for their annual "peace meeting." Three buildings nearby were burned, but the fire passed the Indian meeting house by.

FIRES SWEPT OVER 200 ACRES OF PINE GROWTH

Marshfield, Mass., April 8. — Fire which started in two places shortly after noon today between Marshfield and East Marshfield, swept over 200 acres of pine growth before it was brought under control. The fire departments of Scituate, Pembrooke, Duxbury and Marshfield joined in fighting the flames which caused damage totalling thousands of dollars, and which, for a time, threatened several buildings, including the Marshfield town farm.

A large quantity of sawed lumber in addition to the buildings in the path of the flames, was saved only by a struggle on the part of the combined fire departments. A preliminary estimate tonight placed the loss at $7,000. Police were investigating reports that the fires was of incendiary origin.

100 VOLUNTEERS FIGHTING FIRE AT TIVERTON, R. I.

Tierton, R. I., April 8.—Three fires broke out in the woods in the southern section of this place today and about 100 volunteers were forced to strenuous effort to keep the flames from two buildings. The fire in the Sandy Pond district burned over 50 acres of cordwood and the others destroyed mixed growth over wide areas.

PLEADED GUILTY TO THREATENING ACTRESS

Cambridge, Mass., April 8.—Orval Thompson, self-styled minister of the Church of Christ, latter day saints, pleaded guilty in Middlesex superior court today an an indictment charging him with threatening Mrs. Marion Fisher, an actress, and with intent to extort money. The case was placed on file on condition that Thompson leave the state and return to his home at Independence, Miss.

The indictment alleged that on March 8, Thompson wrote to Mrs. Fisher threatening actual bodily harm unles she sent him $150 through the mails. Thompson said he had previously paid the woman $200 "for services rendered," and desired to recover a part of the sum.

TWO WHEATON PAINTINGS BURNED IN LOG CABIN

Nyack, N. Y., April 8.—Nearly 700 paintings, representing the life work of Francis Wheaton, artist and missionar, were destroyed today when his log cabin, in the Ramapo Mountains, near Suffern, burned.

Wheaton, for fifty years a missionary among the "Jackson Whites," an isolated community in the Ramapos made up of descendants of Hessian deserters of the Revolutionary war, runaway negro slaves, early white settlers and Indians, built the cabin when first he came into the mountains. The paintings depicted the lives of these people, among whom he had resulted in eradicating some of the abuses.

FRENCH MINISTRY NOW IN A PRECARIOUS SITUATION

President Herriot Has Decided Taking Risk of Fall on a Side Issue Rather Than on a Fight on the Financial Question —Senate Gave Herriot a Majority of Only Two Votes on a Question of Confidence, and Later Two Senators Explained That Their Votes Had Been Miscounted.

Paris, April 8—For hours this evening Paris was convinced that Premier Herriot had decided that his government should fall, if fall it must, on a side issue in preference to risking a fight on the financial question. His raising the question of confidence in the senate on a difference of merely 166,000 francs on the school appropriation was taken as a challenge to the senate, and when the senate gave him a majority of only two votes, which became a minority of two votes when two senators explained that their votes had been miscounted, it was at once assumed that Herriot's resignation was certain.

The minister of finance, M. De Monzie, issued a statement which was taken to mean that tomorrow's statement by the Bank of France will give absolutely correct figures, but the minister's words seemed purposely obscure. The circulation last week was announced as almost 41,000,000,000 francs, which is the legal limit. Tomorrow acording to M. Berenger, reporter of the finance committee of the senate, this item should appear as 43,000,000,000 francs.

M. Herriot told the finance committee of the chamber that the Bank of France had sent him a sharply worded letter expressing astonishment that the bill increasing the circulation had not been introduced in the chamber Monday. M. De Monzie intervened, saying that the letter in his view should be disregarded and need not be read in parliament; he intended asking the bank to withdraw it.

Later in the evening the governor of the bank sent a second letter, replacing the first, saying in effect that agreement between the government and the bank was complete. The bank had undoubtedly expected that the financial bill, or that part of it referring to an increase in that limit of the circulation and advances to the state, would be rushed through parliament before its next statement appeared tomorrow.

M. De Monzie informed the correspondents that the government and bank were in perfect agreement, adding: "Otherwise the bank is free to say to the contrary, as the bank is a free establishment in a free state."

M. De Monzie's financial measures have reached the melting pot. Deputy Violette, who is reported to the finance committee of the chamber, has been charged by it to draft a report on the De Monzie bill, introducing the various modifications suggested during the committee's sittings. The deputy has conferred with M. De Monzie and M. Blum with regard to this amended text, but nothing is known for certain as to what form the proposed changes have taken.

The finance minister has said that he considers three points of his bill as essential: First, the principle of a loan; second, the rate of interest on the loan, and, third, the estimated amount of individual fortunes. Report has it that M. Violette's views coincide with the socialists rather than with De Monzie. The party wants a ten per cent. capital levy, without the money becoming a three per cent. loan.

EXPLAINED SITUATION OF FRENCH TREASURY

Paris, April 8.—(By the A. P.)—Secretary of Finance M. De Monzie issued a statement this evening to the effect that he fully explained the situation of the French treasury to the finance committee of the chamber yesterday. He submitted a number of documents referring to negotiations of the treasury, particularly those carried on since 1924. These negotiations presumably were those carried on between the government and the bank of France regarding the unauthorized overdraft made by the government, although the minister's statement does not say so specifically.

M. De Monzie's statement proceeds: "Tomorrow the weekly statement of the Bank of France should appear without the government having intervened in the establishment of the various items forming the bank's liabilities, which deal with either bills in circulation or the treasury's current account. The publication of tomorrow's bank statement will show the exact agreement of the bank's books with the declaration I have made in the name of the government."

The finance secretary's statement concludes by pointing out the exchange market shows that the political decision taken on Friday has been welcomed by the Paris Bourse and by foreign markets as well. This in itself confirms the finance minister's conviction "that a sincere appeal to the country is the wish of all good Frenchmen and all abroad who are the friends of France. It is clear that a truthful exposition of the situation must be a prelude for the discussion of inter-allied debts."

DECISION RESERVED IN DEATH OF MISS DONNELLY

Greenwich, April 8.—Coroner John J. Phelan reserved decision here today after holding an inquest into the death of Miss Beatrice Donnelly of New York city, who was shot and killed in the woods here Sunday. James O'Mahoney of New York has confessed that he did the shooting and will be given a hearing in borough court here Saturday morning on a charge of murder.

O'Mahoney took an active part at the inquest, giving close attention to the testimony offered, commencing often on the stories told by the various witnesses and talking with police officers who stood nearby. He showed some signs of nervousness when he first entered the court room but this soon disappeared after the session had been opened.

Told by the coroner that he could not be compelled to say anything that would incriminate him at any later trial, O'Mahoney said he knew his legal rights perfectly. He said he had made a deposition to the prosecuting attorney and that no one would know anything further.

That O'Mahoney intends to conduct his own case was indicated at the inquest. He testified that it was his wish that no counsel be secured for him but that as the Connecticut law compels him to have an attorney, he would be represented by counsel at nay further hearings. He said, however, that he would conduct his own case.

O'Mahoney testified that he served in the world war for three years and six months, that he came to this country in July, 1922, and that he met Miss Donnelly about two years ago. When asked whether he was on good terms with the members of Miss Donnelly's family, O'Mahoney replied: "I refuse to answer. My will is my own."

In response to a question where he got his revolver, he said he took it from a German officer during the war.

HELD IN $100,000 BAIL ON KIDNAPPING CHARGE

New York, April 8. — Mrs. Mary Jones, 41, today was held in $100,000 bail for the grand jury on a kidnapping charge growing out of the disappearance of Raimonde Vaon Maluski, Jr., 5 year old, who has been missing since March 29.

As several witnesses testified that they had seen the child in the woman's custody the evening of the disappearance, Mrs. Jones shouted at each, "You're a liar."

While the court proceedings were on, police continued their search for the boy. Pictures of the child still are being flashed on screens in neighborhood motion picture theatres in an effort to produce persons who have seen him, but the police believe him dead.

Raimonde Von Maluski, apartment house janitor and father of the boy, attributed the motive of the kidnapping to revenge, claiming that Mrs. Jones had threatened to do him injury because he recently had caused her arrest for petit larceny. Her 24-year old husband, Von Maluski's assistant, corroborated the testimony.

A taxi driver testified that Mrs. Jones was the woman he had as his fare the night of Raimonde's disappearance. He identified a photograph of the boy as that of the child with her at the time. A school girl also told of having seen the woman and child together.

COUNT KAROLYI BREAKS SILENCE IN MONTREAL

Montreal, April 8—Count Michael Karolyi, who was first president of the Hungarian Republic, and whose three months visit in the United States was marked by efforts to have the United States state department release him from a pledge not to discuss political affairs while there, broke his silence for the first time within a few hours of his arrival on Canadian soil.

His comments, made to a group of reporters who met him, revolved about the present government of Admiral Horthy in Hungary. So reactionary and opposed to democracy in this regime he said, that not only is the safety of Hungary menaced but also the peace of Europe.

Throughout his talk, he carefully refrained from criticising the action of the United States state department in holding him to his pledge which he admitted taking in order that his passports might be granted to permit him to visit his wife, then ill in a hospital in New York City. It was not within his province to advise the United States, he said.

The only criticism he voiced against any American was directed against Stoddard Menken, former President of the National Security League, who made an effort to have Countess Karolyi excluded from the United States when she arrived there for a lecture tour. It was "unjust to attack a lone woman," Count Karolyi said.

MUSSOLINI IS RULING WITH AN IRON HAND

Rome, April 8—(By the A. P.)—Benito Mussolini, the premier, for the second time within a week showed, in the opinion of political observers, that he, more than any European statesman or ruler since Louis XIV, of France could say "I am the state."

But in both cases of his assumption of personal control of Italy's affairs the premier's single-handed triumphs are considered to have marked a setback for Fascism. On the heels of the settlement of the military problem Tuesday night by taking over temporarily the portfolio of Minister of War, Mussolini later in the evening and this morning adjusted the knotty stock exchange situation, which seemed fraught with danger to the danger's financial life.

Fascism's last minute renunciation of responsibility for the army reform plan of General Di Giorlo, who gave up the ministry of war after the senate, on request of Mussolini, postponed debate on it, paved the way for the premier's triumph in the military situation, while his triumph in the bourse impasse, was earned at the expense of drastic modifications—amounting almost to renunciation—of Finance Minister De Stefani's new regulations, which had caused the deadlock between the government and the traders on the bourse.

WILLIMANTIC

The April term of The Windham county superior court is to be held in this city with Judge Leonard J. Nickerson of Cornwall, with a heavy docket of criminal cases, to which the business of the session will be confined. There are forty-two cases on the list, seventeen continued and twenty-five new. Some ten cases as a result of violations during the past week will be added to the list of new cases. Twelve of these cases have interest in this city with the principals residing in or near Willimantic. On the criminal docket are also thirty-seven probation cases, several of which will be disposed of. Of the probationers twelve are residents of Willimantic.

Future meetings of the strikers are to open at 10 o'clock instead of 7:45 as in the past it was announced at the mass meeting held Wednesday morning, with Miss Mary Kelleher presiding. State Senator John H. Powers of Cumberland, R. I., will be the speaker this (Thursday) forenoon, also Horace Riviere of Manchester, N. H., who made a fine impression here several days ago. The meeting will be open to the public Friday morning, when Thomas F. McMahon of Providence, national president of the United Textile Workers is expected to deliver an address. Frank Gorman, of Providence, a member of the national executive board of the Textile Workers will be the speaker next Monday morning. In closing the meeting Miss Kelleher further explained the functioning of an arbitration board, as suggested by President McMahon and backed by the Chamber of Commerce.

The resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce, as introduced by Captain Frank P. Fenton, relative to an arbitration board to settle the strike at the American Thread company provides that the differences existing be submitted to the state board of mediation and arbitration, as provided for and the statutes of Connecticut as now constituted, under appointment by the governor or some local board of arbitration. Copies of the resolution have been sent to parties officially representing the company and the employes, with a request that the resolution be acted upon. The present state board of mediation and arbitration comprises Frank A. Haggerty, Hartford, Patrick F. O'Meara, New Haven and Patrick F. McDonough of New Britain, who hold office until July 1, 1925.

The fourteenth anniversary of Exchange was duly observed with a special program of speakers and special singing at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange Club, held Wednesday noon. In the center of the festive board was a birthday cake adorned with fourteen candles. The cake was later cut by President Dr. George E. Wilcox and each member was regaled with a slice. The Earache Boys, Dr. C. A. Simonds, E. J. Donnelly, Dr. R. C. White and the human gong, Robert H. Fenton, rendered a splendid imitation of the song, Sweet Adeline at the outset of the program. They were organized by Song Leader Charles H. Caswell. Prof. George H. Lamson Jr., of Storrs, was a guest of William F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs. Rev. F. C. Williams, chairman of the entertainment committee, presented the various speakers, who were: Dr. Wilcox, Dr. F. E. Guild, E. J. Donnelly, Frank M. Lincoln, E. A. Case and Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones. The speakers, headed by Judge Donnelly, outlined the history, beginning with the foundation, the growth and the principles of Exchange in a most able manner. The first club was founded by Charles A. Berkey of Detroit and was the outgrowth of another organization known as The Boosters' Club, which existed in Detroit as far back as 1896. The first Exchange club was officially organized April 11, 1911. Without any incentive on the part of the founders to take such a step, Exchange began to rapidly expand until within comparatively few years it became a national organization and its motto, Unity for Service, spread far and wide.

Funeral services for Jean Baptiste Gladue were held from the home of Desire Turcotte, 89 South street, on Wednesday morning. Requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. J. J. A bean supper, which was postponed from last week Friday, was very successfully given at the Windham Center Congregational church on Wednesday evening, under the direction of Mrs. W. F. Maine. The program which followed was arranged by Mrs. M. J. Farrell of Storrs, and included several selections by a male quartette, made up of Mr. Farrell, Mr. Ahern, Mr. Manter and Mr. Hypes. Vocal solos were given by Mr. Farrell, and violin selections by Mr. Bulbuilian, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Farrell.

The last meeting of the year of the Sorority of the Methodist Episcopal church was held Tuesday evening in the church auditorium, with a very good attendance, the president, Mrs. Clara H. Williams, in the chair. It was voted to hold the annual election in April, to hold a penny social next month under the management of Miss Ruth Webber, also a rummage sale. Mrs. Anna Spellman is to be in charge of the rummage sale, assisted by Mrs. Alice Easterbrooks. Mrs. Nellie Weeks is chairman of the banquet committee.

Services were held Wednesday evening at the Methodist church when Rev. Florence Jones, pastor of the Spring Hill church, Mansfield, officiated. Friday evening there will be worship, meditation and the celebration of the Lord's Supper at the Methodist church, Rev. E. M. Pickop, of South Coventry to officiate. There will be special music by the choir.

JEWETT CITY

The men who are collecting the garbage about the borough seem to be expected to do a number of things that the householders should do instead. They say, in some cases, they are expected to clean up the yard, or go into the cellar and bring out the ashes, etc. No garbage will be carried away unless it is placed in convenient places to be reached by the men with as little trouble and time as possible. That is common sense, certainly, and saves time and money for the borough. When the amount of money appropriated for this purpose is spent there will be no more collecting. So the men can't be all day cleaning up one yard.

The meeting of the Congregational Missionary society was held Wednesday afternoon at Miss S. K. Adams'. Miss Ethel Thompson, who has been ill for several days, is improving.

Reports of shooting from an automobile going through Voluntown late Sunday night and then on the road to Jewett City were heard about, but no one could give a cause for the commotion.

The Jewett City correspondents are getting quite accustomed to being called from their slumbers at a late hour at night, or early in the morning, and being obliged to try and get something together for the morning's news. Two letters lost entirely and one brought in too late for publication, inside of a short time, would jar the best disposition!

Mrs. Gilbert Miner Jr. 30, died suddenly at her home in Sylvandale Wednesday evening. The cause of her death was heart trouble, attacks of which she had had at intervals for two years. She has recently had grip and this may have caused the fatal attack. She had put the children to bed and not feeling well, she went to bed herself and was ill only about an hour.

Mrs. Miner was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cragin. She is survived by her husband, who is a clerk in the Jewett City postoffice, and adjutant of the local American Legion post and three children, Gilbert, Kenneth and Bernard. Her parents and a brother, George, live in Norwich, a sister, Mrs. Austin Harris, lives in Jewett City, and another sister, Mrs. Ruth Beaudry, resides on Fishers Island.

Martin Cantone, 24, of Stamford, was fined $400 and sentenced to 60 days in jail for keeping a place where liquor was sold and for actual sales.

Mrs. Lee Suffered From All These Troubles, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well

Terre Haute, Indiana.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time and dizzy, had no appetite and could not sleep. I tried different medicines for a year but they did not help me. Then my husband saw the ad. for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and had me take it. I regained my strength and never felt better in my life. It completely restored me to health. I had practically no suffering when my baby boy was born and he is very strong and healthy. I know that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine a woman can take before and after child birth for health and strengh. I would be willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs Wm. J. Lee, Route E, Box 648, Terre Haute, Indiana.

Yes—you rinse instead of rub the clothes clean.

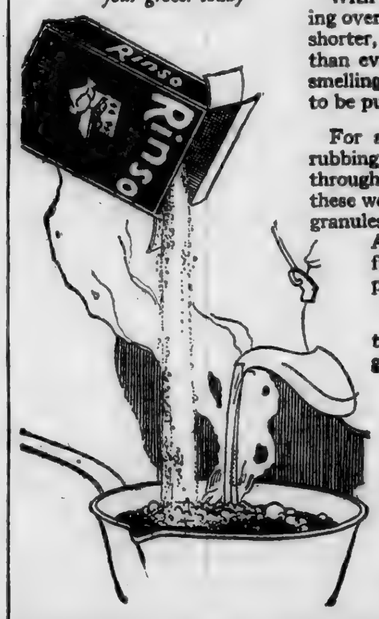
This new kind of soap loosens all the dirt—works for you—leaves you only the rinsing . . .

Get the Big New Package or the regular size from your grocer today



NOW in a million homes washday has lost its terrors. In these houses light-hearted women turn to dainty tasks or delicious idleness while the wonderful new kind of laundry soap does their washing for them.

With all the hard work or scrubbing over the tubs gone, washday is shorter, cheerier, easier. Earlier than ever heaps of snowy, sweet-smelling linen are waiting—ready to be put away.

For all the old hard work of rubbing and rubbing to get soap through the fibres of their clothes these women just substitute Rinso granules dissolved in boiling water.

The satiny lather penetrates the closest weaves, gently loosens and floats out the dirt. Only the most stubborn spots may require a little light rubbing with dry Rinso between the hands. Your work on washday becomes just the lighter work of rinsing.

And how fresh and clean the rinsing leaves the clothes—the colors bright and new, white things snowy and fragrant.

"Saves me so much time with the children's little ginghams," wrote one mother. "Now Lesalie, John and Dorothy play freely without eternally nagging about keeping their clothes neat. If they get dirty—never mind. Rinso is so quick and easy that I no longer worry."

Use Rinso the way you like best to wash, for soaking or boiling—whatever your method, you will find Rinso does the hard work for you. It is perfect for washing machines. Twenty-two leading makers of washing machines recommend it.

Rinso is not only wonderful for the weekly wash. Thousands of women have written us how quick it is for washing dishes, porcelain sinks and bathtubs, floors and linoleums. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

For the best results—

You dissolve Rinso in boiling water to release all of its wonderful cleansing power. Use enough to get big lasting suds.

Already over a million packages are selling every week

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Chief John McFarland has a complaint from the Paco Manufacturing company that the indiscriminate dumping of rubbish into the Assawaga river near and above the footbridge at the state armory is causing difficulty for the mill company. Refuse that includes tin cans, bottles and many other things gets into the gratings protecting the mill channel and causes the company expense in clearing the stuff away. Barrels of rotting apples and other such things are thrown into the river by careless residents, making the stream something like an open sewer.

Mrs. Emma Curtis Hopkins, 70, died early Wednesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Estelle Darrow of Dayville. Mrs. Hopkins, formerly a resident in New York, had been ill at her sister's home for about a year. In addition to Mrs. Darrow, Mrs. Hopkins leaves two other sisters, Mrs. Lena Tripp of this town and Mrs. Jennie Emerson of San Diego, Cal., and a brother, Louis Curtis, who is a railway mail clerk and makes his home at New London.

Mrs. Hopkins was a woman of unusual culture and experience and a writer, whose works have attracted special attention, on advanced religious thought. Her husband, dead many years, was a professor at Philips Exeter academy. At the time Mrs. Hopkins' health failed seriously she was preparing certain volumes for publication, and the work is now being continued by her secretary in New York. Mrs. Hopkins had commanded the admiration and interest of many among the ultra fashionable and wealthy of New York and through them and their assistance had been able to accomplish a great deal in the cult of which she was such a remarkable exponent.

Mrs. Hopkins was born in Killingly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus ...ates.

Rhode Island's present consideration a plan to have the legislature authorize a subsidy for "country doctors" becomes of special interest to Killingly and other towns bordering Rhode Island because entrance to this community's physicians serving patients over the border has found place in a deluge of publicity that is attending the discussion.

Says one article that has received ... circulation in Rhode Island: "The country doctor is disappearing much more rapidly than society is losing institutions to take his place. Many of the reasons that account for his disappearance have come about so easily that there is little chance of ...dernment over them at all. Other reasons are claimed to be different in character more artificial, perhaps ... the sort which medical authorities are tempted to wonder if society is not a little too particular, after all, in some ways."

One of the Rhode Island communities that is without a resident physician is the neighboring town of Foster, just over the border from Killingly. Physicians from this town are among those who come to the aid and comfort of the sick when Foster needs them.

Foster for years has been a town of dwindling population. It has no compact settlements, being largely agricultural. This is reason why a physician finds it either unprofitable or undesirable to take up residence within its limits for other and more populous communities offer a wider and more lucrative field of practice for the man of medicine.

Yet Foster has furnished some of the most interesting country doctor history in Rhode Island. For many years a Dr. Mowry Arnold, a physician of the old school, occupied the Dr. Arnold house at Foster Center. Upon his death his practice was taken up by his son, Dr. Henry Arnold. Another son, Dr. Bernard Arnold practiced in the next town to Foster, Scituate, until his death a short time ago and his wife, Dr. Frances Arnold, is still in practice there.

The steady decline in the number of resident country physicians has alarmed Rhode Island and steps are being taken to subsidize physicians who will locate in these communities.

Mrs. Bridget Riley, 64, wife of William Riley, died early Wednesday at Wauregan, where she had been resident for 40 years and was known by all the people of the village. Mrs. Riley succumbed after an illness that had endured for about a year. She was a native of Ireland, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Reidy. At a very early age she came to this country where other members of her family were located. Mrs. Riley was a member of the Sacred Heart parish at Wauregan and of the Rosary society thereof. A splendid Christian woman, her death will bring sorrow not only to her own home and that of her relatives but into the homes of those who had known and loved her during the period of her residence in Wauregan.

Mrs. Riley leaves her husband, two daughters, Miss Katherine Riley of Wauregan and Mrs. Mary Gorman of Waterbury, a son, James, of Wauregan; a brother, Patrick Reid of Wauregan and two sisters, Mrs. Ellen Lenihan of Danielson and Miss Katherine Reid of Lowell.

Mrs. Mary Agnes Wilson, 47, died early Wednesday morning at her home in Elmville. Her death came as a stock to the community. Last Sunday Mrs. Wilson was up and about and last Friday was out for a walk. She had been ill for some time, but her condition was not regarded as at all serious. During Tuesday her condition suddenly became very serious and the last rites of the church were administered. Mrs. Wilson was a native of New Haven and the wife of William H. Wilson, who recently has been employed in Springfield, but formerly was at New Haven. Besides her husband, Mrs. Wilson leaves seven children, ranging between 5 and 17 years of age. The family came to Elmville from New Haven about six years ago.

Wednesday afternoon a prayer service for Frank Willard was held at his home on Cottage street at 1:30, followed at 2 o'clock by a funeral service at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood on Academy street. Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church was the officiating clergyman. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Relatives and friends acted as bearers.

Miss Adelaide Barber, 81, died early Wednesday morning at an institution near Dayville, where she had been an inmate for the past 16 years. Miss Barber was born in the northeastern section of the town of Killingly on Nov. 1, 1843, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Barber, and had spent her life in this town. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy and removed to his rooms here.

At his home in Attawaugan, Wednesday afternoon, funeral services for Walter Erskine Frissell were conducted by Rev. Mr. Newton of the Methodist church and attended by relatives and friends, representatives of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Danielson and officials of the town of Killingly. The board of the town of Killingly adjourned their regular monthly meeting at noon in order to attend the funeral. Burial was in Grove street cemetery at Putnam, where the Masonic burial service was conducted by Harvr Brearley and A. Van Thompson of Moriah lodge. E. L. Darbie, speaker of the house at Hartford, Alphonse Seymour, F. L. Newell, W. B. Chandler, Elmer Wood and Charles Burdick were bearers. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

On Friday of this week County Agnt F. L. Davis will be at the farm of John Z. LaBelle at Ballouville, a matter of interest to members of the Farmers' association in this territory.

Theodore Fulton remained in a semi-conscious condition at his home on Academy street Wednesday and he was regarded as very critically ill.

Again Wednesday smoke from forest fires was visible from Danielson. The dry period has made it especially easy to accidentally start a fire in grass or woodland territory.

In observance of Holy Thursday there will be special services at St. James' church today.

The current issue of the Health Bulletin of Connecticut shows that Canterbury was the only Windham county town that did not report any deaths during the month of January.

Estimates of the present population of Killingly, as based on the last United States census, indicate that it will be 5,051 on July 1 of this year, an increase of several hundred people since the last general census was taken in 1920.

Members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club are discussing a plan to buy a large number of 6-inch trout after the end of the present open season and releasing them in brooks in surrounding country, that they may be well developed by the opening of the trout fishing season of 1925.

Two former residents of Danielson are sharing in the romance of Miami's startling development work. Thomas O'Brien and George Bruce are the men. Mr. O'Brien has ridden to affluence on the wings of the real estate boom down in that Florida city. Mr. Bruce has amassed wealth in the more prosiac calling of an electrician.

Three years ago Mr. O'Brien went south, primarily for the benefit of his health. He was not overburdened with money when he arrived at Miami and sought out a $5 per week room—and that isn't much in the new Eldorado—to ease along his skimpy roll until he could find something to do and get in touch with things as they are done down there. In a short time he obtained work as a house painter and labored at this calling until he had accumulated a small amount of reserve capital. He invested the greater part of this in a houselot, paying something down and agreeing to make future payments at stated intervals. His payments were not completed when opportunity offered to sell the lot at a fat advance in price. He accepted, took his profits and bought another lot, this time paying spot cash.

It appears that Mr. O'Brien was a crafty picker of sites. He had been the owner of the second lot but a short time when it was required by the promoters of a big business block. They paid a top price to get it and thereby placed Mr. O'Brien on Easy street. Continuing to operate in real estate he made other purchases and at the present time has a clear and unencumbered title to land for which he has refused $75,000, and in addition owns eleven other lots of a total value of $25,000 at least. His cleanup in three years is at least $100,000, and he landed in Miami with less than $100.

Finding business too slow in Danielson, George Bruce ventured south last year. He had an electrical contracting business here. He has made good with a bang at Miami. None here have realized until the news just trickled in from the south that he installed the aerial and much of the other equipment for broadcasting station WMBF, the Fleetwood hotel, a station that scores of radio owners here have listened to with pleasure during the winter season. The radio installation at the Fleetwood was but an incident of his success down there. He did all the electric wiring and electrical installations for this new 14-story hotel, a pride of the south, with its 900 rooms for guests and palatial appointments throughout, and has had an avalanche of other business in his few short months at Miami. His success is reflected in his purchase of a home site on which he is now erecting a splendid bungalow.

The success of Messrs O'Brien and Bruce at Miami, which is being duplicated on a smaller scale by Abel Gingras, also of Danielson, at Winterhaven, will turn the thoughts of many a man in this territory toward Florida and its opportunities. With New England slowing up and held down by its conservatism, valuable in many ways as that asset is, the man who feels the urge to get into a land where things are booming, will be tempted by the stories of successes of local interest in Florida.

Patridges to be met with through the countryside appear to be going through a period of temporary tameness. Rural Carrier Arthur L. Logee tells of one that strutted out into the road ahead of his machine under which the patridge scratched, apparently wholly unafraid, when it had been stopped. A similar experience has also been reported by another Danielson man.

At the annual borough election next Monday the polls will be open at 4 o'clock, the usual hour at such elections. The business meeting will follow the close of the balloting.

Peter Young, who has been at Miami during the winter season, has returned to his home near East Killingly.

Russell N. Chapin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Chapin, will not lose the sight of his right eye, injured the past week when a stone thrown by an...nese boy accidently struck him and broke his eyeglasses, pieces of the glass penetrating the eyeball.

There will be special Easter musical programs at all of the churches in Danielson at next Sunday's services.

Rev. C. J. Armstrong spoke at the Holy week services at the Congregational church in Wauregan Wednesday evening.

The Easter recess for pupils in the schools of Killingly will be a brief one, as they have but just completed a week's vacation.

Members of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Congregational church had a meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Silvio Maynard of Washington D. C. have been here to attend the funeral of Mr. Maynard's mother, Mrs. Phillip S. Maynard.

Railroad men call attention to the fact that it is a dangerous practice to crawl under the gates at the Main street crossing while a train is passing over. There are some who do this thing, the chances of being injured notwithstanding.

On Center street, Thomas Bradford is having the west end of his business block remodeled so as to provide additional space on the upper floor. The change involves putting on a new roof.

A section of land recently purchased by Joseph LaBelle, corner of Broad and Chester streets has been cleared and graded and soon will be ready for building operations.

PUTNAM

With two exceptions, the principal of the Israel Putnam school and a teacher in the eighth grade, all of the teachers for the public schools of Putnam for the next school year have been selected.

The appropriations for teachers' salaries for the past year, for the coming year, and the present payroll are given below: Appropriated in 1924: High school, $16,200; Israel Putnam school, $15,150; Smith street school, $3,500; Sawyer district $4,450; Rural $1,800; supervisors, $3,600. Total $44,700.

Appropriated for 1925-26—High school, $17,300; Israel Putnam school, $16,650; Smith street school, $3,690; Sawyer district, $4,600; rural, $1,830; supervisors, $4,500. Total $49,400.

Present Payroll—High school, $16,200; Israel Putnam school, $15,150; Smith street school, $3,500; Sawyer district, $4,450; rural, $1,800; supervisors, $3,600. Total, $44,700.

During the past year the schools of the town have been without a music teacher and the members of the school committee felt that it was imperative that this condition should be remedied. Miss Anna Ash of Pomfret, a daughter of the late John Ash, was elected, at a salary of $1,250. She also teaches music in the Pomfret schools. She will give three days of the week to Putnam and the remainder to Pomfret. Miss Ash is recognized as a well schooled musician and a successful instructor.

The Israel Putnam school has also been one teacher short. The salaries for these two positions make up a large part of the difference between the amount appropriated for 1924 and the present payroll.

The question was raised in committee meeting as to whether it would not be possible to go along for another year without an additional teacher in the high school because of the financial and industrial situation, but a motion to this effect was defeated by a vote of six to four.

It was stated at the meeting that the cost of Putnam schools is not higher and in many cases lower than towns where the population and other conditions are similar.

At the weekly meeting and luncheon of the directors of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce a resolution was introduced by Thomas deCoudres and passed by a unanimous vote, thanking E. C. Rogers for what he had done for that body as well as for the city.

A. T. Folger, who succeeds Mr. Rogers as manager of the Putnam Inn, was the guest of the directors at the luncheon. He said that he hoped to win the same confidence and respect that Mr. Rogers had won by following hte policy of his predecessor. He realized he continued, that the prosperity of an institution like the Inn depended in a great measure upon and reflected the prosperity of the community.

Judge F. F. Russell called attention to the fact that the town clock on the Congregational church was not functioning properly. He had been able, he said, to get along, although not without difficulty, without a weather vane when the one on the Donahue clock was destroyed by fire, but to go through the day without the aid of the town clock was more than should be asked of the average citizen.

President Alex. Gilman, in putting the motion offered by Mr. deCoudres said that he thought it expressed the views of everyone, htat Mr. Rogers had first made the Inn one of the best hotels in the state, and that what he had done in the way of substantial improvement to the property in the year just passed was an inspiration to everyone in the city and had helped them to keep their courage during a depressing period.

Leslie L. Mason, 57, manager of the Mason Manufacturing company at South Paris, Me., who died suddenly at St. Petersburg, Florida, last week, was the husband of Lucia Trowbridge, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Trowbridge of Pomfret and a graduate of the Putnam High school. Mr. Mason was her second husband, the first husband having been drowned in Casco Bay at Portland, Maine, when he fell from a sail boat.

Mr. Mason had but recently joined his family in Florida. He was taken with influenza and died after a short illness. Besides his wife, he leaves two children, his mother and a sister.

At a meeting of Putnam Delphian Chapter Wednesday afternoon, April 15, at the home of Mrs. Justin S. Greene on Center street, Miss Ellen Wheelock is to speak of her recent trip to Panama.

The Putnam Country Club is looking forward to its best season and it is expected that the full membership, limited to 200, will be reached by the first of May. There is, however, a chance for a few more memberships at the present time. When the limit has been reached there will be a waiting list. At the last meeting of the governors eight applications were acted upon favorably and since then a number more have been received.

Never before has the course been in such excellent condition at this time of year. Clarence Booth, the club professional, has returned and for a week or more has had a number of men at work putting the course in order. The greens are excellent and have suffered but little during the winter.

The club house has had its spring cleaning and everything is in readiness for the season of 1925. During the summer there will be a variety of events and the golf committee are arranging a schedule of games with other clubs. The Putnam Country club is the oldest in Windham county and was the only one until two years ago, when Willimantic laid out a golf course and built a fine club house. The little story and a half farmhouse has been remodeled and built on to until it is one of the finest of club houses, with sun parlors, wide piazza, a large fireplace, locker rooms and shower and a natural flow of spring water.

The spot is ideal and the view looking west is one of rare beauty. The course is highly praised by all visitors, it abounds in hazards although not as a difficult as many.

Charles Field Swain is at the home of Mrs. C. O. Thompson in Pomfret for a few weeks before opening up his brother's place for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Lorillard recently spent several days in Boston.

Miss Frances Daggett is visiting her sister, Mrs. Barrows, at North Attleboro, Mass. Master Benjamin and Miss Florence Grosvenor accompanied her.

Cargill Council, K. of C., of Putnam will soon elect delegates to the annual convention at New Britain May 12th. By custom Grand Knight Armand Montville will be one of the delegates.

The London Daily Express says it understands that the engagement will be announced shortly of Guilelmo Marconi, the wireless inventor and Elizabeth Narcissa Paynter. Miss Paynter is 18 years old.

NON APPRECIATION OF PARKS.

Time and again it is proved that those for whom the most is done in the way of providing opportunities for enjoying parks and such outdoor breathing places, where nothing of the kind would otherwise exist, are the least appreciative of the effort.

Such a view is prompted by the report that there were 742 summonses served last Sunday by the police upon visitors to Central park in New York city. Such were only a few of the thousands who visited that attractive spot in appreciation of its delightful contrasts to big buildings and hard pavements, but they were neither willing to enjoy the beauty and leave it for the others nor to respect the regulations which long experience has shown to be necessary.

Unfortunately there are those who cannot see without coveting. What would happen if such a practice were to be permitted can be readily understood. There would be hundreds waiting to pick every bud as it began to open and the attractive greensward would soon be barren ground if all were permitted to race across it. A park would not enjoy such a name for very long if those who visit it were permitted to have their own way.

There seems to be no limit to those who are drawn to parks, and while the great majority welcomes the advantages and attractions furnished there are those who figure that the latter must have been provided for their sole benefit and are not satisfied until they have despoiled the flowers, shrubs and grounds. There is another class which, though it refrains from such destruction, seems to think it is in no way duty bound to contribute to the attractiveness of the parks. Such people eagerly distribute their litter where it is the handiest, leave it where they finish their picnics and lunches, even though that be the most conspicuous place in the limits of the park, and give no heed to the fact that others would like as attractive grounds as they had before their rubbish was scattered about.

If parks are worth having they are certainly deserving of the proper respect.

THAT LAST CONGRESS.

The country will read with interest to what Senator Walsh of Montana has to say when he makes the statement that there is a well organized effort being made throughout the country to discredit congress that help may be gained in connection with the putting through of the Mellon tax bill.

Senator Walsh may be sincere in his statement, but he is standing with his back to the light. Instead of there being an effort made to discredit congress any discredit which has come to that body has been brought upon itself. The country has watched the antics which characterized the last congress and became disgusted. It manifested its attitude at the polls last November. That was a warning which it was expected congress would heed. Apparently the people did not speak firmly enough. While it was expressing its desires it might have gone further and replaced more of the timber that needed replacing, for the concluding session of the congress demonstrated that those responsible for the conditions which disgusted the country continued to insist upon maintaining them after a demand for a change had been emphatically registered.

As for the propaganda concerning the Mellon bill, it is a well known fact that the people are desirous of tax reduction. They believe that they are entitled to it and the president has approved that belief. It doesn't appear that the Mellon bill will be revived but it can be expected that legislation of as sound a nature will be sought of the next congress. Democrats as well as republicans have registered their approval of the Mellon plan. The Literary Digest canvass displayed the sentiment of the country in its favor, and Senator Walsh's endeavor to tell the country that congress is not going to be swayed into giving it what it wants is bound to be regarded as a continuance of that unworthy practice which brought so much discredit upon the last congress. It is bad enough to be discredited, but it is worse not to try to profit therefrom.

HANDLING THE IMMIGRANTS.

The people of Waterbury have an opportunity this week to hear something about the work and problems at Ellis Island from Commissioner of Immigration H. H. Curran at that port. There is always something fascinating about the activities at immigration stations, and no little attention is given to the many questions which have to be disposed of at such points during the course of a year. It is a place where respect must be given to the immigration laws but where enforcement very often has to be carefully tempered with common sense.

As was to be expected Commissioner Curran referred to the benefits which have been obtained and the relief experienced through the examination of those planning to come to this country by American consuls at ports of embarkation. That has served to stop many of the needless trips across the ocean only to find out that entry conditions could not be met and a return trip must be made. Such hardships were needless and it is well that they have been stopped, even if there still remain cases where those who have been passed by consuls abroad are unable to meet the physical examination on this side fail to get into this country.

His reference to the decrease in the number coming to this country under the quota law shows that the desired results are being obtained, but when he points to the fact that there are no restrictions from countries in this hemisphere it shows why there are so many who are going to such points for the purpose of aiding their entry into the United States. The restrictions are likewise giving encouragement to the bootlegging of immigrants quite the same as the dry law is tempting those who have liquor to sell to disregard prohibition.

Opposing the smuggling of aliens must be carefully carried but there will probably never be a proper check placed thereon until there is adopted the suggestion of the secretary of labor that aliens in this country be required to register each year. Our laws are cutting down the number of entrants but there still continues to be too many of the undesirable getting in through the bootleg route.

PREVENTION GETS RESULTS.

When the fire wardens of Massachusetts prohibit all fires in the open they are acting in recognition of the condition which is known to exist and the knowledge that it is through the prevention rather than through fighting that woodlands and property are going to be saved from destruction.

Last fall hunting was prohibited for the same reason. The absence of rain and the warm sun and drying winds have made conditions just right for fires to cause serious destruction.

Fires in the open are not the only means of starting forest fires. But many are kindled in such a manner by getting beyond control and if they are prohibited it means an effective means of disposing of those due to such a cause. Means will doubtless be taken to deal with those which develop from other causes.

While Massachusetts has had 600 fires in the last month and a half it is not the only state which is suffering from them. Rhode Island has had many acres burned over, several houses have been destroyed and people have had to flee for their lives. The burning hillsides are visible in many sections of Connecticut.

Whether it is from bonfires, from trout fishermen, from butts thrown from automobiles into the underbrush by the roadside or from other similar methods, the most effective means of dealing with grass and woodland fires is to prevent them, and it has long since been established that the human agent is responsible for the large majority of such fires, with carelessness bearing the brunt of the blame.

CHICAGO'S MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Chicago has long been dissatisfied with the traction situation in that city. In its search for relief, there was presented to the people the proposition of either purchasing the surface lines and elevated roads, and then building subways, or of taking over the lines to be run by the city government.

Chicago has its political problems but it would appear in this instance that it was facing the question of going into municipal ownership or operation of its transportation lines, or staying out. There are ways in which a political tinge can be given to the result. It can be regarded as a turn down for the democratic mayor and his ambitions, for he has been a strong advocate of the municipal ownership idea, and it is possible to attribute it to the opponents of the mayor, even those within his own party who do not sanction some of the things he has done and have taken this opportunity of displaying it.

Such views would indicate that the expression of the people has been based upon other than the real question at stake. As a matter of fact it would appear from this distance to be a vote which placed the people of Chicago on record as against municipal ownership for fearing that there would be carried to the traction lines the methods which are in practice there in other directions due to political control.

Chicago by 150,000 sees the danger of politics in municipal ownership. Its decision is by a large enough majority to leave no question of doubt as to the view of the people. Bad as conditions may be it is unwilling to contribute to something worse.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Thus far this season spring fever has been prevalent only in a mild form.

Because you cleaned your back yard last year doesn't eliminate the need in 1925.

Even though Gerald Chapman has spent the most of his life since 18 in institutions they haven't done very much for him.

Hartford seems to be thoroughly satisfied with republican policies and accomplishments in administering that city's affairs.

Even though there may be smiles when people go to Bermuda, it should be remembered that trip was popular long before prohibition.

Even as a sole month April has much to do if it is going to fill the reservoirs. In addition there's the contract for the May flowers.

When forest fires destroy eight times as great an area as was devastated in the World war it seems time that more attention with a view to prevention was given it.

THIS YEAR'S MODEL

"You're an insufferable prig, Tom," she remarked.

"Did you say pig or prig?" inquired Tom, casually.

"And this abuse just because I mentioned tactfully that I think your skirts are too short, your heels too high and your manners too hoydenish. You know I mean it for your good".

"I know that you're getting to be a crusty old bachelor, Tom. Why don't you marry? Then you'll have a wife to razz and you can lay off me."

"I forgot to say also, Susanne, that you're too slangy. As for my marrying, I'll be only too happy to do so when I find my ideal woman." Tom puffed at his cigarette meditatively.

"Really, how noble of you!" sniffed Susanne. "Roll me one. That's a dear."

"I will not. I think you're too young to smoke."

"I suppose your ideal doesn't indulge in tobacco?"

"No, indeed, she doesn't. I can't imagine anything more incongruous than a cigarette in her lips. She's too dainty for that."

"Any one would think you'd found your ideal," said Susanne, taking a cigarette from her own case and lighting it nonchalantly.

"To tell you the truth, Susanne, I have, but, alas, she is unattainable," Tom sighed. "I wish there were another like her."

"Now, Tom, after all your goody-good preaching to me, you don't mean to tell me that you are actually in love with a married woman?"

"I don't mean to tell you anything, child, except that there does live a woman who comes up to my ideal."

"I suppose this goddess wears her skirts at what you consider correct length and affects low heels. They are rather smart and—"

"Yes, her skirts are just a graceful length. Her well polished low-heeled shoes fit an exceedingly pretty foot and her ankles are slender and trim. She speaks beautiful, pure English and her manners are so sweet and gracious that all who have the privilege of meeting her, even for only once, fall under the spell of her charm. You know, Susanne, I'm not much of a Bible student, but there is one quotation, if I have it right, that always seems to me to fit her exactly, and that is 'On her lips is the law of kindness.'"

"Why, Tom, old thing, you really just think the world of her, don't you?" A note of sympathy crept into Susanne's rather hard young voice. "I suppose she's very beautiful. What's her type, this paragon of yours? Is she a tall and slender blond?"

"Well, she's very light haired, but not tall and slender. I have to admit, Susanne, that she inclines a trifle to plumpness. But, just the same, she has a very trim figure and her eyes are dark gray and they have always seemed to me the most sympathetic, understanding eyes in the whole world. Someone, a poet, I suppose, has spoken of some eyes, I don't know whose, as 'deep wells of love.' That's a good description for my ideal's eyes."

"Tom, look at me. Who is she?" demanded Susanne.

"I hinted to you before, my dear girl, that I shouldn't tell you," replied Tom, firmly.

"Well, you don't have to tell me. I know who your ideal is. You think you're smart, don't you? You can't draw me any farther. You've been picturing mother. Very light haired! I should have guessed at once that you meant silver locks rather than gold."

"Well, don't you think I painted a pretty true portrait?" asked Tom, gravely.

"Yes, I do. She's all of that you said and more, too, Tom."

"Why don't you aim high, Susanne, and take her for your this year's model?"

"By George, I bet I—I mean I believe I will try to do that!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Poreda's Reply.

Mr. Editor: St. Paul says, "If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise." (1 Cor. III 18). It certainly rings true in the case of our scholastic correspondent, Mr. Ouimet. It also brings to the writer's mind the example of Goldsmith's tutor, who "in arguing, too, the parson owned his skill, for even when vanquished he could argue still."

I have given the reason why the foreign schools are detrimental to American ideals. Mr. Ouimet, hops along with some thing like this: "It is not so!" Instead of contradicting my statement, which, he can not do without justice to himself. Instead of dealing with the facts aforesaid, he gets away from them, mentioning socialism and anarchism, a subject which he knows nothing about save, a few lines from books that contain an imprimatus.

Mr. Ouimet runs along with "a well organized bound," a smoke screen and so-called logic-proof ingredients, that have nothing to do with the subject in question. Mr. Ouimet goes further, he writes of an "ancient bugaboo of the pope capturing the white house."

With such clever answers, there is nothing else for an ignorant person like me to do but ignore his letters. Therefore I would let our college presidents, historians, theologians, preachers, writers on all subjects and those who write all our professional books on sociology pay homage to Mr. Ouimet. He certainly deserves much credit for his passionate themes.

Mr. Ouimet's enlightment would be greatly enlarged would he, but read and study the Encyclical of Pius IX of December 8, 1864, before he can blame the writer and other Americans, for thinking that the foreign influence conflicts, as it does with American ideals.

For the inclusive benefit of those individuals who may have read my letters as well as Mr. Ouimet's and are bewildered, I would earnestly advise the reading of "The Challenge of Catholicism" by John Jay Chapman in the Forum magazine for April. This is a series of a pen debate on this delicate subject.

Are You Discouraged?

Loew Was Small for His Age

Undersized for his age, Marcus Loew had to fight his way to sell newspapers. Born in the East Side of New York, he often felt the pinch of want and at six had to start out to sell newspapers.

Because of his size he had to battle for places to sell his wares. He also did odd jobs, helped at home and at times went to school.

At twelve he obtained work in a shop where maps were made. The work was hard, he was still small for his age and at one time thought of having his neck stretched. When he asked for a raise he was told emphatically: "You little peanut, you ought to be glad you are getting such wages," and he quit.

Next a salesman for a printing concern, he was given a partnership and three years later borrowed money and confidently went into the fur business. In two years he failed, owing $1900.

As traveling salesman, at $20 a week, he supported his mother and paid up his debts. At 23 he joined with another man in the manufacture of silk capes. Successful from the start, he soon afterward was married, and had a good business and comfortable bank account at the end of ten years.

Dave Warfield was enthusiastic over the possibilities of a penny-in the-slot moving picture machine and with others he and Loew opened the Penny Archade in Fourteenth street, New York. It was successful from the start, but the partners disagreed and Loew and Warfield pulled out.

Launching out in the arcade business together they tried for three years, but without success. Loew then went to Cincinnati and bought the Penny Arcade there. Soon it was making a profit. He conceived the idea of a moving picture theater with admission of five cents. It, too, was successful. He opened the first house of its kind in New York and within six months had added 41 more.

Loew now is at the head of a motion picture company and of one of the largest theatrical organizations in the world, with theaters in many cities. And he recently paid $1,000,000 for a home on Long Island.

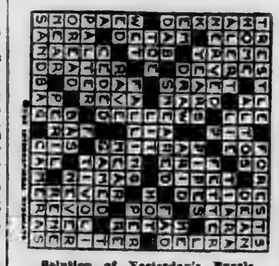
IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Alfred Yarrow, who has arrived on his way to visit his son's shipyard at Victoria, B. C., is famous as a pioneer in the design and construction of high-speed vessels, such as torpedo-boat destroyers, and of vessels for the navigation of shallow waters, and his firm, first established at Poplar, England, and later removed to the Clyde, is known all over the world for specialized construction of this kind. His success has not been achieved without a great deal of research and experiment, and to encourage others along the same line he has made large donations for the establishment of laboratories and the promotion of scientific research in England. He also has given generously to hospitals, universities, and various other institutions having to do with the public welfare. Sir Alfred, who is now nearing his 85th year, has been a frequent visitor to America.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

GOTTLAND

Visby, Sweden, which is planning to celebrate the 700th anniversary of its founding next July, is conservative in its claim to its age, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Gottland Island, of which Visby is the principal city, was peopled in the Stone Age, possibly men were there when the Baltic still was a fresh water lake. Coins of Arabia, Rome, and the Anglo-Saxons betoken its trading importance when mid-Europe still was primitive. Culturally, if not politically, the island was the Rhodes, or Crete, of the Baltic.

"Visby clings to terraces of natural rock, around it still is its medieval wall, more than a mile long, with 38 towers intact. From them one gazes over the vast expanse of the Baltic and conjures visions of the old Vikings, pyramid builders of the north, and their spectacular funerals when the dead were given up to the remorseless elements of fire and the sea.

"Simple faith in the old Norse legends survives among the islanders. It seems like sacrilege to question that Thjelvar, the first settler, found a land which was submerged by day and habitable only by night. Thjelvar drove out the trolls, or evil spirits, who protected their dwelling place, and thus enabled men to live there.

"Inside the walls of Visby are ample evidence of its medieval greatness. On its narrow, crooked streets, shaded by walnut trees, and lightened by the many rose gardens, are vine-covered walls built when the Hanseatic League flourished. Those were the times described by an old ballard which sings, 'The Gottlanders weighed out gold with stone weights and played with the choicest jewels. The swine ate from silver troughs and the women spun with distaffs of gold.'

"Then Valdemar of Denmark cast a covetous eye on all this wealth and, in 1361, plundered the city. The islanders have it that Valdemar's booty-laden ships met a heavy storm not far off their coast, and the conqueror narrowly escaped with his life. There had been set in the walls of St. Nicholas Church two carbuncles which glowed so radiently by night that they were beacons to mariners. They went down with other treasure yet, such was their brightness, that they still cast a peculiar light over the smooth waters of Visby harbor.

"In plain fact, Visby never recovered from Valdemar's conquest. For the next century or so it was the trysting place of sea-rovers and pirates. Hanseatic privateers known as the 'Victuals Brothers' made it the base of operations, then the Teutonic Knights drove them out. Many years later Olaf and Ivar Thott, the Captain Kidds of the northern seas, made their stronghold there.

"Peace and renewed prosperity dawned with the island's restoration to Sweden in 1645 and its mild climate and fertile soil have made it a watering place and a vegetable farm for Sweden in recent years. The island is less than 60 miles from the mainland coast; Visby is about 150 miles from Stockholm.

"The island's area is a little less than that of our state of Rhode Island. Its shape, as well as its strategic location is suggested in its nickname, 'The Eye of the Baltic.' Its coasts are rugged and have an interest to oceanographers because marine deposits show how the Baltic formerly had a much higher level. The interior of the island lacks rivers and valleys, but there are numerous lakes. The thirsty limestone swallows many of the brooks before they course very far and, in summer, dries many of them up altogether.

"Mariners and cattle fanciers know Gottland by name. The Gottland sea laws formed one of the earliest codes of the sea, and Gottland ponies and sheep are held in high esteem.

"While the interior island lacks the lure of scenery its churches attract visitors who love mellow beaty. In Visby are churches dating from the eleventh and twelfth centuries which preserve practically every architectural form of that period. Through the countryside are village churches, mostly of the thirteenth century, whose architecture is so beautiful and original that they, too, have memorialized the island's name in their special designation, the Gottland style. The massive towers of these churches frequently are detached, and in some of the churches are fine specimens of stained glass.

"Like isolated people the world over the Gottlanders are noted for their independence. Centuries after they were restored to Sweden they held to the form of paying a nominal annual tribute with the declaration that they did so by their own consent. As early as the thirteenth century the island had its own popular assembly and Sweden was not permitted to veto the enactments of this body. During the days of its Hanseatic prosperity intermarriage of Gottlanders with aliens was prohibited.

"It is related that the islanders sent one of their number to Upsala to make a treaty with the king. The monarch was feasting when the emissary arrived and kept his visitor waiting at the threshhold. When the king finally unbent to ask news of the island the ambassador replied that a mare had three foals.

"'What does the third one do while the other two are suckling?' asked the king.

"'Just as I am doing,' the Gottlander replied, 'he stands by and looks on.'"

Stories That Recall Others

Fell in Love With His Nurse.

Howard, aged 8, had met with an injury. He received a rather large gash on the forehead which remained open some time before treatment was received. Finally a nurse was obtained to fix him up. She placed some cool salve and a clean white bandage over the burning cut and he was so pleased and happy that he ran to his mother and said:

"Mamma, I want to marry that lady. That is, I would like to marry her if you think she would have me."

Just His Birthday—That's All.

While driving homeward a few days ago Mrs. Z who, having a son of her own, has a most kindly feeling for boys, saw a group of about a dozen youngsters vigorously pommelling one youth who seemed unable to defend himself. Pulling up to the curb where the fight was in progress Mrs. Z rushed excitedly to the assistance of the victim and dispersed the "gang."

"Were they mistreating you, little fellow?" she asked.

"No ma'am, it's my birthday," grinned the youth.

The explanation seemed sufficient and Mrs. Z drove away, determined not to interfere in any more supposed fights.

"Hobble" Stairway

In a certain building in Skowhegan, Me., is an unusual flight of stairs, which have a rise of 5 inches and a correspondingly narrow tread, looking as if they were made for the convenience of small children. This stairway was built according to the idea of Dr. Henry Leavitt, a dentist in the building. It was the day of the hobble skirt. Clad in a hobble skirt, any woman ascended a flight of ordinary stairs with difficulty and Dr. Leavitt planned the stairs with this style in mind. About the time they were finished, the style passed to await its resurrection, but the stairs still remain—a memorial to a forgotten freak of fashion.

A Vanishing Race

A colony of 125 near Jerusalem, said to be descendants of the Samaritans of Biblical days, must soon become extinct unless they change their customs. For 2,000 years they have forbidden marriages outside their own people. Their numbers gradually have diminished and too close inbreeding is exterminating them.

Stomach Agonized People—Accept Norwich Druggists Offer Today

Says Money Cheerfully Refunded if One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Stop Gas, Indigestion or Any Distressing Stomach Trouble

Injudicious eating causes acute indigestion, gas, acidity, heaviness and sour stomach—sometimes the distended stomach causes that dreadful feeling of near suffocation.

Isn't it worth something to know of a remedy that will stop this distress in a few minutes—quicker than anything else you can think of.

This is no common stomach remedy for it took years of time to combine Pepsin with Menthol and the other effective agents that make Dare's Mentha Pepsin so good that the worst cases of indigestion and gastritis and other chronic stomach ailments are speedily overcome and the most badly deranged stomachs are made clean, strong and healthy.

You can get one bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and if after you take it you do not say it did your stomach more good than anything you ever used before, your money will be waiting for you. This is a straightforward offer and is so understood by Lee & Osgood Co. and every druggist everywhere.

This delightful and effective elixir not only gives instant relief from gas, fullness, acid stomach and distress after eating, but taken regularly for a short time will turn your weak, run down stomach into a strong, healthy one able to perform its duties without help.

It ends indigestion, gastritis, catarrh of the stomach and does it in a surprisingly short period of time.

COUNTY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION IN 150TH ANNUAL MEETING

The New London County Medical association held its 150th annual meeting here at the Wauregan hotel Wednesday with an attendance of 50 physicians from all parts of the county for the business session which began at 4 in the afternoon and was followed by the scientific session, a banquet and entertainment.

Dr. E. J. Brophy, president, called the business session to order and reports were given by the officers, including the secretary and treasurer, Dr. A. C. Freeman of this city. Dr. Clarence G. Thompson of this city and Dr. Warren Freeman Hill of New London were admitted to membership.

In the election of officers, Dr. F. M. Dunn of New London, who has been vice president, was elected president. Dr. Freeman was elected vice president, and Dr. W. E. McGinley of New London secretary and treasurer. Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve of this city was re-elected councillor and the censors were re-elected as follows: Drs. H. H. Hyer, New London; R. R. Agnew, this city, and E. R. Douglas, Groton. The newly elected officers take office after the October meeting.

The scientific session was one of great interest and value with papers presented as follows: Recent Advancement in X-ray Diagnosis, Dr. Douglas Roberts, Hartford; Differential Diagnosis Arthritis, Dr. Paul E. Swett, Hartford; Significance of Purpuric Eruptions, Dr. George Blumer, Yale University.

At 7 o'clock the physicians enjoyed a banquet, which was followed by an excellent entertainment, which consisted of musical numbers by the Yarktown Strutters, Edward T. Connelly, Horace Corning, Warren Kane, and Nicholas Spellman, in blackface and white; chief costumes; Fred J. Brown of New London in banjo selections and feats of magic by an Indian magician.

A most laughable sketch, Did Sambo Die of Water on The Brain, was put on by Dr. Gildersleeve and Mr. Connelly and the entertainment concluded with a top-notch comedy number by Connelly-Corning-Connelly and "Bathing Christmas who initiated three of the medicos soon into the Order of the Yellow Dog.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Frank L. Palmer

Mrs. Louisa Townsend Palmer, 73, widow of Frank L. Palmer, one of the founders of the Palmer Bros. Co., quilt manufacturers, died at her home, 381 Pequot avenue New London at noon Wednesday. Death was due to pneumonia from which she had been ill since last Friday.

Mrs. Palmer was born Sept. 23, 1851, on the plantation of her father near Bovina, Miss. She was the daughter of Samuel and Caroline A. Johnson Townsend. At the age of twelve she came to New London to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Johnson, and remained to become a student at a private seminary, from which she was graduated.

Later she returned to her home in the south and remained there until shortly before her marriage with Frank L. Palmer, of Montville. That ceremony took place in Christ Episcopal church, Norwich, on May 16, 1876, and was performed by Rev. Samuel H. Giesy, D. D. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer from then on made their home in New London, where Mr. Palmer was active in an executive capacity in the mill until his death, eight years ago.

Charles Townsend Palmer, the only son born to them, died several years ago. Surviving Mrs. Palmer are her two daughters, Misses Theodora and Virginia Palmer, a sister, Mrs. L. E. Palmer of Middletown, and a brother, John Townsend, of Uncasville.

James Metcalf Smith

News was received in Norwich Wednesday of the death at his home, 376 Benefit street, Providence, of James Metcalf Smith, 71, after an illness of some time.

Mr. Smith married Marrilla Vickridge Caruthers, daughter of Mrs. Caruthers and the late William Caruthers, of McKinley avenue, Norwich, and was a frequent visitor in this city. Burial is to be in Westfield, Mass.

FUNERALS.

John Coughlin.

Funeral services for John Coughlin were held Wednesday morning at 8.15 o'clock from his late home, 27 Roath street, followed by requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock with Rev. Frederick Cuholan, celebrant. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service from New York city, Auburn, N. Y., Bridgeport, Hartford and other places. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, testimonials to the esteem in which Mr. Coughlin was held by his many friends.

During the service at the church the music was in charge of Henry LaFontaine and as a waiting hymn he rendered Abide With Me, and at the offertory, Pie Jesu.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Father Cohalon. The bearers were James J. Casey, Daniel J. Coughlin, Charles C. Erwin, Timothy E. Driscoll, George C. Driscoll and John Coughlin.

Arrangements were by Cummings & Ring.

John Schneider.

Following an illness of some time, following a shock, the death of John Schneider occurred Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock at his home at 22 Rock street. Death was due to hardening of the arteries.

Mr. Schneider was born in Germany about 67 years ago and came to this country when a young man. He mastered the trade of stone mason and followed that occupation for some time. Later he entered the hotel business in Brooklyn, N. Y., retiring from that business about 10 years ago. About 40 years ago he was united in marriage with Miss Annie Rugler of Norwich, who survives him. Mr. Schneider was a member of a number of fraternal organizations while in Brooklyn.

MRS. JEROME MAYER NAMED TO HELP CHOOSE CLUB SITE

The Hartford Woman's club is prospecting for a new home and has been considering among other sites the Case Memorial Library, on Broad street, Hartford. The Case Memorial Library contains about 120,000 books and some 60,000 pamphlets. It is a large fireproof building and when renovated and re-decorated would make a very acceptable headquarters for the Woman's club, according to some of the members.

The committee that has been bringing in for consideration of the club, the various sites, includes Mrs. Jerome Mayer (Sadie Plaut, formerly of Norwich).

Discusses Pilate and Jesus.

The Men's Bible class at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening was well attended and a real interest was developed in the discussion of Jesus and Pilate. Among the points brought out were the following: Jesus emphasized to Pilate that his kingdom was a spiritual kingdom, intimating that the spiritual was the thing most worth while. Pilate asked Jesus "What is truth?" and when he knew what the truth was about Jesus, he refused to maintain his stand in behalf of that truth. Pilate desired to save Jesus until he saw such an attitude would not work favorable to his own interests, and then he yielded to the cry of the mob, "Crucify him." To the question as to who was the most guilty Pilate or those who brought him to him, the majority thought Pilate was most guilty, as he could have saved him if he had so determined. The Jews steadfastly refused to recognize Jesus as the Messiah, for one thing, they would have been compelled to change their systems and their ideas of what life meant, and for this very reason many men today refuse to accept Jesus as Lord and Master. They would have to live differently, and this they seemingly will not do.

Busy Fighting Forest Fires.

The fire wardens of the town with the Boy Scouts and volunteer workers have been busy during the past few days fighting fires almost constantly. On Wednesday they were kept busy fighting a fire on Corning Road, which was put out only after a hard fight.

SEDGWICK POST ENTERTAINS STATE G. A. R. OFFICERS AT CAMP FIRE

Department Commander Ira R. Wildman of Danbury, of the Connecticut Department of the Grand Army of the Republic, and his staff officers, were guests of Sedgwick Post, G. A. R., Wednesday evening at the Buckingham Memorial. It was one of the old time campfire gatherings, with a delicious supper followed by a programme of music and speaking. Previous to the supper there was a reception for the visiting department officers. Those in the receiving line were Department Commander Ira R. Wildman of Danbury; Senior Vice Department Commander James Young of Waterbury; Department Chaplain Rev. J. W. Davis of Bridgeport; Assistant Adjutant General E. T. Abbott of Bridgeport; Department Inspector Harland Rugg of Bridgeport; Department Chief of Staff Jerome Lent of Danbury; Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R.; Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, president of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps; Mrs. Alice E. Brinkman, president of the Daughters of Veterans and Judge John H. Barnes, president of the Sons of Veterans.

About 6.30 the 125 present sat down to a delicious supper served under the auspices of the supper committees of the Relief Corps and the Daughters of Veterans. The tables were prettily decorated with daffodils and yellow candles and there were favors of Easter chickens and Easter rabbits. The menu was as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Escalloped Oysters
Roast Beef
Mashed Potatoes — Gravy
Cabbage Salad
Rolls — Cake
Coffee
Ice Cream

At the conclusion of the supper Commander Orrin M. Price, toastmaster of the evening, called the gathering to order, and presented Mayor Milo R. Waters who extended a hearty welcome to the visiting department officers. Following the welcome by Mayor Waters, Hugh Kinder sang For You, after which Commander Price presented as the speaker, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Fidelity to Our Political Ideals was the topic of Rev. Mr. Ricketts' address. Rev. Mr. Ricketts told how ideals change with the changes of national scope. He explained how the ideals of the Revolutionary war times were not the same as those in the Civil war days. There was a change in ideals by the time the Spanish war broke out and another change in the World war. The speaker said our national ideal is insistence upon the preservation of our Constitution. Rev. Mr. Ricketts was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his very interesting and instructive address.

Following Rev. Mr. Ricketts' address, John Moody, a member of the Sons of Veterans, and a Spanish War Veteran, entertained with a recitation. There were very interesting remarks on incidents and recollections of the Civil war days by Department Commander Wildman, Department Chaplain Davis, Assistant Adjutant General Abbott and Senior Vice Department Commander Young after which the evening's programme was brought to a close with the singing of America, with Hugh Kinder at the piano.

The general committee in charge of the supper was headed by Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps and Mrs. M. Florence Dean of the Daughters of Veterans. Others on the supper committee were: Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. Elizabeth Bogue, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackey, Mrs. Lena O'Brien of the Daughters of Veterans; Mrs. Maud Moody, Mrs. Lillian E. Brewster, Mrs. Vinnie Wilson, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Lydia Perkins, Mrs. Susan Kampf, Mrs. Inez Hill, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackey and Mrs. Grace Fowler of the relief corps. Assistants were Mrs. Elizabeth Risley, Mrs. Cora Botham, Mrs. Hattie Thatcher, Mrs. Mary Curran, Mrs. Lillian Whiting, Mrs. Lena Lester, Mrs. Whiteman, Mrs. Mary Covey and Mrs. Jennie Newbury.

The waitresses were Mrs. Vinnie Wilson, Mrs. Maud Moody, Mrs. Inez Hill, Miss Gladys Newbury, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Harriet Persons, Miss Alice Curran, Mrs. Genie Evans, Miss Dorothy Brinkman, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Abby Olsson, Mrs. Mary Austin, Mrs. Dorothy Potter, Mrs. Emily Dolbeare and Miss Helen Curran.

FLETCHER POST TEAMS IN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

In common with American Legion posts throughout the state, Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, of this city, will hold a membership drive this month. The American Legion, Department of Connecticut, has started a membership drive to renew all the remaining unrenewed 1924 memberships and to secure an increase of 35 per cent. over the total of 1924.

According to Department Commander Edward L. White, the Legion has been growing steadily in strength in Connecticut since late in 1923. During 1924 the membership was increased about one-third and the same proportionate increase is wanted for this year over last year. On March 31, at the close of first quarter of this year, more than 63 per cent. of the 1924 memberships had been renewed. This was an improvement over the figures for the same date last year.

The Legion in Connecticut is divided into seven districts. District No. 2, with New Haven as the center, has shown the most proportionate membership renewals of the year with District No. 3, Fairfield, No. 1, Hartford, No. 5, New London and No. 4, Windham, following in that order.

Eleven of the 102 posts in the state have already equalled or exceeded their 1924 memberships and it is expected that the other 91 will do the same during the next two weeks.

Fletcher Post has named five teams to take part in the local drive. The team captains are as follows:

Team A, William A. Anderson; Team B, Herman A. Bruckner; Team C, Frank P. Chase; Team D, Clifford C. Oat; Team E, William M. Skelly. The teams have been notified to meet this (Thursday) evening at the Legion rooms at which time instructions regarding the drive will be given them.

ROCKVILLE MAN EXPECTS TO GO TO NORTH POLE

John Reinhartz of Rockville, one of the best known radio men in the amateur circles in the United States, has been invited to accompany McMillan on his next trip to the North Pole, which will start in June. While there are several matters yet to be decided which have not allowed Mr. Reinhartz to give a decided answer to the invitation, it appears that such will now be the case and when the ship sets sail on its trip to the frozen north Mr. Reinhartz will be the radio operator on board the ship. If this is so it will be the second time that a Connecticut man has been selected as the radio operator who accompanied him last year was a Bristol youth.

ARCHITECT WILL VISIT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Word has been received from Architect Merrill of New York, who was detained on account of sickness that he will visit the Central Baptist church on Friday of this week. At 10 o'clock he will meet with the board of religious education to study how to provide for the growing school of the church. At the close of the evening service, Mr. Merrill will show a number of slides illustrating how different churches are providing for their modern needs, especially in religious education.

The deacons will meet at 7 o'clock on Friday evening and the regular service will be at 7.45.

Opening Patrol Leaders' Course.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton has announced that the patrol leaders training course is to open this (Thursday) evening at the Scout headquarters, room 28 Shannon Building. The course opens at 7.30 o'clock and it is expected that patrol leaders and assistant patrol leaders will attend the meeting and gain the information in scout craft that may be obtained in taking this course.

SEIZED RUM VESSELS ARE SUBJECT TO SALE

Eight vessels, seized by the Coast Guard working out of New London, and now berthed at the wharf of the Coast Guard academy, Fort Trumbull, are likely to be sold at public auction in the near future.

The ships, representing $200,000 in marine property together with their liquor cargoes, estimated at $245,000 value, stand forfeited due to the failure of their former owners to lay claim with the U. S. district court at New Haven before the time limit which expired Tuesday.

The largest vessel in the lot is the schooner J. Duffy, British, which was seized last year with the largest cargo of liquor ever brought into New London. At the time she was listed as having 2,875 cases and 150 casks of contraband, although the official figures given at New Haven are to the effect that her cargo consists of 2,802 cases of Scotch and 148 cases of assorted liquors.

Other vessels and cargoes declared forfeited are the Nancy II with 100 cases of Scotch, the Josephine Maria with 600 six-gallon cans of alcohol, the Wanderer with 53 cases of whiskey, 140 cases and 140 loose bottles of beer, the Hattie T., with 500 cases of liquor, the North Star with 207 cases of whiskey, the Del Rey II with 400 cases of Scotch, and the Mary J. Beale with 35 cases of alcohol.

Miss Mildred Inez Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford and Edward William Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mason of this city, will be married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Methodist church, Hartford. The Rev. Dr. L. H. Worchester will perform the ceremony. Miss Pearson has selected as her maid of honor Miss Ruth Austin of Rockville, and as her bridesmaids Miss Lucia Pratt of Wethersfield, Miss Mildred Champion of Hartford, Miss Esther Brown of East Hartford, and Miss Bernice Hall of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Mason will have as his best man Harry Arnold of Hartford, and the ushers will be Everett Pearson, brother of the bride, Jarvis Brown of Hartford, Rufus J. Leonard of Rockville and Alfred Mason of Hartford. The wedding march will be played by Robert Prutting. A reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony.

BACKUS HOSPITAL LEADS IN SCARLET FEVER ANTI-TOXIN

The first use of the new scarlet fever anti-toxin in Connecticut since it was authorized by the United States government is recorded by the Backus hospital staff with complete success. A week ago a ten year old boy from Moheegan was brought to the hospital with a bad case of the disease, with high fever and in a prostrated condition.

Twenty-four hours after the anti-toxin had been administered the patients temperature was normal and in 36 hours the rash had disappeared.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED ON DESERTION GROUNDS

Divorce on the ground of desertion since Sept. 15, 1920, was granted to Abraham I. Feingold of Colchester from Lena Kaplan Feingold of Brooklyn, N. Y., when the case was tried before Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in the superior court at New London Tuesday.

They were married March 29, 1909, and have three children aged 12, 10 and 8 years. No order was entered as to custody.

Closing For Good Friday.

The capitol at Hartford will be closed all day Friday. All departments of the motor vehicle department, including the branch offices in Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury and New London, will also be closed during the day.

STRUCK AFTER ALIGTING FROM TROLLEY CAR

Just after she had alighted from a trolley car late Wednesday afternoon on Boswell avenue near Prospect park, Miss Hilda Thoma, 15, of 19 Lorenzo street, one of twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thoma, was struck by a motor truck driven by David Feister of 58 Fairmount street.

Before the driver managed to stop the truck Miss Thoma had been dragged forty feet, it was reported. She received a bad gash in her forehead, extensive abrasions and cuts on her face, a cut on one shoulder and her clothes were badly torn.

Both the trolley car and the truck were proceeding toward Taftville and Miss Thoma had nearly reached the sidewalk when the right forward mudguard of the truck hit her. She was picked up by Alphonse Boucher and Mr. Teft, who witnessed the accident, and taken into the home of Mr. Boucher at 835 Boswell avenue, where Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was summoned and treated the young woman. X-ray pictures are to be taken to determine whether there are any broken bones or internal injuries.

Officers Riley and Carroll who investigated the accident made a charge of reckless driving against Feister and he was summoned to appear in the city court.

GRATEFUL FOR AID FROM NORWICH FIREMEN

Mayor Milo R. Waters on Wednesday received from City Manager William A. Holt of New London, a letter in which the New London city manager expresses his gratitude for the prompt response of the local fire department to a call for aid during the Crocker house fire there early Tuesday morning. The letter is as follows:

Hon. Milo R. Waters, Mayor, City Hall, Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sir: I wish to thank you for the prompt response of Chief Stanton of your fire department in sending aid to us on the occasion of the fire at the Crocker house this morning. While it was not necessary to make use of the services of the apparatus, the presence of this company was of decided advantage to use at a time when all our firemen and apparatus were at work. The Norwich company standing by assured us against further loss if a fire developed elsewhere.

As you know, we have the same hose thread so that cooperation between the fire department of New London and Norwich is easy.

If we may be of assistance to you at any time we shall be pleased to help you.

Yours very truly,
W. A. HOLT,
City Manager.

JACK MINER HERO OF PRIZE READING SELECTION

Those who attended the Williams prize reading in Slater hall last Friday evening will be interested to learn that Jack Miner of Kingsville, Ontario was the hero of the selection entitled, "Lost in the Woods," a true story chronicled by the talented writer, Miss Margaret Wade of Detroit, and read by Rose Bingham Standish. Mr. Miner is described as a "Nature Taught Man of the Woods, mighty hunter, gifted naturalist and writer." In youth he was a sportsman renowned for his skill, but latterly he has become much more concerned with the preservation of wild life. Many have become through the press and th elittle booklet, so interested in his work that they made the trip to his bird sanctuary home at Kingsville, Ont., to get a glimpse of countless thousands of Canada goose, wild ducks, quail, purple matin and blue birds.

The boy whose life he saved is Tom Faught, "who later enlisted with the Canadian Expeditionary forces to the great war, going as private and returning a distinguished officer, with a row of decorations across the breast of his tunic."

TRUCK STRUCK TREE, YOUNG WOMAN HURT

When another machine got in his way Louis Sadnaski of No. 60 Maple street, driving a G. M. C. truck, ran into a tree at Washington square late Wednesday afternoon. Miss Grace Sanakaski, who was riding on the truck received a cut over the eye and a cut on the nose. She was taken to the home of her uncle, Louis Sanakaski.

The machine was damaged to the extent of a broken axle and a broken spring.

MAN'S LEG BROKEN WHEN HIT BY MOTOR TRUCK

John Smith, a cook employed at the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane, was hit and knocked down near where is called The Pines, just south of the institution, Wednesday evening, by a machine owned and driven by Robert T. Anderson, another employee at the institution. Mr. Smith, who received a broken leg and other injuries, was taken into the hospital where treatment was administered. It is said Mr. Smith did not see the machine, a Moon roadster, and walked into it.

Meeting of Comfort Circle.

Thirteen members of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters, and three children, attended the meeting of the circle, held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William B. Lathrop, 350 Maple street. Mrs. Stanton W. Brown led the meeting, serving following the devotional exercises. At the close, Mrs. Lathrop served sandwiches and hot chocolate and distributed Easter favors.

Knocked Down By Automobile

Miss Catherine McGowan of No. 38 Roosevelt avenue was knocked down near the Chelsea bank crossing Wednesday by a Reo sedan owned by Frank Krupenski and driven by Walter Krupenski of No. 176 Cliff street. Miss McGowan received a scratch on her hand and a scratch on the left side of her face near the ear. She was attended by Dr. C. G. Thompson.

Chimney and Grass Fires.

Tuesday evening at 8.11 o'clock the fire department answered a telephone call for a chimney fire at the residence of Frank H. Hurlburt, No. 231 Broadway. Six gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze. During the evening the department was called out for a grass fire on land off Hamilton avenue.

KILLS CATARRH GERM IN THREE MINUTES
Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Lavex kills the germ in three minutes, yet is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.
To prove it and to introduce Lavex to a million sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid to anyone who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment and prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

For Wellesley Pageant

Mrs. Christopher Potter of New York city, a graduate of Wellesley college, has written the pageant which will form an important part of the semi-centennial celebration of the college on May 23 and 25 of this year. Dugald Stewart Walker of New York, will design the scenes and costumes. Differing from the ordinary historical pageant, this will be a symbolic production. Music, color, poetry and the dance will be combined to record the quest of the ages for beauty, wisdom and truth. The actors will all be students and the cast is being arranged by the Barnawallows, the college dramatic association. Various alumnae committees are assisting in the preparation.

COUNTY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION IN 150TH ANNUAL MEETING

The New London County Medical association held its 150th annual meeting here at the Wauregan hotel Wednesday with an attendance of 50 physicians from all parts of the county for the business session which began at 4 in the afternoon and was followed by the scientific session, a banquet and entertainment.

Dr. L. J. Brophy, president, called the business session to order and reports were given by the officers, including the secretary and treasurer, Dr. A. C. Freeman of this city. Dr. Clarence G. Thompson of this city and Dr. Warren Freeman Hill of New London were admitted to membership.

In the election of officers, Dr. F. M. Quinn of New London, who has been vice president, was elected president. Dr. Freeman was elected vice president, and Dr. W. E. McGinley of New London secretary and treasurer, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve of this city was re-elected councilor and the censors were re-elected as follows: Drs. H. H. Hyer, New London; R. R. Agnew, this city, and E. R. Douglas, Groton. The newly elected officers take office after the October meeting.

The scientific session was one of great interest and value with papers presented as follows: Recent Advancement in X-ray Diagnosis, Dr. Douglas Roberts, Hartford: Differential Diagnosis Arthritis, Dr. Paul E. Swett, Hartford. Significance of Purpuric Lesions, Dr. George Blumer, Yale University.

At 7 o'clock the physicians enjoyed a banquet, which was followed by an excellent entertainment, which consisted of musical numbers by the Darktown Strutters, Edward T. Connelly, Horace Corning, Warren Kane, and Nicholas Speliman, in blackface and white chief costumes; Fred J. Quinn of New London in banjo selections, feats of magic by an Indian magician.

A most laughable sketch, Did Sambo Use Oil of Water on The Brain, was put on by Dr. Gildersleeve and Mr. Connelly and the entertainment concluded with a top-notch comedy number by Messrs. Connelly and "Bath-tub" Christmas who initiated three of the medical men into the Order of the Yellow Dog.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Frank L. Palmer

Mrs. Louisa Townsend Palmer, 72, widow of Frank L. Palmer, one of the founders of the Palmer Bros. Co., quilt manufacturers, died at her home, 251 Pequot avenue New London at noon Wednesday. Death was due to pneumonia from which she had been ill since last Friday.

Mrs. Palmer was born Sept. 23, 1852, on the plantation of her father near Bovina, Miss. She was the daughter of Samuel and Caroline A. Johnson Townsend. At the age of twelve she came to New London to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Johnson, and remained to become a student at a private seminary, from which she was graduated.

Later she returned to her home in the south and remained there until shortly before her marriage with Frank L. Palmer, of Montville. That ceremony took place in Christ Episcopal church, Norwich, on May 16, 1876, and was performed by Rev. Samuel H. Giesy, D. D. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer from then on made their home in New London, where Mr. Palmer was active in an executive capacity in the mill until his death, eight years ago.

Charles Townsend Palmer, the only son born to them, died several years ago. Surviving Mrs. Palmer are her two daughters, Misses Theodora and Virginia Palmer, a sister, Mrs. I. E. Palmer of Middletown, and a brother, John Townsend, of Uncasville.

James Metcalf Smith

FUNERALS.

John Coughlin.

Funeral services for John Coughlin were held Wednesday morning at 8:15 o'clock from his late home, 27 Roath street, followed by requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church at 9 o'clock with Rev. Frederick Cuholan, celebrant. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service from New York city, Auburn, N. Y., Bridgeport, Hartford and other places. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, testimonials to the esteem in which Mr. Coughlin was held by his many friends.

During the service at the church the music was in charge of Henry LaFontaine and as a walking hymn he rendered Abide With Me, and at the offertory, Pie Jesu.

Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Father Cuholan. The bearers were James J. Cleary, Daniel J. Coughlin, Charles C. Evans, Timothy E. Driscoll, George C. Driscoll and John Coughlin.

Arrangements were by Cummings & Ring.

John Schneider.

Following an illness of some time, following a shock, the death of John Schneider occurred Wednesday morning at 4 o'clock at his home at 22 Rock street. Death was due to hardening of the arteries.

Mr. Schneider was born in Germany about 67 years ago and came to this country when a young man. He mastered the trade of stone mason and followed that occupation for some time. Later he entered the hotel business in Brooklyn, N. Y., retiring from that business about 10 years ago. About 40 years ago he was united in marriage with Miss Annie Rugler of Norwich, who survives him. Mr. Schneider was a member of a number of fraternal organizations while in Brooklyn.

MRS. JEROME MAYER NAMED TO HELP CHOOSE CLUB SITE

The Hartford Woman's club is prospecting for a new home and has been considering among other sites the Case Memorial Library, on Broad street, Hartford. The Case Memorial library contains about 120,000 books and some 60,000 pamphlets. It is a large fireproof building and when renovated and re-decorated would make a very acceptable headquarters for the Woman's club, according to some of the members.

The committee that has been bringing in for consideration of the club, the various sites, includes Mrs. Jerome Mayer (Sadie Plaut, formerly of Norwich).

Discusses Pilate and Jesus.

The Men's Bible class at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening was well attended and a real interest was developed in the discussion of Jesus and Pilate. Among the points brought out were the following: Jesus emphasized to Pilate that his kingdom was a spiritual kingdom, intimating that the spiritual was the thing most worth while. Pilate asked Jesus "What is truth?" and when he knew what the truth was about Jesus, he refused to maintain his stand in behalf of that truth. Pilate desired to save Jesus until he saw such an attitude would not work favorable to his own interests, and then he yielded to the cry of the mob, "Crucify him." To the question as to who was the most guilty Pilate or those who brought him to him, the majority thought Pilate was most guilty, as he could have saved him if he had so determined. The Jews steadfastly refused to recognize Jesus as the Messiah, for one thing, they would have been compelled to change their systems and their ideas of what life meant, and for this very reason many men today refuse to accept Jesus as Lord and Master. They would have to live differently, and this they seemingly will not do.

Busy Fighting Forest Fires.

The fire wardens of the town with the Boy Scouts and volunteer workers have been busy during the past few days fighting fires almost constantly. On Wednesday they were kept busy fighting a fire on Corning Road, which was put out only after a hard fight.

Department Commander Ira R. Wildman of Danbury, of the Connecticut Department of the Grand Army of the Republic, and his staff officers, were guests of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., Wednesday evening at the Buckingham Memorial. It was one of the old time campfire gatherings, with a delicious supper followed by a programme of music and speaking. Previous to the supper there was a reception for the visiting department officers. Those in the receiving line were Department Commander Ira R. Wildman of Danbury; Senior Vice Department Commander James Young of Waterbury; Department Chaplain Rev. J. W. Davis of Bridgeport; Assistant Adjutant General E. T. Abbott of Bridgeport; Department Inspector Harland Rugg of Bridgeport; Department Chief of Staff Jerome Lent of Danbury; Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R.; Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, president of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps; Mrs. Alice E. Brinkman, president of the Daughters of Veterans and Judge John H. Barnes, president of the Sons of Veterans.

About 6.30 the 125 present sat down to a delicious supper served under the auspices of the supper committees of the Relief Corps and the Daughters of Veterans. The tables were prettily decorated with daffodils and yellow candles and there were favors of Easter chickens and Easter rabbits. The menu was as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Escalloped Oysters
Roast Beef
Mashed Potatoes Gravy
Cabbage Salad
Rolls Cake
Coffee
Ice Cream

At the conclusion of the supper Commander Orrin M. Price, toastmaster of the evening, called the gathering to order, and presented Mayor Milo R. Waters who extended a hearty welcome to the visiting department officers. Following the welcome by Mayor Waters, Hugh Kinder sang For You, after which Commander Price presented as the speaker, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church. Fidelity to Our Political Ideals was the topic of Rev. Mr. Ricketts' address. Rev. Mr. Ricketts told how ideals change with the changes of national scope. He explained how the ideals of the Revolutionary war times were not the same as those in the Civil war days. There was a change in ideals by the time the Spanish war broke out and another change in the World war. The speaker said our national ideal is insistence upon the preservation of our Constitution. Rev. Mr. Ricketts was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his very interesting and instructive address.

Following Rev. Mr. Ricketts' address, John Moody, a member of the Sons of Veterans, and a Spanish War Veteran, entertained with a recitation. There were very interesting remarks on incidents and recollections of the Civil war days by Department Commander Wildman, Department Chaplain Davis, Assistant Adjutant General Abbott and Senior Vice Department Commander Young after which the evening's programme was brought to a close with the singing of America, with Hugh Kinder at the piano.

The general committee in charge of the supper was headed by Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury of Sedgwick Woman's Relief Corps and Mrs. M. Florence Dean of the Daughters of Veterans. Others on the supper committee were: Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. Elizabeth Bogue, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackey, Mrs. Lena O'Brien of the Daughters of Veterans; Mrs. Maud Moody, Mrs. Lillian E. Brewster, Mrs. Vinnie Wilson, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Lydia Perkins, Mrs. Susan Kampf, Mrs. Ines Hill, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom, Mrs. Elisabeth Mackey and Mrs. Grace Fowler of the relief corps. Assistants were Mrs. Elizabeth Risley, Mrs. Cora Botham, Mrs. Hattie Thatcher, Mrs. Mary Curran, Mrs. Lillian Whiting, Mrs. Lena Lester, Mrs. Whiteman, Mrs. Mary Covey and Mrs. Jennie Newbury.

The waitresses were Mrs. Vinnie Wilson, Mrs. Maud Moody, Mrs. Ines Hill, Miss Gladys Newbury, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Harriet Persons, Miss Alice Curran, Mrs. Genie Evans, Miss Dorothy Brinkman, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Abby Olsson, Mrs. Mary Austin, Mrs. Dorothy Potter, Mrs. Emily Dolbeare and Miss Helen Curran.

WILL HEAD DELEGATION ON NEW ORLEANS PILGRIMAGE

Ira R. Wildman, of Danbury, department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic of Connecticut, who was a guest with his staff of officers, at the campfire gathering held Wednesday evening at Buckingham Memorial by Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R., will head a delegation of Connecticut Civil war veterans on a pilgrimage to New Orleans early next month. The purpose of the veterans' visit to New Orleans is to return to the Louisiana veterans the battle torn flag of the Tenth Louisiana regiment, receiving in return the sword of Colonel Ledyard Colburn of this state.

The legislature of Connecticut has appropriated $1,000 to pay the expenses to New Orleans of the five Grand Army veterans who will bring back with them the colonel's sword. New Orleans has plans underway to give the Connecticut delegation an elaborate welcome and it is expected that the symbolic double ceremony will attract national attention.

FLETCHER POST TEAMS IN MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

In common with American Legion posts throughout the state, Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, of this city, will hold a membership drive this month. The American Legion, Department of Connecticut, has started a membership drive to renew all the remaining unrenewed 1924 memberships and to secure an increase of 35 per cent. over the total of 1924.

According to Department Commander Edward L. White, the Legion has been growing steadily in strength in Connecticut since late in 1923. During 1924 the membership was increased about one-third and the same proportionate increase is wanted for this year over last year. On March 31, at the close of first quarter of this year, more than 63 per cent. of the 1924 memberships had been renewed. This was an improvement over the figures for the same date last year.

The Legion in Connecticut is divided into seven districts. District No. 2, with New Haven as the center, has shown the most proportionate membership renewals of the year with District No. 3, Fairfield, No. 1, Hartford, No. 6, New London and No. 4, Windham, following in that order.

Eleven of the 102 posts in the state have already equalled or exceeded their 1924 memberships and it is expected that the other 91 will do the same during the next two weeks.

Fletcher Post has named five teams to take part in the local drive. The team captains are as follows:

Team A, William A. Anderson; Team B, Herman A. Bruckner; Team C, Frank P. Chase; Team D, Clifford C. Oat; Team E, William M. Skelly. The teams have been notified to meet this (Thursday) evening at the Legion rooms at which time instructions regarding the drive will be given them.

ROCKVILLE MAN EXPECTS TO GO TO NORTH POLE

John Reinhartz of Rockville, one of the best known radio men in the amateur circles in the United States, has been invited to accompany McMillan on his next trip to the North Pole, which will start in June. While there are several matters yet to be decided which have not allowed Mr. Reinhartz to give a decided answer to the invitation, it appears that such will now be the case and when the ship sets sail on its trip to the frozen north Mr. Reinhartz will be the radio operator on board the ship. If this is so it will be the second time that a Connecticut man has been selected as the radio operator who accompanied him last year was a Bristol youth.

ARCHITECT WILL VISIT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Word has been received from Architect Merrill of New York, who was detained on account of sickness that he will visit the Central Baptist church on Friday of this week. At 10 o'clock he will meet with the board of religious education to study how to provide for the growing school of the church. At the close of the evening service, Mr. Merrill will show a number of slides illustrating how different churches are providing for their modern needs, especially in religious education.

The deacons will meet at 7 o'clock on Friday evening and the regular service will be at 7.45.

Opening Patrol Leaders' Course.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton has announced that the patrol leaders training course is to open this (Thursday) evening at the Scout headquarters, room 28 Shannon Building. The course opens at 7.30 o'clock and it is expected that patrol leaders and assistant patrol leaders will attend the meeting and gain the information in scout craft that may be obtained in taking this course.

SEIZED RUM VESSELS ARE SUBJECT TO SALE

Eight vessels, seized by the Coast Guard working out of New London, and now berthed at the wharf of the Coast Guard academy, Fort Trumbull, are likely to be sold at public auction in the near future.

The ships, representing $200,000 in marine property together with their liquor cargoes, estiated at $245,000 value, stand forfeited due to the failure of their former owners to lay claim with the U. S. district court at New Haven before the time limit which expired Tuesday.

The largest vessel in the lot is the schooner J. Duffy, British, which was seized last year with the largest cargo of liquor ever brought into New London. At the time she was listed as having 2,875 cases and 150 casks of contraband, although the official figures given at New Haven are to the effect that her cargo consists of 2,802 cases of Scotch and 148 cases of assorted liquors.

Other vessels and cargoes declared forfeited are the Nancy I. with 100 cases of Scotch, the Josephine Maria with 500 six-gallon cans of alcohol, the Wanderer with 53 cases of whiskey, 140 cases and 140 loose bottles of beer, the Hattie T., with 500 cases of liquor, the North Star with 207 cases of whiskey, the Del Rey II with 400 cases of Scotch, and the Mary J. Beale with 25 cases of alcohol.

Miss Mildred Inez Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford and Edward William Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mason of this city, will be married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the First Methodist church, Hartford. The Rev. Dr. L. H. Worchester will perform the ceremony. Miss Pearson has selected as her maid of honor Miss Ruth Austin of Rockville, and as her bridesmaids Miss Lucia Pratt of Wethersfield, Miss Mildred Champion of Hartford, Miss Esther Brown of East Hartford, and Miss Bernice Hall of Springfield, Mass. Mr. Mason will have as his best man Harry Arnold of Hartford, and the ushers will be Everett Pearson, brother of the bride, Jarvis Brown of Hartford, Rufus J. Leonard of Rockville and Alfred Mason of Hartford. The wedding march will be played by Robert Prutting. A reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony.

The first use of the new scarlet fever anti-toxin in Connecticut since it was authorized by the United States government is recorded by the Backus hospital staff with complete success. A week ago a ten year old boy from Mohegan was brought to the hospital with a bad case of the disease, with high fever and in a prostrated condition.

Twenty-four hours after the anti-toxin had been administered the patients temperature was normal and in 36 hours the rash had disappeared.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED ON DESERTION GROUNDS

Divorce on the ground of desertion since Sept. 15, 1920, was granted to Abraham I. Feingold of Colchester from Lena Kaplan Feingold of Brooklyn, N. Y., when the case was tried before Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in the superior court at New London Tuesday.

They were married March 20, 1909, and have three children aged 12, 10 and 5 years. No order was entered as to custody.

Closing For Good Friday.

The capitol at Hartford will be closed all day Friday. All departments of the motor vehicle department, including the branch offices in Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury and New London, will also be closed during the day.

STRUCK AFTER ALIGTING FROM TROLLEY CAR

Just after she had alighted from a trolley car late Wednesday afternoon on Boswell avenue near Prospect park, Miss Hilda Thoma, 18, of 10 Lorenzo street, one of twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thoma, was struck by a motor truck driven by David Feister of 58 Fairmount street.

Before the driver managed to stop the truck Miss Thoma had been dragged forty feet, it was reported. She received a bad gash in her forehead, extensive abrasions and cuts on her face, a cut on one shoulder and her clothes were badly torn.

Both the trolley car and the truck were proceeding toward Taftville and Miss Thoma had nearly reached the sidewalk when the right forward mudguard of the truck hit her. She was picked up by Alphonse Boucher and Mr. Teft, who witnessed the accident, and taken into the home of Mr. Boucher at 835 Boswell avenue, where Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was summoned and treated the young woman. X-ray pictures are to be taken to determine whether there are any broken bones or internal injuries.

Officers Riley and Carroll who investigated the accident made a charge of reckless driving against Feister and he was summoned to appear in the city court.

GRATEFUL FOR AID FROM NORWICH FIREMEN

Mayor Milo R. Waters on Wednesday received from City Manager William A. Holt of New London, a letter in which the New London city manager expresses his gratitude for the prompt response of the local fire department to a call for aid during the Crocker house fire there early Tuesday morning. The letter is as follows:

Hon. Milo R. Waters, Mayor, City Hall, Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sir: I wish to thank you for the prompt response of Chief Stanton of your fire department in sending aid to us on the occasion of the fire at the Crocker house this morning. While it was not necessary to make use of the services of the apparatus, the presence of this company was of decided advantage to use at a time when all our firemen and apparatus were at work. The Norwich company standing by assured us against further loss if a fire developed elsewhere.

As you know, we have the same hose thread so that cooperation between the fire department of New London and Norwich is easy.

If we may be of assistance to you at any time we shall be pleased to help you.

Yours very truly,
W. A. HOLT,
City Manager.

JACK MINER HERO OF PRIZE READING SELECTION

Those who attended the Williams prize reading in Slater hall last Friday evening will be interested to learn that Jack Miner of Kingsville, Ontario, was the hero of the selection entitled, "Lost in the Woods," a true story chronicled by the talented writer, Miss Margaret Wade of Detroit, and read by Rose Bingham Standish. Mr. Miner is described as a "Nature Taught Man of the Woods, mighty hunter, gifted naturalist and writer." In youth he was a sportsman renowned for his skill, but latterly he has become much more concerned with the preservation of wild life. Many have become, through the press and the elittle booklet, so interested in his work that they made the trip to his bird sanctuary home at Kingsville, Ont., to get a glimpse of countless thousands of Canada goose, wild ducks, quail, purple matin and blue birds.

The boy whose life he saved is Tom Faught, "who later enlisted with the Canadian Expeditionary forces to the great war, going as private and returning a distinguished officer, with a row of decorations across the breast of his tunic."

TRUCK STRUCK TREE, YOUNG WOMAN HURT

When another machine got in his way Louis Sadnaski of No. 60 Maple street, driving a G. M. C. truck, ran into a tree at Washington square late Wednesday afternoon. Miss Grace Sanakaski, who was riding on the truck received a cut over the eye and a cut on the nose. She was taken to the home of her uncle, Louis Sanakaski.

The machine was damaged to the extent of a broken axle and a broken spring.

MAN'S LEG BROKEN WHEN HIT BY MOTOR TRUCK

John Smith, a cook employed at the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane, was hit and knocked down near what is called The Pines, just south of the institution, Wednesday evening, by a machine owned and driven by Robert T. Anderson, another employee at the institution. Mr. Smith, who received a broken leg and other injuries, was taken into the hospital where treatment was administered. It is said Mr. Smith did not see the machine, a Moon roadster, and walked into it.

Meeting of Comfort Circle.

Thirteen members of Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters, and three children, attended the meeting of the circle, held Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. William B. Lathrop, 250 Maple street. Mrs. Stanton W. Brown led the meeting, serving following the devotional exercises. At the close, Mrs. Lathrop served sandwiches and hot chocolate and distributed Easter favors.

Knocked Down By Automobile

Miss Catherine McGowan of No. 88 Roosevelt avenue was knocked down near the Chelsea bank crossing Wednesday by a Reo sedan owned by Frank Krupenski and driven by Walter Krupenski of No. 176 Cliff street. Miss McGowan received a scratch on her hand and a scratch on the left side of her face near the ear. She was attended by Dr. C. G. Thompson.

Chimney and Grass Fires.

Tuesday evening at 8.11 o'clock the fire department answered a telephone call for a chimney fire at the residence of Frank H. Hurlburt, No. 231 Broadway. Six gallons of chemical were used to extinguish the blaze. During the evening the department was called out for a grass fire on land off Hamilton avenue.

For Wellesley Pageant

Mrs. Christopher Potter of New York city, a graduate of Wellesley college, has written the pageant which will form an important part of Wellesley's semi-centennial celebration of the college on May 28 and 29 of this year. Dugald Stewart Walker of New York will design the scenes and costumes. Differing from the ordinary historical pageant, this will be a symbolic production. Music, color, poetry and dance will be combined to record the quest of the ages for beauty, wisdom and truth. The actors will all be students and the cast is being arranged by the Barnswallows, the college dramatic association. Various alumnae committees are assisting in the preparation.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

ACADEMY WILL OPEN SEASON ON SATURDAY AGAINST ALUMNI TEAM

Fairly light work was the order of the day Wednesday at the Academy campus owing to the chill wind that swept across the open space. The baseball squad had an hour's batting and infield practice followed by a short game between the varsity and the second team. In the practice game the varsity, after taking beatings from the Seconds on two successive days, showed a reversal of form and came out winners by a large margin.

The team is shaping up well although the loss of Tomkiel leaves a hole in the inner defense that is hard to fill. Cimikoski has been shifted from second to short and Carlin has been taken from the second team and placed at second where he is performing very well. Jarvis and Woods worked in the box for the varsity while Healy and Greene worked for the Seconds.

The Academy officially opens the season on Saturday against the Alumni team and the undergraduates are getting primed for this battle which has become an annual classic. The undergraduates deem it quite an honor to beat the Alumni for this team is made up of former graduates and ex-star players of a few years ago. The Alumni will have the following: Battery Segal p; Perry Holland r c; E. L. Harris, former Red Sox player. Standish 2b; McKnight 3b; Harold Hull ss; Phil McNamara lf; George Madden cf; Les. Manchester rf. George Madden positively will not pitch or catch according to his own statement.

Manager Gilman has received notice that South High of Worcester will oppose the Academy on May 20th in place of the Deep River high team that cancelled its game.

WILLS AND WEINERT TO SIGN FOR BOUT, JUNE 19

New York, April 8—Articles of agreement for the 10-round contest between Harry Wills negro heavyweight and Charlie Weinert, of [illegible] the Polo Grounds on June 19 for the benefit of the Italian [illegible] will be signed at the office of Jack Grounds A. C. promoter of the match said today. Negotiations for the match were completed this afternoon.

Fugazy said he was negotiating for a bout between Harry Greb, middleweight champion, and Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, as another attraction on the same card. Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight champion challenge Walker was forced to accept before he could be reinstated by the state athletic commission, it was said. He willing to step aside to allow Walker to meet Greb in the event he is guaranteed a match with the winner. In all probability the commission will be asked to approve a Greb-Walker fight at its meeting next Tuesday.

As a preliminary, Fugazy is attempting to match Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo lightweight, with Battling Siki, [illegible] senegalese, who won the world's championship in that division by stopping Georges Carpentier, only to lose it to Mike McTigue, the present champion.

SIX TEAMS ENTERED IN NEW LONDON CITY LEAGUE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 8—It has been voted by the City league that the personnel of this circuit this season shall consist of six teams. This was voted on by the representatives at a meeting held recently of the team managers and the president who has been elected for another term, all those present. The new teams are the Submarine Base, the Rope Patrol Division No. 4 and the Standard Oil Co. BIG OLYMPIC GAMES PLANNED FOR BOYS' WEEK

A meeting of the Olympic Games committee for Boys' Week, was held Wednesday evening at the office of Mayor Milo R. Waters in the court house with a large number of the members present. Plans were discussed relative to the games to be run off previous to the semi-finals and finals and committee chairmen were named to take charge of assignments.

The meeting was opened by Emery Davis, general chairman of the committee, and a talk on the objects of Boys' Week and the Olympic games was given by Edward Harris of the Norwich Rotary club. Mr Harris explained that the idea of doing something for boys was fostered in Rotary and how this grew until now it has become a national thank, too big to be handled by Rotary, demanding the support of men of all organizations and walks of life who have an interest in boys. This year, he said, Boys' Week is being carried out in 3,600 cities in this country and there are 9 Connecticut cities backing the Boys' Week program.

The aim of the week is to teach the growing up their responsibility to the boy. Every boy, he said, is a community risk and if the older people take an interest in them and help them, they will grow to be better men and better citizens of the country.

Mr. Harris touched on Boys' Day in church. On this day, he said, thousands of men throughout the country will accompany boys to church and there will be special sermons. He also [illegible] Boys' Day in School, when [illegible] visit the various schools of the city, hear special programmes, and in general, learn something of what the schools offer for the boy. Another [illegible] Harris. When we were boys, he said, there were plenty of places where [illegible] They cannot [illegible] cannot spin [illegible] and often [illegible] lands by [illegible] have [illegible] somewhere [illegible] as any [illegible] would say, he said.

The biggest job in Boys' Week is the Olympic games. No contributions are being asked for this day but fine [illegible] offered in the various [illegible] Norwich up to the age of 18 years will have a chance to enter the contests. Preliminary games are to be run off at the various schools in town, the three best boys in each division selected for their various entries and then these [illegible] with boys of the city not in schools, will compete in the finals on Wednesday, April 29th.

The meeting decided to run the [illegible] three classes, boys under 12 years, boys from 12 to 15 years and boys from 15 to 18 years.

It was decided to have four events in each class, as follows:

Boys up to 12 Years

1 75 yard dash; 2, baseball distance throw; 3 running broad jump; 4, 100 yard dash.

Boys 12 to 15 Years

1 75 yard dash; 2, baseball distance throw; 3, running broad jump; 4, 220 yard dash.

Boys 15 to 18 Years

1 [illegible] 2, baseball distance throw; 3, running broad jump; 4, 880 [illegible]

A committee is to take charge of running off preliminary meets at the various schools and a day will also be set for preliminary runs and tryouts for [illegible] and unattached [illegible] on Wednesday, April 29th, [illegible] and finals need [illegible] the [illegible] in the various [illegible]

At present the place of the final meet is in question but it will be either at the Norwich Fair Grounds or on the campus of the Norwich Free Academy if arrangements can be made to secure the use of the campus on that [illegible]

[illegible] the older people of [illegible] out in force to witness [illegible] to be one of the [illegible] for boys ever held in Norwich. No charge of admittance is to be made and it is expected that the grounds will be taxed to [illegible] the boys of Norwich that the older people are back of them in good, clean, wholesome sports.

Committee chairmen were selected [illegible] Wednesday night and they were empowered to select their own committees. Chairmen selected were as follows: Committees on prizes, William G. Park; on officials, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell; on equipment, Edward Reich; on credentials, Raymond Case; on entries, Rev. John J. Reilly and Edward G. McKay; on police, Mayor Milo R. Waters; on grounds, Coach Atkins of the Norwich Free academy; on rules, Myles E. Standish.

Another meeting of the committee is to be held [illegible] evening next week when final plans will be made to complete [illegible] arrangements for the [illegible]

It left his room here with the assistance of baseball [illegible] and Paul [illegible] trip to New York with having suffered an attack of influenza recently, following during the last few days by a touch of the grippe.

His condition this morning was described as much better than it was yesterday, and he was in such good humor that he insisted that local newspaper reporters who had been attempting to get his picture, be admitted to his room and make photographs of him. When asked later in the day how he felt, however, he replied that "every bone in my body aches."

RICHARDS MAY BE BARRED BY PLAYER-WRITER RULE

New York, April 8.—Vincent Richards, Olympic Tennis Champion and second in ranking in the United States today said that in his opinion the Player-Writer rule automatically bars him from National and International tournaments this summer.

Richards, who is under contract to a news syndicate for tennis stories, said that he has made no plans for the season at hand. Under the rule, as interpreted recently by a committee selected by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, a player may write for publication if he does not use his title over his articles, but he cannot cover a tournament in which he participates.

The second part of the edict in the one which affects Richards, in that he must choose between writing the major tournaments, including the Davis cup and National Championships, and participating in them. There is little doubt that he will be selected again as a member of the Davis Cup team.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, national singles champion, who also writes for the newspapers, was a member of the committee which interpreted the rule for the U. S. L. T. A.

CHAPMAN CLASHES WITH MADISON HIGH ON SATURDAY

Chapman Tech's baseball nine will stage its second game of the season when it stacks up against the Madison high school team of that city at Morgan Park on next Saturday afternoon. The performance of the Tech players on last Saturday between Old Lyme high proved that this years team has an edge over last years at this time of the season.

The team has been practicing hard all this week for the coming tilt and with little changes will probably make the same appearance in the lineup as on last Saturday. With the absence of Montgomery who has been out on account of illness, the Tech Mentors will have to substitute another player. Monty doesn't show signs of improvement, although it is hoped that he will be in shape for the game.

The pitching staff is pretty well filled with [illegible] Dean and Goro. These able fingers showed their worth last Saturday and [illegible] week, and in all prob[illegible] Tech will [illegible] the box.

BULKELEY SWAMPS COAST GUARD TEAM IN OPENING BASEBALL GAME

New London, April 8—Bulkeley had its first real test at baseball this afternoon at Morgan Park against the Rampart Base Division No. 4 nine and [illegible] [illegible] upon the [illegible] who had enough [illegible] on to win [illegible] park today [illegible] Bulkeley [illegible] Gordon. There was nothing [illegible] after Tillie Daniels [illegible] and clean up [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] on the [illegible] the connecting for a home run after Joe Barry, Hutchison and Shefcott had [illegible] safely before him. But Daniels failed to touch second, even though [illegible] about was a tremendous blow he was only given a single on the records of the [illegible] hit, and Eadosky, with Daniels [illegible] that damage in the first [illegible] romped off with a 16 to 5 victory.

There was slugging aplenty in the [illegible] afternoon, with Pollock [illegible] pace with the stick. Every regular [illegible] connected for at least one [illegible] however the hitting was really done [illegible] South this afternoon who hit [illegible] safe, triple and a homer in five times to the plate. The infield work was not what it should have been, the [illegible] condition of the field causing this [illegible] [illegible] fielding [illegible] ance. The pace for [illegible] today will be [illegible] three hours be[illegible] at least, before the [illegible] of the season is officially opened on April 18, against Morris High of New York. It is expected that the Orange and Black will hook up against the Tabs on Friday, although there is a chance that the team defeated today will [illegible] place for a revenge and may be [illegible] again.

The following handed the gobs its [illegible] significance inasmuch as the team disposed of today is one of the new nines entered in the Clay league.

Both Daniels and Parisi worked nicely. The Bulkeley captain receiving [illegible] support than his predecessor. The infield [illegible] failed to function as it should with Parisi pitching four [illegible] were cornered on the [illegible] of Daniels by O'Neil the visiting [illegible] for Bulkeley Neath [illegible] accounted by the Bulkeley batters was the result of [illegible] batting.

New—made just as FRANCE makes her finest toilet soaps

MAGIC, fragrant lather! A satiny, firm cake—this new different toilet soap you asked us to make.

"Do, do, make us a toilet soap as exquisite as French soaps," you said.

"We pay extravagant prices for imported soaps—make us a soap we will adore as we adore them, but that won't be so costly! We know you can do it—you made Lux."

Did you know—fastidious, exacting, imperative women—that the makers of Lux are known all over Europe, in fact all over the world, as the world's largest makers of soaps?

We have made the soap you asked for.

Made Lux Toilet Form!

Exquisitely, thoughtfully, made this true "savon de toilette"—made it quite differently from the white soaps you are used to.

"Like French soap," you said. Ah, that! That tested, tried, treasured French method—we made Lux Toilet Form by it! France uses this method for her finest toilet soaps—it makes Lux Toilet Form "un vrai savon condensé"—firm, solid, lasting. That is why Lux Toilet Form wears and wears so long. Firm smoothness of imported soaps!

"Savon parfumé"—of course your personal soap must be fragrant! Beguiling, tantalizing, fragrance of French soaps! The first gentle breath of Lux Toilet Form tells its story—how a European perfume expert, with his stock of rare expensive attars, at last determined that delicate fragrance!

THAT'S THE WAY FRENCH SOAPS MAKE YOU FEEL

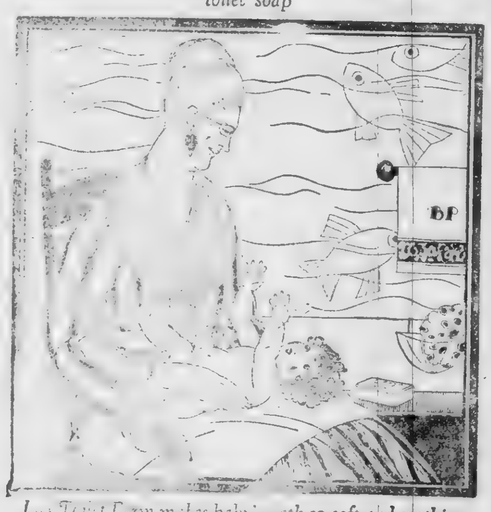
Luxurious, "soignée," satiny-all-over—that's the way French soaps make you feel. Absurd—yes, but it's true. You would never have paid 50c—75c—$1.00 for a tiny cake of French soap if it weren't! Intangible, indefinite—but oh, so real! The bubbling, delicately fragrant lather of Lux Toilet Form leaves your skin with that same soft, satiny, caressed, delicious feeling! Somehow—you feel so much lovelier!

Have we made the soap you wanted?

Ask the eager, delighted women who swept off the counters the first few hundred cakes we put on sale. There—6—16—18—24 cakes at a time they bought! Watching, we knew that the women who asked us for Lux Toilet Form were right—"un savon de toilette" at a reasonable price. Ten cents. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Gentle lather of Lux Toilet Form keeps it soft and gleaming

Beauty-wise France developed this method for making fine toilet soap

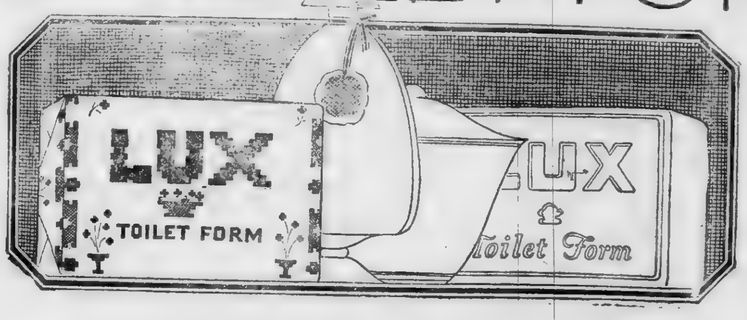


Lux Toilet Form makes baby's bath so soft and soothing

Perfect lather—men want smooth shaves, quickly! That's why they like Lux Toilet Form for their bath—that brisk affair

Ask for LUX TOILET FORM Today 10¢

The fragrant delicacy of an imported toilet soap! With the swift, joyous, bubbling lather that you love. Lux Toilet Form gives you the same smooth, satiny-all-over feeling you loved in imported soaps. It is a true "savon de toilette"—at a moderate price. 10c.



Your druggist, your department store, your grocer, each one has Lux Toilet Form—firm, fragrant cakes—made as France makes her finest toilet soaps. It lasts and lasts. All the family can use it freely for both toilet and bath. Ask for Lux Toilet Form today. 10c.

POETRY

A SPRINGTIME JINGLE

O come and sing a round to spring,
There is an end to snowing;
The crocus beams are blowing.
The bare brown twigs expectant look
Above the leaping, laughing brook
Come sing,
A rhyme,
And ring,
A chime,
To spring.

The bumble bee, so wise is he,
Has bumbled from his dwelling;
A pleasant note he sets afloat,
The scent of honey smelling.
'Tis now the time when skies and flowers
Foretell the coming golden hours;
So sing,
A rhyme,
And ring,
A chime,
To spring.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

April

April smiles at me. Her glances rare
Are promise of far-off things.
She twines sheer, budding branches in her hair;
Her bosom folds a bird that sings.

My heart would also weeping be,
But lo; she smiles again, bewitching, bold,
Agleam like twilight on the sea.

She whispers to me, with a stifled sigh,
O springing life and mating dove.
The dawn has heard, breaks through a blue burnt sky.
A paling star shines far above.
—Edith Natalie Stark in Nautilus.

Peter Makes Another Wrong Guess

When e'er you and a person guessing
His ignorance he is confessing.
—Old Mother Nature.

To guess is about as useless a thing as any one can do. Yet most folks do a great deal of guessing. If they do not know a thing they guess. Peter

Thunderer was drumming and watched

Rabbit had guessed that the log on which Thunderer the Grouse drummed was hollow. He had never taken the trouble to find out until Jumper the Hare had led him over there and told him to look. He had guessed that Thunderer always used a log for his drumming until now he had seen Thunderer drumming on a rock or on the ground. You see, it always is easier to guess than to take the trouble to seek the facts, and Peter is such a happy-go-lucky little chap that he always or almost always, does the easiest thing.

It was a moment of startling to find that he had been all wrong in his idea about the drumming of Thunderer of the Ground. And curiosity was another thing that didn't take a back seat. Peter scratched his head by scratching behind his ear with his hind foot, by pounding. Suddenly, with a start, how did he do it? He certainly made all that noise with his wings, so, of course he must sound something with those wings of his in order to make that noise. I'll watch him a little more closely and see what I see.

So Peter stole a bit nearer to where Thunderer was drumming and watched. He saw Thunderer lift his wings above his head and bring them down. He lifted them hard and he brought them down hard, and Peter heard the first boom of the long roll. It began slowly and then went faster and faster. By now those wings were moving so fast, that all Peter could see them was a blur. Then they stopped, too. But Peter was satisfied. He knew now, how that drumming was done. He knew now what Thunderer beat with his wings. At least he thought he knew. So he was satisfied. It didn't occur to him to even try to make sure that he knew. He was guessing, and nothing more.

"He beats his own sides with his wings, and that is the way he makes all that noise," thought Peter. "His own sides are his drum. I wonder that I didn't think of that before. Of course he doesn't have to be on a hol-So, Peter stole a bit nearer to where low tree. Of course he can drum anywhere he happens to be. He has his drum with him all the time. Well, I'm glad I found out about it all by myself. I'll go hunt up Cousin Jumper and tell him that I know now how Thunderer the Grouse drums and what his drum really is."

So off started Peter to look for his cousin, Jumper the Hare And as he hopped along, lippety-lippe - lippety, through the Green Forest he heard behind him the drumming, which sounded like distant thunder, and chuckled as he thought how smart he had been to find out all about it and how it was done. It didn't once pop into his funny little head that after all he was still guessing and that he might be mistaken. As a matter of fact he was. He was quite as mistaken as when he had been so sure Thunderer made all that noise by beating a hollow log with his stout wings.

But Peter was sure—oh, absolutely sure—that this time he was right, and he hurried, for he was most anxious to find his cousin, Jumper the Hare, and tell him how much he knew. You see, Peter, like many other people, couldn't be comfortable until he had told what he knew.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

The final showing of Edmund Lowe in The Brass Bowl, his latest screen triumph under the William Fox banner, will be given at the Breed theater tonight. This has proven to be a highly popular attraction for this playhouse and it has served to win a place in the hearts of especially the local movie fanettes for Mr. Lowe, who has blossomed forth as a matinee idol to be reckoned with henceforth. He is one of those handsome, virile actors of dashing proclivities and he is sure to command a constantly increasing group of admirers.

Helene Chadwick will also be seen in Her Own Free Will. The story, adapted for the screen by Gerald C. Duffy from Ethel M. Dell's story of the same name is a tale of a girl who marries for money and after trying every way to be free of her domineering husband, finally falls in love with him.

Governor Will Attend Ball

Orders from the adjutant general's office in Hartford order the governor's staff to report at Hotel Mohican, New London, on the evening of April 13 for attendance upon Governor Trumbull who will be a guest at the American Legion ball at the state armory there.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Today, Friday and Saturday at the Palace will be the Pirrazis Trio of youngsters ages 6, 9, 11. These juveniles are very clever singers, dancers and comedians. They have been making a big hit in all the large cities they have played and are sure to go over very big here. Others on the same bill are the Smiletta Bros. Athletes supreme. Ketch and Wilma, comedians. Dare, Cole and Helene win a laugh every second, and Major Rhodes the Musical Ace.

The feature picture will be "Mad Whirl."

Students of social conditions as they effect the relationship between parent and child, profess alarm at what such conditions portend for the future. "The Mad Whirl," Universal-Jewel all-star production to be shown in the Palace Theatre commencing today deals dramatically with this condition.

The picture was adapted from "Here's How," a story by Richard Washburn Child, former United States minister to Italy, which created a storm of mingled praise and condemnation when it was published. May McAvoy has the feature role in a cast which contains such widely known screen artists as Jack Mulhall, Myrtle Stedman, Barbara Bedford, Alec B. Francis, Ward Crane, George Fawcett, Marie Astaire and Joseph Singleton. It was made by William A. Seiter who directed "The Family Secret" and "The Fast Worker," both Universal-Jewel.

The story told is that of a family of three—mother, father and son—all of whom spend their time in seeking new sensations with a crowd of fast-crazed friends. The parents are as hectic in their mode of living as are the children.

Some Fiddler.

One day last season, when Mischa Elman, the great Russian violinist who is to appear here at the Palace theatre under the auspices of the Norwich Hebrew Institute on Sunday afternoon, April 19th, was traveling aboard a train he strolled into the diner and took a seat opposite a stranger, who soon proved himself to be a traveling man by opening a conversation with the highly original question, "What's your line?"

"I'm a violinist," replied the world famous one.

"Play in some orchestra or traveling show?" asked the salesman brightly.

"No, just alone with a pianist."

"Dance?"

"No, I give concerts."

"I should think that was a pretty tough way to make a living. Why don't you get into a regular line of business and make some real money. You look like a bright young fellow."

"Oh," said the master artist, "I make enough money. I do not have to worry about that."

"That depends on what you call enough," answered the self-satisfied drummer. "For instance, I make about $4,000 a year, and next year I'll be in for a raise."

"My dear man," said Elman a trifle bored. "You have my sympathy. $4,000 a year. I earn that much every week."

"What $200,000 a year? Do I look like a fool? Why you're crazy or else you're some fiddler! Who are you anyway?"

"My name is Mischa Elman."

"Are you Mischa Elman?" cried the astonished man. "Why I have a dozen of your records. Say, put it there. Lets talk about music!"

Broadway Theater

An outstanding program of B. F. Keith, world's best vaudeville is the offering starting today at the Broadway theater.

Coming here direct from a most successful tour of the world's largest theaters, Johannes Josephson offers his cameo-drama, The Pioneers. As a feature attraction this act is second to none. It's an episode of early America's frontier days and is something well worth seeing. Not only is it interesting but is picturesque, entertaining and educational.

Jim Grady, the singing miner is gifted with a remarkable voice and when a Keith vaudeville scout heard him, Mr. Brady immediately signed up to a long term contract and thus far has scored every where.

Harry Jackson and Mary Baker in Excuse Me offer a comedy hit. They are primarily musical stars and appeared with Weber and Fields and with Jean Bedini's Puss in Boots and Robinhood.

The Gerardo gypsy serenaders offer a musical novelty playing many instruments but their specialty is playing thirty four mandolins at one time.

MEN AND APPARATUS FIGHT WOODLAND FIRES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., April 8.—A forest fire said to have originated near Carolina, and north of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, driven by the high wind, burned quickly, covering miles of countryside and not stopping until the waters of Charlestown pond were reached, after the flames had jumped the Boston Post road between the King Tom farm of Thomas Wilkinson and the village of Cross Mills, or Charlestown. The fire burned fiercely all Wednesday afternoon and at 6.30 o'clock Wednesday night help was asked for from the Westerly fire department. In response to bell alarm No.33 Westerly Fire Chief George E. Egger and Engineers Bonner and Passetti with a force of 20 firemen went to Charlestown with the Ahrens' Fox pumper where the suction was laid in the brook at the King Tom curve on the Post road and lines of hose laid. The adjoining hillside to the north was wet down and this kept the flames back from the King Tom farm building.

The Watch Hill fire truck arrived at the King Tom farm one hour after the members were called and they stationed themselves on the King Tom farm at the pond in the rear of the farm buildings. The fire trucks of the South Kingstown department from Wakefield and the one from Peacedale were also aiding. None of the buildings in the vicinity were burned or damaged by the forest fire. Hundreds of automobiles went to the fire. The reflection of the blaze was seen for many miles away.

Several hundred men armed with shovels and brooms were also fighting the fire and at 9 o'clock the blaze was not under control, working its way toward Shamunuck Hill, where the fire was blazing fiercely. Besides the threatening of King Tom was the place known as the Joe Church, on the cross road between Cross Mills and Shannuck.

Fruit for breakfast — of course but do you have the BEST BREAKFAST FRUIT?

There's a big difference! Some fruits meet the needs of breakfast much better than others.

Prunes are one of the best. Many dieticians give them first choice for breakfast because, in addition to their rich mineral salts, sugars and vitamines, they possess the natural cellulose or tender fruit tissue necessary to provide bulk and balance for the more highly-concentrated foods.

Serve the Best Prunes!

And when you buy—Prunes, get the best—sweet, plump, thin-skinned SUNSWEET PRUNES from the famous orchards of California (not to be confused with the tart, sour kind which may have disappointed you).

Protect yourself! Buy SUNSWEET PRUNES, always clean and fresh, in our new sanitary 2 lb. carton or in bulk, from the regular 25 lb. box. You will be delighted with their uniform high quality. Enjoy them tomorrow—cooked as suggested below:

A Quick Way to Cook Prunes

Wash SUNSWEET PRUNES, cover with hot water and allow to soak one hour. Bring to the boiling point in the same water in which they were soaked, cover and cook until Prunes are tender, from thirty to forty-five minutes. Add sugar ten minutes before removing from fire. Allow one tablespoon to one cup of Prunes, measured before soaking or cooking. If a thick syrup is desired, remove Prunes to serving dish when tender, and boil the liquid until it is of the desired consistency. A little orange peel, lemon juice or stick cinnamon improves the flavor for some tastes.

"World's Greatest Buy"

Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

It is only as you find the real comparisons for Hudson qualities among the costliest cars that the enormous difference in price is so astonishing.

Today it offers the greatest price advantage and finest quality in Hudson history. Never was this supremacy of value so outstanding. And the greatest Hudson sales on record show how complete is public knowledge of the facts.

Is There any Reason to Pay More?

Hudson's position as the "World's Greatest Buy" is not merely a new attainment. It is acknowledgment of ten years' refinement of a great car around the famous patented Super-Six principle. No motor design, however costly, has been found to displace this long-time leadership of the exclusive Super-Six.

It is responsible for the way Hudsons endure the hardest service, free of mechanical annoyance, and retain their new car vigor and flexibility when they have become old in point of years and service.

Its simplicity has always meant a lower selling price than is permitted in complicated types. And today, economies possible only to the largest production of 6-cylinder closed cars give it value advantages never held by any rival.

All now know that higher price can buy no smoother performance than Hudson's. It cannot buy more brilliant results in acceleration, power or speed. It cannot buy greater reliability or endurance.

No car at or near the price rivals the Hudson Coach in actual proof of value—which is SALES.

NORWICH BOND ISSUE BILL PASSED AT LEGISLATIVE SESSION WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 8—A bill passed in the house today provides for the appointment of a commissioner of agriculture. At present there is a board consisting of eight members, one from each county, with an executive known as the secretary of the state bureau of agriculture.

The bill provides for the appointment by the governor on or before the first day of May, 1925, and quadrenially thereafter a commissioner of agriculture who shall be a practical farmer actively engaged in farming and shall hold office for four years. The salary is to be $5,000 per year. The commissioner will appoint a deputy commissioner who shall be a practical farmer actively engaged in farming.

The deputy commissioner is to receive a salary of $3,500 per year. The main office is to be in the state capitol but the commissioner may establish such branch offices as may be required. The commissioner is to visit different sections of the state and investigate methods and wants of practical husbandry, the adaptation of agricultural products to soil, climate and markets, and, as far as practicable, visit agricultural fairs within the state, encourage the establishment of farmers clubs, agricultural libraries and reading rooms and disseminate agricultural information by lectures or otherwise. All of the duties imposed upon the secretary of the state board shall from July 1, 1925, be assumed by the commissioner.

The bill establishing a town court in the town of Waterford, taken from the calendar and passed today, provides that the court shall have cognizance and criminal jurisdiction of all criminal matters within the corporate limits of the town. Provision is made for rights of appeal to the common pleas court for New London county from any judgment of the court.

It shall have exclusive jurisdiction of all complaints for crimes or misdemeanors committed within the town limits of the town in which the punishment provided by law shall not exceed a fine or penalty of $200 or imprisonment in jail for six months or both.

There is to be a judge and deputy judge appointed by the general assembly to hold office for two years, both of them to be legal residents of the town. The court may tax for court fees $3.00 process and execution $2.50. Service of process and for witnesses the fees fixed by the general statutes. The judge is to receive a salary of $600 and the deputy judge $5.00 per day when called in, this sum to be deducted from the salary of the judge.

The salary of the prosecuting attorney is to be $600 per year and the assistant $5.00 per day when called in, this amount being likewise deducted from the salary of the prosecutor. If the judge or the deputy are unable to act, the prosecuting attorney may request a qualified justice of the peace, residing in the town to act. The judge of the court is also to be the clerk.

Norwich Bond Issue.

In the Senate the act authorizing the City of Norwich to issue in serial forms refunding bonds to the amount of $166,000 was taken from the calendar. The bill in full reads:

Section 1. The city of Norwich is authorized to issue serial bonds, which shall be denominated, "Issue of 1925, Refunding Bonds of the City of Norwich," to the amount of one hundred and sixty-six thousand dollars, and such bonds shall be paid in equal annual instalments, commencing not later than five years from the date of issue, and the total amount of such bonds shall be paid within a period of twenty-five years from said date. Such bonds shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually. The funds realized from the sale of such bonds shall be used for the payment of bonds already issued by said city and which shall mature June 1, 1925. Such bonds shall not be issued at less than par, and it may be stipulated therein that the principal and interest shall be payable in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness.

Sec. 2. The court of common council of said city may provide for the sale and negotiation of such bonds and shall prescribe, subject to the limitations of this act, the several and aggregate amounts of such bonds, the form of the same, the rate of interest to be paid thereon, the times and places of paying such interest and principal and the person or persons who shall execute the same on behalf of said city.

The debate in the house today concerning the powers of the Board of Education in New Haven was a protracted one. The question simmered dow was as to whether the board should say how much should be expended on the vested authorities.

The House.

Mr. Sturges of Woodbury occupied the speaker's chair this morning and called the house to order at 11:30. Chaplain Lewis offered prayer thanking Providence for the mystery of life.

Bills passed from the calendar—No. 820, establishing the town court of Waterford; No. 99, providing for examination and audit of accounts of building and loan associations; No. 411, requiring undertakers to be licensed by the Connecticut board of examiners of embalmers; No. 627, creating the office of commissioner of thority from the secretary of the state thorit yfrom the secretary of the state board of agriculture to the commissioner and providing for the appointment of a deputy commissioner; No. 918, prohibiting the use of unauthorized "stop" and danger signs on state highways; No. 970, appropriating $1,000 for celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Connecting Agricultural Experiment station at New Haven.

Mr. Soudant of Canton opposed the last measure as unnecessary expense for an unketing trip.

The order of the day at 12:15 in the house of representatives was house bill No. 170, a proposed act amending the charter of the city of New Haven Some of the important things the bill does is to create a department of education which is to take over the affairs of the New Haven city school district and to define the powers of the board of finance.

A spirited debate started immediately. Mayor David E. FitzGerald was at the capitol in support of the bill, which was passed after a verbal contest lasting more than an hour. Several attempts to amend the measure failed.

Miss Cheney of Manchester opposed the bill on the question of principle she said, as she had not been asked by any one in New Haven to oppose it. She thought charter changes should not be made without good reason. "Why should not the job of running our schools stand on the performance of that job alone?" asked Miss Cheney and she said the school board should be elected and not appointed by the mayor. She thought the board of education should not be hemmed in by a board of seven men trying to get in their fingers all the money for schools. Miss Cheney objected to the power of the board of finance to review and diminish the estimates of the school board.

The motion to recommit was lost by a rising vote, not counted as Miss Cheney withdrew her doubt of the vote.

Senate.

Senator Edward F. Hall, the chairman of the committee on railroads, explained the substitute for senate bill No. 515 concerning the operation of railroad trains on Sunday. It allows trains to be run to points within the state on Sundays, if authorized by the public utilities commission. The bill amends section 3755 of the general statutes to read as follows: "No railroad company shall run any train on any road operated by it within this state between sunrise and sunset on Sunday; providing it may run trains carrying the United States mail or perishable freight and such other trains or classes of trains as may be authorized by the public utilities commission."

Senator Hall also explained the bill repealing section 3758 of the general statutes referring to fares on Sunday trains. By the repeal of this section railroad companies are prevented from reducing fares on Sunday trains.

Senator Hall said the purpose of bill No. 515 was to enable the railroads to run excursion trains on Sundays within the state. He said that total abstinence and development and factory mutual benefit societies have asked railroad companies for excursion trains, but they were told by the companies that unless the trains went outside the state the excursions could not be given. The bill would be a great accommodation to people who had no automobiles and who were dependent on trains for a means to visit the shore resorts on Sunday.

Both bills were passed unanimously.

On the recommendation of the committee on finance, the bill relating to a retirement system for teachers was referred to the committee on appropriations.

On motion of Senator Edward F. Hall, the bill amending the law concerning the sale of impure milk was taken from the table. The senator offered an amendment increasing from 750,000 to 1,000,000 the average bacteria per cubic centimeter which the law forbids to be in milk offered for sale. The amendment was adopted and the bill as amended passed.

On the motion of Senator Smith, the bill from the house concerning appropriations by town meetings in Windham was taken from the table and passed.

Calendar.

Passed—Concerning the duties of the mayor and common council of Willimantic; that taxes levied on taxable property in Waterbury shall be payable on May 1 and November 1 in each year; that resolutions for expenditures in the city of Waterbury shall be referred to a special committee before final action by the board of aldermen; that members of the police force of the town of Orange, shall be required to pass an examination before appointment; creating a department of health in West Haven; incorporating a community center in New Haven; incorporating the Lawrence and Memorial hospitals in New London; advertising rules and regulations for West Haven; creating a sewer commission for Bloomfield, who shall have authority over the construction of sewers in that town; authorizing the board of finance of Darien to fix the salary, which is now $2,500, of the superintendent of highways and bridges in that town; making statutory the regulations of the dairy and pure food commissioner for the bottling of water and the manufacture and bottling of non-alcoholic beverages; including evaporated and concentrated milk within the scope of the law governing the sale of milk and cream; to pay the members of the board of finance of West Haven $200 a year.

Municipal Bonds.

Senator Keeney explained bills authorizing the cities of Norwich and Waterbury to issue bonds. The senator said that Norwich had asked for permission to issue refunding bonds to the amount of $166,000. That city had already reached its limit of 5 per cent. of its grand list, but the committee had been informed that the assessment on property in Norwich was at a very low rate and that the grand list did not represent the value of assessible property in that city. The rate of interest was not to exceed 4 1-2 per cent.

The bonds for Waterbury amounted to $500,000. One issue, for $400,000, was for bridges, and the other $100,000, for storm water drainage, and the bonds for both issues shall bear a rate of interest not greater than 5 per cent.

The bills relating to the bond issue of both cities were passed.

The senate adjourned to Thursday at 11:15 a. m.

FEDERAL LAND BANKS MADE $38,800 IN LOANS

The Connecticut federal land banks closed one loan more during February than in the preceding month, according to figures from the federal farm loan bureau of the treasury department.

Connecticut's federal land banks closed 13 loans valued at $38,800 in February as compared with 12 worth $32,800 during the preceding month. This made the total number of loans closed from the period of organization to the end of February, 2,203, valued at $4,033,850, the third largest number and second greatest value, for any of the New England states.

Maine's federal land banks had, from the period of organization to the end of February, closed 2,301 loans, having a total value of $6,477,550.

Massachusetts' banks which had closed the second largest number of loans, 1,380, reported a total value of $3,797,705; in Vermont the figures were 927 and $2,553,100, respectively.

New Hampshire reported 473 closed loans, having a value of $1,058,275 while Rhode Island's banks showed no change from the figures for November, 113, valued at $351,650.

GASOLINE PRICE CUT IN MIDDLE ATLANTIC STATES

Gasoline prices in New Jersey and other Middle Atlantic states dropped a cent Tuesday, but New England will, for the present at least keep on paying an average price of 24 cents. The one cent cut was announced by the Standard Oil and Gulf Refining companies and is effective in all the Middle Atlantic states except South Carolina where a half cent drop was announced, and in Virginia where prices remain the same. Official announcement was made by both companies that the price would not be changed in New England for the time being.

FOOD SALE PROFIT OF $100 FOR Y AUXILIARY

The April meeting and luncheon of the Board of Women's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian association was held Tuesday noon at the association building on Main street with 14 members present.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Miss Marion Bishop, and after the usual reports plans were discussed for activities of the auxiliary during the coming year. Announcement was also made that the annual meeting of the auxiliary would be held next month and that notice would be sent out to members previous to the meeting. A nominating committee was appointed to bring in names for officers to serve during the coming year. A report of interest was rendered by Mrs. Samuel Smiley, chairman of the food sale committee, who reported a net profit of over $100 from the sale last Friday.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed after which the members attended a sewing bee, when work was done for the association.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

CROCKER HOUSE FIRE THEFTS STILL REPORTED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 8.—

The police continue to receive reports of the theft of jewelry and apparel from guests at the Crocker house yesterday morning when flames destroyed the hotel and caused the guests to hastily flee from the structure. Today three more guests made known their losses. Mrs. W. J. Quincey, occupying Room 109, stated that property belonging to her and her husband and consisting of a dozen strings of beads, pocketbook containing a small sum of money, bank book containing $10., silk stockings, electric iron and two straight-edged razors were taken.

O. E. Wightman, chief electrician on the U. S. S. S48, reported that his trunk containing among other things, several woman's dresses, strings of beads, a lady's gold watch, three dozen silver plated knives and forks, five solid silver spoons, one bearing the name, "Susie" three white shirts and other effects were stolen. The trunk had the initials in block letters, "O. E. W." on one end.

Nick Palladini, of Home street, was fined $200 in the police court this morning and produced the money to settle for having in his possession intoxicating liquor ostensibly for the purpose of sale. Nick had stocked up in some way, he said, by purchase from an Italian man, with liquor that coast guard vessels had seized when they captured rum runners in the waters adjacent to New London. There was a lot of the liquor—21 bottles of Holland gin and 20 bottles of rye and Scotch whiskey, beside five gallons of alcohol, which Nick was in the process of fixing for sale when police officers visited him. Nick was wise about his predicament and did not attempt to conceal his ownership. He admitted that he served a time in the coast guard and said that when he got out of the service he remained out. Then he admitted that he took up the liquor selling as a business that he might get easy money. How much he got or how long he was in getting it was not disclosed, but he produced $211.57 to pay the bill the police court attached to him. The police got the information that Nick was in the business from the coast guard officials, and they became possessed of the information from sailors, who were the patrons of Nick. Judge Prince was inclined to send Nick to jail, but the fellow was so frank in his statements and because he pleaded guilty when put to plea, a jail term of 30 days was remitted. The liquor he had was confiscated. Nick was garbed in a dungaree suit in court, the same that he used when he was in the service. He promised to abandon the business in which he engaged to make easy money and said he would go to work at once, as he had arranged for beginning labor in a respectable employment.

Peter West, a sailor, was in New London yesterday with companions. He came after he had taken "a few" and when he crossed Bank street at State, he became possessed of an idea that he could direct traffic with greater facility than could Policeman Corcoran, on duty there. Pete stepped into the street and when a car came along he held out his arm and stopped the movement of the car. Officer Corcoran reprimanded him for the act and took him aside where he could impress upon him that he was interfering with traffic. Pete did not take that rebuke kindly and he and the policeman had some words which resulted in Pete being locked up till court assembled this morning. The sailor then explained that he saw the car was to run him down so he did the best thing he could do and held up his arm to stop the machine. He admitted that he had taken some liquor, but denied that he was under its influence. That was not regarded as an excuse, so he was fined.

Peter Pendergast was found drunk on Green street at 3 o'clock this morning and was given a bed at the police station where he remained till Judge Prince released him this forenoon. Peter had never been in the court before so he was shown some leniency and judgment that he was to pay the court $10 was suspended.

Francis Moriarty indulged in a premeditated drunk yesterday and fell into the police net when it was dragged. He admitted to the officers who encountered him, that he was drunk and stated his intention of continuing in that condition during the next four weeks. The officers didn't think Moriarty would be able to carry out his plans for a protracted spree and arrested him that he might tell his story to court today. He did tell it and it was just as the arresting officers had related in advance. As the man was in court four days ago and then succeeded in securing the sympathy of the court, Judge Prince fined Moriarty $20 and advised him that he would be in an undertaker's shop instead of in the police court if he persisted in drinking the stuff that is sold for whiskey in these times. Moriarty drew about $30 from the savings bank and handed the money to the court.

William Papham, a colored man, had illusions yesterday when he went from his work as a waiter on a parlor car and slept all day. Somehow Willie saw in his mind $10 he supposed was in his duds when he went to sleep. He awoke and didn't find the X so he accused his wife of having taken it. This, naturally, led to a hot discussion and the arrest of Willie was sought and accomplished. Today he said he had not been drinking, but he could not account for the dream about the $10. He was allowed to go to Boston to report for duty, or he would lose his work.

Charles Peabody was presented for interfering with traffic on Main street at State. He explained that he became confused as to the directions of the traffic officer and did not intend to do else but conform to the directions of the officer. Judgement was suspended.

H. N. Cairns, residing at the Y. M. C. A., Bridgeport was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, charged with violation of the city's automobile ordinances, in parking his machine away from the curb on Main [illegible] creating traffic [illegible] in court this morning.

Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Pat[illegible] this morning discovered the door on the tailoring establishment of Samuel Goodman [illegible] unlocked. Believing that the store had been entered by a thief, Goodman was summoned to the place but upon his arrival there an investigation did not reveal that any of the stock had been stolen, so it is not known whether the store was left unlocked by a careless employe or whether a thief gained entrance and was scared away before he had opportunity to remove any of the goods.

The funeral of Mrs. Susan M. Stoddard, widow of James P. Stoddard, whose death occurred at her residence in Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Russell J. Palmer, 48, of 700 Main street, died last night at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, following a surgical operation a day or two ago. Mr. Palmer is survived by his wife, a daughter, Miss Madeline Palmer, a student at Willimantic Normal school; a brother, Elmer Palmer, of Windham; three sisters, Mrs. John Throboud, Pennsylvania, Mrs. Stoddard, St. Petersburg, Fla., and Miss Lillian Palmer, New York. His mother, who is a resident of Pennsylvania, also survives. Mr. Palmer was employed for twenty-five years by the Central Vermont railroad as conductor and was a member of the Order of Railway Conductors, Mohegan lodge, I. O. O. F., and Junior Order of American Mechanics. His health had been impaired some time and earlier in the week he submitted to a surgical operation.

Receiving information of the alleged sales yesterday of liquor at the place, 125 North Bank street, conducted by Stephen Baciawski, although the store has been suspected for a long time of supplying drinks of alcoholic contents, the police this afternoon raided the building and after a diligent search, they failed to find any evidence to indicate that liquor was sold there. However, having in their possession the alleged information of sales to two young men the day before, Baciawski was arrested and held in bail of $700 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. He furnished a surety on his bond.

The police allege that the Baciawski place has been the means of supplying liquor to many people and a close watch of it has been made for a year or so, but up to today nothing was detected about the place or its frequenters to warrant an arrest being made. Today, when the police obtained the information that two young men purchased liquor there yesterday, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a search warrant and Sergeant Nelson Smith, Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels, Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Patrolmen Clyde Murphy, William Corcoran and John Sullivan swooped down upon the building. The officers made a systematic search, but did not find as much as an empty bottle and were forced to leave the place with the alleged sales of the day before the only evidence they have to base their hopes of a conviction of Baciawski. The accused denies his guilt and alleges that he was at his work at the state pier all day Tuesday.

William J. Brady, 59 Sherman street, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer William Corcoran charged with violation of the automobile law in driving a machine without having a license.

John Boyle and Robert Wirsching, two local young men, were found on North Bank street late this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy and in a condition that brought about the pair being deemed a nuisance because of their having imbibed strong drink. Both were taken into custody and locked up pending presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. When Boyle was searched, a bottle of diluted bay rum, containing alcoholic strength of 60 per cent. was found on his person, the pair having been drinking the concoction as a stimulant.

Joseph Schwartz, of the Schwartz Grain company, complained to the police late today because of the condition of Lane A., a section of which highway operates to the rear of the grain company's establishment and is partially filled with rubbish from the recent fire that gutted the Rialto theatre. The charred embers from the burned building, having been deposited in the highway makes it impossible for teams and automobiles to pass there and greatly interferes with the grain company's business, it is claimed.

WATCHMAN RICHARD GIBNEY WITH ONE MILL 54 YEARS

Putnam, April 8.—Richard William Gibney has just completed 54 years of continuous service with the Putnam Woolen company, a remarkable record and one that is probably not equaled in this city. From all appearances he is rugged and in the best of health, at 78. For 31 years he has been a watchman for the company and for the 23 years previous to becoming a watchman he was a weaver.

Mr. Gibney was born in West Meath, Ireland, May 14, 1847. His parents wree Luke and Catherine Lynch Gibney. When he was but fourteen months old the family came to this country and finally to Blackstone, Mass. There he attended school while his father worked in the mill.

When the Civil war broke out, young Gibney with a great number of other boys, thought it no wrong to add a few years to his age that they might fight to preserve the Union and he was but 15 years. On the second of April, 1862, he enlisted for ninety days in Co. F, 9th Rhode Island Infantry. On August 25, following the expiration of the first enlistment, he re-enlisted for nine months in Co. K, 61st Mass. His third enlistment was in December 1864 and in the 61st Mass., Co. K. His length of service when he was mustered out and received an honorable discharge was 22 months and he was then just 18.

Mr. Gibney's first service was along the Potomac, near Washington. From there to Newburn, N. C., where he participated in his first real battle. Other battles were those of Hawker and White House Junction. His regiment was returned to Virginia and Mr. Gibney's company was assigned to Baltimore to search the city for [illegible] reported stored there by the Confederates.

Then came the great battle of Gettysburg and although his time of enlistment had just expired, he was ordered to remain and [illegible] the great battle of the [illegible] General Reynolds [illegible] Corps, 1st division, [illegible] immediate command of General [illegible]. Again having remained, the real battle was that at Petersburg, on April 1, 2 and 3, 1865, shortly after this Lee surrendered at Appomattox Court House. While there, President Lincoln came to see General Grant and as he passed down the line, shaking hands with the officers, 17-year-old Gibney rushed out to shake hands with the president. Lincoln grasped the boy's hand and told him that he was a brave little boy.

After being mustered out at Readville, Mass., Mr. Gibney returned to Blackstone, Mass., March 5, 1867, he married Miss Ellen Harrington. They moved to Woonsocket and from there March 22, 1871, came to Putnam.

Mr. Gibney's first employment in Putnam was in the mill of Michael Moriarty, now the No. 2 mill of the Putnam Woolen company, occupied by the Waterman Worsted company. He worked for Mr. Moriarty one week and then took a job under the late Eugene A. Wheelock as a weaver for the Putnam Woolen company, March 31, 1871. The present agent, Silas M. Wheelock, who succeeded his father, was then five days old. For twenty-three years Mr. Gibney continued to work at the loom and then became night watchman, the position he now holds.

Mrs. Gibney is still living and, like her husband, is in good health. They celebrated their golden wedding on March 5, 1917. They have had 12 children and at that date they were all living, the first death occurring three years ago, that of Mrs. James Frazier of Putnam. Their living children are: Luke J. Gibney of Pawtucket, R. I.; Hannah S., wife of Michael Connor of Putnam; Eugene J. Gibney of Putnam; Delia, wife of John Gilligan of Middleboro, Mass.; Margaret, wife of Joseph Monohan of Newport, R. I.; Catherine, wife of Daniel Carrigan of Wellesley, Mass.; Joseph of Webster, Mass.; Sadie, wife of Timothy Mansfield of Webster, Mass.; Lee H. of Worcester, Mass.; Helene, living at home and Alice, wife of Chester Emerson of Webster, Mass. There are thirty grandchildren.

Mr. Gibney is looking forward to attending the national encampment of the G. A. R. to be held this summer at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

WOODLAND BURNED OVER— RAILROAD BRIDGE AFIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, April 8.—Fifty acres of woodland owned by Fred Wood and George Paine, were burned over south of here Wednesday afternoon, and an overhead railroad bridge over the tracks of the New Haven road two miles south of here, was set afire. Deputy Fire Warden Charles E. Hutchins and a force of men aided in holding the fire in check and help also was summoned by the railroad company from Putnam and Plainfield. The fire was subdued and under control at about 5 o'clock after burning [illegible] afternoon.

About 50 cords of wood belonging to Joseph Ouillette of Dyer street, was consumed or damaged in the fire. [illegible] Commissioner Austin [illegible] was addressing a meeting of [illegible] and their deputies in [illegible] chamber of commerce rooms at [illegible] when the fire here broke out. [illegible] mentions were representations [illegible] Wood [illegible] for the meeting that Commissioner [illegible] has ordered the withdrawal of [illegible] permits that have been issued [illegible] and no more such permits will be issued for the time being. He pointed out that anyone caught kindling a fire in the open may be penalized by a fine that may be as much as $200 or may be given six months in jail or both. The extraordinary dry conditions prevailing all through east [illegible] Connecticut is responsible for the drastic orders of the commissioner.

RHODE ISLAND MEN JAILED— WERE TRANSPORTING ALCOHOL

(Specia ito The Bulletin.)

Danielson, April 8—Adolph Sroka of Summit, R. I., and John Sotif of Crompton, R. I., were taken from the local police station, where they had been held over night, and presented in court at Central Village Wednesday afternoon, charged with illegal transportation of alcohol.

The men were apprehended about 5.30 Tuesday night by State Officer Stremens of the Danielson barracks, as they were coming through Oneyville, a section of Mooaup, from the direction of Rhode Island. Search of their car revealed nine gallons of alcohol in cans. The men said they were not bound for any particular destination and no statement was obtained from the men to prospective delivery of their cargo. They were locked up later in the Danielson station. Sroka, the owner of the Dodge car in which they were riding in default of $2,000 bail, and Sotif in default of $1,000 required for his release.

Before Mrs. Edith Kennedy, justice of the peace in the town of Plainfield, Wednesday afternoon Sroka was fined $500 and given 90 days in jail. Sotif was fined $200 and given 15 days in jail. Neither appealed and both are now at the county jail in Brooklyn serving their time. It is anticipated that both will pay the fines imposed upon them prior to the expiration of their sentences.

STUDEBAKER

New Big Six Sedan

Now $2575

f. o. b. factory

UNLIKE any other fine car, the new Studebaker Big Six Sedan is built complete—body and chassis—in company with other models, in large volume, by one organization. This eliminates middlemen's profits and explains its low price. To pay more is extravagance. By all means let us show you this new Studebaker before you buy.

The price of the new Studebaker Big Six Sedan includes an extra balloon tire, tube and tire cover. Bumpers, front and rear. Motometer. Safety lighting control. Automatic spark control. One-piece windshield, sun visor, automatic windshield cleaner, rear-view mirror. Cowl and dome lights, extension lamp and stop-and-tail light. Clock and gasoline gauge grouped under glass with other instruments. 127-in. wheelbase, 75 h. p. Studebaker motor. Biggest balloon tires used on any automobile.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, April 8—Stock prices drifted within narrow and irregular limits in today's market. Trading was in considerably reduced volume owing to the approach of the Easter holiday, the day's sales aggregating less than one million shares.

Resumption of bullish operations in Maxwell motors "A" and Willys-Overland preferred, both of which advanced over 3 points to new high records for the year, was the only enlivening feature. Packard crossed 23 to a new high, but slipped back later to 22 3-4 for a smaller fractional gain on the day.

Steel shares failed to derive any encouragement from the statement of Chairman Gary of the United States Steel corporation that April orders were showing improvement following the marked recession last month, and from the more optimistic nature of the weekly steel trade reviews. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 115 on total sales of about 10,000 shares.

Republic Steel, which is operating about 75 per cent. of capacity showed a net loss of 1 5-8 at 44 1-2. Bethlehem closed fractionally lower at 40 1-2.

Reactionary tendencies were noted in many of the rail shares. Chicago and Northwestern preferred broke 3 points to a new 1925 low at 107, while the common, which was weak yesterday, closed 1 3-8 higher at 51 1-2 after being quoted as high as 52 3-4. Jersey Central broke ten points to 280 on one sale and net losses of 1 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by Omaha common and preferred, Chesapeake and Ohio, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Illinois Central preferred and Norfolk and Western. Atlantic Coast Line advanced nearly two points.

With trading confined almost exclusively to professionals, standard industrials yielded to selling pressure. Net losses of a point or more were recorded by American and Baldwin Locomotives, Associated Dry Goods, Goodyear preferred, International Combustion, Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron, Punta Alegre Sugar, St. Joseph Lead, Sinclair Oil, Stewart Warner, Timken Roller Bearing, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Woolworth.

Nash Motors broke 23 points to 315 on selling inspired by speculative disappointment over the quarterly report which showed net earnings of $10.36 a share on the common which, while more than double those of the corresponding quarter a year ago, were about half of the preliminary estimates. The stock rallied to 320 at the close.

General Electric showed independent strength, being lifted six points to 265 1-2. Other strong spots included General Baking, which soared 14 points to 139 and Chicago Pneumatic Tool and Western Union, each of which closed about 3 points higher.

Call money again steady at 4 per cent. all day. Time money rates stiffened sixty to ninety day maturities being quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent. instead of on a five and one-half basis.

Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet. Openings were firm but the principal European currencies receded later in reflection of the French political crisis. Demand sterling early had been quoted at $4.78 1-4, slipped below $4.78 while French francs dropped from 5.18 cents to 5.15 cents. Most of the other changes were nomina

BOND MARKET

New York, April 8—Bond prices turned reactionary today on a restricted volume of trading. Activity was at a low ebb on the selling side, with weakness developing in several groups, including French obligations, semi-speculative rails and Chicago Traction issues. Prices generally, however, were limited to a narrow trading area.

The narrow margin by which the French cabinet obtained a vote of confidence on its financial programme further undermined the market position of French bonds, which continued to sag. The government's obligations declined fractionally while some of the municipal and railroad lines dipped to new low levels.

Defeat of the proposal for municipal ownership and operation of Chicago's traction lines brought a sharp reaction in the bonds of companies which had been slated for sale to the city. Chicago Railway fives broke more than 5 points and the Chicago City Connecting Railway, 5s fell back 11 points, both to new 1925 low prices, although they closed slightly above the extreme low points.

Railroad liens declined in sympathy with the weakness of these stocks. Losses of one to two points were recorded by Norfolk and Western convertible sixes, Northwestern Refunding 5s, Chicago Great Western 4s and Chesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of an $8,000,000 thirty year six per cent. loan of the city of Oslo, (formerly Christiana) Norway. The bonds are priced at 99 1-2.

Investment interest, however, was centered principally in the preparations for the Dodge Brothers automobile financing which will be placed on the market tomorrow.

ATTACHMENTS ON CHARMATZ PROPERTY IN PRESTON

An officer from New York was at the Preston town clerk's office Wednesday to make attachments against all the property he could find in the town belonging to Julius Charmatz and his wife, owners of the Anna farm. The attachments were made in a civil suit for $65,000 in which it is understood, there are fourteen counts, with Laura Schnitzer of New York city as plaintiff.

Charmatz was arrested at his farm last week and taken to New York on criminal charges of embezzlement and larceny alleged to have been committed while he was president of the Henry J. Schnitzer, state bank at 41 Washington street, New York, before it was sold two years ago.

Entertained Boy Scout Campaign Teams.

Members of the campaign team which recently put over the Boy Scout drive with success were entertained at a smoker, Wednesday evening, at the home of Scout Executive F. A. Benton, 148 McKinley avenue. During the evening under the direction of Edward G. McEvoy and Mr. Walker of the Palace Theatre and Edward C. Harris, a fine musical program was rendered. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Benton, assisted by Mrs. Edmund Perkins.

Pinochle Club Postponing Meeting.

The meeting of the Thursday afternoon pinochle club which was scheduled to take place this (Thursday) with Mrs. Louis Mitchell as the hostess has been postponed to next week Thursday when the club will meet at the home of Mrs. John O. Peckham, 159 West Thames street.

WHY STAY FAT YOU CAN REDUCE

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are pleasant to take, entail no dieting or exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A box is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat. You can reduce steadily and easily without going through long sieges of tiresome exercise and starvation diet with fear of bad effects. Get a box and start getting slender now!

ROTARIANS HEAR ARGUMENTS OF MINORITY ON TAX EQUALIZATION PLAN

At the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon at the Wauregan Hotel the members of the club heard the minority report of the revaluation committee. Last week the majority report was given by Chairman James L. Case of the special committee and Assessor Arad Manning and at Wednesday's meeting Michael J. Curran and D. T. Shea presented the opposition argument. Both Mr. Curran and Mr. Shea were heartily in favor of the revaluation plan but they were opposed to bringing in outside experts and favored the plan of having the local board of assessors do the work.

Gives Minority Views.

Mr. Shea was the first speaker to present the stand taken by the minority and said:

I might say this subject of revaluation in which you are all interested and which your analysis committee has been considering for the past year, is a very important one and I will say this, that there is no difference in opinion existing in the minds of your analysis committee as to the needs of a more equitable system of taxation or as to who are bound by law to do the work.

Town and city affairs have reached a point where something must be done. Owing to inequalities that now exist, we have the distinction of having the highest tax rate in any community in Connecticut, and what seems more lamentable is the fact that the greatest burden falls upon the class of people who are least able to pay—the laborer, the farmer, the home-owner or, in many cases, the widow who is left to bear the burden. I firmly believe that if all were paying on a fair and equitable basis that our tax-rate would be less than 25 mills, where now it is 46 mills.

I believe our assessors as a board are as competent as any board that we ever had or can ever expect while the office is an elective one, and while I have no desire to cast any reflections upon them or any individual or party, be it democratic or republican, you know as well as I do that in the past, in seeking a candidate for that office, which I consider the most important in the town, their fitness as an assessor was not always considered; it was more a question of who would pull the most votes or who we would like to hold down a chair in the assessor's office and receive the plum. Under such conditions, you can readily see that if they had done their duty their positions would have been jeopardized.

Now, as to my attitude on this question, I offer no apology, there are members of your analysis committee, and I am one of them, who think that the recommendations of our executive committee as submitted to us for approval at our last meeting are far from what the people of Norwich are expecting from us, and I suggested at that meeting, after the substitute report was read, that we try to get together and out of the best feaures of both, try anl unanimously recommend to the town meeting something that would be more explicit or some specific remedy for the evils that now exist. I felt then, and do now, that a $30,000 proposition on top of a $20,000 map would never go through a town meeting. I felt that our own assessors who are, legally speaking, the only ones who can and should and, if given all the clerical assistance, all the money that they want and a reasonable length of time, can do it for much less than half the amount recommended and if I am mistaken then it is up to the citizens of Norwich to elect men that can.

Now, as to outside or foreign tax experts, some of mushroom growth I have listened to some of them for the past year and am still of the opinion that they are not all real experts. There is no one better able to judge the value of property than some of our men who are familiar with local conditions. I am still inclined to class some of them with an organized band of collecting agencies—some of whom I have had dealings with—and in all cases, regret that we had ever met.

Mr. Curran was the next speaker and presented his views in a very clear and comprehensive manner. Mr. Curran said:

Allow me to express to the committee in charge of this meeting, and through them to the members of the Rotary club, my sincere thanks for this opportunity to present in a small way at least, the minority side of the tax analysis report.

There are so many ramifications to the question and time is so short I hope you will bear with me if the subject matter becomes a trifle disjointed at times.

I would beg the indulgence of the meeting for a moment to endeavor to clarify one or two statements made by Mr. Case at your last meeting. If newspaper report is correct and I assume it is else it would have been corrected. After reading the recommendations of the committee with which you are all familiar, he is quoted as saying "there seems to be a feeling on the part of some, that the majority of the committee recommend that the work be done by outside experts, but that no such recommendation is made." Gentlemen, that is just where this committee is divided, there is really no other difference only in minor details. We claim that they do so recommend; if not in plain language, it is implied, for, if you will read carefully the report of the board of assessors to the tax analysis committee you will see that they are committed to that very thing. In addition, Mr. Manning, chairman of the board of assessors in response to a question, as to whether or not this was so, stated very emphatically that it was. Again in answer to a question as to the legal phraseology of the resolutions, Mr. Case said, that great care was taken in choosing the right words. Gentlemen, stripped of its ambiguity the resolution means "hire outside experts," and to that condition we of the minority are opposed, and I propose to tell you why.

When Mr. Blodgett appeared before an open meeting in the Town Hall, before this committee was appointed, and made a short address pointing out our defects in taxation matters and suggested that Mr. Thomas Linder of New Britain was very good at revaluing and intimating that a conference with him might be productive of good results the stage was set.

Since that time the committee has listened to representatives of appraisal companies who had something to sell and whose viewpoint was based in their own favor. No particular effort was made to get the opinion of men from towns where local men had done the work. Meriden for example, had a local committee do the work, but it seems to have been impossible to locate any member of that committee. It is very strange, gentlemen, that not one member of that committee could be found, but the secretary of the chamber of commerce in Meriden said as far as he knew the assessment was not quite satisfactory. He did not say why. Dr. Wilcox of Windham was finally secured to explain how a local board of assessors did the work in a satisfactory manner in his town without creating any great upheaval in the public mind. Dr. Wilcox demonstrated clearly that outside experts are not needed in any town if the board of assessors has the proper disposition to fulfil the duties of their office.

Now as to the qualifications of the experts, Mr. Linder admitted that previous to his New Britain engagement he was Purchasing Agent for the Pope Hartford Co. Mr. McCarthy his partner was a member of the board of assessors and blossomed out into an expert when he came in contact with Mr. Linder. And by the way when Mr. Bruce of Middletown appeared before the membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the other evening he neglected to inform you that Mr. McCarthy, had been dropped in Middletown and Mr. Newton a local man had been appointed to finish the work that the City of Middletown had appropriated $20,000 for, and up to last month had cost nearly $22,000, and the job not yet finished, although they have been working on it for eighteen months.

Linder and McCarthy offered to do the job for Norwich for about $19,000 and figured it would take from twelve to eighteen months.

Mr. Walsh of the Manufacturers Appraisal Company thought they could do it in six months, not including personal property. Mr. Pollock of the same company went Mr. Walsh one better and said it could be done in five months and the cost about $20,000.

Mr. Edgell of the Hopkins and Havens Co. of Boston figured eight months and the cost between $18,000 and $20,000.

Mr. Edgell says it would not pay to map the agricultural sections. Mr. Walsh says maps are very necessary.

The Linder and McCarthy price does not include mill properties, it would cost about $3,000 more for that as they would have to get an expert in that particular line. Understand gentlemen these prices do not include cost of printing, etc., which would have to be furnished by the town.

I only mention these things to show you that while these men may be expert in assessing they do not seem to be as expert in guessing the time required to do it nor the accessories needed. The one thing they are in accord on is the price.

Mr. Edgell, a fine old gentleman, admitted that his company had never valued an entire community but seemed to have discovered that Connecticut was partial to experts and thought they might get a share of the business.

Do any of you gentlemen believe that the assessors are not capable of doing this work? Then I would advise you to go to the assessors' office and ask to see the first chart of the new maps with the values indicated thereon placed there by the board of assessors, which prices they feel are justified. That chart has been there since July, 1924. If the assessors had the will to do their work without suggestions from the outside that some one would be brought here to do it for them they might have had their work well in hand now. If they are capable of placing values on one chart, why not on all?

Gentlemen, if the legislators of the state of Connecticut ever anticipated that the time would come when some of our towns would be in such dire straits and so poverty stricken for material, that they could not find within their boundaries enough men of intelligence to man the governmental craft, they might have provided that residence in the town was not an essential qualification for holding office or giving legal force to their acts. You may think this is facetions, gentlemen, but that is just where we are tending and we are lending that possibility our hearty support.

To sum it all up gentlemen, in my humble opinion there is no problem connected with our town's taxation situation that cannot be solved by the application of native common sense, and there is little use in calling in so-called experts to tell us what we already know. It is true that we can learn by observing how other towns have solved their problems, and it is also true that men who have solved those problems elsewhere are competent to give quickly advice which a local committee must delay in studying the situation, but I firmly believe that the people of Norwich will be better satisfied with a taxation plan made in Norwich and carried out by Norwich men than it is ever likeley to be with any plan brought in by outsiders.

Assuming it to be legal what may be said of the advisability of hiring outside assessors?

The intelligent assessment of real estate for purposes of taxation presupposes on the part of the assessors a thorough knowledge of local conditions, when those conditions are ignored and an attempt is made to set up from a few more or less accurately determined valuations by means of hard and fast mathematical rules, the value of all other real estate in the community, the result may be a scientific assessment but it will be satisfactory to no one save those who make it. When a town calls in outside assessors it ceases in assessment matters to build up year after year information absolutely its own and always at its disposal. It no longer trains and educates to increased efficiency its own employes, on the contrary it pays for the education in local conditions of rank outsiders suffers from a scientific but inequitable assessment during the process, and year after year becomes more dependent on non-resident help. No town with any degree of self respect should be dependent on outsiders to perform their own governmental functions.

It is wrong in principle and in practice, the assessors of Norwich are better qualified than any others to do this work and it is ridiculous to assert that they have not the time to do.

In conclusion, gentlemen, let me leave this message with you, Norwich as an industrial unit, possessing fewer natural advantages than many other towns of the state, not located sufficiently near to the economic or geographic center of distribution and continually as the country goes westward becoming farther and farther removed from that center, paying the freight both coming and going, importing practically all our food stuffs, raw materials, coal and other supplies from long distances, and largely by rail, and again either paying or regulating the price so as to practically pay the freight on the manufactured product as shipped out, should do as all other towns are doing, that is protect home interests, protect home institutions, protect home industries, and whether in matters of taxation or corporate enactment, we should so regulate our conduct as to restore the confidence of the people in their own local government, a confidence which is slowly but surely being undermined by sinister propaganda from the outside. We should make the slogan, 'Patronize home industry," mean just that; and not what convenience dictates it should mean, to the end that the capacity of the citizen to assume and fulfill the duties and obligations of citizenship may not be destroyed.

And as our town still possesses its ancient liberty to determine local matters for itself, including tax matters, with an honorable record of 266 years behind us, let us go forward into the future with confidence born of honest purpose of our ability to perform our own governmental functions, with just pride in our own institutions, with renewed determination not to relinquish one jot or tittle of our independence or self respect, that we may be able to look our neighbor squarely in the eye and hand down to our children a priceless heritage of independence as unsullied as when we received.

Albert Boardman another member of the minority who was to speak at the luncheon said that he would refrain from speaking so as to allow for an open discussion of the question. There were several questions asked which were readily answered by Mr. Curran.

At the conclusion of the talks the speakers were given a hearty vote of appreciation.

For Pittsfield Spring Conference.

At the business session President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Joseph C. Worth was the song-leader. It was reported at the meeting that fourteen members of the local club would attend the Spring conference at Pittsfield next week.

A bowling challenge from the Arcanum club was received and accepted with the greatest of pleasure and arrangements are being made for this match when the Rotarians will be the guests of the Arcanum club.

Committees Announced.

Boys' Work—Clinton E. Lane, Dr. Robert R. Agnew, George W. Carroll.

Business Methods—Charles E. Taylor, Frank D. Davis, Dr. Alfred Richards.

Educational—Charles A. Saxton, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, James L. Case.

Fellowship—Alfred G. Bliven, Arthur M. Brown, Lewis M. Carpenter.

Program—Alex McNicol, Shepard B. Palmer, Charles W. Taggart.

There were several guests present besides the members of the tax committee among them being Rev. S. A. Icieck, rector of St. Joseph's church, who was introduced by Mayor Waters, as being a former Rotarian and a former chaplain in the Polish army, but now a live wire in Norwich. Rotarian William W. Dobson, government hospital superintendent at Chillicothe, O., was also a guest of the club.

JUDGE HEARS $1,600 SUIT AGAINST TROLLEY COMPANY

Judge Edwin C. Dickenson took the papers and reserved dicision after hearing the evidence and the arguments in the superior court at New London Wednesday in the suit of Arthur Morgan of New London, against the Connecticut Co. The case was concluded about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Morgan is suing for injuries received and damages sustained in an accident on Williams street on June 20, 1921. Morgan charges that while driving his car out of the driveway of the Central garage he was run into by a trolley car, the automobile being damaged to the extent of $1,600, and himself injured severely.

Attorney Thomas E. Troland appeared for the plaintiff and Joseph Berry of Hartford represented the trolley company. Witnesses examined included Morris B. Payne, Arthur Morgan, Joseph Piervano, Joseph Joseph, Fortunato Renzor and Monroe Wallwork.

PRIMARY COUNCIL HEARS INDIAN HISTORY TOLD

The regular monthly meeting of the primary council was held Wednesday evening at Broadway school with supper served at 6 o'clock, Miss Alice McKnight being the hostess. After the supper, the business meeting was called to order by Miss Jennie Congdon. Matters of routine business were conducted and a long letter from Miss Helen Royce, a former teacher here, was read.

After the business meeting the evening was given over to Arthur L. Peale, who gave a very interesting and instructive talk on Indian History. In the course of his talk he said that the period between 1492 and 1696 was the geographical discovery period. He mentioned some of the explorers from Europe and their settlements and relations with the Indians. He also gave a sketch of local Indian history. The Mohegans came to Connecticut from New York state because of better hunting and fishing. They encountered the Narragansetts and drove them out. For this reason the Mohegans were called the Pequots. Captain Mason and Indians destroyed the stronghold of the Pequots at Mystic. After that the remaining Pequots rallied under Uncas. He was a powerful enemy to Indians but a firm friend to the whites. At the time of King Phillip's war all of the Indians turned against the whites except those under Uncas. Had it not been for the friendship of Uncas the history of Connecticut might have been quite different. There are several Pequot reservations in Connecticut, at Lantern Hill, Mohegan hill and Shantok. It is hoped that Shantok may be made a state park. The cemetery on Sachem street is the burial place for Indian royalty only, the ordinary Indian being buried near the river.

Mr. Peale illustrated his talk with stereopticon slides and also showed many Indian relics and their uses.

COOLIDGE'S TACNA-ARICA AWARD FINAL; NO APPEAL

President Coolidge so Informed the Peruvian Government Yesterday—In Reply to the Peruvian Note the President Declared That He Regards it as Unnecessary to Afford Chile an Opportunity to Present Views in Relation to the Peruvian Memorial—Promises to Leave Nothing Undone to Secure a Fair Election and Equal Justice to Both Parties.

Washington, April 9—President Coolidge informed the Peruvian government today that he was constrained to regard his award as arbitrator in the Tacna-Arica dispute between Peru and Chile as "final and without appeal." The communication pointed out that this action agreed with the terms of submission as signed by the two governments and also with the generally principles of international law.

"This reply well might end here," the president continued, but he added, that, in deference to the nations involved and to the importance of a correct understanding of the award, he deemed it advisable "to make certain additional observations."

The finality of the president's action is further stressed by a statement that he regards it as unnecessary to afford Chile an opportunity to present views in relation to the Peruvian memorial to which his communication is a reply.

The complete correspondence between Mr. Coolidge and Solon Polo, president of the Peruvian defense commission, was made public within a few hours after the reply of the arbitrator had been delivered to the Peruvian embassy. The Peruvian mem-

"LONE WOLF" BURGLAR ON TRIAL IN BOSTON

Boston, April 9.—James E. Walters of Richmond, Va., the "Lone Wolf" whose alleged night robberies of apartments occupied by women, terrorized parts of the Back Bay district here for weeks, went on trial before a jury in superior criminal court today on six indictments, charging him with robbery while armed, larceny and assault with intent to kill. The decision that Walters must stand trial came today a few hours after a report of the state department of mental diseases, appointed by the court, at the request of defense counsel, reported that Walters, although an abnormal person with psychopathic personality, without psychosis, is not feeble minded or insane. A plea of not guilty was entered.

Miss Bessie M. Kelley and Miss Martha A. Brine, two fo the victims of night attacks and robberies, were the first witnesses called by the government before court adjourned tonight. They told of returning to their apartments, of finding Walters there and described being bound and held prisoner while he ransacked the apartments and waited for a safe hour before departing.

It is expected that the case would be concluded tomorrow.

NEW UNIFORM FOR U. S. NAVY AVIATORS

Washington, April 9—The navy has ordered its aviators to dress the part.

A new uniform has been designed to distinguish the fliers, marking a wide departure from the present attire, and it will be worn by them when flying, working with aircraft and when in temporary aviation camps.

The uniform will be of Kersey material, the same as that now used for the marine enlisted men, and will be forestry green like the marines' in Winter, and khaki in Summer. It will include a single breasted coat with roll collar, breeches with bottom from the knee down, russet puttees and shoes, and with the stars in black silk and the stripes indicate rank in black mohair. The shirt will be of khaki with soft collar. A belt tie will be worn and the cap will be of the present design except the cloth top will be of the same goods as the uniform.

BIG FOREST FIRE BETWEEN MERIDEN AND NEW BRITAIN

Meriden, April 9—In a spectacular forest fire visible from both Meriden and New Britain, several hundred acres of brush and timberland on the west end of Waterbury mountain, in the Lake Compounce section of Southington, were burned over today.

Defying the best efforts of a hundred or more volunteer fighters, the fire at dusk jumped a highway at the foot of the mountain and spread into the Southington valley. At midnight, with the aid of a brook and several back fires, the conflagration was declared under control.

Volunteers were credited with saving between six and eight farm buildings in Southington from destruction. The flames burned small areas in Bristol and Wolcott.

NEWFOUNDLAND MAKES GOOD FINANCIAL SHOWING

St. John's, N. F., April 9.—Newfoundland has recovered from its financial depression and the government is assured a surplus for the coming year, Sir John Crosbie, minister of finance, stated in his budget report to the legislature. He announced that the increase of estimated revenue over expenditures showed a gain of almost $1,750,000 over the previous year. Saving deposits increased more than $1,250,000 during the year.

FOUND DEAD IN ROOMING HOUSE IN MERIDEN

Meriden, April 9—Willie E. Smith, about 55 years old, was found dead in a rooming house here late today. The medical examiner said that death was due to gas escaping from a heater and accidental. Smith, who was a gate tender at a railroad crossing here, formerly lived at 267 Ann street, Hartford. The Hartford police have been asked to locate his relatives.

3 PERSONS KILLED IN COLLISION OF TRAINS

Barcelona, Spain, April 9.—(By The A. P.)—About 30 persons were killed and some 60 injured in a collision today between two electric trains in the vicinity of Las Planas. The accident was due to the failure of the brakes on one of the trains to work.

FISHING CRAFT LOST OFF SOUTH COAST OF JAPAN

Tokio, April 10—Many fishing craft and one six-hundred ton steamer foundered in a gale which swept the south coast of Japan yesterday. Over fifty persons are dead or missing.

ROGERS TO BE EXTRADITED FROM SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

New Haven, April 9.—Thurlow H. Rogers of Waterbury, Conn., who is reported to have confessed to the Schenectady, N. Y., police that he chloroformed his baby and left the body in a suitcase in the railroad station here, will be extradited from Schenectady as soon as he is able to leave the hospital, there, it was announced tonight by Chief of Police Philip T. Smith here. Rogers is now a patient in a hospital in Schenectady said to be suffering from an overdose of sedative, acute spinal meningitis, faulty heart action and inflammation of the brain.

All of the necessary information needed to prepare extradition papers has been secured from the Schenectady police, Chief Smith said, and the necessary papers probably will be taken to Hartford tomorrow to secure the governor's signature.

Captain James J. Deegan, of the detective bureau here, said that information had been received from Schenectady showing that Rogers purchased chloroform from a drug store in Hartford and that it had been established that the chloroform was administered to the seven weeks old baby in the New Haven green.

Chief Smith said tonight he had never doubted the truth of the story reported to have been told to the Schenectady police by Rogers and that the only delay was in securing the necessary information to attach to extradition papers.

CHAPMAN SINGLES OUT BEST CLAIM TO A NEW TRIAL

Hartford, April 9—Gerald Chapman had singled out what he considered to be his best claim to a new trial when Nathan O. Freedman, his junior counsel, visited him at the state prison today. He charged State's Attorney Alcorn with having misstated testimony concerning his Brooklyn alibi when the state's attorney made his summation of the case before the jury last Friday, and the prisoner concluded that this confused the jury and caused it to discredit his alibi.

Chapman evidently had been going over the testimony carefully in his own mind since Freedman saw him at the prison Monday afternoon and, since the prisoner has no written record of the proceedings, he has depended on his remarkable memory. His recollection of the testimony of his alibi witnesses was that they fixed the time when they said they saw him in a Flat bush store at sometime between 8 and 9 p. m., October 11, the night before the murder of Policeman James Skelly of New Britain. He then recalled that Mr. Alcorn had told the jury just before it was charged by Judge Jennings that these alibi witnesses claimed to have seen Chapman there between 8 and 8:15, o'clock, whereas his train from Springfield did not reach New York until 8:03 o'clock.

"This was not in conformity with the testimony," Mr. Freedman quoted Chapman as having said to him: "It was unfair to me and I should be entitled to a new trial on the strength of it."

PROBATION SYSTEM IN U. S. DISTRICT COURTS

New Haven, April 9.—Announcement was made from the court bench in United States court here today that congress had recently passed a measure which has inaugurated a probation system throughout all of the United States district courts in the country similar to the probationary system maintained in the Connecticut courts.

The new law, a copy of which has just been received by Clerk C. E. Pickett, of the district court for Connecticut, provides that Judge Edwin S. Thomas and all other district judges may have probationary powers hereafter. They will have the right to suspend judgment in cases in which they deem that course of justice best. To carry out the terms of the probationary period the judges may appoint probation officers. Should conditions warrant it a full time probation officer can be appointed at a salary. It is provided that such appointments shall be made on consent of the United States attorney general and through civil service.

YALE STUDENT INJURED IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Croton, N. Y., April 9—Norman Freeman, 301 Crown street, New Haven, Conn., a Yale student, was seriously injured today when he skidded into an automobile near here while riding on his motorcycle. He was taken to the Ossining hospital where it was reported that he was suffering from a fractured leg and possible internal injuries.

Freeman was traversing a section of road under construction when the accident occurred. He lost control of his motorcycle at a turn and crashed into an automobile driven by Dudley Roy, of Montrose, N. Y. The injured man was taken to Ossining by Patrolman Jesse Josey, of the town of Portland, N. Y.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

To Hold Regional Conference

Buenos Aires, April 9—A majority of the degelates to the Christian Work congress, which has just closed its sessions in Montevideo, Uruguay, have arrived in Buenos Aires. They will hold a five-day regional conference here to treat with Argentine problems.

Argentine Ambassador Returning.

Buenos Aires, April 9.—Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine ambassador to the United States, sailed today on board the steamer American Legion for New York. Senor Pueyrredon is returning to resume his duties in Washington.

RESPONSIBILITY PUT UP TO FRENCH SENATE

Paris, April 9 (By the A. P.)—The Herriot government, which has been reeling under the attacks of the opposition for a week, sprung a surprise offensive against its opponents, when the premier, in the course of a three hours' speech in the chamber today, two-thirds of which was devoted to flaying the government's preceding his, put it squarely up to the chamber to assume the responsibility of overthrowing him before his financial measures relating to increased currency and a forced loan could come up for discussion.

No coalition was found desirous of facing the situation which would have been created by the departure of M. Herriot at this stage, and before the sponsors for inflation and capital levy themselves. The left groups, which have shown signs of disintegration, rallied behind the premier and gave the cabinet a new lease of life. The vote was 291 to 242.

The government, although victor in this preliminary engagement, saw its majority whittled down 40 votes for the first time since it assumed power, it failed to pass the 300 mark for adherents when there was a strict party line division with a confidence clause attached. It will have to face a real battle when the finance bill itself is debated the end of this week or the beginning of next week in the chamber.

How long the government's new lease of life will be also depends on the attitude of the senate tomorrow, when it is quite probable M. Herriot will attempt a similar operation there.

The premier charged the successive governments since the armistice with being responsible for the present precarious situation of the French treasury.

"The guilty parties," he said, "are those who since the end of the war by floating both internal and foreign loans at abnormal rates of interest have written enormous bills, which France must meet this year and in coming years. The guilty parties are those who contracted debts, not those who must pay them."

Reviewing the amounts which must be paid to foreign countries this year by France, M. Herriot made reference to $59,900,000 to the United States and more than £11,000,000 to Great Britain, as well as nearly 1,000,000 pesos to Argentina and a large amount to Uruguay. These payments represent interest and amortization on loans other than inter-allied war loans, to which he made no reference. They weighed heavily upon the country, and affected its liberty of action in foreign policy.

ATTACK CHARACTER OF ELBERT R. HAMLIN

Hartford, April 9—Attacking the character and ability of Elbert R. Hamlin, nominated by Governor Trumbull to succeed James P. Woodruff as judge of the court of common pleas for Litchfield county, half a dozen members of the bar of that county spoke before the judiciary committee of the legislature this afternoon, opposing his appointment and precipitating two hours of the bitterest personalities of the present session of the general assembly.

Coroner Samuel A. Herman, Public Defender J. Clinton Roraback, William M. Ford, and Thomas F. Ryan, were the leaders in opposition, while State's Attorney Walter Holcomb, ex-Senator John Brooks and Frank B. Munn, were among the leading supporters.

One of the high spots of the hearing came in a clash between State's Attorney Holcomb and Public Defender Roraback, when the latter charged that the state's attorney had emphatically recorded himself as opposed to the appointment of a man who had not been a practitioner in the county saying "No." This Mr. Holcomb refuted with the statement that Mr. Roraback was "dreaming" and that "a man would be a fool to make such a statement."

Ex-Senator Brooks was the first speaker, saying that for him the fact that the governor had nominated Mr. Hamlin was sufficient, and he could see no reason for any opposition.

Coroner Herman said there certainly was opposition. If the nomination by the governor settled the matter, he could not see why a hearing should be held at all. Mr. Hamlin had never practiced in Connecticut, he said, and he doubted if Mr. Hamlin knew sufficient Connecticut law to try a case here. He had only been on the docket once, in an appeal from the board of relief. In his opinion, it would be better to abolish the courts than to have Mr. Hamlin as judge. Howard F. Landon had been endorsed for the place with only three votes against him in a bar association meeting. Mr. Herman said that he did not believe Mr. Hamlin was a person to be relied upon. He had tried to have Mr. Herman commit himself to his candidacy, and Mr. Herman changed, although he had refused to commit himself. Mr. Hamlin had told others that Mr. Herman favored him. According to Mr. Herman, Mr. Hamlin, had solicited lawyers for support for his candidacy and he did not believe that was becoming as it placed him under obligation if he secured the place.

FIRE DESTROYED PLANT OF WOLFEBORO WOOLEN MILLS

Wolfeboro, N. H., April 9—The entire plant of the Wolfeboro Woolen mills in South Wolfeboro was destroyed tonight by fire which then spread to the woods and threatened to engulf this village until checked a few rods from the nearest house. The loss was estimated at more than $150,000.

The blaze was discovered in a wooden storehouse by the watchman. Within a few minutes the flames had ignited two other storehouses and the roof of the main factory, a three story stone building built nearly 100 years ago. The town fire department and state foresters joined forces when the woods caught fire. Several acres of timber were burned.

The mill was being operated under lease by the Spriger Woolen company. It employed 150 hands when running at capacity but for some months not more than 50 persons were employed.

Chiropractic Doctor Is Under Suspicion

Search Ordered of the Long Island Home of Henry Lee Mottard.

New York, April 9—Green Tree farm, the Long Island home of Henry Lee Mottard, chiropractic physician, at Smithtown, Long Island, will be searched for possible infant victims of Mottard, who today was held without bail for examination Monday on suspicion of homicide.

The search was ordered at the district attorney's office after Mottard had failed satisfactorily to explain the disappearance of a baby which had been returned to him by a nurse in whose care he previously had placed it. Mottard, who had offices in New York under the name of "Harry L. Green," was arrested after he told police that a child adopted by Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Gofe, of Morsemere, N. J., was not the kidnapped Lillian McKenzie, missing from New York since 1923, when she was taken from her perambulator on a Lower Manhattan street.

The child, identified by Mrs. McKenzie yesterday as her lost girl, was born to a Mary Sullivan, of Connecticut, Mottard said, adding that he later had given the infant to a nurse, Mrs. Mary O'Keefe. Mrs. O'Keefe told Assistant District Attorney Marro today that Mottard, or "Green," as she knew him, had given her two children. One of them, she said, had been adopted by the Grofes, but she had returned the other to the chiropractor-physician because it was sickly. Marro said Mottard had not satisfactorily accounted for the returned child.

Marro also said that the body of Mary Allison would be exhumed from its grave in a Brooklyn cemetery as a result of his investigation. The woman, 44, died at Mottard's New York address in September, 1923, allegedly from injuries received in a fall down a dumb waiter shaft. The exhumation was ordered that it might be determined if the woman had undergone an illegal operation.

The Grofes visited police headquarters today and were said to have justified the authorities as to the truth of their story that they had legally adopted the child in their possession.

FIRE IN NEWARK WITH ESTIMATED LOSS OF $1,000,000

Newark, N. J., April 9.—The plant of Igoe Brothers, wire nail manufacturers at Newark was destroyed by fire tonight with an estimated loss of $1,000,000 in property and stock. The blaze levelled the seven story buildings of the Igoe firm and the factory of Homes and Rice.

The blaze, which leveled the seven buildings of the Igoe firm and the structure occupied by the Holmes and Rice, machinists, immediately adjacent, started in the galvanizing room in the center building of the nail factory.

Ten thousand people lined the bounding streets and were held in check by reserves from all precincts under the direction of Deputy Chief McReall.

The blaze of undetermined origin, is the third since the Igoe firm erected the plant in April, 1904. The first two were trivial.

Thomas Igoe, one of the five brothers who control the company was among the first on the scene and rescued two pedigreed terriers that were kept in the main office.

The DuPont company, a lacquerer and chemical plant nearby, was in constant danger from flying sparks as was the dye products and chemical plant.

TO RETIRE AS HEAD OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC ROAD

New York, April 9—Julius Kruttschnitt, long an outstanding figure in the railroad industry, who has shaped the destinies of the Southern Pacific for many years, will retire as head of that system on May 31 after 48 years of continuous service. Having passed the age of 70, Mr. Kruttschnitt announced today that he would take advantage of the company's pension rules to sever his relations with the road.

Mr. Kruttschnitt will be succeeded as chairman of the executive committee and of the board of directors of the Southern Pacific by Henry W. DeForest, who since 1913 has directed the financial interests of the company. The actual supervision of the road's operations, heretofore exercised by the chairman, will be passed on to William Sproule, president, who will become chief executive operating officer of the Southern Pacific lines with headquarters in San Francisco.

POISON FOUND IN BODY OF MRS. EMMA M'CLINTOCK

Chicago, April 9.—Coroner Oscar Wolff announced tonight that he had been advised by his staff chemist, W. D. American Delegates To Arms Conference Announced at State Department—Representative Burton Chairman.

Washington, April 9—The appointment of Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, as chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva International conference on the control of the traffic in arms, was announced today at the state department.

Other members of the delegation will be Hugh Gibson, American minister to Switzerland; Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long of the navy general board; Allen W. Dulles, chief of the Near East division of the state department, and Brigadier General C. L. H. Ruggles, assistant to the chief of army ordnance.

Technical advisors to the delegation will be Charles E. Herring, of the department of commerce, now commercial attache at the embassy in Berlin, Major Gesorge V. Strong of the army and Commander Herbert F. Leary of the navy. The delegation, with the exception of Mr. Burton, who will leave in advance of the party for Europe, will sail for Geneva about April 18, the first session of the conference being scheduled for May 4.

The Geneva conference will be held under the auspices of the league of nations, with American participation based upon the preparation of a draft convention to control arms traffic which does not involve any proposal to deal with the subject through legislation to curb the manufacture of arms in any country. The agenda contemplates the assembly of top lane for licensing all international arms shipments and the declaration of prohibited zones for the further protection of peace and order among the backward nationalities.

PATRICK KREPS WINS BRIDE AND RESTAURANT

Meriden, April 9.—Patrick [illegible] is taxicab owner of this city, [illegible] would be married within 48 hours despite his lack of women acquaintances as the richer by a bride and a restaurant tonight. He was married at noon today in the immaculate [illegible] Church, New Britain, to Miss [illegible] of New Britain, N. J.

Late today William A. Eichhaum, the venturesome restaurant owner who had joked Kreps on his unmarried state once too often, admitted defeat and said that he would turn the place over to Kreps and his new wife. But he is not through with the affair yet, for he announced that he would soon open a restaurant across the street from his old place and go into competition with his successor.

The bet between the two men was made yesterday and was witnessed by a notary public. Kreps, who said he had no matrimonial prospects in sight, immediately went to work and turned up with a fiance this morning. How or where he met her, and what explanation he offered for the necessary quick work, he did not divulge.

Miss Hollis, who gave her age as 41, was employed in the office of a hosiery shop.

BRUSH FIRES IN SEVERAL PLACES ABOUT WESTERLY

Westerly, April 9. — Forest fires burning in several places about here, which have destroyed several houses and barns and covered many square miles of timber lands, were diminishing tonight in some spots from exhaustion of materials and in others under the attack of armies of villag-

A change of wind in the late afternoon sent the Charlestown blaze, most serious in this vicinity, racing off at a new tagent in the direction of Wakefield and Narragansett Pier, although neither community is in immediate danger.

A fire this afternoon crept up to the edge of Shannock, northeast of Westerly, and threatened several wooden tenements owned by the Columbia Narrow Fabric company. Hastily started back fires saved the buildings. Volunteers performed a similar service for Carolina, a nearby hamlet threatened by the same fire.

Danger from the fire which has been burning for two days in Ashaway is not yet averted. Firemen of a dozen towns aided by citizens working in relief shifts are guarding a score of boundaries and smouldering areas which break out afresh from time to time with the shifting of the wind.

CHEMISTRY MAY PRODUCE ELECTROPLATED OVERCOATS

Baltimore, April 9—The world may soon be wearing electroplated overcoats, it was brought out at a session of the rubber division of the American Chemical Society, adding a fresh triumph of chemistry to the widening cycle which is being developed at the sixty-ninth meeting in progress at Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. S. E. Sheppard of Rochester, N. Y., described the development process known as the electro-deposition of rubber, by which fabrics after they have been fashioned complete may be covered by a leak-proof layer of rubber.

Electro-plating rubber on fabrics by a method akin to electro-plating metal on metal may revolutionize the manufacture of rubbercoated garments, it was said.

The electro-desposition of charged colloidal particles such as exist in the natural rubber latex (the sap of the rubber tree) may lead, it was predicted, to entirely new processes of manufacture of rubberized fabrics and of articles made from this material.

It is possible in this new way, according to Dr. Sheppard, to make an overcoat complete and plate the rubber electrically on the finished garment so as to avoid completely all danger of parting of the seams. Hips will thus seem to disappear.

ECONOMY EXTENDED TO ALL FEDERAL AGENCIES

President Coolidge's Retrenchment Program Will be Carried Out in Local Federal Work Throughout the Country—May Abolish Some and Consolidate Others of About Forty Independent Commissions Having More a Less Expensive Payrolls.

Washington, April 9.—President Coolidge's economy program was extended today to local federal agencies throughout the country.

The executive's advisers in Washington in addition to their efforts to cut the cost of operating the various branches of the government here, have had their attention directed to the feasibility of abolishing some and consolidating others of about 40 independent commissions having more or less expensive payrolls.

In addition, business organizations formed by budget coordinators in the federal agencies in all parts of the country were asked to work out plans looking to local economies in line with the president's program, which, officials hope, will be reflected in estimates for next year's appropriations now being formulated by Director Lord and the experts of the budget bureau.

These associations comprise officials of numerous local government branches. Postmaster General New in directing all postmasters to associate themselves with them and take an active part in their work, empasized today that "these federal business associations call for something more than perfunctory membership."

"They are active, constructive, executive auxiliaries," he said, "contributing powerfully to efficient federal business organization by cooperative effort on extra departmental knowledge and sympathy."

PRINCE EXPERIENCES HEAT OF EQUATORIAL AFRICA

Secondee Gold Coast, West Africa, April 9 (By the A. P.)—Experiencing the intense heat of equatorial Africa for the first time, the Prince of Wales, sailing southward on his tour of South Africa and South America, arrived here today. Below decks, the temperature on H. M. S. Repulse for the past few days has at times reached 118 degrees, and although a vast array of awnings has been spread over the decks, everybody on board the battle cruiser has been living in a bath of perspiration.

But there was no dampening the welcome of the prince. The whole town was decorated, native chiefs appeared in bejeweled palanquins, and the enthusiasm and excitement was the greatest ever known in this gold coast port. To the natives the intense heat emitted by the glorious sunshine was glorious assurance to a royal visitor of African wealth and rich countries.

There was some difficulty in the royal landing, however, and the prince had to cross the mile and a half of water between the Repulse and the shore in an shore boat because a heavy swell made the use of the battleship's boats impracticable.

Upon landing, the prince proceeded to a small hill overlooking the new harbor, which is still under construction. On the summit he unveiled a memorial commemorating his visit.

The prince has four strenuous, blistering days ahead as he goes down the gold coast to Accra, where he will spend two days.

FIRE IN NEW HAVEN CAUSE OF TWO DEATHS

New Haven, April 9.—The fire today, which caused the death of Charles Wells Blakeslee, six year old son of Albert D. Blakeslee, of 112 Dwight street, and grandson of former Lieutenant-Governor Dennis Blakeslee, also was the direct cause of the death of Mrs. Ruth Bortle, 76, of 1304 Chapel street. It was learned late today. Mrs. Bortle died at her home from heart failure said to have been brought by the excitement by the fire in the Blakeslee property which borders in the rear of Mrs. Bortle's apartment.

The woman was watching the blaze in the Blakeslee barn when she was stricken. Medical Examiner Marvin M. Scarbrouch said that death was due to the excitement caused by the fire.

An investigation into the cause of the blaze showed that Charles Blakeslee and Curtis Cheney, 8, playmates, went into the barn on the Blakeslee property and were playing in the loft. In order to have more light in the barn, the Blakleseee boy is said to have lighted some matches and the blaze set fire to some straw and dry wood.

The Cheney boy managed to leap out of danger and attempted to save his playmate but was driven bacy by the flames. The boy then called for help but the fire had spread rapidly and the Blakleslee boy could not be reached.

BLOODY CLASHES IN VARIOUS ITALIAN CITIES

Rome, April 9.—Tense political atmosphere prevailed today in various Italian cities, as the aftermath of the bloody, and in some cases fatal clashes between fascisti and communists and other anti-fascisti organizations.

These clashes are considered to have been due to a double murder in Bologna where a fascist was killed and a communist later was slain, allegedly as a reprisal.

The most serious situation today was in Faenza, where last night two fascists were killed and Count Benevenuto Zauli Aldi, was seriously wounded. Great excitement prevailed and all normal activities were suspended. The shops, except those of the pharmacists and food stores were closed. Large numbers of caribineers were on duty. Officials of the facisti were busy attempting to restrain their followers from making reprisals. The police were seeking communist who is alleged to have committed the crimes.

At Capua, a fascist railway employe was killed by some unknown person, and at Bari a fascist was gravely wounded in a pistol fight between fascists and anti-fascists.

IS PLANNING SEVERAL HUNDRED MILE SWIM

Toronto, April 9—Pat Jennings, a Toronto, Ont., sportsman, plans a several hundred mile swim to celebrate the anniversary of 110 years of peace between the United States and Canada.

Mayor W. C. Mikel, of Belleville, accepted his offer to swim from here to New York by way of Lake Ontario, the Erie Canal and the Hudson River. No date has been set for the feat, beyond announcement that it will be held in connection with the old boys reunion and celebration some time this summer

BOUND OVER FOR MURDER OF BEATRICE DONNELLY

Greenwich, April 9.—James O'Mahoney, of New York, charged with murder in the first degree following the fatal shooting of Miss Beatrice Donnelly, of New York, in the woods here last Sunday, was bound over to the next term of the superior court at Bridgeport without bail, at a hearing in the borough court here today. He was to be taken to the Bridgeport jail tonight.

Through O'Mahoney's counsel, George A. Voss, of New York and William P. Mulville, of Greenwich, a demurrer was filed but this was overruled by Judge James R. Mead.

Three witnesses were called for the state, Medical Examiner John A. Clarke and Captain Patrick Flanagan and Sergeant James H. Fitzsrey, of the Greenwich police department. Their testimony was practically the same as that given at the inquest yesterday. No witnesses were called by the defense.

Following the hearing, Attorney Voss issued a statement in which he announced that the defense would be insanity. He said that O'Mahoney had been wounded in France during the World war and was in a hospital in Belfast, Ireland, for three months. After leaving the hospital, the statement said, O'Mahoney went to Palestine and enlisted with General Allenby's army. Later he served for two years on the police force of Manchester, England. He came to this country in 1922.

$85,000,000 DODGE STOCK ISSUE OVERSUBSCRIBED

New York, April 9.—Oversubscribed from three to four times in less than an hour, the $55,000,000 stock issue of Dodge Brothers, Inc., passed into the hands of the public today, completing the initial step in financing the reorganization of the huge motor company.

Dillon, Read and Company, bankers who engineered the transaction, were deluged with buying orders, which they estimated late in the day, would total between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

Encouraged by the success of the stock offering, the bankers began to speed up preparations for the final step in the $160,000,000 financing programme. This will be the flotation of a $75,000,000 six per cent. debenture bond issue, which probably will be placed on the market Saturday morning at a price slightly below par. Its oversubscription is already assured.

Trading in the new Dodge preference shares began on the New York Stock Exchange today. After an initial sale at 103, or $3 above the offering price, the shares advanced to 103 1-2, slipped back to 103 5-8 and closed the day at 103 7-8. The day's turnover exceeded 35,000 shares.

COUNSEL FOR PACKERS HAVE ENDED ARGUMENT

Washington, April 9.—The packers ended their argument in the dispute over the validity of the Armour-Morris merger today, and tomorrow government counsel will begin their closing statement. Secretary Jardine is hearing both sides of the controversy of the controversy before ruling on the question whether the consolidation of the two packing companies violates the packers and stockyards act.

At today's hearing M. W. Borders, counsel for Morris and Company, declared the sale of its properties to Armour in itself did not constitute any illegality. Former Secretary Wallace, declared he had held that the act had not been violated by the sale and that the department could institute no proceedings unless some irregularity developed from the transaction.

Urging the secretary of agriculture to decide the case solely on "law and facts" free from outside influences, the attorney declared "there is too much cowardace in Washington now."

HEAVY REDUCTION IN WINTER WHEAT CROP

Washington, April 9—Winter dealt a severe blow to the wheat crop sown last fall. As a result production indications are smaller than in any year since 1917, and about 116,000,000 bushels less that last year's crop the department of agriculture announced today. A forecast of 474,255,000 bushels of winter wheat was issued, based on the condition of the crop April 1 and upon the assumption of average abandonment of acreage and average influences on the crop until harvest time.

The condition of the crop April 1 was 68.7 per cent. of a normal, the lowest in more than a quarter century with the exception of 1917, when it was 63.4. There was a decline of 12.3 points in the condition from December 1 to April 1. Compared with an average decline of 4.4 points in the last ten years.

The low condition is the result of a variety of conditions throughout the country, the department said.

WILLIMANTIC

A "model strike," was the term used at the mass meeting of the striking operatives of teh American Thread Company, Thursday morning, by Senator John H. Powers, of Cumberland, R. I., in his statement that the manner in which the local strike has been conducted shows that note is taken of the rights of all people and that no trouble is sought. The calm yet forceful manner of the strike shows, he said, in its determined attitude that there is no thought of compromise.

There were three speakers at the mass meeting: Senator Powers, Horace Riviere of Manchester, N. H., and Miss Mary Kelleher. The speakers issued three specific warnings, that against the "spy" system and propaganda of outlaw labor organizations and the so-called "loyal operative," who will attempt to return to work when the real crisis of the strikes come, on the morning when all whistles will be blown and the gates officially thrown open at a certain hour. Then the great test will come, according to the speakers. The strike is now five weeks old and the strikers are holding out. They were warned against a weakening of the courage and morale that became after a longer term of waiting. The strikers rallied to the messages of the speakers and cheered enthusiastically at their words of encouragement. M. Riviere spoke in French Friday morning at the mass meeting to be held at 10 and he will speak in English it is said. Miss Kelleher of Manchester and Mr. Riviere are here to deliver an address to the Polish. Miss Elsie M. Kittlitz, missionary to Southern China, who is speaking on the work there through the New England states during her furlough, gave a very interesting and entertaining talk at the Baptist church Thursday evening. Miss Kittlitz is stationed at the Baptist mission at Suatau, in the largest and most desolate province of South China. In a part of that section only one-tenth of the men can read and only one-tenth of one per cent. of the women. Miss Kittlitz described the two greatest enemies which the missionaries have to combat besides sanitation as being ancestor worship and superstition. The lower caste Chinese believe the air to be thickly populated with malicious spirits and have a terrible fear of a great sleeping power buried in the earth. She cited an instance of the growing belief of the Chinese in the Christians, telling of the collection of a sum of money by a number of an orphanage in a recent terrible typhoon. In China, in matters of high and low finance they employ the system of a "squeeze." Every person who gets his hand on a sum, gets his little bit out of it. Consequently, in collective benovelences very little finally reaches the source intended, the Buddhists would trust nobody but a Christian missionary to take charge of the money and to erect the orpranage. She has found the Chinese as a people to have a keen sense of humor, vast respect for parents and unbreakable loyalty. They are perfect in courtesy and "just funny to death" and just like ourselves or anybody else.

Miss Kittle sails for Hong Kong the 19th of this month. She says she will be very glad to go.

BAD FIRES IN ANDOVER KEEP WARDENS ANXIOUS

Willimantic, April 9.—Twenty fires, more or less, have broken out in the town of Andover since the dry spell. Thursday afternoon about 1 o'clock, Fire Warden George L. Merritt was called out, with four men helping him, to put out a brush fire evidently started from a dropped match or lighted cigarette upon land belonging to Lou Whitcomb and Mr. Barkowski on Pine Hill. The fire had gained so much headway, the fire warden, J. Banks Jones, of Hebron and a volunteer fire troop from that town, had to be called to assist. The fire was gotten under control with considerable effort, but between four and five acres were burned over.

About 5 o'clock this afternoon, another call came to Fire Warden Merritt, from Charles Fredericks, of Andover, who discovered a blaze on the Johnson road, as he was coming from Columbia. Another hand was gotten together. This fire was extinguished with water from a neighboring swamp, after burning over about an acre. It is thought that this fire was also started from a carlessly dropped lighted match or cogarette.

JEWETT CITY

An interesting bit of additional news came to hand Thursday, relative to the recent debate the Neighbors' night observance by Pachang Grange. Miss Susie Morgan, Mrs. Leltoy Holmer and Mrs. Frank Mell, appeared in favor of the Old Maids, vs. John Hollowell, Burell Woodmansee and Frank Crary, of the Preston City Grange, who sponsored the Old Maids' end of the argument. Not only was the decision given to the female orators, but they delivered a clean knockout to their opponents from the sister grange, by overwhelming argument in favor of the bachelors, which admitted of no rebuttal.

A School of Missions is to open at the Baptist church Wednesday evening April 15, at 7:15 and is to run one session each week for six weeks. Four classes are planned: one for men, one for women, one for older girls, and one for boys and girls. The book to be taken up by the Men's class is "China's Challenge to Christianity," and the teacher will be the pastor, Rev. M. Scater. The book for the woman's class is, "China's New Revolution," and the teacher will be Mrs. Geo. E. Prior. The other classes will take up some aspect of Chinese life. The teachers of the older girls' class will be Mrs. Arthur M. Brown and Mrs. Earl Palmer, while the teacher for the Boys' and Girls' class will be Miss Susie Morgan. These classes are public.

A local woman tells of being awak- ened at sunrise one of these mornings recently, by the activities of a flicker hammering away outside her door. With a little caution she may be able to get glimpse of this handsome gentlemen, with his gray cap, bright scarlet collar, and speckled brown coat all lined with gold. In this section he will be recognized by any one of his various aliases, including: Wake-up, High Hole, Flicker and just simple pigeon woodpecker. Next month his mate, in a hole in a dead tree, 20 or more feet above the ground, will lay 6 beautiful white eggs, so smooth and shining, that they will resemble polished porcelain. Some time ago, as would even be the case in the local woods today, it was some problem for the boys that made egg collections, to add that of the High-hole to their cabinets.

After the hole in the tree had been located by carefully stalking the mother bird, and the youngster at the risk of a 25 or thirty foot fall, had shinned up to its airy site, then, he would most always find that his arm was all too short to reach down to the coveted eggs. A little below where the tailrace of the Ashinock wheels extend to the Quinebaug, 40 years ago, at the river edge of a small swampy section of the then big "Falls" lot, stood a giant, partly decayed, maple 50 feet high and three feet through at the butt. One May, in a hole left where a limb had broken off some years before, a pair of pigeon woodpeckers took apartments and set up spring housekeeping. The nest did not escape the eagle eyes of several of the younger fry, all but one of whom are alive today.

A short item in the Youths' Companion, written by John Burroughs, stated that if an egg a day was taken from a pigeon woodpecker's nest, and 20 kernels of grain put in its place, that the mother bird would lay a dozen eggs. This nest was found to be only 10 or 12 inches below the lower rim of the hole. The noted naturalist's statement was proven right, for kernels of rice, taken from the bag which one of the mothers kept behind the pantry door, were supplemented for the daily lifted egg, and true to form Mrs. Flicker laid a dozen eggs.

A local man that calls at the stores and shops was heard to declare Thursday, that if a person came to this town and endeavored to locate an admirer of that "yellow rat" Shean, he might as well try, as Antoine Bassett said, to find a needle in a hay stack.

Mary Dabalt, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio DaDalt was struck by an automobile truck owned and operated by Albert Kikla Thursday morning. The girl was struck while crossing the street on East Main St. In addition to the Kihl truck there was a coal truck on the street travelling in the opposite direction and it is thought that the child might have become confused. She was taken to the Johnson Memorial hospital where it was found that she had several severe cuts about the head and her right ear was partly torn off. Kihl was arrested by State Policeman Hulburt and was placed under bonds pending further investigation of the accident.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

before Justice Frank M. Bedard, in the town of Brooklyn at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. Frank Nolan, of East Hartford, learned that it is expensive and not at all for one's good to get caught lugging booze in Connecticut.

Nolan was apprehended at 10 o'clock Wednesday night by State Officers Stephens and Urquhart, after a chase that started on the West Side near Sassette's store and continued along the Brooklyn highway to a point near Church street, a distance of about two miles. Officer Stephens, who was riding a motorcycle, said that he had to drive the machine up to 76 miles an hour to overhaul the flying Nolan. Sixty quarts of whiskey that Nolan was running from Providence to Hartford was found in the car. In the car with Nolan were his son and his daughter children about 11 and 13 years of age.

It was while inspecting lights on cars passing along the route out of Danielson to Brooklyn that the state officers got in touch with Nolan. They gave a stop signal that they might inspect the lights on his car, as they were doing to all machines that came along, and Nolan slowed down his machine almost to a dead stop. The officers were not at all suspicious that he was a booze runner. The children were with him, he had a fine car and it bore a Connecticut registration.

All of this fine impression for the officers was upset when Nolan suddenly threw into second speed and stepped on the gas. He was away to a flying start and refused the officers' signals to stop. Officer Stephens, having a fast motorcycle, managed to get the white Dusenberg followed along at the best speed of which his department roadster was capable.

When the liquor was found Nolan explained that he was running it through for use at the wedding of a relative next week. It should have been some wedding. Nolan was locked up at the police station here and the children were taken to the barracks where they cried throughout the night. They were sent on to Hartford Thursday morning.

On the West Side, before Justice Frank M. Bedard, Thursday evening, Nolan was fined $200 for transportation, $200 for keeping with intent to sell, $200 for reputation, $25 for reckless driving, $5 for failure to obey an officer and costs of $17.85 a total of $652.85 and he had no money with which to pay. It developed at the hearing that the car Nolan was driving when he was caught with the liquor is the property of Raymond Madsen, of 103 Walnut street, Hartford. State officers understand that Madsen will sell the car which is worth about $1,500 to raise money to pay Nolan's fine. In the meantime Nolan will remain in jail at Brooklyn. Nolan is the father of nine children, the youngest a baby three weeks old and Mrs. Nolan is understood to be quite ill at the present time. Nolan pleaded with the officer after the hearing on Thursday night to allow a single bottle of Burgundy that was found with the other 60 quarts of liquor in the car to be taken by a friend to his home, for whose use he had procured it, but of course this could not be permitted.

Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church, of which she was a member, conducted funeral services for Mrs. Adeline E. Lodge, at her home on Winter street, Thursday afternoon. A large delegation of members of Danielson chapter of the Eastern Star was in attendance, also a representation of members of Norwich league, A. F. and A. M. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, where the Eastern Star committal service was conducted. The bearers were Sidney M. Bird, F. E. Bitgood, Leonard Barnes, Arthur W. Logee, William J. Burke and Willard S. Danielson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

With new forest fire raging in areas visible from Danielson, attention was again directed Thursday by Fire Warden Charles B. Hutchins to the fact that all permits for fires in the open have been ordered withdrawn by State Fire Commissioner Austin V. Hawes and that no further permits will be issued for the time being.

As was pointed out Thursday, disobeying the order against kindling fires in the open at the present time, whether one has held a permit or not, may result in punishment of a fine of $200 or six months in jail, or both.

The fire wardens have orders from Commissioner Hawes to enforce the law to the letter. Wood and grass lands are like so much tinder just now and even a spark from the embers of a match may cause a conflagration that could result in thousands of dollars in damage. Arrests are certain to follow establishment of the fact that anyone has kindled a fire in the open during the prohibited period.

In connection with the announcement relative to care in preventing forest fires, attention is called to a proclamation of President Coolidge naming April 27-May 3, as American forest week. The president calls attention to the manner in which the nation has stripped its forests and created in large degree this magnificent gift of nature to the nation. The president says that the forests ought to be put to work and kept at work. We must all put our hands to this common task. One way to help is by preventing forest fires.

At the present time fire wardens all through this territory are keen in their lookout for such fires and ready to quickly organize a brigade to fight them. There has been so little rain for the past few weeks that the danger of such fires is no walmost extreme.

State officers are now engaged even- ings in checking up lights on motor vehicles, as is being done throughout the state, to determine whether the lighting equipment is in keeping with the requirements of the motor vehicle law.

A pair of doors and a section of brick wall was knocked down with a crash when a big motor truck backed into the entrance to a garage in the rear of the Evans block. A Ford car covered within was damaged in the crash, which quickly attracted a crowd, about nine o'clock Wednesday evening.

Thursday morning the pumper from the Central fire station made a run to the Valley section of East Killingly to combat a fire on the roof of one of a number of dwellings owned there by C. Hopkins. Use of a fire extinguisher taken from his automobile by Dr. J. C. Manlen, who happened to be passing, contributed to checking the fire, which was out when the Danielson firemen arrived. The fire was on a dwelling near an old mill.

Michael H. Dwire, 76, died during Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Mulligan, Elmville road. Mrs. Mulligan is a daughter of the deceased. Mr. Dwire was a native of Ireland. He had been a resident of this country the greater part of his life and had lived for years in Pascoag, before coming here to make his home.

The body of Mrs. Agnes Wilson, wife of William Wilson, who died Wednesday in Elmville, was forwarded Thursday by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy, to New Haven, where she was born and lived for years, before coming to this town. Funeral services are to be held in that city and burial will be in St. Lawrence cemetery.

Exceedingly attractive and delightfully pretty are the very latest styles for Easter in the printed crepe and plain silk dresses in many colors at the Alice-Eleanor shop.—adv.

Until early Thursday morning men remained, by order of Fire Warden Charles B. Hutchins, to watch the area burned over by the fire on the Wood and Paine properties, south of here, during Wednesday afternoon.

J. Carl Witter was at Scituate, R. I., Thursday to conduct an important auction sale at the J. N. Potter place, near where the Green Acre lodge recently was opened. The sale attracted a large attendance.

From noon today the Easter vacation period will begin for hundreds employed in mills throughout this territory. The plants that are to close will not resume operations until Monday morning.

Relatives and friends from communities hereabouts were at Dayville Thursday afternoon to attend the funeral services for Phyllis Eleanor Babcock, 4 years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Babcock.

There was no damage worthy of the name to the woode noverhead railroad bridge near Quinebaug lake when it became ignited by a forest fire raging in the vicinity, but it might have been destroyed except for the prompt discovery of a smouldering section.

Business generally will not be suspended in Danielson today, though the banks are observing Good Friday as a holiday.

Army recruiting representatives have been in Danielson this week setting the stage for obtaining men from this territory. Information relative to joining the army may be obtained at the postoffice.

Judge W. Fenner Woodward presid- ed at a session of the town court. One man was presented on a charge, being found not guilty on one and made to pay on the other, an overdue personal tax account.

It is anticipated that the warning given by Chief McFarland against dumping refuse in the Assawaga river will be effective in checking the practice.

A. W. Williams of Connecticut Agricultural college is spending the Easter recess here.

There will be various services at St. James' church and at St. Alban's church today, in observance of Good Friday.

Henry C. Benoit of Holyoke is spending a few days with relatives and friends in Danielson.

No definite time has been set, it is understood, for undertaking the construction of the new stretch of cement highway northward toward Elmville from the borough line at Morin avenue.

The yearly discussion about the ad- visability of extending the borough lines is again on. Danielson has grown so since the present borough lines were established that many feel the lines should be extended to bring much taxable property within the borough as they believe it should be. Such a plan is certain to meet with strong opposition, however, for various reasons.

PUTNAM

At the April meeting of the common council, at which every member was present, Alderman Rogers presented two motions affecting the water department of the city, the first of these, if passed, would exempt all of the departments of the city now paying hydrant rental to the water department from doing so, this condition to begin in January 1925. The second would allow the water department to be exempt from paying taxes to the city. An amendment to these motions was adopted and laid on the table for further consideration.

Capt. of Police William Jarvis re- ported that there were 32 arrests during March, 11 for drunkenness, 8 for violation of the motor laws, one for breach of the peace, seven for violating the liquor law, one for counterfeiting, two for fraud and two for non-support. Seven were committed to jail, five bound over to superior court and 15 paid fines and costs amounting to $2,676.69. During the month there were 40 tramps lodged.

Alderman Ames, chairman of the street lighting committee, reported that the council had received a petition for a light on every pole on Providence street. Upon investigation the committee recommends that lights of higher candle power replace the present lights on Providence street, at intersection of Church and Marshall streets. The council voted to accept this recommendation.

Alphonse Dumas, of Mill street, re- ported that in installing two new poles, the light company had located them a foot out of line. The management of the city light and power company agreed to investigate. The fire committee was authorized to secure prices for new hose as at least a thousand feet would be needed very soon. Curbing and oiling petitions were received and referred to the highway committee. Nine building permits were asked for, the majority of them being for garages.

T. J. CORCORAN JR., WEDS MISS USHER, OF ROCKVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, April 9.—Thomas J. Corcoran, Jr., formerly of Putnam, when agent of the French River Textile company and late years of the Monson Worsted company, now in the hands of a trustee in bankruptcy, was married New York city, Saturday evening, March 28. The bride was Miss Gladys Virginia Usher of Rockville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O B. Usher. Mrs. Corcoran before her marriage had kept a fancy goods store in Rockville and later one in Stafford Springs. Her father is a carpenter. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran are spending their honeymoon in Bermuda.

The marriage of Mr. Corcoran recalls the sensation caused by the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Corcoran in 1923. The couple had been in Putnam for about three years and occupied a fine room on Center street Mr. Corcoran who had organized the Monson Worsted company, was spending most of his time in the Massachusetts mill town with an occasional week-end visit to his home here. But when the divorce proceedings were started the house and its contents and the automobile were attached, as alimony was asked for by Mrs. Corcoran. The case was finally heard in Willimantic in February 1924. The degree was rendered on the ground of intolerable cruelty. Mrs. Corcoran was allowed $12,000 alimony, the largest sum ever awarded in Windham county and was allowed to resume her maiden name, Laura Broder. Soon after the decree Mrs. Corcoran left Putnam and went to Hartford to make her home with her mother. The Monson Worsted company of which Mr. Corcoran was the organizer was one of the biggest borrowers from the First National bank of Putnam and it is at present doubtful if the bank will realize much on the loan.

COLUMBIA

There were two rubbish fires in Columbia, Tuesday afternoon, which attained such proportions as to require the assistance of the fire warden and a force of men to extinguish them. The first was on A. Sitkin's property, in the western part of the town, and was extinguished before it had done any damage. The second was on the Stephen Isler place, near the Hop River station, and was more serious, necessitating two hours' work by the fire warden, Rowland Cobb, and a force of fifteen men to extinguish the fire which covered a large area of meadow and swampy land. No serious damage, however, has been reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Edwards have announced the engagement of their daughter, Edna, to Theodore Ladd, of Willimantic.

Mrs. Lula McCorkle, who has been spending the winter with her sister at St. John's, Michigan, and her daughter, Miss Marion, who has been teaching in Binghamton, N. Y., arrived at their home on the Green on Monday. Miss McCorkle left Wednesday for Boston, where she is engaged to teach in a hospital.

Mrs. Carleton P. Davenport of Shelburne Falls, Mass., with her children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Porter, arriving in town Monday.

Lebanon Grange Dramatic club presented the rural comedy, Sacketts Corner Folks, at Yeomans hall Wednesday evening before a good audience. The characters in the play were all well interpreted, the play being notable for its fine moral tone, as well as its humor. Prof. A. E. Lyman, Lawrence Hutchins and Mrs. Fred A. Abel funished excellent music between the acts and played for the dancing which followed. The receipts for the evening were divided between the dramatic club and The Village Improvement society of Columbia, the latter receiving about $9.

LEFFINGWELL

Mrs. Justine Bedat, Mrs. Timothy Sullivan and daughter, Patricia, of Maple street, Norwich, were visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Bedat Sunday.

Friday of last week the Leffingwell School Improvement league held its April meeting at 7 o'clock, at the schoolhouse. The League song was sung by the audience, after which the secretary's report and treasurer's report were read.

Mr. Edward Caroline, Mr. C Thomas Leffingwell and Mr. William B. Oakley were nominated as a building committee to investigate making a change in the schoolhouse. John Fields of Fitchville addressed the audience, as did Mrs. Nathan Gilman. Then followed the singing of Auld Lang Syne, by all. Miss Alice A. Bishop and the pupils are to be in charge of the May meeting, and Mrs. Trafford Mowrey in charge of refreshments. After a piano duet, "Poet and Peasant" by Mrs. Richardson and son, Dwight, Allen Latham of Scotland Road spoke very interestingly on Bees. Mrs. Richardson sang "The Lark Song," accompanied by her son, Dwight. The Battle Hymn of the Republic was sung by the audience. Rev. E. J. Ayers, of Norwich, told very humorously of the "Beauty Shop." Dwight Richardson gave a piano solo after which sandwiches, cake and cocoa were served. Between seventy and eighty were present.

Sunday at "The Old Homestead Farm" Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Beard entertained a family party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan E. Whiting's thirty-fourth wedding anniversary.

Tuesday evening the young people of Leffingwell gave a church supper in the vestry. The menu was potato salad, baked beans, cold sliced meat, rolls, coffee, cake, chocolate and vanilla ice cream. A large crowd was present and a good sum realized.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Leffingwell Beard have returned to Leffingwell after their honeymoon trip.

LEDYARD

The annual election of Sunday school officers of the Congregational church was held Sunday afternoon after the close of the Sunday school. Carl H. Holdridge was chosen moderator and the following officers were re-elected: Superintendent, Joseph A. Clark; assistant superintendent, Billings T. Avery; secretary and treasurer, Carl H. Holdridge; superintendent of the Home department, Miss Nellie Geer; superintendent of the Cradle Roll, Mrs. Fanny Clark. Paul Holdridge, Arthur Goodenough, and Miss Mildred Pierce were elected librarians. The secretary at this meeting announced the winner of the Edward Reynolds prizes. These prizes are given annually at Christmas time for best attendance at Sunday school. NOMINATION OF HINDENBURG SURPRISES FELLOW CITIZENS

Berlin, April 9—(By the A. P.)—The nomination of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg for the German presidency, by the parties of the United Right came as a surprise to his fellow citizens who until the arrival on Tuesday of Admiral Von Tirpitz, as the emissary of the right bloc, thought the veteran military leader's refusal was final. Von Tirpitz generally is credited with having been the decisive factor in overcoming the field marshals objections.

To Hanoverians who have known Von Hindenburg for many years, he is a purely military figure who dislikes politics. His hearing is perfect but his age has caused some apprehension to be expressed whether he can face the rigors of the exciting office of the presidency. The field marshal is 77 years old.

THE DELIBERATIVE SENATE.

Having been once a member of the upper house of congress, none should better understand the effort that was made by Vice President Dawes on the day he assumed office, when he directed the attention of that body to the need of revising the rules of the senate in order to get away from that situation where a majority can be talked by one or two.

Former Senator Beveridge has recently declared that he was opposed to cloture and to "gag" rule. When he stands against gag rule he is of course certain to gain popular support, but it is neither gag rule nor the prevention of a careful and thorough discussion of matters in the senate that is sought.

By all means let there be debate, so as know why laws should be passed or why they should not. Let there be a full and free discussion, but that most certainly is not to be found in the action of one, two or three men who take the floor and proceed to talk about everything but the question involved and read for hours from reports or books entirely foreign to the subject before the senate for no other purpose than to prevent the majority from voting as it wishes.

That is the situation that is permitted by the existing senate rules. What is the thing the vice president seeks to have changed. Instead of a few, or the minority, being in control of the senate it should be the majority, and it is only proper that the rules of that body should be so drawn as to make that possible and stop just such injustice as the existing rules permit.

When the former senator talks about attempting to introduce "gag" rule, it seems to be very evident that if there is any gag to be found it lies in the existing rules which the vice president wants changed. The senate now can have its hands tied even when an actual majority is desirous of getting action and is committed to adoption or rejection of legislation. The senate may well insist upon remaining a deliberative body, but reading for hours what has no bearing upon the matter under consideration is most certainly not debate.

WATERBURY PAYS.

Because the state pays each town a certain sum for each child of school age and because by the methods followed in Waterbury larger demands were made upon the state than were justified Waterbury has received from the state in the form of school money over a period of a dozen years, a sum greatly in excess of what it was entitled to. The enumeration figures were padded and but for the fact that the situation was brought to light it might have continued indefinitely.

Having received this money and encouraged it for its own use, it is quite evident in justice to the rest of the state that there should be restitution. Waterbury has been convinced of its overenumeration and after many conferences it has agreed to repay the sum of $170,000 to the state. This includes interest on the money paid to Waterbury and the agreement between the city and the state officials is that the repayments shall cover a period of years.

Waterbury city officials regard the arrangement as satisfactory. In fact it is figured that good terms have been made and the claim is made that the state could have carried the check-up back over a period of 15 years and showed an even greater overenumeration.

But when the Waterbury city council approving the agreement and the above terms certain of the aldermen expressed the belief that the city should go further in the matter and inasmuch as the enumerators had obtained benefits from the overenumeration there should be a demand upon them to refund. Waterbury has certainly been paying for some very lax work by enumerators. Getting something back might be a more difficult task than urging it, but the experience of that community has been such as to cause it to see that it is protected against it in the future, and what has happened to that city should stand as a lesson to other municipalities where any such opportunities exist for such laxness relative to city affairs.

PROTECTING TAXI RIDERS.

New York has been hearing some things as the result of the ease with which taxi cab drivers can obtain licenses, or do business without licenses, which it does not like. The things reflect most unfavorably upon the metropolis. It displays a lack of proper consideration and protection for the public when it is found that criminals and graduates of Sing Sing have no difficulty in putting their criminal tendencies into operation because of the laxity that prevails in connection with the licensing of taxi drivers and the enforcement of the established requirements.

The shooting and killing of a taxi driver by the driver following a dispute over an extortionate charge brought to light the situation which had been prevalent in that city, where those with records in crime have been engaged in that business and enjoying the benefits of non-enforcement of the laws, while little attention, if any, was paid to obtaining licenses.

The disclosure is such that New York is disposed to correct the situation by requiring that all applicants for taxicabs must undergo a physical examination, a test of their knowledge of the city and their records by the police in the precinct where they live. They must also be fingerprinted that comparison may be made with the prints in police files. Such a test is to be applied not only to new applicants but to all the drivers at the present time.

New York is apparently awake to the need of overcoming a deplorable condition. It recognizes the seriousness of the laxness of the past and the need of greater protection and closer attention to the situation in the future. It is to be hoped that it will be more than a case of a new broom sweeping clean for those who are dependent upon taxicab service are entitled to be safeguarded against holdup men, gunmen and the like being permitted to carry on their work unchecked.

ANSWERING PERU.

When President Coolidge tells Peru that he stands by the award as made in connection with the provinces of Tacna and Arica, it is improbable that Peru has expected any other answer to its appeals for changes.

It is to be expected that the interests of Peru will be protected quite the same as those of Chile when the time for the plebiscite arrives. That will be the duty of the plebiscite commission, and with General Pershing holding the chairmanship of that body assurance is given that there will be all necessary measures taken to insure fair treatment for all.

Peru must have realized the futility of its effort if it gave any thought at all to the fact that it agreed with Chile in advance that such an award as was made by the president of the United States as arbitrator would be respected. There could be no thought of making a decision and then providing modifications for one side without expecting that the same treatment would be accorded the other. And once such a thing was attempted there would soon disappear the very thing which arbitration was expected to accomplish.

It isn't a case of playing favorites. It is a case of bringing about a solution of a long standing dispute in keeping with the understandings which have existed between the nations, but which it has never been possible to put into operation. It is a time when those directly involved should meet the requirements in the proper spirit and accept such a settlement as the award and the plebiscite call for.

HINDENBURG VS. MARX.

In Germany's last election it was made evident that if the parties which stand for a democracy should combine there would be no doubt as to the outcome when the voters go to the polls the last Sunday of this month.

The forces of those opposed to the republic demonstrated what the strength of Dr. Jarres was. He failed of a majority. There were more opposed to him than there were those voting for him. It was necessary to look about for a stronger man. Whether this has been accomplished by the selection of Hindenburg will be disclosed in time, but the impression is not favorable. He suits the former kaiser. That means he satisfies junkerdom. As field marshal he was about as close to an idol as could be desired. He doesn't occupy the same position now that he did during the war in the eyes of the people, but the fact that he has been agreed upon indicates that he is regarded as the one who can make the best possible appeal among those opposed to a republic.

This selection makes it necessary for the republican forces to get together and stick together if they expect to succeed. There can be no halfway support. The lines of demarcation between the several parties must be abandoned in behalf of the common cause of maintaining the republic. If the selection of Hindenburg stiffens the support of Marx the outcome should be in no way feared by the united republican forces. From the outside it is by no means easy to see how Germany could expect Hindenburg, or anyone of his type, to adjust himself to such an office as the president of the German republic.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, April 9—The sum of $830,000,000 was provided by congress for the fiscal year 1926 to meet the interest on the public debt. Congress also authorized $485,000,000 for the "sinking fund and other public debt retirement funds." The republican tariff law is yielding something like $550,000,000 annually. The average rate on all imports is about 15 per cent; on dutiable imports alone, about 35 per cent. The rates per cent were 14.88 and 37.6, respectively, the first year the democratic tariff law was in force—1914. Last year 58 per cent of our imports were free of duty. Importations of partly and wholly manufactured foodstuffs and artifacts totaled about $1,930,000,000, or more than $100,000,000 greater than our entire imports in 1914. Imports from Europe totaled $895,000,000 in 1914, and $1,096,000,000 last year —they totaled $780,000,000 for the eight months ended February last.

The basic theory of the republican party in levying protective tariff rates is to measure those rates by the difference in cost of production, at home and abroad, wages being the chief factor in calculations. In practice the tariff law enacted in 1922 did not, and because of demoralized economic conditions abroad, could not, apply that measurement generally. The republicans did the best they could and left the "flexible clause" as a regulator. The disparity of wages here and abroad is much greater than in prewar days. Today an American mill operative, or miner, is better paid than a general superintendent in Europe, and he lives at a higher standard. The census figures for 1923 show that the percentage of increase in the amount paid out by wages in industry was 161, compared with 1914. The cost of materials increased 141 per cent. The number of wage earners increased nearly 2,000,000. Wages per capita increased 112.5 per cent. No such increase has been approximately in Europe, and yet, as stated, our tariff rates are on the average about what they were under the democratic law in 1914, and considerably below those of the republican law operating in 1910 when all imports gave an average of 21, and dutiable goods only, 41.5 per cent.

Hoed's "Song of the Shirt" was set to music much less lugubrious in 1923 than it was a decade before, if we judge from the census returns with respect to the manufacture of women's clothing, a bulletin covering the 1923 industry having just made its appearance.

Comparing the statistics with those of 1914 we find that the number of establishments engaged in the industry increased from 5,564 to 7,046, of which, in 1923, about 70 per cent were located in the state of New York, the remainder being scattered in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, California, Ohio, New Jersey, Missouri, Maryland, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Indiana, the number ranging from nearly 400 down to 20, and the remainder being distributed among 23 other States. So it is a country-wide industry.

There were nearly 168,000 wage-earners in the industry in 1914, the number decreasing to 133,300 in 1923, elimination due to labor troubles no doubt having something to do with this. The aggregate paid out in wages in 1914 was nearly $92,600,000. This would give per capita earnings of the hands for that year, part time, full time, skilled, and unskilled, of $548. In 1923 the wage aggregate totaled $176,542,000, or per capita earnings of $1,325. Thus the operatives stepped into the salaried class,—a per capita increase of 142 per cent.

The cost of materials leaped from $252,000,000 to $808,500,000 in the decade. This includes fuel and containers. This is the largest percentage increase shown—221 per cent. In addition, sanitary conditions have been much improved, and the old sweat shop evils are much less prevalent. Ultimately public condemnation will completely banish them.

The value of products increased from $473,388,000 to $1,406,884,000, or nearly 200 per cent. These figures include clothing made in contract shops, which were not separately listed prior to 1921. It is plain that the increased cost of materials and higher wages had mainly to do with higher prices, while the protective tariff was inconsequential in its effect. For example, the wholesale price index numbers of the department of labor on cloths and clothing for 1923 show a hundred per cent increase over 1913, while the 1920 increase was 195 per cent and this was before the present tariff law became effective. The first year of the democratic tariff, 1914, this group showed a slight increase.

On the night of April 13th the supporters of Governor Al Smith of New York and William Gibbs McAdoo will again clash. This date is the one on which democracy will gather to celebrate Thomas Jefferson's birthday. The two dinners that will attract the most attention will be those held here and in Kansas City, Mo.

There will be no love feast characteristics in these two dinners. On the surface there will be an exchange of courtesies, but always present will be in evidence the bitter partisanship of the supporters of Governor Al Smith and of William Gibbs McAdoo. For all of the reorganiation blue prints which Franklin Roosevelt has prepared, as representing the better element for the reorganiation of the democratic party, it is becoming steadily clearer to the on-lookers, and is being admitted by the actual participants, that the fate of the party, if not its real ownership, is held jointly by Smith and McAdoo. True to form it appears as if the supporters of these two men had again reached the point where the one ever present determination is to block the other from the presidency. There is no basis for hope that elapsed time will heal these feuds. Al Smith intends to secure the democratic nomination for the New York senatorship and matters have been so arranged that whether he fails or wins the seat in the senate he will still be the presidential candidate of his particular followers. McAdoo, for his part, has already begun to gather anew his southern delegates. It is a curious commentary on political conditions that the birthday of Thomas Jefferson is being used for Federal Intermediate Credit banks such purposes.

Since the bringing into being of the there has $60,885,421 of government money been loaned to farmers throughout the United States. During the month of January the direct loans amounted to $4,206,931 and the re-discounts aggregated $2,688,045. Six out of the twelve banks did not make any direct loans in January. This means that commercial, not government, loan agencies are supplying the greater amount of funds needed. Louisville, Ky., had no discount operations in January.

A report just made public by the geological survey discloses the fact that the United States in 1923 led the world in the amount of developed water power with 10,000,000 horse power. This means that more than one-third of the power produced by the use of water was generated in the United States. The total horse power produced by water in 1923 in the entire world was 29,000,000 horse power.

From an estimate prepared by the geological survey it is said that the installed capacity of water power in this country would approximate 70,000,000 horse power.

The right of the small radio user to [illegible] sires has been happily recognized by Secretary Hoover. In a recent brief interview he announced that the energies of the radio division of his department would be largely devoted to seeing that the small fellow, both receiver and broadcaster, received a fair show. For that reason it is likely from now on that promoters who plan the erection of enormous blanketing broadcasting stations in various parts of the country will be obliged to prove to the department that the new service which they offer will not discommode or dismantle the smaller local broadcasting stations which serve a daily increasing group of interested listeners.

SCATTERING SUNSHINE

The happy little bride found herself in the vestibule with the girl who roomed in the apartment above her.

"Good morning," beamed the little bride. "It's a lovely morning, isn't it?"

The girl who roomed upstairs attempted a faint smile. "Yes, it is," she agreed, her eyes upon the telegram in her hand. "It's a lovely—"

A tear splashed upon the telegram.

"Oh, I'm sory! Is it—bad news?"

"Why, no—it's very good news, that's why I'm crying." The girl upstairs smiled at the perplexed little bride through her tears. "You see—"

The little bride did see a tired-out girl standing before her, a girl who looked as if she might go into a mild hysteria.

"Are you in a hurry to get to the office?" demanded the bride. "Because if you're not, I want you to come in for a minute. I live in the first apartment."

She dragged the girl, unresisting into her cheerful living room and pushed her into the biggest chair. "And now," continued the bride, "do tell me what's the matter. Maybe I can help?"

"Why, thank you. It really isn't anything. I'm afraid you'll think I'm silly. Only, it does mean a lot to me."

"Why, of course."

"You see," explained the girl, "I'm rooming with the people upstairs—"

"Mrs. Callus?"

"Yes, Mrs. Callus. Of course, I really can't expect her to go out of her way for me."

"Twouldn't hurt her to do it," interrupted the little bride, with a vicious jab of her elbow at a silken cushion.

"Oh, no, I really couldn't expect her to. She's very much occupied with her own affairs—"

"Uh-uh. One hundred per cent heart-proof."

"Anyway, I've never minded until last week," explained the girl. "But some time ago I met a—a wonderful man. He was an out-of-town man. I saw him only twice. And last week he wrote me that he was coming to Chicago, and asked if he might call."

The little bride nodded her pretty bobbed head happily. She understood.

"I told Mrs. Callus that I was going to have a visitor, and asked her if she'd entertain him for an evening, I'd foot the expense."

"What did she say?"

"She sort of laughed it off at first, and then she told me that she couldn't do it because she was so busy. And now Mr. Marchand—that's the man, you know—just telegraphed me that he'll be in town Saturday—"

"I see." The little bride was solemn as a judge.

"I—I haven't any—folks. And I did so want to entertain him at home. He—"

To the little bride came a vision of a large rambling old home. A home where four growing girls and three fun-loving brothers had been free to bring all the friends they could find. "THE MORE—THE MERRIER" read the quaint cross-stitching in the sunny dining room.

The eyes of the bride gleamed. "Now isn't that luck! Things certainly do work out for the best. Here you are with company for this very evening and nothing prepared. And here I've been fretting because John and I had arranged for a big spread for some friends, and at the last minute they phoned they couldn't come. And all that food going to waste. John'll be too delighted for words. You'll come, won't you?"

"Oh, I couldn't let you bother—"

"Bother? No bother at all. Everything's ready in the ice box now. I just have to roast the duck—"

"To-day's only a half-day," cried the girl, with shining eyes, giving the little bride a swift hug. "I'll run in this afternoon and help!"

"You run along or you'll be late for work."

The little bride closed the door upon her happy neighbor, and dashed to the phone. "I'll have to do some hustling to get up such a short-notice dinner," she laughed. "I'd better phone John so that he won't give the whole thing away."—Chicago News.

Are You Discouraged?

House, the Sickly Youth

Young, vigorous and a child of riches, Edward M. House was expected to be a dashing leader of men, but accident, sickness and death changed his course in life.

In Houston, Texas, the city of his birth, his father was a banker and owner of large plantations. The boy learned to ride bucking bronchos and shot as well as a Texas ranger.

While still young he fell from a swing, and the resultant brain fever left him rather delicate. A few years later he suffered a partial heat stroke which so weakened him that he had to seek another climate for the greater part of the year.

Forced by ill-health to study in the north, he entered Hopkins Grammar School at New Haven, Conn., at 19, to prepare to enter Yale. While there he joined others entering Cornell University. Quiet and frail, he became a peacemaker and was called "Eddie, fix it." Popular, he often visited at the White House and in the best homes in Washington and other cities. Then came the death of his father and he had to quit college while in his junior year.

Inheriting a goodly portion of his father's estate, he enjoyed a comfortable income. Marrying at 21, he made his home in Austin. James A. Hogg, seeking re-election as governor with a hard battle ahead, induced House to manage his campaign, and behind a committee, House quietly directed operations that brought victory. Afterward he elected three other governors, one of whom made him a member of the Governor's staff with title of Colonel.

While Woodrow Wilson was governor of New Jersey, House invited him to speak in Dallas. They became friends. Wilson asked him to manage his presidential boom. House moved to New York, and soon afterward became known as "chief adviser" to the president.

Sent to Europe several times during the World war, he was sought as an adviser in this and other countries and was a member of the American delegation to the Peace Conference.

Then came the falling out with President Wilson and his retirement from national politics. Today, at 66, Colonel House still has the respect and confidence of a large following.

Green Things Growing

O the green things growing, the green things growing,
The faint sweet smell of the green things growing!
I should like to live, whether I smile or grieve,
Just to watch the happy life of my green things growing.

O the fluttering and the pattering of those green things growing!
How they talk each to each, when none of us are knowing;
In the wonderful white of the weird moonlight
Or the dim dreamy dawn when the cocks are crowing.

I love, I love them so—my green things growing!
And I think that they love me, without false showing;
For by many a tender touch, they comfort me so much,
With the soft mute comfort of green things growing!

And in the rich store of their blossoms glowing,
Ten for one I take they're on me bestowing;
Oh, I should like to see, if God's will it may be,
Many, many a summer of my green things growing!

But if I must be gathered for the angel's sowing,
Sleep out of sight awhile, like the green things growing,
Though dust to dust return, I think I'll scarcely mourn,
If I may change into green things growing.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, whom the French government has made commander of the Legion of Honor in recognition of services rendered in promoting better and closer relations between Canada and France, is the present speaker of the Dominion House of Commons. He comes of a family which has long been prominent in Canadian public life. Born in Montreal and educated at Laval University, he chose the law as a profession and soon became prominent at the bar. His public career began with his election to parliament in 1896. An ardent supporter of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he help under the Liberal government such important Federal posts as Solicitor-General, Postmaster-General, and Minister of Marine and Fisheries. In 1907 he was sent to Japan as special commission in connection with Asiatic immigration troubles. Several years later he was the official representative of the Dominion of Canada at the inauguration of the Parliament of the Union of South Africa.

Stories That Recall Others

Trump Cards

A salesman sent his card to the head of the concern via the stenographer. Her employer tore it up and threw it in the basket.

"What did he say?" inquired the salesman when the girl returned and announced her "chief" could not be seen.

"He didn't say anything. He just tore your card up," was the tactless reply.

"You go tell him that that was my card and that I want it back."

The girl again retreated into the inner office.

"Wants his card back?" exclaimed the president. "Here give him a nickel, I guess that will pay for it."

When the nickel was proffered, the salesman, not in the least daunted, reached in his pocket, found another card and gave it to the girl. "Tell him they are cheaper than that. They are two for a nickel."

For the third time the girl went into the office and delivered her message. It was effective.

"Well, tell that fool to come in here." The "fool" did and before he had walked out he had taken orders for twice as many goods as he had hoped for.

Not Brave

Two children were walking to the library. One was to get a book for her brother.

First Girl—What will you say if the librarian says that book is too old for you?

Second Girl—I'll say: "It's none of your business which book I take!"

The girls reached the library. When they have the book wished the librarian said: "Little girl, isn't that book too old for you?"

Second Girl (Coloring Deeply)—Oh, uh, I'm getting it for my-uh my-uh brother."

Splinterless Glass

Closely resembling ordinary glass and suitable to take its place for many purposes, a chemical substitute that is said not to splinter has been produced in Germany. Because of this quality, it is being recommended for panes of motor cars and in optical instruments.

RHEUMATISM

Twisted, swollen, unsightly joints are rapidly freed from pain and brought back to normal with Rheuma.

Lame people walk without aid; sleep comes to those who have been unable to lie in bed; hands that were helpless because of terrible rheumatism are now able to do their share for the support of the family.

It is a wonder-worker; it never falters, never gives up until every vestige of uric acid poison is expelled from the body.

Rheuma acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bladder all at once and quickly brings long prayed for comforts to distressed sufferers. Lee & Osgood Co. and all good druggists sell it with guarantee of money back if it isn't satisfactory.

AMERICAN LEGION POST HAS FIVE TEAMS IN DRIVE FOR MEMBERSHIP

Members of the various teams of R. O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion met at the Legion rooms on Main street, Thursday evening, when plans were completed for the annual membership drive which continues through the rest of April. Five teams have been selected, each headed by a captain and it is expected that the membership of the post will be doubled before the drive comes to a close.

The Norwich drive is in conjunction with a drive throughout the state and State Commander Ned White has lined his men up in fine style for the coming battle. Competition runs keen between the teams of various posts of the state and Norwich expects to hold the position it did a year ago in the drive, helping to keep New London county to the fore in Legion activities in 1925 just as it was in 1924.

Team A., John A. Cunningham, captain, Harold T. Robinson, Harry W. House, Edward G. McKay, Charles W. Frink, Clarence Whitaker and William McClimon.

Team C., Frank P. Chase, captain, Joseph Bellefleur, L. P. Raymond, John S. Bennett, Gus Zotos, Warren Wilcox, Harry Lathrop, Charles Olson.

Reports are to be made to team captains each evening during the drive and final check-ups made to state headquarters.

EXPLOSION DRIVES BARBER FROM SHAVING CUSTOMER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, April 9—An oil stove used to heat water in the barber shop rented by Sam Nigrella in Paul Anthony's block on Main street exploded at 6:30 this evening. An alarm for station 14 brought the firemen in record time. They arrived to find the south part of the building only 10 feet from the Rioux block was a roaring furnace. Chief Wakely and his men got to their job with their usual splendid efficiency, and had the upper hand of the blaze in ten minutes. Tons of water were turned into the blazing building, and no trouble was found in holding the fire where it started. Nigrella was shaving a customer when the explosion occurred, they had just time to escape the burning, oil, not even being able to save the money till. Nigrella lost everything. Other occupants of the building were the owner, Paul Anthony and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Pleasant Ford. A pool room and small store conducted by Fred Racine and Mike David's shoe shop. Some goods and furniture were carried out or thrown from the windows, yet all the occupants stand for considerable loss by smoke and water.

A great crowd filled the streets and state road traffic was detoured for about an hour. Insurance will cover the several losses, approximated at not far from $5,000. Mr. Ford was not insured.

During the run to the blaze Fire Marshal G. H. Prior, was all but thrown from the truck but Jack McElligott drew him back to safety.

While "Happy" Blake and Lionel Boucher were operating hand extinguishers through the Main street entrance, a second explosion occurred from the direct flare of which they escaped. Had the time been several hours later, no better place could have been picked for a bad fire.

The big three story Rioux block is only 10 feet away on the south, and the residence of E. H. Hiscox has but 15 feet leeway on the north side. Recall was sounded at 7.40.

The firemen were seriously handicapped in making the hitch at the hydrant in front of the Rioux block because of an automobile parked there. The number was taken and the man is known. It is believed that the fire commission may take legal action.

EXPLAIN TAX RE-VALUATION TO CENTRAL LABOR UNION

The regular meeting of Norwich Central Labor Union was held Wednesday night in Carpenters' hall with the majority of the local unions represented. President William A. Donahue made a favorable report on the legislative work in the last month which was accepted. He also outlined the plan of the New England Label week which will be held April 26 to May 3 by the Cigarmakers' union and urged the delegates to get behind the cigarmakers and make it a big success. President Donohue then introduced James L. Case, who explained the report of the special tax analysis committee to the delegates. Mr. Case's talk was very thorough and he urged the delegates to consider the minority side as well as the majority side of the report and when it came before the town meeting to vote for the side they considered best for the community. He was followed by John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who pointed out the need of tax re-valuation in Norwich and the harm that a high tax rate can be to a town or city. He also cited several towns where re-valuation has been done by experts and has proven very successful and he also urged the delegates to look at both sides of the report before favoring any opinions. After their talks they answered many questions from the delegates after which they were given a rising vote of thanks by the union.

JESUS HAD FOUR-FOLD PLAN IN EDUCATION

The third of the series of lectures on The Life of Christ, was delivered by Dr. M. A. Honline at TrinityMethodist Episcopal church, Thursday evening, churches of the city uniting for the service.

Dr. Honline spoke in particular about the New Testament and methods that should be used in church school teaching following the conversion of a person desirous of joining the church. He traced the Bible through its man changes beginning with the original old testament in Hebrew and told of the various Bible translations since that time, among them being the Samaritan pentateuch the Greek version, the Latin version which was based on three previous Bibles, the Wycliff Bible of 1383, based on the Latin translation, Tyndall's Bible of 1525, Old Testament, and 1530, New Testament, Cloverdale's Bible, the Great Bible of 1539, King James Bible the official Bible of England until 1885, the English revised version, the American revised version and a dozen or more other versions. These many translations prove that they were not written by verbal inspiration for no two of these Bibles agree on all points in fact, there are 66,000 variations in the New Testament alone in the Bibles written between 1611 and 1885. None of these variations are serious, however, and every Bible written since the year 325 could be reconstructed from that Bible with the changing of a few verses.

These Bibles were written by honest men, striving to give the truth as they knew it, but in the many translations errors were bound to creep in and this did happen.

Christ said, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father and I am the living conception of the Father". Mathews, Mark, Luke and John all told of these things but they disagreed on minor details. Yet they were trustworthy and reliable men.

Jesus has been written of as the physician, teacher and prophet, but what we are interested in is Jesus the teacher, and as a teacher are interested in three things concerning Him. First, what were His qualifications and training; second, His educational aims and objectives; third, the materials He used; fourth, He's teaching methods ,fifth, the results of His work.

In the 18 years of silence Jesus grew in stature wisdom and favor with God and men. In other words He grew physically intellectually socially and religiously. I hope the day will come when the Sunday schools and public school will thrust back onto the homes, those things which the home has delegated to them, and which should be done in the home.

Jesus taught by three things, what He was, what He did and what He said, and He insisted on His followers knowing, doing and being. In Rome education was for one thing, simply an instrument of the state. The Huns used it for two things, serving the church and serving in the life hereafter. Elementary education began in 1500 to 1800 with the printing of the Bible, for people to be saved felt they must know the Bible. It has been said that education from 1850 to 1925 has been to make for unified, like-minded, efficient citizenship. A six-fold plan has also been suggested; that education is to impart certain information, form certain habits, increase certain powers, discourage certain tendencies, arouse interests and inspire.

Religious education should be four fold, said Dr. Honline, first, the conversion of the pupil; second, development of the Christian character; third, training for Christian service; fourth, enlisting in Christian service.

Here is the crux of the whole matter, the convert must be instructed and placed where he is best fitted. In time this man becomes a specialist in his Sunday school department and the children may be promoted ahead while he remains where he is best fitted.

In summing up, Dr. Honline said, the leaders in modern education have learned that the methods of Jesus in teaching are the best ever laid down and his four-fold plan in education is that being used to a great extent today. Physical, intellectual, social and religious development is that plan and is best fitted to solve the problem of education.

JAIL SENTENCES WITH FINE IN LIQUOR CASE

In the city court Thursday morning, with Judge Arthur F. Libby presiding, Anthony Izbicki, 38, one of the proprietors of a market in the Union hall building, 465 North Main street, was fined $200 and costs on the charge of violation of the liquor law in making a sale to George Hollingsworth, who was one of the witnesses against him with Sergeant Matthew Delaney and Officer Luke Riley and P. Murphy who made the arrest on Wednesday night. Besides the fine, which with costs amounted to $226.28, the accused was given a 10-day jail sentence and he was taken to jail after the court session by Officer Charles Smith.

A continuance of a week was ordered in the case of David Feister of 58 Fairmount street, accused of driving of an automobile and of passing a standing trolley car. The motor truck driven by Feister struck and badly injured Miss Hilda Thoma on Boswell avenue near Prospect park Wednesday afternoon.

Morris Freedman of Preston City was fined $3 flat for allowing a team of horses to go at large unhitched on Franklin square. His horses took to wandering around the square when he left them unhitched there.

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents a night attack.

If croup comes on without warning an application of Vicks usually brings relief in 15 minutes.

Vicks can be applied freely and often, even on the youngest child with perfect safety.

BISHOP NILAN'S LETTER URGING LAW OBEDIENCE

The Connecticut Citizen for April, special organ of the Connecticut Temperance Union, features the following: Bishop's Letter to Catholic Clergy:

Many Catholic clergymen throughout the state called the attention of their parishioners last Sunday to the efforts being made to strengthen the enforcement act of the state in reference to the eighteenth amendment.

"A committee of state's attorneys appointed by the chief justice of the supreme court of Connecticut, the judges and prosecutors of the state to draft an amendment to the statute governing the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, is seeking the co-operation of the clergy of the state in bringing to the attention of their people the advantages of the modifications with a view to preventing abuses which have become most subversive of all law and order.

"Any step that you may take to aid the committee in its efforts in behalf of good government has our cordial approval.

"Yours sincerely,
(Signed "JOHN J. NILAN,
"Bishop of Hartford."

Bishop Milan's stand in the matter of total abstinence has long been known. Every time he confirms a class, he requires the girls as well as the boys to take the total abstinence pledge, promising to refrain from all intoxicants till they reach the age of twenty-five. Bishop Nilan's belief is that having thus formed the habit of total abstinence, it will remain with the youth of the Catholic church even after they have reached twenty-five.

BABE RUTH IS SUFFERING FROM ONLY A "SLIGHT" ATTACT OF INFLUENZA

New York, April 9—George Herman Ruth—baseball's mighty Babe—was resting comfortably in St. Vincent's hospital tonight, suffering from influenza, acute indigestion and minor injuries suffered when he fainted and fell in the washroom of his private car, as the train was entering Pennsylvania station shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Early reports from attending physicians said that Ruth had a slight concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull, but these were later denied at the hospital by Dr. Edward King, the New York American league doctor, who gave the home run slugger a thorough examination upon his arrival.

Resting Comfortably

"Ruth is resting as comfortably as can be expected and is in no danger," said Dr. King immediately after the examination.

"He has a fever and a temperature of 101, but there is no concussion of the brain or evidence of a fracture of the skull."

The accident, which rendered Ruth unconscious for nearly two hours, happened as he was washing up preparatory to departing from the train. In company with Paul Kritchell, the New York American league scout, and a party of newspapermen, Ruth was returning from Ashville, N. C., where Tuesday he had suffered a slight attack of acute indigestion with a touch of influenza.

Just as the train was entering the Pennsylvania tube between Manhattan Transfer, N. J., and the Pennsylvania station, Ruth entered the washroom. He asked Kritchell to get him a comb and prepared to wash his hands and face while Kritchell was gone Ruth fainted and fell to the floor, striking his head against the washbowl, rendering him unconscious. He was picked up by Kritchell and newspapermen aboard the train, and carried to his compartment.

All New York Anxious

Ruth's illness, coupled with the unverified report of his death which gained widespread publicity before it was officially denied, shrouded New York station in a gloom and the Pennsylvania station was crowded with anxious baseball fans when the train arrived at the terminal.

The collapse of the mighty slugger was the culmination of a hectic morning for the fans. The report of his death, circulated late last night, had not been entirely cleared up until early noon. Newspapers were swamped with inquiries and everywhere in baseball circles there was an unsettled feeling.

Kritchell, who had been sent with word by Manager Miller Huggins, said that the Babe stood the trip well and aside from a slight stomach disorder while the train was standing in the Newark, N. J., station, the trip north was uneventful.

Dr. J. M. Murphy, the Pennsylvania railroad station physician, summoned by Stationmaster Egan, boarded the car immediately upon its arrival here. Only a handful of station attaches and newspapermen were admitted to the platform, and only Mrs. Ruth and a friend, Mrs. C. C. White of St. Petersburg, Fla., Eddie Holly, a Yankee scout, Edward G. Barrow, business manager of the Yankees and Charles McManus, secretary to Mr. Barrow, were admitted to the car.

Dr. King, who has been Ruth's personal physician for a number of years, arrived soon after and went into consultation with Dr. Murphy. Dr. King went to the station in the St. Vincent's hospital ambulance with a staff of hospital attaches.

Shortly after Ruth's arrival, another train rolled in on the opposite track bearing members of the Boston Braves enroute to Boston from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they have been training.

Members of the Boston team, informed of the report that Ruth had died on his way to New York, had not learned that it was untrue. Seeing the crowd and hearing incoherent reports of Ruth buzzing around the platform, the Boston players crowded out of their car, but were assured the Babe was alive.

Ruth Unconscious After Fall

In the station waiting room was a large crowd intent upon seeing their HOME MORE MORE nMuidol, but Ruth was placed on a hospital stretcher, still unconscious from his fall, and lifted out the window of the car to a stretcher-bearer and transported to the ground floor in the elevator. The St. Vincent hospital ambulance waiting at the baggage entrance of the station, was involved in attempting to back into position and an emergency call was sent to the New York General hospital for another ambulance.

Meanwhile, Ruth became slightly delirious when Dr. Murphy administered aromatic spirits of ammonia to bring him out of the stupor and he attempted to rise up from his stretcher. Barrow Kritchell, McManus, Holly and the two doctors hastened to quiet him, and it took the combined efforts of the six to place him back on the stretcher.

Mrs. Ruth Bears Up Well

Mrs. Ruth, who had arrived at the station half an hour previous, stood the ordeal well, but when Babe became delirious she broke down and wept.

Dr. Murphy, who conducted the preliminary examination, said that the Babe had a high fever and was evidently suffering from a slight attack of the "flu" together with acute indigestion. An examination of his head indicated a slight concussion of the brain, Dr. Murphy said, with a possible fracture of the skull. But these reports were both emphatically denied later by Dr. King when the latter physician gave Ruth a thorough examination at the hospital.

Mrs. Ruth, in company with Mrs. White, arrived at the station at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Ruth said she had not read the story of Ruth's reported death and only laughed when it was shown to her by newspapermen. She emphatically denied reports that he was suffering from indigestion.

Eats Only One Meal a Day

"He only eats one meal a day during the baseball season," she said.

"He generally arises about 8 o'clock and does not eat any breakfast, not even so much as a cup of coffee. He plays baseball on an empty stomach, but then eats heavily after the game."

Mrs. Ruth said that her daughter, Peggy, had been summoned from Ruth's farm at Sudbury, Mass., where she went on Monday in company with her nurse. The girl arrived at 2 o'clock and immediately was taken to the hospital to see her father.

Will Play Tuesday If Possible

Barrow said Babe's chief concern was whether he would be able to play in the opening game. He told Barrow that unless he was "flat on his back" he would be at the Yankee Stadium next Tuesday, taking his regular turn at bat and chasing flies in right field. Barrow did not venture an opinion as to whether Ruth would be able to play, but Dr. King said he needed a rest and that he might not get into the game before 10 days.

Ruth Hitting in Form

Up to his recent illness which forced him to with draw from the game, Tuesday, at Ashville, N. C., Ruth had been hitting the ball in midseason form. In the 19 games in which he participated, he had a batting average of .470, hitting safely 32 times in 68 trips to the plate, in addition to getting passed 12 times. In the course of this remarkable performance, Ruth had made seven home runs, eight two-baggers and two triples and had fanned but eight times.

TY COBB IS STRICKEN WITH THE INFLUENZA

Nashville, Tenn., April 9—Stricken with influenza, Ty Cobb, skipper of the Detroit Tigers, is confined to his room in a Nashville hotel.

His attending physician advised the diamond star to remain in bed until Monday. The Tigers, who concluded a series with the local club this afternoon, will depart tonight without their Manager, if Ty heeds the advice of his doctor.

On his arrival here yesterday morning from Knoxville, Cobb complained of being so ill that a physician was called. Although he had no fever he was promptly put to bed and ordered to abandon managerial worries until he was sufficiently recovered to leave his room.

For the past two weeks, Cobb has been afflicted with the grippe. He has been visiting doctors at intervals in different cities where the Tigers have staged exhibition games. All have advised against his indulgence in strenuous exercises, but he has been present on the field in games previous to his arrival here.

His doctor declared yesterday Cobb should be ready by Monday to depart for Detroit, where the Tigers the following day open the season with Chicago.

In his room tonight the Georgia Peach complained of a head cold and bronchial trouble. His physician advised him to remain in his room until Monday for rest.

The chief of the Tigers declared he would not be in the lineup when Detroit opens the American league season at home next Tuesday with the White Sox.

Never before, since he became a Tiger regular has Ty Cobb failed to be at his post when the opening gun was fired. He expects to be on the bench.

Save for the annoyance attending a head cold and influenza, Cobb suffered no acute pain and was as cheerful as could be expected under the circumstances. He sketched the affliction which has troubled him for the last two weeks, discussed the prospects of the Tigers in the flag hunt, and the illness of Babe Ruth.

BULKELEY PLAY COAST PATROL TEAM TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 9—With a little over a week remaining before Bulkeley takes up its regular schedule with Morris High of New York, the team will close its practice on this (Friday) afternoon for this week opposing the same nine which met such a severe trouncing on Wednesday by the school team. The game will take place at Morgan Park at 2.30 and the regular staff of umpires will be on hand to officiate.

Bulkeley in its first test demonstrated its batting ability by batting the offerings of Morrison, the Coast Guard nine's twirler, for 19 hits of every description. The punch and the arrangement of the batting order was well nigh perfect. Very few men were stranded on the bases, and the hitting was consistent after a player wearing the Orange and Black colors managed to get on base. The only defect that could be perceived in the work of the team as an organization was the rather lax fielding. However the poor condition of Morgan Park in some sense of the word has something to do with the missed ground balls. The team, especially the infield has done better, and an improvement over that first game exhibition is expected to be the result of the efforts put forth by the Bulkeley nine in the future.

Bulkeley failed to have its full hitting power in the game with the Coast Guard Wednesday. The absence of Montall who is supposed to be given the left field assignment due to a bad knee injury in a slide in a practice game on Tuesday, retarded any effort to make it the strongest lineup possible. Montall is a left hand hitter, and has been effective with the stick during the practice tilts. However there is a belief among those who have been following the sessions with any regularity that Montall will be given the first base position and Edward (Huck) Taylor recently elected basketball captain will take left field.

This change if effected will probably be beneficial to the extent that the left handed batters will be increased to three. The first base job has been a source of disappointment. Of the three candidates out for the position, Crawford shapes up to be the best, but his weakness with the stick will probably lose him first choice for this position. Taylor is no new comer to the Bulkeley fold in baseball, having experience two years ago with the team that won the state championship.

In the game for Friday, the choice for human rests between Captain Tillie Daniels and Joe Parisi. As Daniels started the game on Wednesday, it is most likely that Parisi will be given first call on Friday. Both will no doubt divide the assignment before the afternoon is over.

SEMI-FINALS REACHED IN NORTH AND SOUTH TOURNEY

Pinehurst, N. C., April 9—Semi-finals of the annual United North and South Amateur Golf Tournament tomorrow will bring W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, former national champion, against Frank C. Newton, Boston, and Arthur Yates, Rochester, N. Y., against W. W. Rixey, Princeton, W. Va.

Fownes, at the top of his form, eliminated Parker W. Whittemore, Boston medalist, in the second round today. Whittemore lacked the steadiness that marked his playing heretofore and lost the match 2 to 1.

Newton won from T. B. Wooten, Atlantic City, five and 3; Yates defeated A. M. Hoxie, Boston, 3 and 2, and Rixey defeated P. S. P. Randolph Jr., Point Judith, R. I., 3 and 2.

Interest in the round centered on the Whittemore-Fownes match, which was a close contest all the way. Fownes made the turn in 3 and was 2 up. A stymie, however, cost him the tenth, and Whittemore evened the match on the next hole when the former champion overran his approach and required three putts.

Fownes won the twelfth when his opponent was trapped and went two up on the next with a birdie three. Whittemore had a chance on the seventeenth when Fownes' drive was trapped, but the medalist followed suit and merely succeeded in halving the hole, and the match was ended.

In other matches, Newton had comparatively easy sailing with Wooten, while Yates held the upper hand with Hoxie all way, being four up at the turn.

Rixey, a brother of the Cincinnati National League pitcher, provided a surprise in his triumph over Randolph. He was one up at the mid-way point, increased his lead by another stroke at the tenth, and ended the contest on the sixteenth.

WESTERLY FIVE HAS CHANCE AT WORLD TITLE

Westerlay, April 9—Manager Joseph Grilla of the Armory Five, basketball quintet, "Champions of New England," of Westerly which is to meet the "Original" Celtics of New York, "Champions of the World," in the basketball art on this next Saturday evening in the state armory on Dixon street, Westerly, is looking to have his Battery team capture two titles in the one game that evening. As the Armory Five is now the leading New England Basketball outfit, Manager Grilla says, that Saturday night if they can trim the New York boys, a feat perhaps assisted by the floor being familiar to the home players, "Champs of the World" will be the second crown to be had by the hard working Battery players.

This game has been so extensively advertised that basketball fandom of Eastern Connecticut and Southern Rhode Island will gather to witness what promises to be a Garrison finish and wind-up for the Westerly basketball season. Special seating accommodations for the comfort of those who attend have been reserved.

BRAVES AND RED SOX HOME FROM THE SOUTH

Boston, April 9.—The Braves arrived here tonight from the south, and all in the squad were reported in good shape. One of the men, Edmund Smith, is still in St. Petersburg, Fla., hospital, where he was taken after being struck in the right eye by a ball last week. The team will have a workout tomorrow in preparation for its two-game series with the Red Sox commencing Saturday. The Red Sox came home this morning and celebrated their arrival with a workout at Fenway Park. Manager Lee Fohl reported the outfit complete and fit.

DUWELL CLUB OFFERS USE OF FIELD TO THE PLAYGROUND ASSOCIATION

Once again the public spiritedness of the East Siders has come to the front in the announcement that the Duwell Athletic club offers the Norwich Playground association the use of their athletic field for the coming season. This offer, it is understood, is made by the Duwell club, without thought of compensation but a desire to further the athletic life of the community.

The Duwells will use the field during the evening for twilight games after the playgrounds have closed for the day. They intend to put on an independent team to play twilight games and good teams are to be brought in for the short session battles. Last season the club made a fair profit on their twilight games, the money being turned into a fund to be used for the improvement of the field. All during the winter the city has been dumping ashes on the field and filling in the swamp-hole in the outfield so that at present the field is about 45 feet longer than last season. The ashes will be covered over with loam and it is expected that there will be 100 per cent improvement over the past season.

Last year the Sunday games were not a financial success and it was decided at a recent meeting not to play Sunday baseball this year. As Bill Derby is going to put a team of big league calibre on at the fairgrounds the club has voted not to conflict with this team.

Manager James Pedace is already negotiating with various teams in surrounding towns to come here for twilight games and it is expected that he will announce his schedule within a short time. One of the attractions that Manager Pedace is contemplating is a game with the Bloomer Girls of Newark, the female baseball champions of the world.

In discussing his team for the season Manager Pedace says that he intends to have a real team of local stars, a team that will be able to compete favorably with the best of the twilight teams in the eastern part of the state. He states that he has unconditionally released Berger Goldberg and Charley Risley, two of the veterans of last year as they are slowing up.

JUNIORS WIN INTERCLASS MEET AT CHAPMAN TECH

New London, April 10.—The Juniors took first place yesterday in the first outdoor interclass track meet of the season at Morgan Park, when they defeated their three other rivals, broke two previous records made in the past and summed up an average of 45 points against 30 made by the Seniors, 5 by the Freshmen and 7 obtained by the Sophomores. The Seniors had made high hopes of copping the initial place but the star underclassman spilt all hopes when they outpointed their opponents.

The afternoon was somewhat windy but this did not prevent the track fans from reporting in a large number to witness the first outdoor event of the year. With little if no misfortunes the meet was run off in fine style, much has been commented upon the excellent decisions made by the officials. The ground was in a fair condition, but as yet, was not in mid season shape.

Among the records that were broken were: the javelin throw, formerly held by White (124.8 ft.) by Kannenberg (124.9 ft.), pole vault formerly held by Williams (9.2 ft.) by Ungerer and Johnson who divided first place honors, (9.6 ft), and the 440-yard dash held by Daveys, and a new record for time was made by Daveys, his time for yesterday's run was (57.3 sec.). This is starting off the track season of 1925 in a different way than previous years and big hopes are set that more records will be made before the season is closed.

For the Seniors: Courbois, Hicks, White, Daveys and Zaparionk were the best bets, for the Juniors, Johnson, Brown, Ungerer, Williams, Mannenberg, Caruso and McDonald came forth to the limelight, and captured victory for their class. The sophomores came forth with a well represented group of cinder men when Streeter, Copp, O'Leary offered much competition. The Freshmen who placed third in the meet were represented with such aspirants as: Mitchell, Penn and Smith.

The order of events and results were as follows:

100-yard dash: First, Courbois, time, 11.1 seconds; second, Hicks, time, 11 1-5 sec.; third, Kannenberg.

One-half mile: First, Caruso, time 2.20.7 min.; second, Mitchell, time 2 min., 33.2 seconds; third, Copp.

Javelin throw: First, Kannenberg, 126.9 ft., second, White, 110.9 ft., third Zaparionk, 110 ft.

Pole vault: Johnson and Ungerer tied for first place, 9.6 ft. (This is a new record).

440-yard dash: First, Davey, time 57.3, (a new record); second, Hicks, 60.3; third, McDonald.

Shot put: First, Brown, 36.3 ft.; second, Kannenberg, 34.7 ft., third, Pongetti, 30.3 ft.

High jump: First, Johnson, 5.1 ft.; second, Hicks and Williams, third, Hicks and Williams.

Mile run: First, Ungerer, time, 5.28.6 min.; second, Penn, time, 5.34 4-5; Mitchell third.

220-yard dash: First, Daveys, time, 25 min., 2 sec.; second, Hicks, 25 min. 5 sec.; third, Courbois, time, 25 min., 6 sec.

Running broad jump: First, Streeter, 18.2 1-2 ft.; second Johnson, 17.9 ft., third, Williams, 16.8 ft.

Officials of the track meet were: Referee, Robert Rice; starter, Doc. Dawson; judges, Mr. Buck, Elbert Weaver and George Tracy; clerk of course, E. S. Taylor; timers, Ken. Williams and Albert Dalton.

DEFENDS FOOTBALL AS AN AMERICAN INSTITUTION

Chicago, April 9.—Football, "an American institution," was strongly defended against attacks by professors whom he compared with Bill Haywood, the anarchist, tonight by Major John L. Griffith, an athletic commissioner of the Western Conference, in an address before the twelfth annual convention of the Middle West Society of Physical Education.

"The American people are so unanimous in their belief in the support of their institutions that when someone voiced disbelief in these institutions the fact is announced on the front page of the daily press," said the commissioner. "Bill Haywood's name is known throughout America not because of any constructive work that he may have done, but because he said that he did not like the American institutions of government.

"Every now and then some college professor, leaving his chosen field, achieves distinction by announcing that he does not believe in the American institution of football. Football is an American institution."

In defending home-coming games against the attacks of those who would cancel them because of alleged liquor drinking, the commissioner said that "it is certain that football coaches never taught their men how to make pre-Volstead booze nor encouraged them to drink it," and that old grads may have applied their knowledge of chemistry to making synthetic gin, but that the science of chemistry should not be condemned because of that fact alone.

Dr. Cabot recently has been quoted as saying "Men of regularly sober habits drink to excess on certain stated occasions, such as days of football games and on examinations periods," Major Griffith quoted.

"No one suggests," he went on "that examinations be abolished, but the death sentence of football has been asked by some because it is alleged that now and then the alumni drink at the time of the home-coming game."

WILLS AND WEINERT SIGN FOR POLO GROUNDS BOUT

New York, April 9—Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, and Charlie Weinert of Newark, will meet in a 15 round match at the Italian Hospital Fund show at the Polo Grounds, Friday, June 19. Articles of agreement for the match were signed at the offices of the Polo Grounds A. C., by Paddy Mullins, representing Wills, and William McCarney, Weiner's manager.

Humbert J. Fugazy, who is backing matchmaker Jimmy DeForest in the match, said that Wills would get twenty per cent of the gate receipts and that Weinert would get ten per cent. Both fighters agreed not to engage in another match prior to the Italian hospital fund bouts. Fugazy said he expected the match to drawk a $500,000 gate.

Negotiations have been opened for a match between Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, and Mickey Walker, holder of the world's welterweight crown, but Fugazy said that nothing definite could be announced concerning this match until it has been approved by the state athletic commission.

Walker's recent reinstatement to the good graces of the New York board, is contingent upon his accepting the challenge of Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight. Shade is understood to have agreed to allow Walker to fight Greb if he is guaranteed a match with the victor.

Chapman Ready for Madison.

Chapman Tech held its last practice secession on Thursday in preparation for the baseball tilt on Saturday. This will be Tech's second game of the season and the Tech mentors feel that they have a pretty strong aggregation to stack up against Madison high school at the Park diamond. The new material is showing up well of late and there are strong hopes that the team will be hard comers for the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic title this season.

GIANTS BEAT CHAMPIONS IN EXHIBITION GAME

Washington, April 9.—Resumption of the spring "world series," here today found the bats of the champion Senators important before the pitching of Nehf and Barnes, and the Giants won, 11 to 2. About 5,000 witnessed the game, the tenth of the teams' exhibition tour. New York has won six.

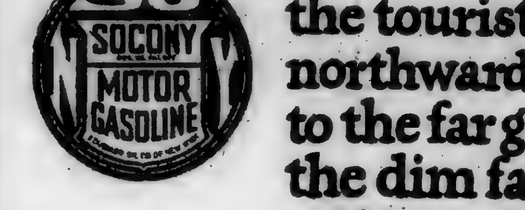
BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES



The Upsetting of Peter

To know you know, then find you don't,
I'm sure you will agree,
Is just about upsetting as
A thing can ever be.

—Peter Rabbit.

Peter ought to know. Yes, sir, Peter ought to know. He has had a lot of experience along that line. He is one of those people who are forever fooling themselves and very few others. He is one of those who guess at a thing and then guess that guess is right, and end up by actually believing that the thing is so.

As Peter hurried along, lippety-lippety-lip, through the Green Forest there wasn't a shadow of a doubt in his mind that he knew exactly how Thunderer the Grouse did his drumming and made that noise that sounded so like distant thunder. He suspected that his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, knew, but there was a chance that he didn't know. Whether he did or didn't really didn't matter, for anyway Peter would have the chance to show off his own knowledge and this he dearly loves to do.

"But it is true, for I saw it with my own eyes"

So at last when he found Jumper the Hare dozing in his form he could hardly wait to exchange greetings. As soon as these were over he cried:

"I know now how Thunderer the Grouse drums."

"Is that so?" replied Jumper, blinking sleepily.

"Yes," cried Peter. "He does it with his wings."

"You don't say!" retorted Jumper.

"Yes," replied Peter. "He does it with his wings, and his sides are his drum. He beats them with his wings, and this is the way he makes all that noise we hear."

"My, my, what touch sides he must have!" exclaimed Jumper. "He must have the toughest sides of any one I know of. It makes me ache just to think of such a beating. What do you suppose his sides are made of?"

For the first time Peter suspected that perhaps his big cousin was making fun of him. But Jumper's face was quite sober as he continued.

"Yes, sir, it would take tough sides to stand such a beating as that, and so many times a day. How did you discover it, Peter?"

"By watching," replied Peter. "I was where I could see just what Thunderer did. He lifted his wings up and down against his sides, and each time he did it there was a boom. So I knew then that Thunderer drums by beating his sides with his stout wings."

"And you didn't once wonder how his sides could stand such a thumping?"

"No," confessed Peter. "No, I didn't think of it. But now you mention it it is surprising how his sides can stand it."

"You mean it would be surprising if it were true," retorted Jumper.

"But it is true, for I saw it with my own eyes," insisted Peter.

"No," replied Jumper. "No, Peter. You only think you saw it. You didn't see what you think you saw, for it didn't happen. Thunderer the Grouse doesn't beat his sides with his wings any more than he beats a hollow log with them. His sides are not his drum. At least they are not in the way you think they are. Go ask him if what I say isn't true."

Poor Peter. It was quite upsetting. He had been so sure that at last he had found out for himself just how Thunderer the Grouse drummed, and now he was told that he was no wiser than before. He tried very hard not to believe that Jumper was right, but something inside told him that Jumped was right. Yes, sir, it was most upsetting.

PETITIONER FOR DIVORCE RAN GROTON BUSINESS

After separating from her husband in 1913, Mrs. Katharine A Driscoll of No. 252 Zion street, Hartford, established a teaming and trucking business which she conducted herself in order to support her family of four children, she told Judge Frank D. Haines, in superior court at Hartford this week, in her suit for divorce against Florence Driscoll. She is 46 years old. The couple were married in Salem, Mass., on January 5, 1895. They have had five children, one of whom died. Mr. Driscoll was in the teaming and trucking business, Mrs. Driscoll said. She was his bookkeeper.

Mrs. Driscoll charged that her husband so abused her in language and violence that she left him in 1913, and taking her children with her, set up in business for herself with her oldest son helping her. But when her son enlisted, during the war, she conducted the business herself, and upon his return from France, they went to Groton, Conn., where they did trucking work for the Groton Iron Works. However, competition drove her out of business and with her two minor children, she went to Hartford. She was employed for several years as matron at a theatre and is now working at the Arrow Electric company.

Mrs. Driscoll said her husband always drank and often threw things at her, and ordered her out of the house. He has never been to see her or the children since the separation. Driscoll did not contest the case, but sought a court order allowing him to see the children, if the divorce was granted.

Sensible men are deaf to unjust criticism.

KEEP YOUR SCALP Clean and Healthy WITH CUTICURA

NEW ENGLAND FARMING HAS A FUTURE

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Over in our neighboring state of New York there were 898,000 people living on farms in 1917.

Now there are 733,000,—165,000 less. In 1917 there were 77,000 "hired men" working on the farms of that state.

Now there are 26,700,—50,300 less.

It isn't so far back, 1917, only eight years. Yet in that eight year period the supply of available help to be had by the farmers of the state has dropped off by almost two-thirds. There's only one man to be got, now, where there were three in reach eight years ago.

"And so we go, d— our fool souls; somebody head us off!" was the exasperated wail of a southern congressman some years ago, as he saw his party making an unusually big ass of itself.

That's the way labor is going off the farms, not only of New York but of every other state east of the Alleghanies. There's more swill to be had in town, and so to town it goes.

This is by no means a thing to wonder at. No one blames the hog for seeking the biggest trough. And "human nature" is astonishingly like hog nature, when it comes to the matter of swill. One can't expect a man to work twelve hours a day on a farm for $2.50 a day when he can get $6 a day for working eight hours in a city shop.

You can't even expect that average man to foresee that, after he has paid city rents and city food prices and other city demands, he won't have as much of his $5 a day left at the end of the week as he used to have of his farm-earned $2.50. Foresight is about as rare a quality in men and women as reason. It seems to the end of one's days looks a deal bigger than a gold eagle ten feet away. And the number of people, both men and women, who habitually look any further ahead than the ends of their noses is negligible.

Now even in 1917 the farmers of New York state weren't over supplied with labor. There wasn't enough to go round at that time. With two-thirds of what was then a scanty supply gone, they've got to face the music all by their lonesomes.

Under those circumstances, you can't wonder that 165,000 of them have given up in despair,—or died in disgust.

It is amusing,—or would be if it wasn't so pitiful,—to hear the suggestions made by bankers and steel-makers and railroad executives and vote-hunting politicians as to the remedies available.

One that is heard about as often as any other is that farmers must fall back on machinery. Since they can't get human labor to do the work of crop-producing, they will have to get machines to do it.

We all have high respect for machinery. When it has plenty of capital behind it and trained efficiency to manage it, machinery accomplishes wonders. That is, it accomplishes wonders along the lines of its capacity. Once, I had an enthusiastic agent make an all day's set at me to "tractorize" my farm. I brought out by dint of close questioning, that it would cost me only about double the market value of the whole farm to equip it with tractors and tractor-drawn or tractor driven tools enough to make me independent of hired labor. With even greater difficulty I at last developed the fact that the cost of gasoline and oil and repairs and depreciation and interest on the investment, etc., wouldn't amount to much more than the wages of a couple of men. Then I took that agent up to my ledgy, roadless mountain forest and asked him just what tools I'd have to get to cut down and trim and saw and skid my annual supply of fuel and lumber from places where a sure-footed ox couldn't always make his way. Next I asked him just how I was to get to and from markets in winter when the roads were drifted from two to ten feet deep and the only available outlet was over stone walls and through pastures, or in spring when the same roads were sloughs of bottomless mud in which even horses and wagons were in danger of miring. "Oh, well," he said, "of course you'd have to keep a span of horses, too, for emergencies."

Wherefore and whereby I didn't "tractorize" my farm then and shall not, now. For big farmers with big fields and state roads passing their lane gates tractors may go a long way towards solving the help problem. But for us little fellows with small capital and fields without shape, tilted on hillsides and sown thick with boulders, tractors are hardly available.

Furthermore, every practical farmer knows, the minute he sees it, that machine farming is wasteful farming. The mowing-machine won't cut into the fence corners, as the scythe used to. Consequently, also, fence-corners are left to grow fine scraggly hedgerows, not only unsightly, but wasteful in taking up good land and in sucking sustenance that should go to real crops. The tractor-drawn plow tries to have generous "headlands" to turn around on at each end of its furrow. To the non-farming eye this strip doesn't seem important. Some years since I stopped to watch the operation of a tractor plowing in a neighbor's field. The field in question was practically level, without stones or stumps, and nearly square. Moreover, one side bordered on a highway and the ploughman used that for a turning-table, having first taken down the fence which lay between the road and the lot. Yet a nasty, gaping no-tone side and across the unplowed margin showed that in this field of less than ten acres, over half an acre of land which might, could and should have been plowed was left unturned, simply because the cumbrous tractor with its trailing plow attachment couldn't get to it.

New England farmers have more fields of two or three acres than of ten, and more that are not square than that are. Moreover, a good many of them are fenced with stone walls which can't be taken up and relaid every time one wants to plow the patch. The smaller the field the greater the ratio of edge land unreachable by tractor. Also, unlike the wise old plow-team, the tractor doesn't know enough to stop when the plow-point strikes a projecting ledge. It goes right on,—and the plow-point goes right off. And there's a new share to be bought before any more plowing can be done.

The very fact that machine-work has to cut the corners and skimp the edges leads the machine-farmer to thriftlessness and shiftlessness in other directions. "Let it go; too much trouble and costs too much," is getting to be the motto of sons whose fathers let nothing useful go undone just because it took work and trouble to do it. We're getting flabby. And a flabby farmer doesn't amount to much on a New England farm. He's of about as much use as a spurless rooster in a cock-fight. He may be able to crow like an angel, but he's licked before the fight begins.

There are intervals, even in New England, where large and level fields make practicable the sole use of power driven machinery. But, taking things by and large, the sorts of machinery available to New England farmers are already being used to about their capacity,—and rather beyond their ultimate benefit.

My neighbor Silo Barden, who isn't and never was in love with hard work, has turned the end of his farm nearest the highway into a camping-ground and picknickery for auto parties. He says it pays better'n raisin pertaters or keepin' hens. Henry Ford, who is now turning out only 2,700 cars a day, says he hasn't but just begun making automobiles. Perhaps, when they get even more plentiful, Barden's use of farms may turn out to be profitable. When the entire population of the United States takes to auto-driving and golfing, there'll be need for a whole lot of parking-places.

But, when that idyllic condition arrives, who's going to raise the potatoes and cabbages even autoists and golfers have to fall back on? Will they be content to live on canned meats imported from Argentina and canned vegetables imported from China and canned fruits imported from Hawaii, and ask nothing of New England except fresh air and brook-water?

I can't quite believe it.

There's a future for New England farming. It isn't dead just because a majority of the human race has gone off in a wild-goose chase after the "soft snap" and the "easy job." Sooner or later that sort of sportsmen are going to come back with busted guns and empty cartridge-boxes and start raising hogs and hominy again. For a long time, now, the rocket has been going up. It's due for a fall, almost any time. Labor and business can't lift themselves over the mills simply by pulling up on their boot-straps. That's what they are trying to do now. They'll both see the silly uselessness of it, sometime.

In the meantime, and while waiting for the world to get over its crazy fit, the New England farmer has got to make the most of such opportunities as are left to him and serve as best he can the markets still open to him. It's the day of small things for him, with a vengeance. All the greater the reason why he should coddle those small things and nurse them with unremitting care.

If he must constrict his farm to a mere garden, work with a hand-trowel, and measure his crops with a pint cup, he will do well to handle that garden that trowel and that pint cup with intelligence and foresight. Great oaks from little acorns grow. And everything comes to him who waits.

"Huh," grunted Young Smarty when his old dad quoted that proverb to him; "how long'd I have to wait 'fore I could carry water in a sieve?" "Till the water froze," responded the ancient, affably.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

An Electric Refrigerator

A triumph in the household electrical refrigeration field is seen in the announcement of a new model of Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator, complete, for $245, f. o. b. factory.

A low-priced electric refrigerator has long been sought and in this new Delco-Light product is seen an achievement which is going to mean a great deal in modern household economics.

Mr. Brown, of Carl W. Brown, Incorporated, local Frigidaire dealer, speaking of this new piece of household equipment said, "Everybody knows that electric refrigeration for the household food supplies is a success and that the electric refrigerator which have been going into the homes of America for many months have brought a service and a satisfaction which are away ahead of anything which could ever be secured from cooling with melting ice."

"Is the modern way of cooling and 25 years into the home. We are he went on, "and people are demanding twentieth century conveniences. This electric refrigeration is a twentieth century improvement, a convenience that belongs with modern times and anybody who can have it is going to put away the old-fashioned method of cooling with ice. They are going to have this automatic, clean and healthful system in their own homes wherever they can afford it, and this new, low-priced model," he pointed out, "puts it within the reach of anyone who really desires the advantages of modern, twentieth century refrigeration."

"It can be had for even less than the $245, asked for the complete model," Mr. Brown further explained. "This Frigidaire can be bought for the present family ice-box for $190, f. o. b. Dayton, Ohio, which certainly puts electric refrigeration where nobody can afford to do without it. And, he said finally, "when people come to realize how it safeguards health, how it freezes its own ice-cubes and desserts, how it saves steps and labor, how necessary it is in the equipment of the well-appointed kitchen they are going to have it as a matter of course. There won't be any argument about it."

Broadway Theater

No more entertaining program has ever been shown on any local stage than the one you'll see at the Broadway theater today and Saturday.

Jim Grady, the singing miner, opened with a various selection of vocal numbers that brought him hearty applause.

An opportunity for fun and song in the vehicle Excuse me Please was the offering by Harry Jackson and Mary Baker.

The Geralds, the gypsy serenaders. Musically they excell with the violin and cello, and succeeded in making a big hit, when, on an especially devised rack they play thirty-four mandolins at one time.

Morey and Corbern, favorite entertainers of artistic oddities, followed in a very good offering of bits of hits.

That much discovered act which has been looked forward to by everyone succeeded in holding everybody's attention until the final curtain. The Pioneers is a cameo-drama presented by Johannes Josefsson and a capable cast. It's an episode of early American Frontier Days and should be seen to be appreciated.

The photoplay, Medling Women, with Lionel Barrymore, helps make this program the kind you must not miss.

Breed Theater

Daring riding and "cowboyship" of the most sensational order are among the many features of interest in Western Luck, a new William Fox production starring Charles Jones, which will be the attraction at the Breed theater today and Saturday. As usual Jones leads all the others in wild riding and hair-raising acts of daring.

The story of Western Luck, takes place for the most part in the west, although there is an exciting sequence later in the picture wherein Jones, as Larry Campbell, visits New York and has to fight his way through a gang of hired thugs. His long, flying leap through the air from his horse to the steps of a speeding train is one of the high spots of the production. Beatrice Burnham plays opposite the star. George Beranger directed the picture from a story by Robert Lee. The supporting cast is further distinguished by the presence of Pat Hardigan, Tom Lingham, J. Farrell McDonald, Gordon Bruce and Edith Kennick, all familiar and well liked figures in pictures.

The sixth chapter of The Iron Man, Pathe news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Coming Sunday The Great Divide with Alice Terry, Conway Tearle, Wallace Beery and Huntley Gordon.

Devil's Cargo Coming

The Paramount picture, The Devil's Cargo, a Victor Fleming production adapted from Charles E. Whittaker's story, The River Boat, and featuring Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery, William Collier, Jr., and Claire Adams in the principal roles, opens a four days' run at the Broadway theater next Sunday.

The story is a colorful tale of the early California gold days, dealing with the activities of the vigilantes, a group of law-abiding citizens who band together and bring about the wholesale deportation of the town's "tougher element."

Here's that different kind of picture you've been waiting for!

Raymond Hatton heads an ideal cast.

It's a picture that has been especially selected by the management from the second famous forty Paramount pictures, for an Easter Sunday showing.

Sussex Has Rare Kernel

In a piece of pottery discovered in Sussex, England, and thought to date back at least to 700 B. C., there is a kernel of wheat still embedded and in a good state of preservation. The find seems to prove that agriculture was pursued in that part of England at that time and is therefore regarded as historically important.

Mercy to the guilty is often cruelty to the innocent.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Variety is the keynote of the vaudeville bill presented at the Palace this week end and besides being one of variety it is also a good one.

The vaudeville opens with Smilletta Brosi, in a comedy bar act showing great feats of strength. The Pirraglia Trio of youngsters just dance their way into the hearts of the audience. It is one of the greatest juvenile acts of its kind seen in Norwich in some time. At the initial performances yesterday these young stars made a tremendous hit. Major Rhodes presents a wonderful act with his playing of the violin. He executes some splendid selections of the higher class which are very pleasing and not hesitating to please with some of the modern numbers. Ketch and Wilma, next to closing, offer an act that is very clever. As an opening the girl sings a ballad after which the man and his "veteran dummy" make their appearance and carrying on a catchy line of comedy that they feed to the audience in gatling-gun style. Ketch is one of the best ventriloquists that has been seen here in some time, and his efforts were well appreciated. The closing act is Dare, Cole and Helene, nut comedians and a dancer. It is one of the greatest comedy acts ever seen in Norwich of the slap-stick type. The two boys do everything supposingly trying to break each other's leg, cracking each other on the crown and hitting with hammers. Helene adorned with a Russian costume, dances a ballet which is well appreciated. She also takes a very active part with the boys in their comedy.

The feature picture, Mad Whirl, is a colorful vehicle in which players in very evident accord with their roles give an excellent portrayal of present day life, thanks to William A. Seiter.

The men and women who are portrayed in The Mad Whirl are young for the most part, and unmarried, but they indulge in a form of pleasure that a few years ago would have been loudly condemned, namely hearty indulgence in beverages forbidden by the eighteenth amendment. Also, their openness of displaying affection for the opposite sex has become known as "petting."

There is comedy, straight narrative of a feverish sort of tale, and well conveyed drama in The Mad Whirl, which is by way of being the screen version of that sensational story, Here's How, written to the consternation of many by none less than Richard Washburn Child, former minister to Italy.

As a matter of fact the story and the picture tell the story of a father and mother, possessed of great wealth who believe that they can safeguard the young folk of their acquaintance by joining in their jazzy parties. Consequently, the summer estate of the Herringtons become an oasis thronged by glorious youth, with bathing suit parties, highballs and all the like.

The contrast is contributed by a former saloonkeeper and his daughter. The latter falls in love with the Herrington heir. But her father despises them all and tells her so. It is here the fine drama of the story begins.

May McAvoy has the feature role in a cast of unusually noted players. The male juvenile is well cared for by Jack Mulhall, and the others are Myrtle Stedman, Barabara Bedford, Alec B. Francis, Ward Crane, George Fawcett, Marie Astaire and Joseph Singleton.

Pyramids Used as Gauge

The pyramids and the sphynx were more important as time pieces than as tombs, declare some scientists. Originally it is maintained, the sphynx sat far below the level of the desert sand. By sighting across the asp on the head of the sphynx and the use of a notched stick to get the angle, the season of the year could be told, from the relation of the stick to the sun. The science was so accurate that the exact day of the year could be told. Similarly by studying the length of the shadows cast by the various pyramids other important seasonal facts could be ascertained.

BRADLEY'S FERTILIZERS

"The World's Best by Every Test"

"The Best is Generally the Cheapest in the End"

There is no commodity to which this trite proverb is more applicable than to a fertilizer. One fertilizer may have the same chemical analysis, the same general appearance or the same smell as another, but one of these may have much greater value as a crop producer, because its plant foods have been selected for their crop producing powers rather than on mere chemical analysis; because its materials have been more scientifically prepared and blended, or because the fertilizer itself is in far better mechanical condition for easy and uniform application. Such a fertilizer will give far better results and prove to be "the cheapest in the end."

"AA QUALITY" FERTILIZERS

NORWICH WATER BOND ISSUE BILL TO BE HEARD BY COMMITTEE NEXT WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, April 9—The date for the meeting by the finance committee on the permission asked by the city of Norwich to issue water bonds amounting to $1,500,000 has been changed to Wednesday, April 15th.

When the substitute bill submitted by the committee on finance which was on the calendar today, was taken up Mr. Bugbee of Lyme protested its passage. He said that the tax commissioner already had too much power. He had made a visit to Lyme and as a result of that visit, the board of equalization had increased the grand list to a figure that caused the town to lose $2,000 of the state aid to schools. He contended that the assessors of Lyme were honest and conscientious officials but they had a heart and would not make the tax a burden on property of poor men.

The House

The house was called to order by Speaker Darbie. Prayer was offered by House Chaplain Lewis.

The house voted the use of the house chamber to the judiciary committee for Tuesday, April 14, for a hearing on the Wheeler enforcement bill. A large attendance is anticipated from all parts of the state.

Unfavorable reports were made by the committee on education on H. B. 117, concerning the transportation of children. A substitute bill will be reported later. H. B. 182 providing for establishment by the state board of education of a division of adult education to remove illiteracy among non-English speaking residents; H. B. 188, providing reclassification of towns for purpose of receiving state aid for schools; H. B. 769, providing that towns employing not more than twenty teachers may petition state board of education for state supervision.

Roads, bridges and rivers committee reported unfavorably on H. B. 804, that includes in the trunk line system, a road leading from Milford to Woodbridge; a bill for trunk line from Stamford to New Canaan; H. B. 917, providing for the planting of shade trees along trunk lines and state aid roads; H. B. 929, making certain highways in West Haven, state aid highways.

The claims committee turned down H. B. 177, providing payment of $93.00 to James McCarthy, M. D., for services by him to a member of the state militia; H. B. 178, providing for payment to H. Maris Culhane $2,956.00 for services in nursing and care rendered a soldier, and H. B. 578, providing for payment to Harry E. Stewart $292.50 for services rendered a soldier. All the bills were rejected as recommended.

Favorable reports were made on reforestation of waste lands; on concerning transportation of children to school and were referred to appropriation committee, as was the bill providing for a state nursery under the state park and forest commission.

The committee on finance reported a bill providing for the apportionment of certain monies to the counties of the state of one-half of the monies received from the unincorporated business tax; authorizing the town of Hamden to issue sewer bonds; authorizing town of Hamden to issue school bonds; providing for right of way for trunk lines; an act concerning ferries, providing for repeal of Section 1618 of the general statutes. All were ordered printed and placed on the calendar.

A resolution was passed paying the state attorney of New Haven county for services in prosecuting the claim of the state against the town of Waterbury connected with reporting an over-enumeration of school children. The claim has been settled by Waterbury agreeing to pay the state $179,-000.

The proposed constitutional amendment was tabled, retaining its place on the calendar. The bill amending an act concerning the duties and appointment of the tax commission provoked a spirited discussion but was passed by a large majority.

At 1:15 the house adjourned to Tuesday morning at 11:30.

Bills passed on the calendar were: Substitute for H. B. 195, an act amending an act concerning the appointment and duties of the tax commissioner.

Substitute for S. B. No. 228, an act amending an act concerning the grading of apples.

Substitute for S. B. No. 249, an act authorizing the city of Hartford to issue bonds for its additional water supply. Favorable report of the committee on finance.

Substitute for S. B. No. 354, an act incorporating The Bankers' Trust company.

Substitute for S. B. No. 371, an act amending the charter of the city of New Haven by establishing a custodians' and engineers' retirement fund.

S. B. No. 506, an act authorizing the city of Bridgeport to issue city hall and library bonds.

Senate.

The senate was called to order at 11:25 by Lieutenant-Governor Brainard Prayer by Chaplain Ayers.

The committee on railroads reported favorably on a substitute bill validating a lease from the Consolidated Railway company to the New York and Stamford Railway company and authorizing the latter to operate in Greenwich and Stamford.

Executive Nominations.

Shellfish Commission—Charles B. Marsh of Easton for four years from July 1, 1925.

State Park and Forest Commission—Lucius F. Robinson of Hartford and Harris Whittemore of Naugatuck each for four years from September 1, 1925.

Trustees of the Mansfield State Training School and Hospital—L. P. Waldo Marvin of Hartford, William O'Connor of Norfolk and Nathan D. Prince of Hartford each for the term of four years from July 1, 1925.

The nominations were referred to the committee on executive nominations.

The committee on finance reported unfavorably on a bill authorizing the city of Waterbury to issue street improvement bonds to the amount of $200,000. The bill was rejected.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on incorporations on the bill authorizing the Northern Connecticut Light and Power company to increase its capital to $1,500,000. The bill was rejected.

Senator Anderson, the chairman of the committee on incorporations, in explaining the unfavorable reports of the committee on the bills for the increase of the capital stock of the Appraisal Title and Fidelity company of Hartford, and for a change in its name, said the company withdrew the bills. The reports were accepted and the bills formally rejected.

On the favorable report of the committee on claims the senate passed a resolution to pay A. E. Lowe of Meriden $12.87 to reimburse him for money paid for registration of motor vehicle used only one month.

Negligent Drivers.

The committee on the judiciary reported favorably on a substitute bill concerning service of process in actions brought against non-residents for the negligent operation of motor vehicles. It provides that when a nonresident of the state operates a motor vehicle on a public highway of Connecticut he shall be deemed to have appointed the commissioner of motor vehicles as his attorney to receive process in civil actions for damages on account of negligence while operating his car in the state, etc. Tabled for calendar.

The committee on state parks and reservations made a favorable report on the bill for an appropriation of $125,000 to the state park commission to be used in acquiring and developing a state park and forest reserve in East Lyme but recommended that the matter be referred to the committee on appropriations. The bill was so referred.

The committee on incorporations reported favorably on the bill authorizing the Derby Gas and Electric company to extend its business to neighboring towns. The bill was tabled for calendar.

On the favorable report of the committee on claims the senate passed a resolution to refund to the Citizens' Bank and Trust company of New Haven $1,200 on account of double taxation. The bill was transmitted to the house under suspension of rules.

The senate concurred with the house in passing, under suspension of rules, a bill to require clerks of courts to file with the comptroller an itemized statement of expenses if required to do so by the board of control, and in passing the bill authorizing the board of control to pay the legal expenses of the proceedings to recover from the city of Waterbury the amount due for errors in school enumeration.

The committee on incorporations made a favorable report on a bill amending the charter of the Hungarian Aid Association of America formerly the Hungarian Sick Benefit societies confederation. Tabled for calendar.

You just KNOW she's well
You, too, can have the complete energy and joyful force of health.
You just know she's NOT well.
There is no reason for you to look or feel this way

CONSTIPATION means SHORTENED LIFE

When your bowels refuse to work and the poisons have to find other outlets such as your lungs, kidneys and skin, you are courting sickness and shortening your life. You are also running grave danger of dreadful disease. Do your bowels act at least twice daily? If not you are constipated and must do something right away or you may be gravely ill.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Family Laxative

will relieve chronic constipation, regulate your system, and for 30 years has assisted Nature in properly exercising the bowels of America's millions. A pleasing liquid combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics, the tested prescription of Dr. Caldwell proven by years in his large practice.

Different Because It Relieves And Does Not Require Continued Use

The distressed bowels may be classed with one dose, but to allow Nature to restore health and proper functioning, over decreasing doses should be taken until your bowels are moving naturally by themselves. 10,000,000 bottles are used annually because it never fails.

It is sold everywhere medicines are sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

WESTERLY

Monday, in Mineola, Long Island, N. Y., occurred the death of Wilfred Lewis Kenyon, 26, son of Annie E. and Emory C. Kenyon. His death followed a critical illness of a few weeks at Port Washington, N. Y. He was born in Rockville, R. I., and after attending high school at Hope Valley, came to Westerly, where he was a student at the Westerly High school for two years, graduating in the Class of 1918. During the World War he was employed in Bridgeport, removing to Long Island and up to the time of his death was with the Bayside, Long Island, National bank. The father of the young man died last May in Rockville R. I. Besides his mother, he is survived by an older brother, Clayton C. Kenyon, of Port Washington, L. I. and a younger brother, Leslie H. Kenyon, living in Rockville, R. I. Mr. Kenyon was a nephew of Mrs. Orlando R. Smith of Westerly, where his uncle, Fred Barber, resides on Spruce street.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly Town clerk are the following: April 4—Demetrio Salvadio to John Salvadio and wife, a certain parcel of land with dwelling and improvements on the west side of Pierce street. An Executor's deed, Lydia Maria Rush, by executor, to James Falcone et al lot of land with dwelling and improvements on the east side of West street.

The Womans' Aid Society of Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church held its annual meeting Tuesday evening in the church vestry on Main street. Favorable conditions and much progress was shown in the reports of the various officers and committees, as read.

Election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Clayton A. Burdick; first vice president, Mrs. Howard M. Barber; second vice president, Mrs. William H. Browning; third vice president, Mrs. Karl G. Stillman; fourth vice president, Mrs. Wilfred R. Utter; secretary, Mrs. LaClede Woodmansee; treasurer and collector, Mrs. B. Frank Lake; auditors, Miss Emma Crandall and Mrs. Elisha C. Burdick; directresses, Mrs. John H. Austin, Mrs. Charles Palmer, Miss Jessie Utter, Mrs. Hiram W. Barber, Mrs. Edward Crumb and Mrs. George H. Lanphear.

Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar, Arthur E. Thompson, commander, of Westerly will attend Easter services, as special guests, Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Christ Episcopal church, Broad street. The knights will meet at the asylum on High street and without banners, music or side arms, will march to the church, where they will be addressed by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, the rector. A special program, with vocal and instrumental numbers, has been prepared by choir director and organist, Mrs. Charles S. Larkin.

[illegible]—Dewey Hinckley and [illegible]. The sailors realized that [illegible] and as they told where [illegible] they [illegible] according to the latter made [illegible] sued to make an investigation of Lawski's place, but no liquor was found except such quantity as would be [illegible] The investigation amounted to nothing. Evidently Lawski was not to be caught that way. He did not reckon on the statement the sailors had made, however. That statement left no doubt as to the guilt of Lawski. He pleaded guilty and took his medicine. He was also sentenced to jail for 30 days, but that part of the judgment was suspended as he had never been prosecuted for selling liquor prior to this morning.

Two automobile operators' cases were assigned for a hearing for violation of the motor vehicle laws of the state. William J. Brady, of this city, was found to be operating an auto without a license in his possession and was fined $2. He was involved in a slight breach and when he was asked to show his authority to drive he could not do that.

H. B. Cairns of Bridgeport was charged with operating a truck without proper brakes and with parking far away from the curbing. He was unable to be in court today so his case went over till the 11th inst.

Robert Wirsching, who said he was an employe of Booth Bros., and John Boyle, chauffeur for Quigg & Joyce City, were charged with intoxication. Each admitted that he was drunk when arrested. This was their first appearance in court so they drew a suspended sentence that they might get to work.

A commercial truck owned by the Connecticut Power company, and operated by C. C. Ferris, 12 Bucking[illegible] street, and an automobile owned and driven by Mrs. C. W. Slate, of South Lyme, were in collision this afternoon on lower Bank street. The latter machine was damaged.

Two Pawtucket, R. I., youths, Otto Stellwachs, 15, and Alfred Tyson, 14, were taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels, charged with being runaways. The lads were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who will see to it that the youngsters return home. When arrested the boys were at a Bank street pawnshop attempting to dispose of a 32-calibre Reliance rifle, which they stated they purchased some time ago. The boys made the trip from Pawtucket to New London on their bicycles

Councilor Albert C. Woodruff, 51 Fremont street, reported to the police this morning that a spare tire was stolen from his automobile, while the car was parked on Huntington street, near Federal street, last night.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan has been adjudged not guilty of the allegation of Councilor Edward L. Streeter Jr., that the officer was drunk on Huntington street while on duty the night of May 24, 1924, for today City Manager William A. Holt, who held a hearing of the charge last Tuesday night, notified Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney that the officer is not guilty of the charge. In his communication to Captain Pinney, City Manager Holt stated, as follows: "You are hereby advised that as a result of the hearing in the case of Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, charged with intoxication while on duty Saturday, May 17, 1924, said Patrolman Patrick Sheehan is adjudged not guilty."

Mrs. Stirce Dellus and infant daughter, of Golden street: Mrs. Pauline Piascek, Main street; Belten and Warren Burrows, Poquonoc Bridge and Mrs. Granville Conway and infant daughter, Blackhall street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Katherine Gunn, 81, wife of William Gunn, died last night at her residence, 240 Crystal avenue, from illness due to infirmities attending Mrs. Gunn's advanced years. Besides her husband, Mrs. Gunn is survived by a son and daughter.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bissica Baldelli, wife of Vincislao Baldelli, formerly of Groton, were held this afternoon at 2.15 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Marcia Prince Ames has sold a house and lot on Willetts avenue to Allen Tooker.

An automobile owned and operated by Alvin E. Searle, 356 Montauk avenue, struck a cyclist named Mengi, residing on Evergreen avenue, this afternoon on Ocean avenue, near the corner of Thames street. The youth was knocked from the wheel and sustained bruises. The cycle was damaged.

Miss Marjorie Smith, of Vauxhall street; Eugene Wood, Groton; Miss Marian Woodcock, Lenox street; Miss Irene Lems, Wequetequock, and Mrs. Angelo Dienataro, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Frederick H. Hewlett, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Hewlett, Waterford, died last night at Home Memorial hospital where he had been under treatment some time.

About 60 gysies arrived in New London yesterday by automobile and continued to Groton, where they are now encamped on what was formerly the Poquonnoc race track. About a dozen tents have been erected to house the men, women and children.

John Wells of Mystic will be in Groton town court next Monday morning charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. Wells was arrested this morning by Patrolman Cornelius C. Costello, who ordered the case continued until next Monday and also ordered Welles to furnish a surety on his bond of $500 for appearance at the time. This Welles could not do, so he was remanded to jail here, to await trial.

Welles and his wife have been residing with his father-in-law, William Lamb. Saturday night when Wells entered the home, it is alleged that Lamb and the latter's wife were engaged in a quarrel. Lamb, it is claimed finally became enraged and created a serious disturbance. Wells took part in the quarrel; in a few seconds Lamb and Welles were engaged in combat. Welles had a 38-calibre revolver in his possession and it is stated, drew the weapon from his pocket to intimidate his father-in-law. During the scuffle the weapon was discharged, the bullet striking Lamb, producing a wound which knocked several teeth from the jaw of the victim. When Patrolman Johnson reached the Lamb residence none of the occupants would lodge a complaint against the other, but today when Prosecuting Attorney Warren Burrows was advised of the row, he instructed to take Welles into custody.

The tailoring establishment of Samuel Goodman, 113 Bank street, which was found unlocked and open to intruders early yesterday morning by Patrolman Henry Sylvia, was found by the officer in the same condition this morning, giving the opinion that a careless employe of the place is responsible for the door being unlocked, not thieves.

Insurance adjusters arrived in New London today and started the task of adjusting the losses of the Mahan estate, owners of the Crocker House, which was destroyed by fire early Sunday and no petition could be signed fixing the losses of the five stores that occupied the ground floor of the structure. The adjustment will occupy several days and probably will not be completed before early next week.

The several teams to compete will start from a hydrant at the corner of Bank and Tilley street, on Bank, and will continue afoot and hauling a fire reel to Bank street, at the corner of Ocean avenue and with water being obtained in the quickest time that company will be declared the winner. For a number of years the team representing the Allen Hook and Ladder company, has emerged victorious from the contest. The losing team will defray the expense of a feast for the competing teams, the latter part of the month.

METROPOLITAN PETER HEADS RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH

Moscow, April 9—(By the A. P.)—Metropolitan Peter, chief assistant to the most Reverend Dr. Tikhon who died yesterday will be the new head of the Russian Orthodox church until the question of a permanent incumbent has been settled. Dr. Tikhon will be buried Sunday morning under the altar on the largest of the six churches within the Donskoy Monastery. The Living Church of Russia will not be represented at the funeral, it was announced.

A solemn requiem high mass for Dr. Tikhon, in which more than a hundred high church dignitaries participated, was celebrated this afternoon. Groups of archbishops, bishops and other prelates flanked around the coffin on the venerable patriarch attired in resplendent satin and gold vestments and wearing huge embellished mitres. The scene was reminiscent of the ecclesiastical pomp and circumstance of Czarist days, when the Russian church was as powerful as the state.

Outside the church great crowds stood in the rain in attitudes of reverence. As the long line of mourners filed past the coffin, one bishop, who was particularly devoted to Dr. Tikhon, lifted the gold cloth shrouding the patriarch and fervently embraced the body several times.

Dr. Tikhon's last words were, "what time is it?" "It is midnight," the doctor whispered to him, whereupon the patriarch replied, "I am ready. Goodbye to all my beloved flock. I shall find peace at last."

FLORENCE HOST, 4, DIES AS RESULT OF INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, April 9.—Florence Host, 4-year-old daughter of Simon Host, a painter, residing upstairs at 110 Franklin street, in the "Whipping Post House" on the Post road, died about 10.30 o'clock tonight at her home, as the result of being struck by an automobile.

The accident happened at a about 4.45 o'clock Thursday afternoon when her mother crossed the highway in front of their home with a two year old child in her arms and a four year old and a three year old child on either side, to carry a loaf of bread to a neighbor. "Stay right here!" said the mother to the oldest child, but the little girl ran across, with the result that the bumper of the Chrysler roadster, driven by Jules Von Der Heyder, residing at 36 West 27th street and employed by the French Battery and Carbon company of 111 Hudson street, New York, struck the girl's head. He was accompanied by Charles R. Manchester, manager of the Post and Lester Auto Supply company of Providence, to which city they were en route when the accident happened.

The girl's head was fractured at the base of the skull, there was a cut over the left eye, scratches and bruises on her body as well as injuries to her chest as found by Westerly Medical Examiner Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who attended her with Dr. C. Grant Savage. It was found that the girl was dragged 27 feet. She was unconscious when picked up and taken to her home.

Police Sergeant Michael Curtin of Westerly, taking measurements, found that the Chrysler stopped within 15 or 16 feet after the accident. On returning with the men, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., were met and the site of the fatality revisited, and witnesses interviewed. It was agreed that the accident was unavoidable and the men were allowed to proceed on their way to Providence.

Brooklyn Speedster Fined.

When the traffic congestion at the location of the accident was greatest, a Mercer roadster, headed for Providence was observed approaching at a very rapid rate of speed. A cautionary signal was given, but after the brakes were applied the car skidded and tore up the surface of the road for a distance of 116 feet, which carried it by the group and the driver proceeded without stopping. Sergeant Curtin notified Wakefield, R. I., Police Officer William Dillman and the driver, who gave the name of Frank Myers, 32, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was stopped by him at Wakefield to await the arrival of Westerly Policemen George Madison and George Champlin. Returning to Westerly Myers was given a hearing on the charge of operating the car recklessly. He was presented at a special session of the third district court before acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., a complaint made by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. In his own behalf Myers said that he was taking his four year old daughter to Providence where his mother lived, that the child might be operated on at a hospital. Furthermore, the operator claimed that he was desirous of selling the automobile, as he had a customer there, so as "to buy his wife, who remained in Brooklyn, some new Easter clothes and to pay for the operation." After listening to the evidence on driving recklessly as taken from Solicitor Ferguson the judge found the man guilty and fined him $50 and costs. The automobile was held as security in a Westerly garage for Myers to obtain funds from a Port Richmond bank, on which he offered a check in payment of his fine.

FINED FOR BRUSH FIRE WITHOUT HAVING PERMIT

Reuben Weinstein of Canterbury was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace A. H. Bennett for burning brush without a fire permit. The arrest was made by Fire Patrol C. H. Lathrop and the case was prosecuted by Grand Juror F. Cott.

Another arrest was made in Tolland for the same offense.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, April 9. — Pre-holiday dullness characterized today's stock market, which drifted irregularly lower on a resumption of scattered selling by bear traders. Total sales, which barely exceeded 800,000 shares, were the smallest of any full session since election day, owing to the absence of many traders over the holiday.

Chief speculative interest centered in the public offering of 850,000 shares of Dodge Brothers, Inc., preference stock, which was heavily over-subscribed. The stock was admitted to trading, opening at 103, or $3 a share above the subscription price, rising to 109 1-2 and then slipping back to 106 5-8, closing slightly above the bottom figure.

Trading in the Maxwell Motor issues provided about one-seventh of the day's entire business. The A stock touched a new record at 99 1-4 and then slipped back to 98 1-8, up 1 1-8 on the day. The B stock closed 3-8 lower at 63 1-2 after selling as high as 63 7-8. Speculative activity in these issues was based on expectations of favorable developments at the meeting of the board of directors held after the close of the market.

The so-called pivotal industrials ruled within rather narrow and irregular limits. United States Steel common closed 1-2 lower at 114 1-2 in anticipation of a relatively poor tonnage report tomorrow. American Can and Studebaker also showed slight recessions. Baldwin moved up 1-2 to 108 3-8.

A near rally on Savage Arms forced that stock down more than three points to 61 1-2 a new low record for the week, but it rallied later to 62 7-8. Hudson and Manhattan fell back 1 1-4 to 93 on the traditional "selling of the good news" following the declaration of an initial semi-annual dividend of 2 1-2 per cent.

Heaviness also was shown by Mack Truck, United States Realty, Willys-Overland preferred, Bush Terminal, Electrical Storage Battery, International Paper, Loew's, Motor Products, Remington Typewriter and Underwood at off a point or more.

Weakness of Pennsylvania, which dropped to a new low record for the year at 42 1-4 also then rallied to 42 3-4 off 1-4 on the day was in reflection of the relatively poor 1924 report which showed earnings of $3.92 on the common as against earlier estimates of over $4. Illinois Central and Northwestern preferred dropped two points to a new low at 100 on few sales. Most of the other active rails trended fractionally.

Another bullish demonstration in motors, Chrysler sent that stock up more than 5 points to 270 1-2 but it slipped back later. Gen. Motors preferred also bumped more than two points to 131, but closed to 130 3-8. Good buying also was noted in United Fruit, Montgomery Ward, American Tobacco preferred, and Argo preferred. Chicago Pneumatic Tool, General Baking, American Sugar Refining, Hupp, Wheeling Steel and Nash Motors.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates turned reactionary in quiet trading. Demand sterling eased fractionally to only $4.75 and French francs recovered about four points lower around 4.61 cents. Other exchange rates were largely nominal.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 9.—Bond trading lapsed into typical pre-holiday dullness today with prices drifting aimlessly. Reactionary tendencies cropped out in several sections of the list but failed to disturb the general levels of market values.

In view of the French political and financial crisis, obligations of the republic offered good resistance to selling pressure. The French 7 1-2s slumped to a new low price for the year and recessions of a point or so were recorded by other bonds in this group. The latest bank of France statement, officially recognizing the large increase in note circulation which has recently taken place, was a contributing factor to the weakness of the bonds.

Price changes of domestic liens were confusing. In sympathy with the heaviness of the rail shares, many of the carrier issues eased off fractionally. These losses embraced Northern Pacific 4s and 6s, Illinois Central 5 1-2s, Pennsylvania general 4 1-2s and Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s. Wilson and Company 7 1-2s which dropped 2 1-2 points, were one of the isolated weak spots in the industrial list. Oil bonds were firm.

An indication of the great investment power underlying the market was provided by a heavy over-subscription of the $85,000,000 Dodge Brothers stock issue, which was offered today. The success of the undertaking encouraged bankers to speed up preparations for the sale of a $75,000,000 bond issue. Present prospects are that it will be placed on the market Saturday or Monday at a price slightly below par.

AUCTIONS AND AUCTIONEERS

The auction season is now at hand, and our business has been for the past eighteen years selling public sales through the eastern United States. Your Sale, Mr. Farmer, Administrator or Executor, no doubt represents the hard earned savings of a life time. Whether large or small, you can not afford to experiment with an inexperienced public sale crier, neither do the beneficiaries in an estate wish you to do so when it comes to the point of turning property, either real or personal, into cash.

MAXWELL MOTOR CORP. MAY FORM NEW COMPANY

New York, April 9—Directors of the Maxwell Motor corporation voted today to recommend to stockholders the formation of a new company to be known as the Chrysler corporation to take over its properties. The plan, which will be effected through an exchange of stock, was proposed to do away with the profit sharing feature of the present Maxwell A stock, which had been found objectionable.

The new corporation will issue cumulative preferred stock entitled to preferred dividends at the annual rate of $8 per share from January 1, 1925 and common stock of no-par value. The preferred will be callable at 115, and a sinking fund of not less than ten per cent of the amount of dividends paid on the common shares is to be created to provide for the retirement of the preferred stock.

The Class A shares of the Maxwell Motor Corporation will be exchangeable, share for share, for the cumulative preferred of the Chrysler Corporation, and in addition will receive one share of the common stock of the new corporation for every ten shares of Maxwell Class A so exchanged. Maxwell B will be exchanged share for share, for the new common.

The new common required for delivery to Class A stockholders will not necessitate an issue of common shares of the new corporation in excess of the number of Maxwell B shares outstanding as arrangements have been made for the retirement of a nequivalent number of Class B shares in case the stockholders shall carry through the suggested plan.

The Chrysler Corporation will manufacture and sell Maxwell and Chrysler cars and will carry on the business heretofore transacted by the Maxwell Motor Corporation.

NUMBER FOUR

orial devoted several pages to an agreement contending that the arbitrator's action in ordering determination of sovereignty in Tacna and Arica through a plebiscite was the consequence of an error of translation, which "runs through the entire opinion and award," the reference is to the English translation of clause three of the Treaty of Ancon under which the two countries agreed in 1884 that a plebiscite should be held either "at" or "after" the expiration of ten years.

Answering the Peruvian contention that the translation "at" should have governed the award, the president says:

"The translation complained of in the translation submitted by Peru in her case, and in the opinion of the arbitrator fairly interprets the meaning of the passage in question.

"The problem before the arbitrator was one of substance—of construction rather than translation, a problem which had been debated by the parties long before this arbitration gave rise to any questions of English translation. It goes far beyond the relatively unimportant and largely academic question of the use of any particular English word in translating the treaty, whether that word be "after", "at", "on," or "upon," all of which are used at various places in the Peruvian documents.

"It may also be said that the award of the arbitrator is in entire harmony with the practical construction placed upon the treaty by the parties in their dealings with one another after the expiration of the ten year period from 1894 to 1912 the parties repeatedly negotiated for a plebiscite and in 1898 agreed on the terms of a protocol providing for a plebiscite which was not ratified by the Chilean congress."

Excerpts From Peruvian Memorial

The Peruvian memorial said that it submitted its presentations as to the essence of the award and also certain "definite requests tending to the best and most faithful execution of the plebiscite," but pointed out that it did so "before signifying its consent to participate in the plebiscite."

In a subsequent paragraph, however, after detailing allegations of terrorism charged against the Chilean authorities in Tacna and Arica, the memorial states:

"This picture of actual conditions which has been sketched shows that there has truly been a violation of the essential conditions for the plebiscite, which would justify Peru in refusing to accept the decision; but, as it is the invariable policy of our country to comply with international responsibilities, we will not fail to carry out the award rendered notwithstanding the errors which have been pointed out and in spiet of the fact that they so deeply wound the sentiments of justice which actuate Peru in insisting that Chile by her refusal to hold the plebiscite when it should have been held, in 1894, brought about the nullification of the third clause of the Treaty of Ancon."

The president's reply deals with these two elements of the Peruvian memorial with the statement that the arbitrator "notes with satisfa

TAFTVILLE

The Pomeroph mills fire department responded to two calls for aid Thursday morning, one a chimney fire at a house on North A street, the other a threatening grass and brush fire on South Second avenue. Both fires were quickly brought under control.

A new sign, black with gold letters, has been placed on the Taftville Congregational church, bearing the names of the church and the pastor, time of services, etc.

The local mills are closed for the remainder of the week, as is the custom each year on Good Friday and the following Saturday.

Postmaster Murphy announces that the post office will be open today (Friday) from 7 a. m. to 12.20 p. m., and 6 to 6.30 p. m.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith of Upper Washington street, will have as guests for the next ten days, their daughter, Mrs. T. Snowden Thomas, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., who arrived Thursday afternoon. She was accompanied by her niece and nephew, Miss Eleanor Smith and Sidney Campbell Smith, who have made their home with the Thomas family since the opening of school in the fall of 1924.

The Smith children are returning to Norwich Town, to spend the Easter vacation with their father, Sidney P. Smith and grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith and Sidney Smith motored to Hartford Thursday afternoon in several locations in Norwich town to meet their relatives.

The prayer meetings which were held Wednesday evening, were most interesting and helpful, although not as largely attended as had been expected. Five different homes were opened to members of the First Congregational parish and neighboring friends. At each place there was an efficient leader and the messages brought, together with inspiring singing, was most fitting for the observance of Holy Week, in commemoration of the passion of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

At the First Congregational church for Easter Sunday, there are to be special services including at the morning worship, sermon, baptism, reception of new members, communion, music, etc. The pastor, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey is to preach. In the evening at 7:30, an Easter cantata will be given under the direction of Organist Herbert L. Yerrington.

The Lenten offering for the Woman's board, is to be placed in envelopes which have been marked "Lenten Offering," and laid on the plates Easter-Sunday, or may be passed in at the Lathrop Memorial meeting Wednesday, April 15th.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church, Easter Sunday evening, there is to be a concert, in charge of Mrs. Richard Carter, and Lewis Aldrich.

During the morning worship, there will be an Easter sermon by the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, also special music.

The Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms, will be in charge of Rev. Dixon A. Brown, and choir, of McKinley avenue A. M. E. Zion church.

The April meeting of Home Chapter, of the King's Daughters, Mrs. William E. Manning, leader, is planned for Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home.

Miss Florence Sterry, a student at Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, is passing the Easter recess at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Sterry, of Lee avenue.

Rev. William C. Darby, pastor of the Federated Church, Tolland, formerly of Moosup, is one of seven pastors to speak in the Episcopal church in Rockville, today (Fast Day.) The services will be held from 12 o'clock to 3.

DECIDES TOOLIN'S DEATH WAS DUE TO BLOW FROM SPEEDING AUTOMOBILE

An east bound automobile of unknown identity, which struck or ran down Peter A. Toolin, of New London, early on Thanksgiving morning on the New Haven turnpike in Waterford, was the cause of Toolin's death, according to the finding that has just been completed by Coroner J. J. Desmond in this mysterious case.

In his finding the coroner says that he is unable to determine whether there was any criminal act and it may be that the operator of the machine did not know he had hit the man. The evidence which the coroner has gathered leads him to think that Toolin might either have been standing or lying in the road at the time and he does not believe he was thrown or jumped from a speeding automobile.

The coroner's finding follows:

"I, the undersigned, J. J. Desmond, coroner for New London county, Conn. having notice of the death of Peter A. Toolin, a white male 33 years old, late of the town of New London, in said county, who came to a violent death on the 27th day of November, 1924, and having made immediate inquiry concerning his death, hereby certify:

"That said Peter A. Toolin died in the town of Waterford, in said county, on the 27th day of November, 1924, from injuries sustained by him on a public highway in said town of Waterford about 2 o'clock a. m., on said date.

"Said Peter A. Toolin had attended a dance at Chesterfield, Conn., on the evening of November 26th, 1924; during the evening he went, with several men friends, to Carl Reynolds' dance hall in said Waterford, where he arrived about midnight. Sometime between 1 and 2 o'clock in the early morning of November 27th, 1924, Toolin was allowed to enter the automobile of John J. Oates, of said New London, who consented to take him into New London; in this car when it left the Reynolds dance hall were said Oates, said Toolin, and two friends of Oates, namely, Fred Keefe, of New London, and Frank Champlin, of Providence, R. I.; it was a Buick coupe and was operated by Oates; soon after leaving the Reynolds place Toolin, who was under the influence of intoxicating liquor, began to use abusive language to the other occupants of the car, and was told he must not continue this conduct, but he did continue it, and Oates then told Toolin that he must leave the car; the machine was stopped, and Toolin got out of the car, which then went on to New London. A few minutes after Toolin left the car, W. G. Gifford, of New London and Walter Knight, of Waterbury, Conn., who had left the Reynolds place in a car a few minutes after the Oates car drove away from the Reynolds dance hall, passed Toolin as he was standing in the road very near the spot where his dead body was found a short time afterwards.

"About 2 o'clock, a. m., on November 27th, 1924, two men, named Bator and Flake, of Rockville, Conn., who were riding on a bakery auto truck, going westwardly on said road, found Toolin's body lying on the road, with the head crushed, and brains scattered along the road surface to the east of his body; his clothing bore little, or no evidence of having been rolled along the road.

"From all the available evidence in this case, it appears probable that within a few minutes after Gifford and Knight observed Toolin standing on the roadside, near the place where he got out of the Oates car, his head was struck, or run over and crushed by an eastwardly moving motor vehicle; he may have been lying on the road when this car passed, and one, or two of its wheels may have crushed his head, or, possibly, he may have lurched, or fallen against this machine as it was passing him, and thus received the injuries that caused his death; his heart had been in bad condition for several years, and he was unquestionably under the influence of intoxicating liquor when injured. I have not been able, despite careful and thorough investigation, to obtain any trace of the car that inflicted the injuries upon him; and it is possible that the operator, or occupants of this car may not have been aware that it had struck, or come in contact with Toolin.

"Much testimony was taken in this case, and a careful review and analysis of its points clearly in the direction of the conclusion that he met his death in the manner above indicated.

"I am satisfied, and find that the death of said Peter A. Toolin was caused by the striking, and crushing of his head by a motor vehicle proceeding eastwardly on said road, and operated by some person whose identity I have not been able to ascertain; and whether this death was caused by the criminal act ,omission, or negligence of any other person or persons it is impossible to now determine; but I am satisfied, and find that his death was caused by his having been struck, or run over by a passing motor vehicle, as above set forth."

TAX EQUALIZATION TALKS GIVEN BEFORE LIONS

The meeting of the Norwich Lions club, held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel, proved a most interesting one. The club members enjoyed an opportunity of hearing Daniel T. Shea and Michael J. Curran present their views on the minority report of the tax equalization committee, similar to the one delivered Wednesday noon before the Rotary club and already published in full in The Bulletin.

The meeting opened with the singing of America and offering of grace by Rev. Robert B. Day. President Edward Carpenter presided over the meeting and the musical part was ably handled by William A. Anderson.

The attendance contest prize, awarded this week by Max Hanover, was awarded to Fred Watson. The prize was a handsome glass smoking tray, mounted on a wooden base.

An interesting report of the Tri-State Conference of Lions clubs, held in New York city last week, was given by President Carpenter. Both he and Vice President Louis Fontaine attended the session and delegates were there from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut. President Carpenter announced that Governor William Bent of Bridgeport would probably be a guest of the club at its meeting next Thursday. He then appointed a major activities committee, comprising J. B. Caron, William A. Anderson and Max Hanover.

Lion Fred Watson was the current topic speaker for the day and spoke especially of co-operative work among the merchants, industries and hotel men of Norwich, saying that Norwich will not be a good town for anyone to live in unless it is a good town for everyone to live in, and only co-operation can bring this about. He also spoke of boosting the Mohegan Trail at this particular season of the year, especially at this time when the hotel facilities of New London have been lessened owing to the recent fire there.

Lion J. B. Caron then introduced Mr. Shea and Mr. Curran who gave their talks on the tax revision question. The club voiced its appreciation of their remarks with a rising vote of thanks.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

CONFIRMED AS RECEIVER OF UNCAS PAPERBOARD

At the short calendar session of the superior court in New London Thursday morning, with Judge Edwin C. Dickenson presiding, the matters on the motion list were disposed of as follows:

Judgment was given confirming Frank W. Browning as permanent receiver and order was entered extending the time for continuance of business to June 9 and limiting time for presentation of claims.

In Sablewski vs. Doyle, motions for disclosure of defense and if no defense, foreclosure and limitation went off the list.

Bonds of $75 for prosecution were ordered in two weeks in Annie Burba, vs. Manchik, et al., and the same order was entered in William Burba vs. Manchik, et al.

Motion for default was withdrawn in open court in Maurice S. Wilson et al. vs. Titus and Bishop Land Co., and the case went off the list.

Hearing in damages in Jeremiah Twomey vs. Hyman Prottas was postponed.

In Stanton L. Dreifus vs. Reuben Lubchansky motion for default was withdrawn in open court and the case went off the list.

In Fishken vs. Mahoney, et al, continuance was granted for three months and the court ruled that further notice is not necessary.

IN ATTENDANCE AT TWO FAMILY ANNIVERSARIES

Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Crary of Norwich attended a dinner given on Sunday in honor of the 30th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Vincent of North Stonington and the birthday of Mrs. Crary's mother, Mrs. Minnie Sheffield, at her residence on Lester avenue, Westerly.

MAUNDY THURSDAY SERVICES AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Yesterday was Maundy Thursday—the feast during Lent which commemorates the institution of the Holy Eucharist—"Maundy" implying command, from the Saviour's command in the epistle read in all the masses throughout the Catholic world. I Corinthians ii., 20-32. This narrates the events of the Last Supper, at which Christ, breaking bread and blessing the wine, commanded His disciples, "This do for the commemoration of Me." Later in the epistle occurs the warning, "For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh judgment to himself; not discerning the body of the Lord," words which emphasize His earlier assertions, "This is My body; this is My blood." "For as often as you shall eat this bread and drink this chalice, you shall show the death of the Lord until He come."

At the 8 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's, as elsewhere, the celebrant consecrated two Sacred Hosts instead of one, the second being carried in procession to the side altar, there to remain until this (Good Friday) morning, when it will be consumed by the priest offering that mass, since no Host is consecrated during the solemnity of this day. Consequently the service today is referred to as "the Mass of the Pre-Sanctified." The Host consecrated Thursday will be carried back to the main altar, with a solemn procession, as on Thursday. Today there will be the penitential veneration of the Cross by each person in the congregation at the 8 o'clock mass; at 3 p. m. there will be stations of the cross, and again in the evening there will be the veneration, with the Rosary and the customary prayers of humility and intercession.

STATE POLICE TIPSTER FOUND OPERATING STILL

Eli Holowiniski of East Haddam, said to have frequently tipped off state police as to various other alleged moonshiners in his district, was arrested Monday when state police of the Groton barracks found liquor and a 40 gallon still in his place, when they went there to investigate a complaint.

The Groton barracks men were working nearby when complaint reached them that a fight was in progress. They arrested a man named Pelch for breach of the peace, and Holowiniski, who was Pelch's adversary in the row was arrested on a liquor charge when the policeman discovered the still.

Pelch was fined $5 and costs, before Justice Walton Hall, Jr., in Moodus, Thursday and Holowiniski, was fined $100 and given a 10-day jail sentence on the liquor charge. He appealed but state police say they are informed he will pay his fine and serve his jail sentence.

It was said at the trail that while Holowiniski had been distilling liquor for a long time, he beat competition by informing the authorities about the activities of other alleged moonshiners.

Gypsies in Camp.

A small colony of about 60 gypsies has made a temporary settlement on a tract of land known as the Racetrack grounds at the foot of Fort Hill, Groton. The gypsies arrived in Groton two days ago, coming there in a caravan of some half dozen automobiles. They are said to be on their annual spring trip to Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island, where there is a colony established during the summer time. The gypsies have erected a village of tents, numbering about a dozen in all, and for the time are living in real campers' fashion.

HINTS FOR WOMEN

More important to women than the question of food, the latest fancy work to beautify the home or points in etiquette or dress, is the subject of health. There are thousands of women everywhere affected with stubborn ailments which make life a burden. These ailments may be easily overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compond. It is a woman's medicine for women's ill prepared from roots and herbs. After three generations of success it is recognized as the standard remedy for such ailments.

PROPOSED BILL ON TAX COMMISSIONERS DUTIES

The new act concerning the appointment and duties of the tax commissioners of the state, which passed the house at Hartford Thursday, provides as follows:

Section 1318 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: The governor shall, on or before the first day of June, 1925, and quadrennially thereafter, nominate and, with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint a tax commissioner, who shall hold office for four years from the first day of July following his appointment, unless sooner removed by the governor for cause; and the governor shall fill any vacancy occurring during said term for the unexpired portion thereof. The comptroller shall provide and furnish a suitable room in the capital for said commissioner, and provide him with necessary books, blanks and stationery. The tax commissioner shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take the oath by law provided for executive and judicial officers; and in the performance of his duties he shall have power to administer oaths. The tax commissioner, by himself or by an agent whom he may appoint, shall visit the towns in this state and inquire into the manner in which the laws relating to listing and assessing taxable property therein are executed by the assessors and boards of relief, and whether all persons and property taxable in such towns are in fact justly assessed and taxed; whether all taxes which are due and collectible are, in fact, collected and paid to the treasurer in the manner prescribed by law; whether accounts and records of collectors and treasurers are adequate and properly kept; and whether tax exemptions on property are granted in the manner and only to the extent required to the general statutes; and, for such purpose he may subpoena to examine him under oath, and for such purpose he may compel the attendance before him of any such witness and the production of books and papers by subpoena. No such witnesses shall be excused from testifying or from producing books or papers on the ground that such testimony or the production of such books or papers will tend to incriminate him, but such evidence or production of books or papers shall not be used in any criminal proceedings against him. If any person shall disobey such process or, having appeared in obedience thereto, shall refuse to answer any pertinent question put to him by said commissioner, said commissioner may apply to the superior court, or to a judge of said court if the same shall not be in session, setting forth such disobedience to process or refusal to answer, and said court or such judge, as the case may be, thereupon shall cite such person to appear before him and shall inquire into the facts set forth in such application and, upon finding the allegations in such application to be true, shall commit such person to jail until he shall testify, but not for a longer period than sixty days. If the commissioner shall ascertain that the assessors or any board of relief or any official charged with any of the duties imposed on assessors or board of relief, or the tax collector, treasurer or any official authorized to fix a rate of tax in any town, city or borough or other taxing district, shall fail to discharge his or its administrative duty according to law, said commissioner may in writing call such failure to the attention of each such board or member thereof or official failing to perform its or his duties. If such board or official shall fail to comply thereafter with the law with respect to which attention shall have been so called in writing, the commissioner may apply to the superior court in the county wherein such board or official shall have jurisdiction, or, in case the superior court shall not be in session, to a judge thereof, setting forth such failure, and the judge or court, as the case may be, upon ascertaining the facts stated in such application to be true, shall issue an order in the nature of a mandamus requiring compliance with the provisions of the statute particularly mentioned in such application and shall render judgment against any official, board or person who shall have so failed, with costs, as in mandamus proceedings. Any person who shall fail to comply with any order so issued shall be in contempt, and said court or such judge may punish therefor as in mandamus proceedings. Any person claiming to be aggrieved by any order issued by authority of the provisions of this act shall have the same right of appeal to the supreme court of erros as in mandamus cases.

THREE HIGHWAY BILLS HAVE PASSED BOTH HOUSES

Three bills relating to highway matters in the state have passed both houses.

The first concerns excavations and obstructions in state aid and trunk line highways and is as follows:

Section 1. No person, firm or corporation shall excavate within or under or place any obstruction or substruction within, under, upon or over any trunk line or state aid highway without the written permission of the highway commissioner and said commissioner may fill in or close any such excavation or remove any such obstruction or substruction, and the expense incurred by the commissioner in such filling or removing shall be paid by the person, firm or corporation making such excavation or placing such obstruction or substruction.

Sec. 2. The provisions of this act shall apply to any excavation, obstruction or substruction existing within, under, upon or over any such highway at the time this act shall take effect and any such excavation, obstruction or substruction shall be removed by the person, firm or corporation making or maintaining the same within thirty days from the date when said commissioner shall send by registered mail, postage prepaid, a notice to such person, firm or corporation.

Sec. 3. Any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this act shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars for a first offense and not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars for each subsequent offense.

Another provides for the classification of trunk line and state aid highways as follows:

"The highway commissioner is directed to prepare for submission to the next session of the general assembly a classification of the trunk line and state aid highways according to the volume of traffic and freight carried upon such highways."

The third concerns state aid roads as follows:

The highway commissioner is directed to prepare for submission to the next session of the general assembly a plan for a system of state aid roads similar to that provided for trunk line highways.

FIRE PERMITS CANCELLED BECAUSE OF DRY SEASON

The fire wardens have been notified by the state foresters to recall all brush fire permits that have been issued and not to issue any more until further orders. This is because of the dry season as there have been more forest fires this season than ever before.

It is probable that no more permits will be issued until after there has been rain enough to overcome the dry conditions.

From April 27, to May 3, is to be American Forest week with protection of forests from fires caused by the carelessness of vacationists as one of relation for school children and vacation objectives.

Six pledges being given wide circulation for the 1925 vacation season are:

1. Matches—I will be sure my match is out. I will pinch it before throwing it away.
2. Tobacco—I will warn smokers to throw their pipe ashes and cigar and cigarette stubs in the dust of the road away from brush or leaves.
3. Making camp—I will make only a small camp fire. I will build it in the open, not against a tree, log or near brush.
4. Leaving camp—I will never leave a camp-fire even for a short time without quenching it with water and then covering it with earth.
5. Brush or clearing fire—I will never build brush or clearing fires in windy weather.
6. Fighting fires—If I find a fire, I will try to put it out. If I can't, I will get word to the fire-warden at once.

Easter Sunrise Prayer Meeting.

The Intermediate B. Y. P. U. of the Central Baptist church plans to hold a sunrise prayer meeting Easter Sunday morning. The arrangements are in charge of Charles Hagberg, Laura Shields and Mary Peckham. A campfire breakfast will be served, followed by the devotional service in charge of the president, Miss Constance Raymond.

HERRIOT FRENCH GOV'T OVERTHROWN IN SENATE

Defeated 156 to 137 on a Vote of Confidence, the Herriot Government Tendered its Resignation—President Doumergue Requested the Premier and His Colleagues to Carry on Until Successors are Appointed—Former President Poincare Led the Movement Resulting in the Defeat of Herriot—Paul Painleve and Anatole De Monzie Mentioned as Probable Successor to Herriot.

Paris, April 10—The cabinet of Edouard Herriot resigned tonight.

Defeated twice within three days in the senate, M. Herriot and his ministers quickly decided there was no alternative but to resign. When a vote of lack of confidence, 156 to 137 was announced the cabinet repaired immediately to the foreign office, where the formal letter of the ministry's resignation was drafted.

From the foreign office the defeated ministers, headed by M. Herriot, went to the Elysee Palace, where they arrived at 10:10 p. m. (4:10 p. m. eastern standard time) and were immediately admitted to the office of President Doumergue. M. Herriot placed the resignation in the hands of the chief executive, who accepted it, and the retirement of the cabinet thereupon became official.

As is usual, however, M. Doumergue requested the ministers to continue to transact the business of their respective departments until their successors were appointed. After the customary exchange of compliments with the president, the ministers, with the exception of M. Herriot, departed. M. Herriot remained with the president for a half an hour, discussing the situation.

It was said tonight that M. Doumergue would be unable to decide upon the man who will be offered the premiership before Sunday. Besides consulting with the party group leaders of both houses of parliament, he intends to discuss the situation with various eminent politicians, notably former Premier Briand, Louis Loucheur, former minister of commerce, and Louis Steeg, former minister of the interior. The presidents of the senate and the chamber of deputies also will be consulted.

There is much speculation over who will succeed M. Herriot. The men whose names were mentioned most prominently tonight, are Paul Painleve, president of the chamber of deputies; Anatole De Monzie, minister of finance in the Herriot government, and Former Premier Briand. In the opinion of political observers, M. Painleve would not survive long as premier and would merely pave the way for a return to office of M. Herriot with a better selected ministry.

M. De Monzie, who has gained much political credit by his frank handling of the financial situation, would, in the view of politicians, find less opposition in the senate than any other member of the list. M. Briand, at least for the present, would have difficulty in securing a reliable majority in the chamber.

The fall of the Herriot government was due to Former President Poincare. For six hours the battle waged in the senate between the government and the opposition, with the fortunes of war swaying from one side to the other until Poincare, throwing the weight of his authority into the attack, brought down the cabinet with a crash. The vote of lack of confidence was 156 against 132.

Glorious Day For Millerand

It was a glorious day for a former president of France, M. Millerand. He had sent M. Francois-Marsal, his former lieutenant and minister of finance, to lead in the attack, and was ready to intervene personally had the fight appeared to go against the opponents of the government. M. Herriot appeared extremely fatigued. He seemed on the verge of physical collapse after his long oratical effort, but as the vote against his ministry was announced, he squared his broad shoulders in a shrug, and as his ministers gathered about him he heaved a sigh of relief which seemed to bear the stamp of genuineness.

Then, with the premier leading them, the entire cabinet, which for 11 months had presided over the destinies of France, filed out of the chamber by the left exit. The members of the left group appeared crestfallen. The senators of the right and center cheered.

Foremost among the sympathizers with M. Herriot was Leon Blum, the socialist leader in the chamber of deputies. As the premier and his ministers were leaving, M. Blum pointed to them and said: "Behold my victims." Blum then embraced M. Herriot, who smilingly said to the socialist: "My poor friend, I have denied thee, and denied thee today of all days." This allusion on Good Friday to the denial of Peter, coming from the anti-clerical leader, created something of a sensation among the politicians and newspapermen crowding the ante room.

The vote of non confidence in the ministry was announced at 8:45 o'clock this evening. M. Herriot and the ministers were 15 minutes in making their way from the building shaking hands with groups of senators and deputies. The ministers left for the foreign office at 9 o'clock, where the resignation of the ministry was discussed, decided upon and the letter drafted. The premier and the cabinet left the foreign office at 10:05 p. m., and arrived at the Elysee Palace at 10:10 o'clock.

The fortune of the battle in the senate was decided with dramatic suddenness. M. Herriot had held his own in the long debate with M. Francois-Marsal, and M. Poincare's formal address appeared to have left the senators somewhat cold. Suddenly M. Herriot interrupted M. Poincare, and the latter retorted sharply.

Some Sharp Repartee.

There followed some repartee, in which the sharp staccato sentences of M. Poincare culminated in the exclamation: "You are not the man to come before me and ask for a sacred union." M. Poincare delivered the exclamation in ringing tones, with his index finger extended toward M. Herriot. This brought the opposition members to their feet cheering. There then the fate of the cabinet was sealed.

The entire afternoon had been taken up by speeches of M. Francois-Marsal and Premier Herriot. Both, using exactly the same set of figures, taken from identical sources, had proved—to their own satisfaction—entirely divergent viewpoints. In their speeches, rid of long strings of figures and shorn of their diplomatic niceties and language, both M. Herriot and M. Francois-Marsal were somewhat in the position of two small boys before a stern parents, confronted with a broken vase and each accusing the other, "You did it." As the small, slender figure of Former President Poincare was seen briskly ascending the steps on the speaker's rostrum, tense silence fell upon the assembly which up to that time had been extremely unruly.

"I have decided to break my long silence since my departure from the direction of French public affairs only because the life of my country is at stake," said M. Poincare. "I have a duty to perform," he added.

"It was folly, M. Poincare went on, for Frenchmen to accuse one another of being responsible for the present precarious situation of the French treasury, when the failure of Germany to pay France was at the bottom of the entire trouble. But some Frenchmen were more responsible than others.

The former president blamed internal political strife and the policies of the present government on other than economic matters as creating unrest and destroying confidence, and said the imprudent speeches by allies of the present government—referring to the socialists—were causes which had brought the French treasury to its present low ebb.

"If the men now conducting French affairs cannot be depended upon to restore confidence," M. Poincare declared, "let us try with others. I do not speak for myself. Willingly, gladly, I have passed on to younger men the labors and responsibility of power."

Replying to M. Herriot's statements that the Herriot government was the first one to make the Germans pay, M. Poincare for the first time mentioned the Ruhr.

"We received three billion marks out of the Ruhr in which our allies were glad to share," M. Poincare declared. He added that the Ruhr was becoming a paying venture and the schedule of payments would be increased as the years went on.

"I assume entire responsibility for the acts of my government from 1922 to 1924," said the former president. "Let Mr. Herriot do the same."

M. Millerand, who had been sitting calm and unmoved in his seat, with a huge portfolio filled with documents lying unopened before him, immediately was surrounded by fellow senators. But the former president who was removed from the French white house by the government which now was on the verge of defeat, made a sign to M. De Selves, president of the senate, that he did not desire to speak. M. De Selves then commenced reading the order of the day, and the senators voted amid tremendous excitement it was a foregone conclusion that the cabinet would be defeated, even before the ballots were counted.

Edouard Herriot assumed the premiership of France on May 14, 1924, when the victory of the left bloc in the elections smothered Raymond Poincare's party of the right.

Having ousted Poincare from the leadership of the French government, the radical socialist landslide also brought about the removal of Alexandre Millerand from the presidency of the French republic.

One of his greatest achievements was in aiding in the settlement of the German reparations question. By his conciliatory attitude he was instrumental in putting into effect the Dawes plan. At the London conference he effected an agreement for the evacuation of the Ruhr. It was through his efforts that thousands of Germans imprisoned by the French in the Ruhr for passive resistance were released and he also permitted the return to the Ruhr and the Rhineland of Germans who had been exiled by the allied military authorities.

M. Herriot was firm in his determination that Germany should carry out the Versailles treaty. Particularly, he insisted on Germany disarming. This matter is still pending.

The Lausanne treaty, establishing peace between Turkey and the allies, was ratified by the French parliament at the behest of M. Herriot. He also brought about French recognition of soviet Russia last October.

In an address before the league of nations in Geneva last September M. Herriot laid what he considered the foundation for world peace. The gist of his remarks was for compulsory arbitration and security by force under the Geneva protocol. The British government, however, rejected the protocol because of the insertion in it of Herriot's recommendation.

The retiring premier always has declared that France must be guaranteed security before she disarms.

During his tenure of office Herriot several times declared that France would pay her debts. He pleaded for delay, however, in order to permit France to restore the financial situation at home before discharging her foreign obligations.

ALL DENOMINATIONS JOINED IN GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 10—The Easter season which has been observed here annually for more than a hundred years by the Moravian Christians of North Carolina opened with a Good Friday religious service, joined by all of the denominations of the city.

Visitors began arriving to witness the "sun rise service" to be held Sunday at the Moravian graveyard on a nearby hill top. The hilltop service originated in 1732.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Change in Italian Cabinet.

Rome, April 10.—(By The A. P.)—The recent retirement of War Minister General Di Giorgo from the Italian cabinet, coupled with talk of the resignation of Finance Minister De Stefani, has given rise to reports of an impending general shake-up among Premier Mussolini's ministers.

T. W. Lamont Guest of Honor.

Rome, April 10—Thomas W. Lamont, member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given today by Prince Gelasio Caetani, former Italian ambassador to the United States. Other guests included minister of the interior Federzoni and Finance Minister De Stefani.

NEWS STORIES SENT OUT DISPLEASING TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, April 10—Some of the purposed news stories being sent out of Washington by enterprising correspondents during the dull days of the congressional recess are not going well with the White House.

At one time or another, President Coolidge has figured, every member of his cabinet has been duly written up as having resigned or being on the verge of presenting his resignation. Only a few of these rumors have proved correct.

As late as today it was necessary for the White House to deny persistently publish stories that Secretary Weeks' resignation was in the hands of Mr. Coolidge.

Although the White House has refrained from comment, another story which has brought a flood of inquiries and which was found to be unfounded, was to the effect that the president had confined his expenditures for Easter to a $65 suit of clothes. As a matter of fact Mr. Coolidge is well stocked with clothing and it was unnecessary for him to buy anything.

The president feels, all in all, that it would make a real good news story if some one would write about the purported new stories sent out by various individuals which have never materialized.

He feels that when news conditions are dull stories of Washington affairs should not be forced to fill space.

FEUD RESULTS IN MAN BEING BLOWN THROUGH TOP OF AUTO

New Brunswick, N. J., April 10—An alleged five year feud, had its climax in the death of Samuel Vencherri, a Lindeneau barber, who was blown through the top of his automobile, apparently by the explosion of a bomb, while driving along Woodbridge avenue, Piscataway. He died later in a hospital here. Two other persons, James Jarmini and Jack Harkins, who occupied the rear seat at the time of the blast, escaped uninjured.

Vencherri remained silent up to the time of his death. But friends told police they believed the explosion was the work of enemies who they said, the barber had been on bad terms with, ever since he had brought his finances here from Italy, five years ago. She eloped with another man on the eve of the wedding.

Since that time, police were told, Vencherri has been the victim of numerous attacks. Upon one occasion he was shot in the leg by an unidentified assailant. He has refused to ask police aid, although badly beaten several times, it was said.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Several hundred pre-Easter vacationists were greeted by the president.

Secretary Jardine heard further arguments on the Armour-Morris merger.

Funds voted by congress in excess of budget figures for the national guard were released by President Coolidge.

Chairman Madden of the house appropriation committee predicted enactment by the next congress of a bill reducing taxes by $300,000,000.

Reports that the Washington government was alarmed by recent developments affecting American-held oil concessions in Russia were authoritatively discredited.

FLIGHT OF THE LARGEST AIRPLANE IN THE WORLD

Dayton, Ohio, April 10.—Flying the army's Darling bomber, largest airplane in the world, was compared to "flying a house with wings," by Lieutenant John A. MacReady, McCook Field pilot, who took the giant plane out today to have its "joints unloosed" after being stored during the winter months.

"It's a man's job," declared Lieutenant MacReady after landing the huge plane. "It felt like I was flying a house with wings. The great size and weight of the ship make the control difficult to handle."

ACHIEVEMENTS OF HERRIOT APPROVED BY COOLIDGE

Washington, April 10—The Herriot government which was overthrown today by the French senate, is regarded by President Coolidge as having accomplished a distinct service for France in bringing about a settlement of the reparations problem with Germany.

Although the president recognizes that it would perhaps be indelicate for American officials to make any extended comment on the situation in France, he feels that the retiring premier apparently has accomplished his chief objective, at least, and has reason to take satisfaction in his reparations achievement.

PLEASANT WEATHER IS PREDICTED FOR EASTER

New Haven, April 10—Director Leonard M. Tar, of the local weather bureau said tonight that indications were that the rain storm over Connecticut tonight would pass off tomorrow and that the weather on Easter Sunday would be "fairly good." The rain will be followed by warmer and somewhat clearer weather, he said.

KILLED HIMSELF ON GRAVE OF DAUGHTER

New York, April 10.—A man, identified by police as Michael Landolphi, 40, killed himself on the grave of his daughter in Calvary cemetery today.

In a pocket was found a letter which read: "I have failed in business and I want to accompany my daughter."

Coolidge Releases $1,742,800 For N. G.

Withheld by the President Pending Investigation.

Washington, April 10—President Coolidge has released for National guard use the $1,742,800 in excess of budget figures voted by congress for the next fiscal year.

Authority for expenditure of the money, designed to defray armory pay for regular drills by guard units, had been withheld by the president pending investigation. This action is in line with that he took recently in regard to a deficiency appropriation of $1,332,000 for armory pay for this fiscal year which had been denied by the budget bureau but had been voted by congress.

The only amount which may not be expended is an item of $12,000 provided specifically to cover employment of additional National guard officers in the militia bureau in Washington.

The money involved is all for expenditure only during the fiscal year beginning July 1, next, but the president's action permits the war department to undertake obligations and make necessary contracts now although financial settlement will not be made until the new fiscal year has begun. A substantial portion of the excess over budget estimates for next year goes to increase the regular appropriation for National guard armory drill pay.

INVESTIGATING DYNAMITING OF STORE AT HERRIN, ILL.

Herin, Ills., April 10—An investigation of the dynamiting here this morning of a store owned by Clarence and Marshal McCormick tonight concentrated upon attempts to find an automobile which raced out of town immediately after the explosion. Pursuit by a heavy fire truck was futile. No arrests have been made. No one was injured.

Marshal McCormick was active in Ku Klux Klan circles in Williamson county more than a year ago, but disputed with the late S. Glenn Young, liquor raider. At that time an attempt was made to burn the store.

Himself a Klansman, McCormick is opposed in his candidacy for Mayor of Herrin by the Ku Klux Klan ticket and anti-Klan backers.

About a month ago a similar explosion wrecked the Fowler apartments here and seriously injured Mr and Mrs. Harry Fowlers.

WHITE HOUSE GROUNDS OPEN TO CHILDREN MONDAY

Washington, April 10.—President and Mrs. Coolidge will have with them next Monday, the birthday anniversary of Calvin, Jr., who died last summer, practically all of the children in Washington.

This is the customary date when the White House lawns are thrown open to the city's children for Easter egg rolling. The fact that the day also is the 17th birthday of young Calvin was not known to those wh omade the preliminary arrangements for the event this year, but the President and Mrs. Coolidge accepted the programme readily.

The grounds will be open from early morning to late afternoon for children under 10 years accompanied by not more than one adult.

ICE CREAM FIRMS ARE TO COMBINE $5,500,000 MERGER

Springfield, Mass., April 10.—Four of th elargest wholesale manufacturers of ice cream and dairy products, including Tait Brothers, Inc., of this city, the Dolby company, of Providence, R. I., the Coone company, of Vermont and the New Haven Ice Cream company will combine in a $5,500,000 merger, according to information received today. Several other important dairy product manufacturing concerns will very likely enter the merger within a short time, it was said.

RAIN MAY EXTINGUISH MOUNTAIN FOREST FIRES

Blacksburg, Va., April 10.—Rain tonight gave some promise of extinguishing forest fires in the Blue Ridge and Allegheny mountains near here which for five days have baffled hundreds of fire fighters.

Reports from points along the 25-mile fire front said the larger blazes were dying out and that no further damage was expected. Much valuable timber and several dwellings were burned during the week.

KILLED IN 40FOOT JUMP FROM HOSPITAL WINDOW

New Britain, April 10—David Ellis, 45 years old, was killed when he jumped out of a window at the New Britain general hospital and fell 40 feet to the ground. Ellis was recovering from a surgical operation performed three weeks ago and it was said that he was delirious when he went to the window and jumped out. He was not married.

Wood Distillation Industry Menaced

Germans are Making it From Water Gas and Shipping It to This Country.

Baltimore, Md., April 10—America's $100,000,000 wood distillation industry is threatened with extinction by German chemistry, it was declared today at the meeting of the American Chemical society here.

Germans are making synthetic methanol, formerly known as wood alhocol, from water gas, and are shipping it into this country in such quantities, it was said, as to arouse fears that the American production of methanol from hard wood will be wiped out.

Another forward step of German science was described by Dr. Franz Fischer, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm institute at Mulheim-Ruhr, who said that a process closely related to that by which synthetic methanol is produced is being employed to manufacture liquid motor fuels from water gas.

America's only hope in this and in other similar exigencies which may arise, it was declared at the meeting, lies in research.

Harrison E. Howe of Washington, D. C., summing up the American situation said:

"We have frequently contended that the only insurance against the disaster which comes with a loss of markets because your competitors know more is to be found in the proper support of scientific work. For some time we have heard of the perfection of methods for synthesising methanol, from carbon monoxide and water power.

"These reports were at first regarded as rumors. They could not be confirmed. Even the representatives of the foreign companies doubted the accuracy of the statements. Today, as much as fifty thousand gallons of synthetic methanol has been imported in a single month and our information is that the costs are much lower than for the manufacture of methanol by the distillation of wood that this competition will not be affected by high tariffs. x x x x apparently if our producers of methanol are to hold this maretk they must perfect for themselves synthetic methods of manufacture."

Important research in coal is also going on in Germany, it developed at a meeting of the society's section of gas and fuel chemistry.

MRS. JANET B. S. FULTON FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

New York, April 10—Mrs. Janet B. S. Fulton filed in supreme court a suit for absolute divorce, alleging alienation of her husband's affections.

In the divorce application it was stated that Fulton's name formerly was Prizenmayer, but that during the war with Germany he changed it to Fulton because his real name caused him annoyance.

The papers allege that Fulton owns property in his own right and ultimately will inherit from his grandfather property estimated to be worth from $8,000,000 to $8,000,000. Mrs. Fulton says she has spent all of her own estate of $200,000.

Mrs. Fulton stated that she married Fulton in Jersey City, N. J., in October, 1913. Her husband, she alleges, has established his residence near Tours, France, with a Mlle. Payot.

FOREST FIRES BEING EXTINGUISHED BY RAIN

Albany, N. Y., April 10—Rain put an end to forest fires which have destroyed buildings and timber in the wooded sections of Southern New York state, William G. Howard, assistant superintendent of forest for the conservation commission, said tonight. No reports of new fires were received.

Saranac Lake, N. Y. April 10—Three forest fires broke out in the forests of Clinton and Essex counties during the past 24 hours and, although they were extinguished, conditions in these counties and in Franklin and St. Lawrence district forest ranger James H. Hopkins said tonight. One fire was near have assumed menacing proportions, Willsboro, Essex county; another at north end of Ellenburg mountains, Clinton county, and the third in Keene valleye, Ranger Hopkins said.

TO PRESENT EVIDENCE AGAINST SPICKERMAN

Indianapolis, Ind., April 10.—Federal agents said today that evidence on which they arrested Dr. H. R. Spickerman of Muncie, Ind., on a charge of violating the narcotic act, would be presented to the federal grand jury which convenes May 6.

Dr. Spickerman's home was a rendezvous for Gerald Chapman, bandit who was recently sentenced to hang for the murder of a New Britain, Conn., policeman, according to the federal authorities. Chapman was captured at Muncie.

James S. King.

New York, April 10.—James S. King, nationally known for his etchings, paintings and engravings, examples of which have been exhibited at the Corcoran art gallery at Washington, the Chicago Art Institute and the National Academy of Design in this city, died Wednesday at his home in Upper Montclair, N. J., it was learned tonight.

EASTER

The scent of lilies, tall, divinely fair,
Went through the church's windows, open wide;
And, borne upon the gentle-moving breeze,
Were wafted sounds that nestled in the trees
And mingled with the song-birds' rising tide
Of trill, the organ-notes swelled on the quiet air
And echoed from the forest to the sea.

The voices of the choir seemed to be
A host of angels gathered round their Lord,
The risen Christ;—as church-spire pointed toward
The sky, so did our very souls look up
And drink His blessing, as from out a cup
Like His great chalices,—Our Holy Grail
Was purity of heart, and strength less frail
Than Galahad's. With bended head we prayed
And found our God, and were no more afraid.

—John Davenport Seymour, in Boston Transcript.

FEDERAL GOV'T ALOOF IN EXECUTION OF CHAPMAN

Having Turned Atlanta Penitentiary Convict Over to Conn. Authorities, President Coolidge Sees no Reason Why the Federal Government Should Interfere With the Execution of the Death Sentence Imposed for Murder.

Washington, April 10—Having turned over Gerald Chapman, Atlanta penitentiary convict, to Connecticut state authorities for trial on charges of murder, President Coolidge sees no reason for the federal government to interfere with the execution of the death sentence imposed as a result of that. While he has received no special report from the department of justice as to technicalities which may be raised as to Chapman's status, the president is inclined to regard the government's action surrendering Chapman to the state as closing the matter entirely from the federal standpoint in view of the outcome of the trial.

He assumes that the state was by the action empowered to prosecute Chapman on the charge brought against him within its jurisdiction and to enforce the sentence, and as far as he has been informed, no recent developments indicate that any other course will be pursued.

RUNAWAY GIRLS WERE BOUND FOR DANIELSON

New Haven, April 10.—Three Massachusetts girls, who left their homes in Somerville and Charlestown, Mass., Tuesday, with the intention of going to Danielson, Conn., in search of work, were apprehended by Constable Ernest Gadd, of North Haven in that town today. They said they didn't know where Danielson was or how to get there.

The girls who were turned over to Prosecutor Ward Church, gave their names as Katherine Walsh, 18, of Charlestown; and Catherine Lynch, 17, and Lillian Goodwin, 16, of Somerville. No charges were placed against them and they were held pending the arrival of their parents who were notified. They had no money.

The girls said that they had slept on a porch Wednesday night and in a truck in which they were riding on Thursday night.

STATE CLOSES CASE IN TRIAL OF "LONE WOLF"

Boston, April 10.—The state closed its case today in the trial of James E. Walters, the "Lone Wolf," on charges of robbery of apartments occupied by women in the Back Bay district of Boston. Counsel for Walters announced that the defense would be insanity and three alienists who examined the "Wolf" at the Charles street jail were sworn.

Mrs. Agnes E. Prescott and her niece, Katherine DeVoll, prosecution witnesses, testified that Walters entered their apartment on Queensberry street, January 21, bound, gagged and robbed them and remained in the place until morning. Walters from time to time interrupted to make corrections in the evidence. An alleged confession in which Walters admitted a large number of robberies also was admitted in evidence.

SECRETARY WEEKS HAS NOT TENDERED HIS RESIGNATION

Washington, April 10. — President Coolidge knows of no basis for persistently published reports that Secretary Weeks has resigned from the cabinet or intends to do so.

The president has been kept fully informed of the condition of the war secretary since the latter sluffered a thrombosis attack last week and report that has reached him from Mr. Weeks' home has indicated he was progressing toward complete recovery.

HINDENBERG'S NOMINATION FAR FROM BEING POPULAR

Berlin, April 10.—(By The A. P.)—The nomination of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as the candidate of the parties of the united right for president of the republic, apparently was as much of a surprise to German banking and financial circles as to the outside world.

Although prominent bankers and leaders on the bourse declined to discuss the field marshal's entry into presidential politics, it is evident that these quarters are highly impatient with, if not chagrined over, the manner in which Dr. Karl Jarres was thrown overboard in favor of the former army leader.

The reluctance with which numerous Berlin and provincial organs of the nationalist parties are falling into line for Von Hindenburg is reflected in their apparently labored and apologetic editorials which, while freely deploring the field marshal's nomination of humanitarian and political grounds, declare that inasmuch as the nomination now is an accomplished fact there is no other choice than that of "whooping it up" for Von Hindenburg.

GIFTS BY THE ALDRICH BROTHERS OF PROVIDENCE

Providence, April 10.—Charles T. Aldrich and Henry L. Aldrich, brothers engaged in the cotton brokerage business in this city today announced joint gifts of $500,000 to Brown University and to the Rhode Island hospital, conditional upon like amounts being raised by the two institutions.

The Rhode Island hospital is planning a short intensive campaign to raise its supplementary $500,000. Part of the money, it is announced, may be used in the construction of a new nurses home, to be known as "The Aldrich Brothers Gift."

The Aldrich brothers, prominent in athletics at Brown in the '70s, recently contributed $100,000 to the fund for a new athletic field at the university. This stadium will be known as Aldrich Field and is now being constructed.

The body of an infant girl was discovered in a box at one of the city ash dumps in Hartford.

WILLIMANTIC

At the open meeting of the striking operatives of the American Thread Company, Friday morning at the Gem theatre, Thomas F. McMahon of Providence, R. I., president of the United Textile Workers of America, and Horace Riviere of Manchester, addressed the strikers, before a full theatre and with Miss Amy Hooker as chairman of the meeting. Mr. McMahon said that since the ten per cent. cut in the employes' wages went into effect on January 12, a general speeding up in many departments of the plant had resulted in a greater output, without corresponding compensation being made to the employes. He referred in particular to the dressing department where, he stated, about 133 machines were speeded to such an extent that a 21½ per cent. increase in output had resulted. He read statistics to prove that the number of extra yards taken from these machines in a day or a week resulted in greater profit to the company than if the ten per cent. cut were not put into effect. He explained that the operatives wanted the difficulty settled by arbitration, and said that the cut seemed to him entirely uncalled for.

Concerning the sale of papers by the agitator of an outlaw labor organization Mr. McMahon advised the workers to have nothing to do with them saying "We want no part of what is ruining Europe today!" Mr. Riviere addressed the operatives in French.

When the Windham Girls' club held its meeting at the club rooms Thursday evening with a good attendance, it was voted to hold a May basket party. Mrs. W. L. The platform will be arranged to represent the garden of Judah.

Congregational church: Prelude, Gloria, from Mass in E-flat, Ashford; Easter carol, for three-part chorus, Joyous Bells of Easter, Roy E. Nolte; anthem, Risen As He Said, Ira B. Wilson, obligato by Mrs. Byron Kinnie, Sadie Thompson and Flora Littlefield; offertory solo, Rejoice and Sing, by Julian Jordon, William Dealtrey; organ offertory, Religious Meditation, Andre; anthem, The King of Glory Shall Come In, Lorenz; Easter Postlude, E. L. Ashford. The chorister is Mrs. E. H. Hiscox and the organist is Irene Stewart.

Baptist church morning service: Prelude, Easter Morn, Ashford; anthem, Risen, As He Said, Wilson. The evening service: Prelude, Easter Joy, Lawrence; postlude, Easter Postlude, Stults. A chorus choir will render a cantata, The Thorn-crowned King, by Holton. Mrs. George H. Prior is chorister and Ellen R. Prior is organist.

At Pachaug church, Sunday morning, a service, Triumph of Love, written by Margaret Slattery, will be given in place of the morning service.

At the last meeting of Ruthie Rebekah lodge, on behalf of the lodge, Mrs. Sarah Jeffers presented Mrs. Lillian Spicer a past noble grand's jewel. At the close of the meeting, the seventh anniversary of the lodge and the one hundred and sixth anniversary of Odd Fellowship was observed. There was a short entertainment program during which there were vocal solos by Sadie Thompson and Mrs. Nellie Wharton, accompanied by Verna Tarbox; a piano solo by Irene Stewart; readings by Frank Mell, and a recitation by Ruth Cathcart. Refreshments were served. Guests were present from Reliance lodge, Central Village and Coventry, R. I.

Mrs. Benjamin J. Oriest, Miss Florence E. Priest and Henry Cooper, of Harvard, Mass., are guests of Daniel Morgan and family.

Mrs. A. H. Strickland and three children of Middletown are at Mrs. H. E. Paul's for a week. Harry Paul of Middletown is spending the week-end at his home.

The young people who attend schools and colleges out of town are spending their Easter vacations at their homes.

An entertainment given in the Congregational church vestry Thursday evening, was arranged by Miss M. A. Burdick, chairman of the Christian Endeavor Society flower committee. Mrs. Irving Frink, of Brooklyn, was the chief attraction, giving readings which so pleased her audience that she was recalled again and again. Her numbers included: Her First Club Meeting, Nora Has Her Picture Took, Tale of Two Chairs; Father's Way, Sneezing Swain; Minnie at the Movies and Cross Word Puzzles. Miss Ellen Prior gave several piano numbers, one of which was a musical recitation. Sadie Thompson sang a solo with encore accompanied by Verna Tarbox. Miss Thompson and Doris Johnson sang a duet, and were accompanied by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. An arrangement of the song, John Brown's Body, was sung by the audience. Homemade candy, in prettily decorated little boxes, was sold by Beatrice Read, Christine Marshall and Bessie Thompson. Evelyn Johnson was ticket receiver. The platform was decorated with palms and flowers.

George Lathrop, of Stone Hill, has an elderly brother, 84, who lies in a hospital in a Nebraska city, in a critical condition. nknown to his family, he cut down a tree and it fell upon him. His son missed the tree from its familiar location, and investigating, found his father pinned beneath it.

Mrs. Byron Kinnie is confined to her bed because of a severe attack of grip.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

TIME TO PERFORM ORCHARD PRUNING

People are now earnestly pruning their orchards so as to get them started right for the growing season this year. This is a very important part of the orchard management and should receive the owner's very serious attention. He should never cut out a limb unless he knows why he does it. There is a tendency on the part of some men to prune too heavily in one year, which might seriously set back the yield of fruit for several years to come. Other men do not prune enough to prevent crossing branches from making permanent injury to the trees. When two branches cross one another they develop considerable friction against each other in a wind storm. This rube the bark off and allows disease and decay to start.

Dr. J. K. Shaw of the Massachusetts Agricultural college has the following points to make on pruning: 1. To prune regularly each year any time during the dormant season. This is worthy of the greatest emphasis. 2. To prune lightly, or only moderately, never heavily with normal bearing trees. Do not cut over 5 per cent or at most 10 per cent of the top. 3. To keep the head evenly thinned out and open to the sunlight. 4. To avoid cutting out fruit spurs unless they are past bearing. 5. To keep up a supply of new bearing wood. 6. To avoid stubs and any injury to the bark. 7. To watch out for cankers, especially on large branches. 8. To buy and use only the best quality tools.

VEGETABLE BREEDING AT THE CONNECTICUT STATION

Two varieties of sweet corn have been produced by a new method of corn breeding which gives a more vigorous plant growth and a greater production of marketable ears. This method consists of crossing two uniform and fixed inbred strains and utilizing only the first generation hybrid. Seed is now available for testing and may be secured by writing to the experiment station at New Haven. One of these varieties, Crossed Crosby, is an early white corn of the Crosby type having 12 to 16 rows of grain and ripening about one week earlier than Golden Bantam. The other is Red Evergreen, a pure white corn of the very best quality, which ripens in mid-season. On good soil every plant should produce from two to four medium sized ears, having 14 to 16 rows of grain and capped full over the tips. A yield test showed that this corn produced 6 tons of ears per acre where Stowell's Evergreen gave less than 4 tons. The leaves and husks of this variety are uniformly light reddish in color which makes the corn very distinct and easily recognised on the market. These two new types of corn will be grown at the station farm at Mt. Carmel in comparison with other varieties of sweet corn.

The same method which has been used in the production of these two varieties is now being applied to Whipple's Early Yellow sweet corn, the aim being to produce an early, high yielding strain of good quality showing the features of uniformity in size and shape of ear and even maturity characteristic of Crossed Corn.

This method of inbreeding and crossing is also being applied in a modified form to some of the other most important market garden crops, cabbage, carrot, onions, rutabaga and squash.

Selections will also be made from some of the most important vegetables which are naturally self-fertilized to produce more uniformed and desirable strains of these crops, especially beans, lettuce, [illegible] pepper and tomatoes.

A number of new strains of vegetables have been developed in different parts of the country. Those of interest and value are the yellow-resistant Savoy spinach originated by the Norfolk, Virginia truck station, the anthracnose (pod spot)-resistant strains of string beans by the New York experiment station at Ithaca; one new variety of tomatoes and a new strain of Earliana tomato by the Pennsylvania station; and the Vermont Hubbard squash. All of these new varieties and strains will be grown in comparison with the standard varieties now generally planted and seed will be secured for distribution and testing in 1926.

FLAVORS AND ODORS OF MILK FROM FEED

When cows are fed such succulent feed as cabbage, potatoes, green alfalfa, green corn, turnips, and silage, there is liable to be some noticeable flavor in the milk unless precautions are taken, says the United States department of agriculture. A great deal of experimental work has been done in the use of these feeds, and certain practices, have been found desirable and practicable. The important facts brought out were as follows:

Feeding succulent feed before milking is likely to impart an undesirable flavor and odor to the milk.

The longer the time elapsing between feeding and milking the less pronounced will be the undesirable flavors and odors.

Feeding succulent feeds immediately after milking has little or no detrimental effect.

Prompt and thorough aeriation of milk while still warm will remove slight flavors and odors and will lessen the intensity of streng flavors and odors.

The department's market milk specialists say that feeds may be one of the most frequent causes of abnormal flavors and odors in milk, and for that reason the feeding of the succulent feeds listed above should be done very carefully.

Sometimes the appearance of feed flavor or odor in milk alarms the consumer, and it may be to the interest of the producer or distributor to acquaint the public with the cause.

HOW TO PREPARE SOIL FOR FORCING

Both for sowing indoors in boxes and outdoors in cold frames and hotbeds the greatest care should be used in the preparation of the soil. The seed sowing surface should be fine and provided with good drainage underneath. Rich soil is needed to give the tiny plants a flying start. The sifted earth should be mixed with some of the pulverised commercial fertilizers in the proportions which are given with the fertilizer when it is sold.

Break up the lumps in the soil and sift it. Spread it evenly over the surface of the foundation soil and make it level and trim before sowing the seed. Much trouble and uneven germination and loss of young plants will follow an uneven surface, as the moisture will drain off the higher portions and collect in the hollows. Germination will be quicker in the moister portions and when germination has resulted there will be the danger of damping off in these too-moist places while the higher levels are likely to dry out. A level surface is necessary for an even distribution of moisture.

The surface should be well moistened a short time before the seed is sown. After the seed has been sown it is wise to cover the surface of the soil with paper, cloths or burlap until germination starts. It will be necessary to keep close watch to remove the covering as soon as the first white sprouts appear through the ground.

Once the plants are up the problem of watering is one to be studied. Do not deluge the frames or seed pans as the seeds and little plants will be washed to their destruction. Water with a spray or sprinkle by dipping a whisk broom in the watering can and sprinkling gently so the water will fall upon the seed surface like a gentle rain.

Pouring water upon a seed bed from the nose of an ordinary sprinkling can will do more harm than good except to the coarsest seeds. It is sure destruction to fine seeds.

POINTS ON MAKING COLD FRAMES

Hotbeds are becoming scarce articles in the home garden because of the scarcity and difficulty in obtaining horse manure fresh from the stable to provide the artificial heat of fermentation to operate them. But if a hotbed cannot be installed a cold frame can and while it cannot be started as early as a hotbed it can easily save a month and a half and give that much extra growing time for early seed crops.

Cold frames might as well be homemade. While the standard sash is made for frames of 6 by 3 feet units, smaller frames are easier to handle for the small garden and they can be homemade or the nearest carpenter can easily throw them together with screws, so that they can be knocked down and stored when out of use. Small frames about 3 1-2 feet by 3 feet, from any loose lumber are a most convenient size. A carpenter can put these together with very little effort and while he is about it have him make a frame or sash to fit attached to the back of the frame by hinges. You can glaze this yourself with little trouble.

These frames can be a foot high at the back and six inches in front. An ideal place for them is against the south wall of a house, barn, or garage or against a fence where the frames will be protected from north winds. With hinged tops or sash, hooks and eyes can be placed in the sash cover and fence to which the tops can be hooked when it is desired to open the frames for ventilation, to water them, or to pull weeds.

The standard 6 by 3-foot frames are often a nuisance to handle when it comes to weeding and watering, as it is a tough job to stretch over into them to reach weeds at the back and the sash will always be in the way on one side or the other, which ever way they are slid off.

Cheap and practical substitutes for glass are now sold which make glazing a frame merely a matter of hammer and tacks. This is celluloid, transparent, light, and there is a great saving in breakage.

VALUE OF MANURE

According to the Pennsylvania experiment station the value of manure produced in one year by a horse is $21.67; that by a dairy cow $38.76. One half of the value of manure is in the liquid, consequently every precaution should be taken to save this part. The simplest manure pit is simply a watertight concrete box which prevents the valuable element of the manure from leaking away. The pit should be made with a floor sloping toward one corner in which a cistern is located into which the liquid manure can drain and from which it can be pumped out.

EARLY PEAS CAN BE PLANTED NOW

People are now planting garden peas, and it is wise to do so providing the soil is ready to work, but heavy wet soil may not be ready for a while yet. Space or plow the soil deeply for peas and apply a plenty of well-rotted manure to the soil and work or harrow it in thoroughly.

Laxtonia or Excelsior are good varieties to plant for early peas. For medium late, use Gradus or Bliss Everbearing, and for late use Telephone and bush them. One quart to every 100 feet generally gives good results for rate of seeding. The early peas should be planted by April 1 to get best results and the late ones by April 20. The peas can be planted with the early potatoes or with onion sets if land is scarce. All varieties of peas need support if they do their best. Probably the best support for garden peas is brush.

For the man who has his garden in the back yard and within reach of his garden hose, it is best to hill up the peas as they grow. This hilling leaves a trench on each side of the row of peas. In case of drought these trenches should be filled with water often. Peas need water to do their best and should be given plenty of it, only they do not want a swampy soil that is wet all the time.

The big things in planting peas to remember are: First, they need a plenty of manure to keep them growing, a plenty of moisture to prevent them from drying up, coolweather, and support to prevent the vines from turning yellow.

Beets and carrots thrive under about the same conditions. They can each be planted quite early, but will not stand the cold as well as spinach or lettuce. The seeds should be sown in drills about 18 inches apart if hand labor is to be used or about 30 inches apart if a horse cultivator is to be used. For beets, one ounce to 100 feet is recommended and one of the best varieties to plant at this time is Crosby's Egyptian. For carrots, one-half ounce of seed to 100 feet should be used, and Chantenay is probably the best for this early planting.

Because the seeds of the carrots are smaller than the beets they should be planted a little shallower, not over one-fourth inch in depth. Care must be taken that a crust, on the soil, does not form before the seedling appears. For this reason sandy soil is preferable. It is advisable to sow radish seed with either beets or carrots so that they will mark the rows earlier, as radish seeds sprout much quicker and thus cultivation can be started sooner. The radish plants, of course, are removed before the room is needed by other plants.

WYOMING GUARDSMAN WATCHING HOME OF GOV.

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 10.—Armed guards are maintaining a nightly watch over the Wyoming Gubernatorial mansion that houses Governor Nellie Taylor Ross, it became known today.

No reason for the patrol was made known, although it was learned that county officials had made inquiries regarding the identity and character of persons living in the vicinity of the mansion.

Governor Ross refused to comment on the situation other than to intimate that such precautions had not been taken at her request.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

DEMONSTRATION WEEK FOR OVERLAND

The week of April 12-18 has been set aside by Willys-Overland Six National demonstration week throughout its entire dealer organization.

For the first time since production of this new model was begun three months ago the factory feels that its dealers have been amply supplied with these cars to permit the carrying out of a program on such an extensive a scale.

"We hope to be able to show the merit and quality of these new cars to a large percentage of the motorists in this territory during the coming week," is the comment of the local Willys-Overland dealer when apprised of the factory's plans for the coming week. "We take this opportunity of extending an invitation to every motorist to come in and drive an Overland Six, getting the feel of the remarkable pick-up, power and stamina of the motor and seeing at close range the splendid lines and construction of the new six-cylinder Overland, without incurring the slightest obligation of any type."

According to reports from Toledo, production of this model has now mounted to 250 Standard and Deluxe Sedans daily and has not yet satisfied the tremendous demands which are making themselves felt everywhere.

Despite the fact that its announcement at the national motor car shows came as a total surprise to the motor car industry, the Overland Six is by no means a hasty experiment on the part of Willys-Overland engineers, but is the result of several years of development and testing, not in the laboratories by research experts but on the streets and highways in the hands of average drivers.

A number of these cars were constructed and turned over to disinterested persons of motor car experience with instructions to "break them down." As the result of these experiences Willys-Overland engineers have been able to design a car of unusual sturdiness and ruggedness in every detail, with a much higher factor of safety than is customary.

Palace Theatre.

Owing to the Grotto's play Tuesday and Wednesday, there will be no vaudeville. The great feature picture, Sandra, with Barbara LaMarr and Bert Lytell, will be shown Sunday and Monday. On Sunday night there will be an augmented orchestra to play for the feature picture.

As an evidence of her appreciation for the beautiful gowns designed by Mme. Jesta for her use in Sandra, Barbara La Marr has presented the artiste with an automobile.

The car, a closed one, carries on the inside a small plate with an inscription reading: "To Mme. Jesta, whose gown creations have made 'Sandra' a thing of beauty and joy forever. Barbara La Marr."

The modiste, brought from Boston to design the gowns worn by Miss La Marr, has been responsible for 19 different creations, including a feather gown, a ball costume for which imported lace was used; a silver gown, a gold gown, and a variety of negligees, morning, afternoon, and sport wear.

Next Week at United Congregational Church

The Sodalitas meets in the Junior department rooms of the Church school at half past seven on Monday evening. There will be an important business meeting after which surgical dressings for a home missionary hospital will be made.

The April meeting of the Brotherhood will be held at the Community house Monday evening, with supper at 6:30 and later a mock trial.

The King's Daughters will meet Tuesday evening in the Church school rooms.

All members of the parish, especially teachers and workers in the church school, are urged to attend the union meeting at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Thursday evening, at 7:45, when Dr. M. A. Honline, of California, will teach on "The Life of Christ."

The Woman's Guild will hold its April meeting at the Community house, Friday afternoon at three o'clock. Miss Mary Grey Barron, of the American School for the Deaf, Hartford, Connecticut, will tell of her work, and there will be music, tea and a social hour.

Friday evening, at the Community house, at eight o'clock, the Oweneco Camp-Fire girls are to give a Chinese play: "Fate and the Blue Moon."

Holy Land Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 p. m., on Sunday a very interesting service will be held at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. building. Upwards of forty pictures of the Holy Land will be shown by stereopticon, and these will include several showing the habits and customs of the people; the Jews wailing place; the Cedars of Lebanon; the Mosque of Omar; the pool of Bethesda; the Bedouins will be pictured in family life, etc. Attractive views of "The Shepherd and Sheep," Christmas Day in Bethlehem, a Village Bridal procession, Mohammedan women, the Peasants and their primitive methods will be shown; also the Tombs of the Kings, and several scenes related to the life of Jesus, including the Jordan, the Holy Sepulchre, sunrise over Galilee, the Garden of Gethsemane and other pictures of interest. Hugh Kinder will render vocal solos, and a brief talk on the pictures will be given. To this helpful service the public is invited, though boys and girls under 14 must be accompanied by adults.

Three Worlds of the Earth

The history of the earth is divided into epochs, dispensations or worlds. In each of these Jehovah has been accomplishing certain purposes, making the earth ready for its ultimate end, the home of a happy human family, all the better prepared to enjoy the blessings of perfect life that will then be spread before them; for they have tasted other experiences that have made them long for something better.

The "dispensation of the fullness of times," as it is called, is still ahead; but it is not far ahead. It is in this "world to come" (not a world to go to) that the wisdom of God will be revealed to all. The full meaning of the expression, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," will then be comprehended by all.

The confusion and disorder at the present time are due to the transition from the "present evil world" to the "world to come wherein dwelleth righteousness." It is increasingly difficult to cover up graft. The changes from the old, crooked methods of the past to the new, clean methods of the future are not instantaneous. They are coming gradually; but they are coming, none the less.

In speaking of this transition time the Lord made the statement that it would be (for certain interests) "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." It is even so. We witness it on every hand. It is the harbinger of hope that the new and better epoch is at the door.

Come and hear about three worlds of the earth the two that have passed away, and the new one that is coming in (all here on this literal earth). Mr. William T. Knight is the speaker, one of the representatives of the International Bible Students Association, Sunday, April 12, 307 Main, G. A. R. hall, at 3 p. m. Free seats and no collections.

Farrar's Individuality

A little story is told about Geraldine Farrar, which time has proven to be true. Mme. Lehmann the famous singing teacher with whom she was studying who had in her long stage career seen and heard innumerable singers, cautioned Miss Farrar as follows: "You are a queer child, Geraldine, with a personality that must be its own salvation. You will never gain anything by copying others." And the musical world well knows that Geraldine Farrar has never "copied."

When Miss Farrar was first rehearsing and introducing those little bits of stage business that were to astonish a world which believed itself quite familiar with the operas, she was constantly interrupted and corrected by the stage managers and directors. In Berlin, after a stormy scene, the management threw up its hands, saying "the crazy American would only last for one performance." After the "one performance," she was reigning prima donna for twelve years.

This season she has returned to opera, and as the "star" of her own company. As "Carmen," Geraldine Farrar will appear in New London on April 15. As this is one of her greatest roles and as her supporting company is of high artistic standard, the performance should afford an experience to be treasured.

Geraldine Farrar Tour

..A certain characteristic of Geraldine Farrar's art and career has been, and one would say ever will be, youth. From the first moment when she returned to America from her studies and artistic battles abroad to conquer critics and public, to send hurrying to the corners upholders of tradition whose eyes were blinded to the events and the accomplishments of today, her course has been distinguished by the fire, the courage, the indomitability of youth and talent. For her there has never been the word "impossible:" for her no labor is too tremendous to achieve a thing desired, and nothing in the world is too big, too great for her to attempt. An individual from the bottom of her heart, a woman who acts as she thinks, for herself. She has made a host of friends in the country which admires conviction and initiative as it admires almost nothing else, and some enemies. But she has always triumphed over her sheer force, vitality, charm and optimism which nothing can displace or dismay. While others are wondering what will happen, Miss Geraldine is evolving a new exhibition of art. The famous prima donna will appear at the Gem theater Willimantic ,Thursday evening, April 16.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

At the Palace theatre the Pirragha Trio, one of the best acts of its kind ever played in this city, are here for the latter part of this week, in a dancing, singing and a little comedy act. Two boys and a girl perform finely. Don't miss this act, if you love children.

Smiletta Bros., opening the vaudeville program, one comedian, and one not, appear in unusual feats on the bars, and also come across with a little more than the usual thrills.

Major Rhodes, a talented violinist, appears in a musical act, showing some fine technique with his instrument.

Ketch and Wilma, now don't get confused, because the names sound funny, but there's nothing in the name, so sit tight when Ketch and Wilma start performing. Ketch, one of the best ventriloquists seen on the local stage, with his understudy, a "dummy," and partner, Wilma, hand out a heaping cup filled with comedy, singing and jokes. Something new for a vaudeville act.

For a vaudeville finale comes Dare, Cole and Helene, two performers fresh from the country, with a new line of nut stuff, and a dancer. Both male performers execute some clever tumbling numbers, which makes one wonder how it's done. Helene, a comely female, dancer de luxe, appears in a dancing number of a pleasing interpretation of a Russian ballad. She also contributes to the support of her two stage friends.

Mad Whirl is the screen version of Here's How, a short story written by Richard Washburn Child, former minister to Italy. The story created a sensation for it was interpreted as an attack on the lax manner in which present day parents exercise jurisdiction over the conduct of their children.

The screen version is a colorful picture, with comedy touches, and a tensely dramatic ending. May McAvoy has the feature role, and others in the exceptionally notable cast are Jack Mulhall, Myrtle Stedman, Barbara Bedford, Alec B. Francis, Ward Crane, George Fawcett, Marie Astaire and Joseph Singleton.

William A. Seiter, who made two big successes made by Universal, The Family Secret and The Fast Worker, directed The Mad Whirl, which was accorded a lavish production.

Bijou Theatre.

The great American play—the most popular stage production of the last twenty years—translated to the screen in a production on which no time nor expense were spared to make it a film even greater than the original. The Great Divide comes to the Bijou theater for four days starting Sunday. It is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer.

The story is of the west of today; of a woman, cultured, educated and with the repression of the east, living among the hardships of the western country.

Critics and public alike have declared it the "great American play."

William Vaughn Moody, who wrote it, originally called it The Sabine Woman, and, indeed, it is said he based his story on the historic seizure of the Sabines.

The principals of the cast, Alice Terry and Conway Tearle, were chosen after a canvas among critics and film fans to find the actor and actress best suited to these important roles. The man had to suggest the strength and romance of Stephen Ghent, and the girl the repressed, conventional Easterner. Alice Terry's blonde beauty her spiritual air and her ability to portray sweet young womanhood, gave her the desirable role of Ruth Jordan. Conway Tearle's fame as one of the finest lovers on the screen, in addition to his rugged strength made him the most suitable actor to portray Stephen Ghent.

Alice Terry's performance in Scaramouche and The Arab, her two most recent characterizations; and Conway Tearle's performance in Black Oxen, are recent successes for both and they make a striking contrast in types.

The Great Divide was adapted to the screen by Waldemar Young and photographed by Percy Hilburn. Cedric Gibbons was the art director and Marry Schenck the assistant director.

Topics of the Day and a comedy complete the bill. Todays bill consists of Charles Jones in Western Luck, The Iron Man, the Pathe news and a comedy. Continuous show today 1:30 to 10:30 p. m.

You wouldn't believe it possible to pile so many punch scenes into a picture as are found in Paramount's The Devil's Cargo, which is the feature at the Broadway theater starting Sunday.

The story, an adptation of The River Boat by Charles Whittaker, is a fine love melodrama of California in 1850. It opens in the old gold town of Sacramento.

Victor Fleming, the director (he made Code of the Sea, Empty Hands and others), took his cast and crew of more than 200 men and women down to the Sacramento river for a month's stay. Here they built a replica of the old pioneer town and relived the lives of its people.

The Devil's Cargo is an accurate, graphic picture of the thrill-filled days of the dim and distant past—of the days of the great open spaces where men were mean. And there's one particularly hateful character in the picture—Wallace Beery—he of Robin Hood and The Sea Hawk. Beery, it is claimed, has the finest role of his career as the big brute stoker of the rover boat, on which the vigilantes, a band of law abiding citizens of Sacramento, depert the town's undesirables.

The meaning of the vigilantes, comedy street scenes, night shots, etc., are but a few of the other highlights in the picture.

Raymond Hatton, Dale Fuller, George Cooper and Emmett King appear in the supporting cast.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Killingly gets on the air again this afternoon. From 2:30 to 4:00 o'clock a concert to be broadcasted by WSAD, Providence, will be played by the Royal Serenaders, all the eight members residents in this section of Eastern Connecticut.

This orchestra recently played a concert that was put on the air from the Providence station mentioned, and the number of applause cards received brought an invitation for a return engagement.

The boys who will be playing this afternoon, when the broadcast is made, will include: Alfred Dalbert, piano, Moosup; Henry Lajeunesse, E flat saxaphone; Warren Braley, trombonist and orchestra manager; Edward Aubin, 1 flat alto saxophone; Ernest Aubin, trumpet; O. Blancette, drums; Charles Diggett, banjo; Harry Diggett, bass horn.

Strange as it may seem, this orchestra has not been heard by many residents of this town, yet has made a reputation for itself that has brought invitations to play at a broadcasting station that is heard throughout southern New England.

The borough meeting to be held Monday evening will be called upon to approve or disapprove a matter of making an appropriation of about $2,500 for sewer bed extensions on the borough farm, in conformity with recommendations made by the state board of health. It is likely that the borough electors will decide to do this instead of adopting the other state board recommendation of spending $13,000, to take care of the borough sewage over a period of years.

It so happens that the state board of health has picked out Danielson as a point at which to begin the admittedly necessary reform of redeeming the Quinebaug river from the reputation of being an open sewer for various communities along the Quinebaug valley. Why this was done is for the moment incidental. The fact is that Danielson has to make its arrangements to protect the river from pollution. Danielson can do what is required of it for this year and for several years to come by building a single filter bed. The cost will be about $2,300.

But in the meantime, Danielson is wondering what the state board is going to do about checking the sewage outlets into the river of such communities as Putnam, which happens to be incorporated as a city, and Goodyear, and towns to the south.

It is a pertinent question and Danielson wants to know about it. The place, according to old tradition, to start to clear a stream of its pollution, is the point nearest its source where pollution begins. Danielson is miles south of that point, yet it is already engaged with the problem of doing what the state board of health asks it to do.

This weeks brings the loss to New Haven of a citizen of this town, whom many will miss. Raymond E. Allen is leaving to take a place as department head of a store in New Haven. The following is a summarized sketch of Mr. Allen's life: Born in Hartford, he came to Brooklyn at the age of ten and attended the public schools there. After his graduation from Killingly high school in 1906, Mr. Allen entered the employ of the Windham County National Bank and in 1908 became a member of the Danielson post office force under Postmaster Charles A. Potter. On April 1, 1909, he was made assistant postmaster and Jan. 1, 1919, received his commission as postmaster from President Woodrow Wilson May 1, 1923, Mr. Allen retired from office upon the appointment of Edwin H Keach as postmaster. During his fifteen years of service he witnessed a marvelous growth in the amount of business transacted here, the yearly postal receipts being practically doubled. His term was characterized by courteous and efficient handling of all the department's affairs.

Mr. Allen will be greatly missed in the Daniel Baptist Church, in which he is a deacon and a member of the board of trustees and for eight years, until he voluntarily retired at the annual election last Sunday, has served as superintendent of the Sunday school.

For the past two years Mr. Allen has been engaged in sales work in this territory and has also been employed at the Windham County National Bank. Mrs. Allen and their son will remain in Danielson for the present, but will remove to New Haven at a later date.

Chicken dinner will be served at the Danielson Inn Sunday, 75 cents.—Adv.

Temporarily, at least, the forest fire menace is a thing of the past. Rain came Friday evening to wet down the countryside and make one feel that a puff of smoke in an automobile might not set the whole county afire. Incidentally, the rain drenched a dozen fire areas within a few miles of Danielson and put out fires that have burned more or less briskly for several days past. Again, the trout fishermen welcomed the rain. There has been too little water in the brooks to suit their purposes or their creels.

Monday evening the meeting of Danielson chapter of the Red Cross is to be held at the home of Frederick A. Jacobs on Broad street. That all of the members of the chapter may know what the organization has done during the year those interested in the meeting are urging their attendance. The reports are certain to be of very special interest.

Mrs. Mary Shea and Miss Dora Gilltooley of Hawkins street are spending the Easter season in Providence.

A very interesting program has been prepared for the meeting next Thursday with Mrs. Hary E. Back of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R.

PUTNAM

At the Baptist church on Sunday there is to be an Easter Sunday school concert at 12 o'clock noon. The B. Y. P. U. meets at 6 p. m., with the subject "Easter" and the leader will be Miss Elsie Swanson. At the 7 p. m. service, Miss May Kittits, of South China, will tell of mission work in China.

An Easter program will be given by the children of the Methodist church, assisted by the regular choir, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Sunday morning at the Second Congregational church there is to be a sunrise service at 7 o'clock in charge of the Christian Endeavor society. At 7 p. m. there will be an Easter Praise service; the cantata "The Risen King" will be sung by the choir. Mrs. William R. Burke, contralto soloist of the Union Congregational church of Providence will sing.

Easter Day will be observed at St. Philip's church with a general communion of the parish at 8 a. m. At 10:45 the Holy Eucharist; Miss Ethel Chadwick will sing "the Holy City" as an offertory solo at the morning service. A special invitation has been extended parents to bring their children to the service at 7 o'clock Sunday evening.

Miss Esther Rouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rouse, of this city, a student at the Conservatory of Music at Aurora, Ill. is now on a concert tour through Wisconsin. Miss Rouse has broadcasted her violin solos several times from WOARD at Batavia, Ill., and many Putnam people have heard her.

Thirteen delegates from Putnam and vicinity, headed by Secretary John H. Corbett, attended the conference of Y. M. C. A. workers at Hartford. They were for the most part group leaders of the Pioneers, the Comrades or the Hi-Y branches of the organization. There were addresses and many informal talks. Among the speakers were Otis B. Read, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of New Hampshire; Oscar Elwell of Keene, N. H.; county secretary; and Harvey H. Smith of New Haven, state secretary. Moris F. Cholds was toastmaster at a banquet that 100 delegates attended. Among those present were Rev. N. B. Burton, John H. Corbett, George Gilpatric, Manuel Annas and William Aldrich of Putnam; Morris F. Childs, Donald Williams and John Arnold of Woodstock; Arthur Hughes and Mervin Chase of Dayville; Arthur Logee of Danielson and Raymond Chubbuck, of North Grosvernordale.

J. F. Trinder, supervisor of all of the trade schools of the state was here from Hartford at the annual exhibit of the Putnam trade school. He was highly pleased with everything and said that he felt that the school was in good hands and thought that all of the citizens of Putnam who helped to establish the school here could feel tha tthey were amply justified.

In his April report to the school committee, Ralph C. Jenkins made several recommendations all of which were approved by the committee and are now a part of the school regulations. His report includes the following:

To the Putnam School Committee:

For several years the Town School Committee has been offering bonuses to teachers who attend the summer school. Last summer, three teachers benefited by these bonuses to the extent of $270. I have felt for some time that we were not succeeding in encouraging teachers to secure additional training in services by the bonus plan. Some time ago I sent Questionnaires to about 60 Superintendents of Schools in New England and New Jersey cities and towns, asking what plans they had for encouraging their teachers to take professional study. Replies from most of these letters has led me to feel that a plan which offers a permanent salary increase as the reward for professional study is superior to a plan which provides for a bonus.

March 23 I sent to all teachers and principals in the Putnam Schools the following letter:

Putnam Conn., March 23, 1925

To all teachers and principals:

I expect to recommend to the Putnam School Committee at its next meeting, April—, the following plan whereby teachers and principals may secure increases in salary through professional study while in service.

Teachers, after appointment in Putnam, may increase their salaries beyond the regular salary schedule by securing credits for professional study and improvement as follows:

(1) Twenty-five dollars for the satisfactory completion of a course of study previously approved by the superintendent of schools, of thirty hours of recitation and lecture with the required preparation work, provided, however, that units of less than thirty hours will not be credited.

(2) No teacher shall thereby receive an increase in salary of more than fifty dollars in any two years or more than $100 during the period of service.

(3) Such salary increases shall be added to the regular salary of the school year following that in which study and improvement were made and shall thereafter be permanent during the period of service.

(4) Such courses may be taken in Putnam as University Extension courses, or elsewhere as normal or universit ycourses in residence, but in all cases the course shall be as approved by the superintendent of schools as satisfactory and the work of the course as may be required in the institution in which it may be taken.

(5) These provisions apply to all teachers and principals.

It is necessary before I presen the matter to the Committee, to prepare an estimate of what the expense will b to the town. For that reason, I am asking each teacher to inform me wheher he or she will be likely to take advantage of this offer within the next two years. Your answers will not commit you to take the courses, they will simply serve as a guide to me in estimating the total expense. I shall be glad to have you ask questions of me personally about the plan or I shall be glad to explain it further to groups of teachers if the plan is not clear.

Very truly yours
RALPH JENKINS,
Supt. of Schools.

P. S.

You may use the following form reply if you wish to reply by mail. Check either A, B or C.

A. I shall probably take advantage if this offer to the extent of $25 within the next two years.

B. I shall probably take advantage of this offer to the extent of the maximum of $50 within the next two years.

C. I shall probably take advantage of this offer to the extent of the maximum of $100 within the next four years.

In reply to these questionnaires, twenty teachers have expreseds themselves as being likely to take advantage of the above offer. Of these, five are High school teachers and fifteen are grade teachers. Ten expect to tak advantag of plan "C" which calls for a maximum of $100 within the next four years; seven expect to take advantage of plan "B" providing for a maximum of $50 within the next two years, and three expect to take advantage of plan "A" calling for a maximum of $25 within the next two years. The maximum expense to the town involved is $1,075 within the next four years. It is likely that that amount will be added to the present salary schedule by that time. I shall recommend that the plan above entitled "Salary Increases through Professional Study" be adopted, this plan to supersede the bonus plan which we have followed for some years.

Rev. J. F. English of Elmwood, near Hartford, has accepted the invitation to become pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city. In a letter to Ray C. Bosworth, chairman of the committee, he says that he will be here in time to preach his first sermon July 1.

At the meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter, D. A. R., April 13, the speaker of the afternoon will be Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's church of Danielson. Miss Louise Lawton of Woodstock will sing accompanied by F. C. Lawton.

The Moses G. Leonard property on South Main street has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Hannifan of this city. Mrs. Leonard has the privilege of remaining until July 1.

The Putnam Checker team is to play the Woonsocket, R. I., team in Woonsocket on Saturday evening, April 18th.

The grand officers of the Grand lodge of Odd Fellows on Connecticut are to make their annual visitation to Israel Putnam lodge, April 28th.

At the meeting of Putnam lodge of Elks next Tuesday evening the officers will be installed.

Frank T. Thayer has gone to Middletown, Conn., where he will be engaged for the next two or three months in dismantling and crating for shipment machinery for a cotton mill. Mr. Thayer was formerly one of the department heads of the Manhasset Mfg. Co.

James White of 324 South Main street who has been seriously ill, is slowly regaining his health.

PLAINFIELD

At the home of R. A. Weinstein, of Packer, a fire started Wednesday forenoon through the burning of some old papers in the back of the garage. The wind blew the burning papers over into the brush nearby. While Mr. Weinstein was trying to extinguish the brush fire, an outhouse caught and burned to the ground. From the heat the garage caught fire, but John Kingsley and Fred Ledger arrived at the fire in time to save the garage with a hand chemical. Immediately, they turned their attention to the brush fire which they fought under the supervision of William Exley, assistant fire warden. A square mile of brush fire of the most difficult sort was fought by men from Canterbury, assisted by men from the Plainfield Volunteer Fire Company. The Lawton Mills helpfully blew the signal for outside fires and a good number responded. For a while the fire threatened several houses in the vicinity. Some of those fighting the fire from Plainfield were: Stephen Wilbur, William Hall, Irving Dawley, and Del Gobeille.

Special Easter services are to be conducted at the First Congregational church Sunday. Special music will be rendered by the choir in the morning, the pastor preaching on The Home Beyond the Sky. In the evening the choir will give the cantata, Our Living Lord.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cleland left Friday morning for a short visit to friends in New York.

Mrs. Edith French who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Hermon Chapman, returned Thursday to her home in Minnesota.

Miss Emily Hopkins, attending Connecticut college, is at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hopkins during the Easter vacation.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The schools are having their spring vacation this week.

Mrs. James Lathrop entertained the members of the Ladies' Aid Society at her home Tuesday afternoon. The next meeting, on the 21st, is to be an all-day session for quilt tying, at Mrs. Henry Larkham's, with basket lunch at noon.

The church choir has gathered in new members and is practising special music for Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hybert Graves and Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Frink, were guests of Mrs. Lou Weaver, at East Hampton, the first of the week.

Mrs. C. C. Frink who has been ill is reported as convalescing.

At a dinner party at the home of Henry Larkham's, Sunday, E. Davis and daughters of North Haven, Mr. and Mrs. James Towne and Mrs. Minnie Towne were the guests. Mrs. M. Towne returned home with her brother, Mr. Davis for a visit.

Mrs. Edward Lovell, Mrs. Sager and Mr. Lathrop were Norwich visitors, Wednesday.

Mrs. Hiram Hawes was at Norwich Thursday evening to attend the Maine gathering and dinner at the Wauregan House.

Mr. and Mrs. James Appley and Mr. and Mrs. Milo Appley were at Attawaugan one day this week to attend the funeral of a relative, Walter E. Frissell.

A runaway fire Wednesday on Canterbury territory, near Packer, proved rather disastrous to those concerned. Besides considerable burned over land, the man who had started a bonfire of papers from which the fire spread, having no legal permit, found himself the loser of $26.80 in fine and costs, besides other damages. Permits for fires are now being withheld by the authorities until rain comes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Exley of Groton, both well known in Canterbury, where Mr. Exley had his home as a boy, are enjoying a western trip to Chicago and other places in that vicinity. On their return they will visit Lucius Exley, a nephew and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Exley, of Plainfield, who is now a student at the University of Cincinnati. Mr. Exley has been in the railroad-business for over thirty years, an engineer for about twenty-eight years, and has well earned his vacation.

BALTIC

Plainfield and Baltic Odd Fellows have accepted the challenge of Norwich lodges for a series of card games for the Lee Clegg cup. At a meeting held in Plainfield the three lodges decided to have a series of six games of whist nad pitch. Twelve men to a team, and the following games arranged: Baltic at Plainfield, May 4; Norwich at Baltic, May 8; Baltic at Norwich, May 15; Norwich at Plainfield, May 18; Plainfield at Baltic, May 22; Plainfield at Norwich, June 5.

Plainfield at present holds the cup. An interesting series is expected. The committee was, Plainfield, John Bottomley; Baltic, John Heibel; Norwich, Thos. Addison.

Loyal Liberty lodge, No. 7, I. O. O. L., M. U., held regular meeting and whist party in the club hall. Many tables were played and the evening was enjoyed by all.

Serious operation avoided

Resinol healed stubborn sore

Elyria, Ohio, March 1:—"I feel it my duty and pleasure to thank you for the wonderful cure your Resinol salve has wrought for my husband, who suffered from an open sore on the back of his neck for four years. Several doctors said that it was a cancer and advised its removal, but it was so near the base of the brain that we feared an operation. I had found Resinol Ointment so effective for cuts, burns and similar things that I induced my husband to try that. After using only two jars of Resinol, the sore entirely healed—every trace of it has disappeared. Resinol certainly was a God-send to us!" (Signed) Mrs. E. E. Keaney, 240 E. 8th St.

TEN MINUTE LENTEN SERMON

By the Rev. Charles Emerson Burton, D. D.

CHRIST THE WORLD'S SAVIOR

Sermon topic. Immortality; Brought life and immortality to light.—2 Tim. 1: 10.

How is it that I have never seen Christ? He is said to have risen from the dead and to live evermore, but I have never seen him.

How is it that your spirit has never seen my spirit? How is it that my mind has never seen your mind? Our bodies look upon our bodies, and that mysterious something which we call our mind translates the nerve messages which pass through the eyes into certain ideas about one another; but no spirit of a man has ever seen a spirit of a man. Perhaps you have had some experience which you have considered to be immediate contact of your spirit with the spirits of your friends.

We are in deep waters when we talk of these things, but these are possibilities.

Likewise it may be that you have had experiences in which you have felt sure that your spirit has touched the spirit of Christ.

Such is the confidence of millions of people living and of many more millions of people who have gone on. Just now we are concerned to make sure that the fact that we have never seen the spirit of Christ with our physical eyes has no bearing on the question of his living reality, nor upon the question of the immortality of our own souls.

This life is the birthplace of the spiritual life. Out of chaos the worlds were made; out of the material substances living substances have been formed; out of living substances God has wrought the human soul, child of God and of eternity. How do we know these things?

We do not. We believe them. But you say, Why should I not disbelieve them. You can if you want to; the important thing is that you are free to believe them if you desire to. It is a great moral question, Do you want to believe in immortality? If you do, you may, and enjoy the consequences immediately.

Immortality is a thing to be practised now; that is, man is to live on the assumption that he is to live forever. It will be a different life he lives than it would be if he assumed that it was only a little while he could be here and that he might as well eat, drink and be merry, with all the materialistic philosophy involved.

To live as though we were immortal gives meaning to life. It restrains us from meanness, littleness and impurity. It inspires us to nobility, honesty, justice, kindness, helpfulness, the high qualities of the fine soul. Space does not permit recording the arguments for immorality. Suffice it to say that there are sufficient grounds for our confidence.

If, however, we have no ability to arrive at such grounds of confidence philosophically, we are free to choose the richer probability; we are free to follow Christ in the faith of immortality and to live accordingly. In such discipleship we shall find salvation.

HORSES GAVE WARNING OF SAND-BANK CAVE-IN

New York, April 10.—The premonition of impending disaster, often credited to dumb beasts, seemed to have impelled two horses to give warning today of a sand-bank cave-in at Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, in which one man lost his life.

When the horses began to plunge and rear in an unaccountable way just before the cave-in, one of them, hearing a noise overhead, looked up and saw the bank crumbling.

Andrew Bogart, one of the four men working at the foot of the bank, died before thte tons of sand. His three companions and the two horses leaped to stfety before the sand rolled down

WATER AND FIRES.

For the combined purpose of providing an adequate water supply and acting as a check upon the woodland fires which have been prevalent all over New England, such precipitation as the weatherman provides is bound to be heartily welcomed. With the rainfall much below normal and with the grass, brush and dry leaves in just the condition to burn quickly and fiercely there is need of soaking rain that will render a double service.

Orders which have been issued by fire warden withdrawing permits to start fires, and stopping the issuance of any new ones, are a timely response to the present day conditions. This is part of the statewide protective service that is so organized to bring desired results if there is the right amount of cooperation and a disposition to refrain from taking risks that may endanger the property and investments of others as well as of self.

It has already been made plain that the need of saving water has not disappeared. We have the protection of a partial supply but we are not in a position to tolerate the wasting of any part of it, and this will be all the more important if we are not going to obtain this spring a rainfall that is normal or that will serve to make up for the drought of last fall. The best protection against a shortage lies in making the best use of what is available and applying the brakes on the waste before the bottom of the entire reservoir is visible.

Care in the use of city water is the same kind of care that is needed in the prevention of spring fires. Too many of them that involve large losses are entirely needless. Rain will serve for a time to reduce the tinderlike condition of the carpet of grass and leaves but if the firebrand is not applied to the dry material there'll be no fires. Inasmuch as the human agency is responsible for starting the majority of the fires there's a chance for real results in the way of prevention. All that is needed is the proper cooperation and the determination to stop being careless.

DOLLAR BILLS.

Some time ago the treasury department sought a greater circulation of the silver dollars. It was for the purpose of relieving the demands upon the department for paper currency of that denomination, and it was pointed out that it would mean a saving of something like a million a year if the silver dollars could be put into circulation with a corresponding let up in the work of printing the dollar bills.

It must be admitted that not many of the silver dollars have been seen. It doesn't appear that they are what might be called in general circulation and if that is so they are causing anywhere any great amount of inconvenience. But the treasury department is responsible for the statement that the demand for dollar bills has about swamped it. This indicates that there has been no hearty reception given to the idea of using silver instead of paper, but there is an interesting feature of this statement when it is declared that the famine is due to the use of our currency abroad and the deterioration of the paper money which is hastened by the grease and gas on the hands of garage men.

It may be possible to get a grease and oil proofing for the bills, or the garagemen may be prevailed upon to wear gloves when handling the money, or leave such work entirely to the cashier. Of that there seems to be as little prospect as there is that those who prefer paper money will go to the aid of the treasury department by using silver.

There is of course a chance that those who regard the two dollar bill as a hoodoo will get over their superstition and bring some relief by encouraging a greater circulation of them, or a new $3 bill might be adopted to take care of the price tags which call for $2.75 or $2.98.

When it is stated, however, that the 416,000,000 dollar bills are not sufficient to meet the demands it shows among other things that present day conditions haven't caused the popularity or the use of the dollar to decrease as has been the case with the nickel.

TURKEY'S TROUBLES.

Trouble that develops to the degree of seriousness in Turkey means bloodshed. At least that has always been the case in the past and there appears to be no change in that country which would indicate any deviation therefrom.

Just at the present time the Kurds, fierce fighters of the mountains, are in revolt. Their outbreak is attributed to their dissatisfaction concerning the way in which the Turkish government has acted in regard to the head of the Moslem religion. The Kurds are butchers and when they set out to make trouble they are invariably successful, and it is no small task that is involved in controlling them. Turkey thus appears to be having troubles at home which calls for serious attention. With a revolt on its hands it has no alternative but to suppress it, and when Turk meets Turk there's real fighting.

The Kurds are thus giving the Turkish government something to think about besides the adjustment of the Mesopotamian boundary, its dispute with the British concerning that having been left to the magic of nations for adjustment. Just what effect the revolt may have upon that is uncertain. It may have none. It is possible that Turkey may accept the award when the time comes even though it is against it. There is no assurance that it will, but if it shouldn't, and it has its army mobilized for the purpose of putting the Kurds in their place, it would not be very difficult for it to switch its operations to the maintenance of the boundary which it thinks is right.

Turkey hasn't gotten to the point where its various moves are not regarded with suspicion. Its moves for changed conditions may be sincere but it occupies the position of being required to prove them. It has long been an uncertain quarter and it is only natural that early attention should be directed to the various developments which take place there which may have a bearing of international character.

CUTTING DOWN TAXES.

After a wild orgy of spending there may be a disposition to continue or it may bring about a determination to retrench. Federal expenditures increase easily but there has happily been the disposition shown by the administration to eliminate the unnecessary, to get back to as near normal as possible and to practice economy instead of waste.

The example has been a highly pleasing one. The country has felt the effects of it in reduced indebtedness and reduced taxation. It displays its gratification by wanting more. That is natural, and as it should be. Speaking in Philadelphia this week Director Lord of the budget bureau reviewed once more the accomplishments and indicated that with a continuance of the policies being followed the desired tax cutting would come.

But he went even further than that for, in addition to pointing to the excellent example the government has set, and the results accomplished, he showed where it was possible for the taxpayers of the country to be still further benefited if there are only applied the same methods to state and municipal affairs that are being employed with governmental business.

There are not many states but what can appreciate the meaning of such a statement. All taxation is by no means federal and it is time for serious consideration to be given to cutting the heavy drains that are exacted in towns, cities and states. It is time to do away with the old practices of waste and get down to the brass tacks of as good business for government as for private enterprises.

INCREASING AIR SERVICE.

Whether or not the battleship is obsolete, there is no disposition to overlook the importance of providing the navy with adequate means of obtaining the full benefit of the air service.

Naval conditions have changed because of the airplane, and in order to furnish the navy with proper facilities and protection a new type of vessel has been made necessary. This is the airplane carrier, a type of ship which every navy requires today and a type of ship which comes under the limitations of the existing naval agreement.

The launching of the Saratoga means that the navy is being provided with a present day requirement, capable of carrying many airplanes and providing a surface from which they can take off and on which they can land. Such a carrier, equipped as it will be, means that greater protection will be provided against attacks from the air. The naval air service will counteract any provisions for air attacks by an enemy. It will be in readiness to deal with those planning or participating in an attack while it will increase the value of the air service in all its activities.

The situation in regard to the naval air service is quite the same as was that concerning the battleships before the naval agreement was signed. Competition between nations will be keen until there is some agreement concerning limitation, and for that reason it is not surprising that the British are urging such a move when the next limitation of armament conference is held.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Everyone would be satisfied if Easter should be bright, fair and warm.

For the remainder of the week the big rush will be to deliver the Easter bonnets.

The man on the corner says: Isn't it about time for the spring crusade in behalf of vitamins?

No one is ever injured, made homeless or left penniless by the fires which are never started.

The meetings of the horseshoers are getting about as infrequent as the century runs of the bicyclists.

The president makes it evident that he is not through economizing, and that it was not just a passing fad.

Now that the Prince of Wales has reached Africa, pictures of the African belles with whom he dances can be expected soon.

With the Pennsylvania giving names to its freight trains that will add interest and charm to the stories the railroad men tell about them.

When Moscow appeals for capital to be invested in Russia, it ought to make a bid for that increase in salary which Senator Borah is getting.

France doesn't seem to show that it has all the money that is necessary to spend upon armaments which could be eliminated by further limitations.

That small army that used to be properly busy at this season getting the launches into shape for the summer's use probably has song who are planning to hock the motor car and put in an order for one of Henry Ford's air flivvers.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

"Housecleaning" is a word that covers a wide area if it is carried to its logical conclusion. Of course we apply it first to the purification—perhaps one may say to the redemption—of a littered, filthy house. We men folks do not take kindly to the process, but we greatly enjoy the effect. Going a step farther the work involves going over the front lawn and the back yard with a fine tooth rake; it means burning up a lot of rubbish that will accumulate within and without the house in spite of the best intentions. Now with your rooms well polished, and your grounds well groomed, why not brighten up the outside of the house with a coat of paint! And if you want the job to look a bit religious touch up the blinds. Why people will deliberately let their property become an eyesore to the neighborhood is a mystery. Remember, there is no money in letting property run down.

I am not yet through with my spring housecleaning. It not only applies to the house we live in, but to the house that lives in us. The human personality is quite as valuable as the wood and brick that shelter it, and it can get a great deal dirtier! We have all been in kitchens that by no stretch of the imagination could honestly be called clean. But we have all run up against minds so much filthier as to put the kitchen out of all comparison. A dirty kitchen is sometimes unavoidable, but a dirty mind is absolutely inexcusable. If the same effort was put forth to clean up all the rooms under our hats as the housemaid puts into the rooms under our roofs, the price of Dutch cleanser would soar out of sight. There are many whose intelligence tells them that these filthy mental apartments exist outside of New York yet look upon Sunday schools, Y. M. C. A.'s, etc., as quite unnecessary.

What impressions were made upon us in our childhood! Many things fully as important that transpired five or ten years ago are now recalled only by effort. But as we look back 70 years ago (and some of us 80) how little things seem to have tucked themselves safely away in the alcoves of our brains! How well the writer remembers going to the weekly prayer meeting (mainly because his father led him there.) As those prayer meetings take shape again in his recollection, the one thing that stands out most vividly, are the prayers of "Wicked David." Now, gentle reader, don't laugh, because "Wicked David" is not a mere imagination, but a real man who had been "a holy terror." He got his name in those days when the "wicked" of him was very big and the "David" very small, and before he slouched off his wickedness, and yet the nickname clung to him. The man was poor and illiterate, and yet was the possessor of a singular power. Nobody questioned the sincerity of his moral revolution, and his prayers touched everybody.

The Lenten season technically is about to end. Churches of all denominations have more or less put special emphasis on the devotional life. Have all those who entered heartily into its spirit received a spiritual awakening? If so is the impression going to be permanent? Or is it to end when the last anthem has been sung and the benediction pronounced on Easter Sunday? If it is to enter the spiritual fiber of our natures there must be some logical connection between the "ante" and the "post" Easter seasons. Shall we plunge from the high rock of our spiritual experience down into the shallow stream, which oftentimes is a muddy stream of pleasure? Shall we open wide the flood gates of our hearts to the inrush of the secular tides that have been kept in abeyance for 40 days. If so what is to be the net results of the Lenten period? To make the post-Lenten season a time for social revelry is little short of mockery. Easter Sunday ought to be something more than the opening of prison doors.

The most dramatic moment of Palm Sunday was when the Man of Nazareth had just been acclaimed king. He had not ridden the lowly steed, nor trodden the olive and palm branches, far, when a singular emotion seized Him, and that was when the full beauty of Jerusalem burst upon Him. While others were entranced with turrets and towers of gold and marble glistening in the morning light, Jesus was looking beyond and through architectural and material Jerusalem to moral Jerusalem, which was wholly out of their thoughts. He saw what they did not, the immoral city paying the penalty of its repeated transgressions. They were utterly dumbfounded when He burst into tears, for it was unusual for kings to weep on the day of their coronation, although a great many did not many days after. As Jesus looked to the west he could easily see the blue waters of the Mediterranean. But He also saw here what they failed to see in the distant occident, and that was the colossal figure of Vespasian slowly emerging out of the waves, and his more terrible son Titus who was to completely demolish the Holy City. Hence tears and lamentation.

Last week in one of these immortal paragraphs an attempt was made to show the radical difference between a guide board and a hitching post. In this installment I wish to make a further application of the good uses of a guide board. May we not apply it locally? Would it not be well if our city had some uniform plan in labelling the streets? The stranger looks in vain for the names of some streets and not being a mind reader is put to some inconvenience. Very likely some sign boards have been torn down and have not been replaced. This does not inconvenience those who are familiar with the locality, but it puzzles strangers. Another important guide board is in the house number. Many of these are nothing more than bits of tin that once contained small numbers but have long since been rusted away. To see that small oval over the door with practically no figures upon it is provoking. Can we not use the guide board idea in this direction very profitably?

Solomon Had Airship

The precursor of the modern airship was, according to the Royal Aeronautical Society of London, a glider given by Solomon to the Queen of Sheba. It was described as "a vessel wherein no could traverse the air for wind." In early sacred writings there is reference to flight in Abyssinia. There is reference also to the miraculous way in which Menyrlek, the Queen of Sheba's son, journeyed to his mother's country. "No man hauled his wagon, and whether it was men, horses, or mules, or loaded camels, each was raised above the ground to a height of a cubit."

Wild Animals Being Saved

Reported world-wide movement undertaken to protect wild animals is proving to be successful. Great Britain started the move with bird sanctuaries, and America followed. The first wild life sanctuary in the United States was Yellowstone National Park. In Africa the movement has taken popular hold. Many types of wild life have become practically extinct, as for instance the seacow, biggest of ambhibians, and the bustard, not to forget the elephant in certain countries.

COMMUNITY CONSCIOUSNESS FOR CLEANLINESS

The winter season has left an accumulation of dirt and filth which stirs the conscience when the bright light of early spring throws it into bold relief. Nature sets a good example in the annual clean-up by sending torrential rains, one of the best cleansing agents, and warm sunshine under whose influence no germs can live long.

Clean-up Starts at Home.

The housekeeper starts by cleaning up at home. Her first move is to take down the draperies, open up all the windows, and let the sunlight flood her rooms. This is a health measure as well, for fresh air and sunshine are life giving. Recent scientists have discovered that the direct rays of the sun are a sure cure for rickets, and tuberculosis treatment depends on the sun for a therapeutic agent.

Warm water and soap, and much "elbow grease" are the best means of ridding the house of dirt. Even when some contagious disease has prevailed these are the effective agents for cleaning up, and destroying the disease germs that may lurk in the corners.

Community Clean-up.

Destruction of flies and their breeding places. The screening of doors and windows is only a small part of the fly campaign. Of prime importance is the destruction of flies at the source. Flies breed in filthy places and it is at this point where the fly campaign should begin. Manure piles, old rubbish heaps with moist decaying rags and papers, are excellent breeding places for flies in any town. Unless some measure is adopted to clean up these places flies will be attracted to such a town and abide there, growing more and more numerous day by day. In warm weather it takes about ten days for flies to develop from the egg to the adult stage, that is, if conditions are right. Any town that provides these conditions such as warm moist filth piles, or open garbage cans partly filled with decaying food, are putting up a sign "Flies—Welcome to our City," which has just as prominent as the visible sign which appears at the entrance to the highway.

To get rid of such breeding places becomes a community as well as an individual problem. Perhaps the farmer who allows his manure pile to accumulate, accessible to flies, does not know what a menace this is. It is then the responsibility of the clean up campaign committee to educate him to the dangers of flies and the means of getting rid of them. If his manure is spread on the ground, each week, it is given a chance to dry, and so eliminate fly-breeding, as the female fly will not lay eggs in a place that is not moist. Or, if the manure is allowed to accumulate in a bin thoroughly screened, the female fly cannot get in to lay eggs. Or, the manure pile may be treated each day by borax (two-thirds of a pound for each eight bushels of manure) or helebore (one-half pound in ten gallons of water for each eight bushels of manure;) these kill the eggs and larvae within the manure pile, and at the same time are reported not to affect the manure as a fertilizer. Or maggot traps can be constructed, to rid the manure pile of maggots, one of the important stages in the life history of the fly.

Another source of flies may be the town restaurant with its doors and windows not carefully screened, its rear premises cluttered with rubbish and decaying food, and its garbage collecting in boxes and cans without tight covers; or the town market with just such conditions duplicated, to the end that flies are attracted instead of repelled, and food left exposed may be contaminated and so cause the spread of disease.

If the proprietors of these places do not have a conscience of their own it is again the duty of the community to clean up such places.

Many people wait until flies appear before screening doors and windows. This is an unwise plan since flies become active at the first suggestion of warmth in the air, and the house that is unprepared is soon swarming with flies. Screens should be taken out early and mended for all cracks and holes, and attached so securely to windows and doors that it becomes an easy matter to keep them closed at all times. Flies are a source of danger in the house since they are no respecters of persons or things, and deposit filth and disease germs on all surfaces. If this happens to be food left exposed this may provide an excellent means of spreading some disease germ, for flies may have lately visited some sick room with perhaps a tuberculosis patient or been feeding on a neighbor's unscreened privy, or just emerged from the manure pile with perhaps typhoid or diarrhoea germs still clinging to their legs and body.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Resurrection.

That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, becoming conformed unto His death. Phil. 3:10.

What is your happiest festival? That question is the text of the depth of your religion, to those who truly love Christ, can any anniversary be more blessed than Easter? If Easter is not a radiant day to you, then is life dark indeed. John Ruskin wrote: When the Christian falls back out of the bright light of the resurrection, even The Orpheus song is forbidden him.

The first thought of Easter is of the jubilant uprising of powers that have lain dormant. It is the festival of the conquest of winter, the triumph of God's spring in the soul.

But the power of His resurrection is not alone the power of joy and renewal. It is the power of communion with God. When we think of what those three days of grave silence were to the disciples who had been so constantly with Jesus; and what they were to His mother, and to John! and then, in a moment the silence is broken by the loved voice, the blank vitalized by the adored countenance, those forty days of Easter conference are growing into endless ages of sweet communion between Christ and His followers.

"The power of His resurrection is also the power of an endless life," to every believer. Were it only Christ who burst the hour of death, we should have no personal interest in the matter; what more was to be expected of God? But He has told us that His resurrection involves ours. "As I live, ye shall live, also." His resurrection is an earnest of our immortality; and, in spite of all the gropings of philosophy, it is all we need. We have seen Him as a stainless child as the teacher, pure and passionate for the truth of God; as the Healer of earthly ills—yet more as the Great Physician of the soul; then as the sacrifice for the sins of man and as the Redeemer His life will have been traced to little purpose if it had not given a warmer love for Him and a yearning to obey His command, "Follow thou me."

Nathan's work as a scientist, and especially in the development of aerial navigation, has been recognized in honors bestowed upon him by numerous universities. He is prominent in various scientific societies and is director of aerodynamic laboratory in the Navy Department at Washington.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE KURDS

The Kurds are on the war path in their homeland about the headwaters of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers.

That statement stands for today; but it might bear the date of almost any century of the last 30 or 35 and still be correct, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

The Kurds would probably be awarded the fighting endurance record of the world by almost any jury after a little delving into history," says the bulletin. "The days of Assyrian power in Mesopotamia seem pretty far back toward the beginnings of history. Records of that empire show that time and again its soldiers were sent into the rough country around the headwaters of the great rivers to subdue the mountaineers—ancestors of the Kurds—who harried Assyria's outlying settlements. These same mountaineers fought the Armenians when the latter came into the region between 600 and 1,000 B. C.

"When Xenophon retreated from Asia Minor in 401 B. C. the Kurds (then called the Carduchi) attacked his 10,000 Greeks, rolling great stones down on them from cliffs and mountains. They fought continually against the Bagdad Caliphs, since the Turks rose to power in Asia Minor the Kurds have fought them repeatedly. In fact, the Turks have never established any considerable measure of control over these fierce, freedom-loving highlanders.

"Since the Great war the European territory of Turkey has been negligible. The country has consisted almost solely of the big, fat peninsula lying between the Black Sea on the north and the eastern arm of the Mediterranean on the south, and an extension to the east about as broad as the Asia Minor peninsula, reaching roughly half way from the Black Sea to the Caspian. The southern half of this eastern extension—the southeastern corner of postwar Turkey—is Kurdistan. The other half of the eastern extension, immediately north of Kurdistan, was once Turkish Armenia. Now that tens of thousands of the Armenian residents have been driven across the Russian border, while other tens of thousands have perished, the region hardly deserves the old name. The Kurdish population was always high in Turkish Armenia; now it is proportionately much greater. The whole eastern end of present Turkey, constituting almost a third of the territory of the country, therefore, may roughly be considered the Kurdish sphere of influence.

"Geographic and political and economic complications aplenty are found in this region. On the east Kurdistan touches Persia, and the people for a considerable distance into that country are Kurds too. Indeed, Kurdish people inhabit the entire Zagros Mountain range which extends from Turkey for 600 miles to the southeast, forming the boundary between Persia and Iraq. The map as drawn by the European peace treaties shows the southern border of Kurdistan about 100 miles north of Mosul, which city is shown to be in Iraq. But this is not the boundary in the eyes of the Kurds. They claim the territory extending some miles south of Mosul. Except in Mosul city, the population of this region is almost solidly Kurdish. The French mandate of Syria wedges in near Mosul and still further complicates the political situation.

"It is the odor and power of petroleum that in some ways dominates all else in the region, however. What promises to become one of the major oil fields of the world centers about Mosul, and it is because of British interest in this fact, the Turks assert, that the northern boundary of the British protectorate of Iraq was pushed so far north. The Turks insist—and the Kurds agree with them as to this—that this is only a 'paper boundary' and that the actual frontier must be fixed finally farther to the south.

"The Kurds belong to the Iranian branch of the white race. Because of the open-air lives which they live, most of them have harsh features. The great majority are nominally Mohammedans but they do not practice polygamy. Some few of them near Mosul are Yezidis or Devil Worshipers. Those who are Mohammedans take their religion rather less seriously than the Arabs and even the Turks. They follow the Shiinah sect, whose members are looked upon as heretics by the orthodox Moslems.

"The plateau region lying partly in old Armenia, partly in Kurdistan, where many of the most warlike Kurds live, presents a good example of the effects on man of a mixture of rugged uplands and fertile valleys. Limestone mountains and recently extinct volcanoes occupy the upper levels. Lower are magnificent canyons cut by the Tigris and Euphrates heads streams, and numerous broad, basin-shaped valleys whose floors are fertile plains. The ancestors of the Kurds were pushed from many of these desirable lowlands by the Armenian invasion and from others by the later arriving Turks. Since their dispossession, these highlanders have been the enemies of both Armenians and Turks, though they have been content at times to be the instrument of the latter in persecuting the former.

"Diarbekr, one of the cities reported to be in the hands of the revolting Kurds, is old Amida of the Romans, one of the great fortresses that guarded the southern frontier of the empire. It has tremendously massive walls built of black basalt, which gives it an aspect unlike that of any other city in the world. Some of its oldest buildings, relics of the dwellings of ancient potentates, are constructed of alternate bands of yellow marble and black basalt."

Are You Discouraged?

Helen Hunt Jackson's Many Bereavements

Given all the advantages of a happy home of refinement Helen Fiske rebelled at restrictions about her, and in later years conditions grew worse until they seemed unbearable.

Daughter of a professor of languages at Amherst college, Amherst, Mass., she was precocious and her parents gave her every opportunity, but she liked to have her own way.

Only 13 when her parents died, she was placed by her grandfather in the school of J. S. C. Abbott at New York, where she made a brilliant record in her studies. At 21 she married Major Edward B. Hunt, brother of the governor of New York and a young West Point graduate, recognized for his ability and promise.

Then came the happy life of society at Newport and West Point, where she was a favorite. The joy of motherhood was clouded by the death of her first child. Soon afterward came the death of her husband in an accident while experimenting with his invention of a submarine gun, and at 33 she was left with an eight-year old son.

For two years she lived for her boy. He was then stricken with diphtheria and just before his death pleaded, "Promise me, mama, that you will not kill yourself." The sorrow was so great that it was feared that she might commit suicide and her physician thought she would die of grief.

Emerging from her bereavement, she began to write. Her first poem, Lifted Over, was printed in the Nation and caused countrywide discussion. She wrote other poems, essays children's stories and articles on travel, the home and kindred subjects, using the pen name H. H.

Going to Colorado Springs, Colo., in search of health, she married William S. Jackson, a rich banker of that city, at 45, and their home became a literary center. To publish broadcast the wrongs against the Indians in that vicinity she wrote A Century of Dishonor. Three years later she produced Ramona, a novel which was an appeal for justice to the Indians, but it was of such high literary standard that it won her universal recognition.

At the time of her death Helen Hunt Jackson was acclaimed as one of America's greatest women writers.

Letters Like This Prove the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Turtle Lake, Wisconsin. — "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, backache and nervousness. I had these troubles for years and had taken other medicines for them, but I have found no medicine so good as the Vegetable Compound and I recommend it to my friends who have troubles similar to mine. I saw it advertised and thought I would try it and it has helped me in all my troubles. I have had six children and I have taken the Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound before each one was born, for weakness, vomiting, poor appetite and backache, and again after childbirth because of dizzy headaches. It is a good medicine for it always helps me. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for the last eight years for constipation." — Mrs. Mabel La Point, R.F.D. Stories That Recall Others

The Doctor Came.

The butcher is a man who wishes to sympathize with all his customers and who takes a great interest in domestic affairs. Mrs. A., whose father has been ill for several months, came into the store one day last week and asked for some pork chops. The butcher, before getting the meat, inquired concerning the condition of the woman's father.

"How is your father, today?" he asked.

"Not so well," replied the customer, "The doctor came and gave him another epidemic this morning."

Keeping the Conversation Going.

Dorothy was an only child, and a spoiled one. She had spent the greater part of her five years in the company of "grownups" and she had learned many of their ways. One day Aunty Maude, one of mother's girlhood chums, invited Dorothy to a party she was having for her little daughter. At the party Aunty Maude urged Dorothy to have a second plate of ice cream. Although Dorothy refused she was urged again.

"Oh, no, I just could not," answered Dorothy. "You see before I left home my mother made me eat something because she said that she never had enough at your house, and she would not want me to go hungry. So I don't feel like eating anything more."

Aunty Maude was greatly amused and called Dorothy's mother the next morning to find out what the child had meant. Mother knew that Aunty Maude was not angry, but nevertheless she called Dorothy to her and demanded an explanation.

"Why did you tell Aunty Maude such a naughty story?"

"Well, mother," replied the astonished Dorothy, "that wasn't telling a story, that was just making conversation."

Former Representative McKenzie of Illinois was elected chairman of the Muscle Shoals commission at the first session of that organization, recently appointed by President Coolidge.

PRINCE OF WALES MEETS CHIEFS OF THE ASHANTI

Kumassi, Ashanti, April 10 (By the A. P.)—The Prince of Wales today met the chiefs of the Ashanti at a grand palaver, following his arrival here this morning from Secondee. The chiefs presented the prince with an address of welcome and a gold duplicate of the Ashanti sword of state, made by local goldsmiths.

A noted figure among the chiefs who greeted the prince was former King Prempeh, who was exiled by the British in 1900 to Seychelles Islands in the Indian ocean. He was released last year and today was a member of the reception committee. Prempeh was the only native on the royal dais.

When the prince drove up to the great semi-circular gathering of the chiefs, two of them advanced and presented gifts. The scene was a perfect riot of gold and brilliant color, one chief being covered with massive gold ornaments that hung around his neck, wrists, ankles and knees, while he carried huge bangles on his arms. Even the retainers wore fortunes in the shape of gold staves, while the executioners each had four large solid gold knives slung across their backs.

There was an impressive scene when the Ashanti drummer performed on the native drums, with which the natives are able to communicate for great distances.

Some of the chiefs traveled 500 miles to attend the ceremony.

FINDS THAT OLD-FASHIONED DOCTOR WAS NOT FAR WRONG

Cleveland, April 10.—Old fashioned doctors, who believed the disposition of their patients, and some of their ills, were due to "humors" in the blood, were not far wrong, scientists addressing the American Association of Anatomists' convention, admitted today.

"Hormones" are secreted from certain ductless glands, and not from the heart or liver, as formerly believed, and play an enormously important role in determining the disposition of the individual, they declared.

How Mother Nature is tirelessly striving to make man a better physical entity and better adapted to the work he has to do was illustrated in a number of papers by Dr. William W. Graves, St. Louis, Dr. N. William Ingalls, Cleveland, and others.

Dr. Ingalls pointed out how human bones vary in size and shape, a thing not found in animals of the same species.

Vertebrae in gestation develop two sets of kidneys and lose them before they finally arrive at a third and permanent set. Dr. F. B. Hanan, of the University of Buffalo, said he has established. The second of this series of three actually functions, at least in the case of a chicken, Dr. Hanan added.

A new vitamine, as yet unnamed, was the subject of a paper by Dr. Herbert M. Evans and Dr. George O. Burr of the University of California. They reported finding it in wheat, corn, oats, cotton, lettuce, alfalfa and bananas.

STEAMER MORORE WAS FLOATED AT HIGH TIDE

Norfolk, Va., April 10—The American steamer Morore, which went ashore off Smith's Island seven miles northeast of Cape Charles lightship, was floated tonight by the coast guard cutter Carrabassett, which reported to headquarters here that the ship was not badly damaged.

LORETTA HIGGINS SINGS WITH TIMES CHORAL CLUB

Miss Loretta P. Higgins of this city, who has been on the metropolitan staff of the New York Times for the last six months, recently had opportunity to use her musical talent for the pleasure of fifteen hundred newly arrived immigrants at Ellis Island where the New York Times choral society of 75 members gave a concert. In its account of the concert, The Little Times says: Miss Loretta Higgins sang "Roses of Picardy" with a distinctive charm and sweetness. The audience was so pleased that they cheered and applauded for several minutes and Mrs. Higgins was obliged to offer additional encores.

In a recent issue of the Mid-Week Pictorial, published by the Times company, the pen of Miss Higgins contributed a gracefully written sketch upon the successful invasion of the French operatic stage by American singers, which was illustrated by pictures of Marguerite Namara and William Martin, Rosalie Miller, American Soprano, Mary Lewis, former Follies beauty, and Miss Susan Steell, winner of the Jeritza scholarship.

SOON TO BREAK GROUND AT STORRS FOR $75,000 COMMUNITY BUILDING

Within a few weeks it is expected that ground will be broken at Storrs on the grounds of Connecticut Agricultural college for the new $75,000 community building to be built with funds secured in the state-wide campaign by the Connecticut Federation of Churches for $300,000 for this building and a new church to cost $150,000.

When the funds have reached a sufficient sum, the work on the church will be taken up. This will replace the present historic structure that has served for church purposes for so many years.

The remaining $75,000 will be used as an endowment fund and the income from this money will provide for the maintenance of both buildings. The operators and employes, are largely Protestants.

To meet the religious needs of the community there is now a wooden structure built about 1846 on a church site in existence since pre-Revolutionary days. The present church has a maximum capacity of about 200, is old and draughty in winter and totally inadequate to the needs of the community.

On Old Church Site.

The proposed church and community building will be located on the site of the present frame church surrounded by the college grounds. The building as a whole is planned in the early Georgian architecture, the front of the portico having a colonnade composed of four white Corinthian columns. Surmounting the portico will be a Georgian steeple of the Christopher Wren type which will be in proportion to the size of the church building. The main entrance to the community building will have the same character as the entrance to the church, although on a much smaller scale. The outside walls of the building will be built of hard, burned, Connecticut brick run in shades from light salmon to black. There will be wide colonial casings around all of the windows and white cornices at the eaves. Roofs will be of slate. Heat for the building will be obtained from the college power plant a short distance away.

Auditorium to Seat 350.

The church auditorium is planned to seat approximately 350 persons with the choir and pipe organ room at the pulpit end of a small balcony at the rear of the auditorium. Rooms are also provided for the minister and musicians and the circular space connecting the two buildings is planned to be used as a men's class room.

The length of the church will be 88 feet, and the width 48 feet. The community building has a length of approximately 104 feet and a width of 144 feet. The estimate on construction of the building provides for installation of a pipe organ in the chapel and of the principal equipment for both structures.

The ground floor of the community house will be at a lower level, bringing the upper floor on a level with the main floor of the church. The community building will provide rest and lounging room, rooms for conferences and small social gatherings, a kitchen, and an assembly room on the upper floor to seat 340 persons or 208 at banquet tables.

Uses for Community Building.

The community building is expected to serve the church as an adequate housing for the Sunday school; congenial quarters for the Christian Endeavor society; rooms for student Bible classes; a home for the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., and similiar organizations; religious meetings, where desired, for non-Protestant groups; headquarters for ladies' circles and other church organizations; suppers and other social gatherings under the auspices of the church.

This building will be put to other uses apart from religious work. It will be available for meetings of student clubs, fraternities, student council gatherings and other similar uses; social and educational gatherings under the management of the Faculty club, Woman's club, or other faculty or community groups; small dinners and banquets such as those of the football team, dramatic or debating clubs and student publications; entertainment of visitors, such as parents of students, visiting athletic teams, transients; regular meetings of Boy Scouts, the Storrs grange, etc.

The community house, although under control of the church, will be open to all students regardless of religious affiliation.

State Has $2,000,000 Invested.

Connecticut now has something over $2,000,000 of public money invested in land, buildings and equipment at Storrs. Since its foundation in 1881, the college has doubled its enrollment every ten years and now, with 500 students, it is at its height in popularity and growth. Such provision as has been made for the religious life of Storrs has come largely through the community itself—composed entirely of faculty families, college employes and students.

500 Students at College.

Of the 500 students, 60 per cent. are Protestant, representing Congregational, Episcopal, Baptist, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, Universalist, and Dutch Reformed denominations, while 30 per cent. are Roman Catholics, and 10 per cent., Jews. The faculty, experiment station and extension service staffs, comprises about sixty heads of families and forty unmarried instructors.

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE MEETING IN RICHMOND

"Connie," the friendly Ford of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, is to be one of the Connecticut delegation at the League's Richmond, Va., national convention. Miss Sally Fannie Gleaton, field secretary, is to start on Tuesday and if "Connie" is as dependable as usual, they hope to reach Richmond Wednesday night, Miss Mildred Gutterson, field secretary of the Massachusetts league will accompany Miss Gleaton.

The good roads and the spring weather added to the usual joys of motoring are attracting other league motor parties. One will go from Hartford and another from Fairfield county, Massachusetts is to have a special Pullman and several Connecticut delegates will go with them. A boat trip down the Chesapeake appeals to others. Ohio and adjacent states will have a motor caravan.

Miss Katherine Ludington of Lyme, national treasurer will be hostess at a finance luncheon on April 20 which is advertised as one of the gala events of the convention.

Miss Ludington is making liberal plans for this luncheon, which will boast unique features, including a scenario.

The Connecticut delegation will include: Mrs. Herbert Knox Smith of Farmington, president of the Connecticut league; Mrs. N. E. Clark, of Lakeville, a director-at-large; Mrs. James E. Howell, of Salisbury, also a director; Mrs. Samuel C. Shaw, of Redding, third vice-president; Mrs. Emerson Newell, of Greenwich, finance chairman; Mrs. William Couch, of Cromwell, treasurer; Mrs. F. C. Bursch, of Riverside, chairman of the committee on living costs; Miss Emily Whitney, of New Haven, chairman of the committee on education; Mrs. F. U. Johnstone, of Woodstock; Mrs. Milton Simon, of West Hartford, chairman of the committee on international co-operation to prevent war; Miss Frances P. Miller, of Middletown; Mrs. William R. Vance, of New Haven; Mrs. Donald Mitchell, chairman of New London county; Mrs. L. A. Howland, of Middlebury; Mrs. A. Merritt, of Woodstock; Mrs. A. L. Hauerwas, of Waterbury; Mrs. Charles F. deForest, of New Haven; Mrs. William P. Fales of Hartford; Miss Augusta Boone, of Meriden; Mrs. Louise Brown, of East Lyme; Mrs. W. F. Worrall, of Meriden; Mrs. Guy Butler, of New Haven; Mrs. Eva Schuler, of Meriden; Mrs. Hartwell Taylor, of New Britain; Mrs. Scoville Hamlin, of Greenwich, and Miss Grace Murray, of Hartford.

STATE HOSPITAL CHEF SUFFERS SERIOUS INJURY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 10—Fred Smith, of this city, employed as chef at the Norwich State hospital, is a patient at the institution suffering from general shock and a fractured leg, sustained yesterday when he was run over by one of the trucks of the institution. Mr. Smith is about 60 years of age and because of the shock to his nervous system there are doubts whether he will recover. The hospital authorities are attempting to locate some of the victim's relatives that they may be acquainted with the seriousness of his condition.

Mr. Smith was walking through the yard of the hospital and in some manner was struck by the truck, the wheels passing over one leg, and producing a fracture in three places.

CREW OF THE SEA GULL TAKEN TO NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 10.—The two men who comprised the crew of the motor launch Sea Gull, believed to belong in Greenport, and which was seized by the patrol boat, CG-240 yesterday forenoon, about 20 miles west of Montauk Point, with a supply of approximately 400 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey, were taken in charge this morning by a guard from the United States Coast Guard section base here and taken to the state pier. They were taken aboard a revenue cutter en route for New York where their trial will take place. The seized boat and her cargo are held under guard at the state pier.

WILL RUSH RE-BUILDING OF THE CROCKER HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 10—Work was started in earnest today by the Oliver Woodworth company, contractors, and the Crocker house, gutted by fire early Tuesday morning will be rebuilt. A force of laborers and motor trucks was started at work early in the forenoon removing the vast amount of debris from the ruins. While it will take some time to accomplish this part of the work it will be rushed as rapidly as possible.

As soon as the debris has been removed a large force of carpenters and masons will be assigned to work on rebuilding the structure, which, when completed will be of brick, five stories in height and practically of the same architecture as the former building. Mr. Woodworth stated today that the work will be pushed along at a rapid speed in order to cause the completion of the building at the earliest possible date and he believed that with the force of men he will put to work that the new structure will be ready for occupancy early in the summer. The annex is being used to provide accommodation for the permanent lodgers at the hotel and is filled to capacity.

Insurance adjusters, who arrived in New London yesterday have not tackled the job of determining the exact loss sustained by the Mahan estate, owners of the hotel, but will do so next week. As the hotel owners carried insurance on the structure to the amount of $160,000, together with the fact that all the store rentals were insured, assuring a monthly payment of rent until the new building is completed, the loss to the Mahan estate will be small, if it is anything. An adjustment of the losses of two of the stores was made late yesterday.

EXPLAINS ADVANTAGES OF MODERN SUNDAY SCHOOL

The advantages of the modern Sunday school room over the old time Sunday school room were explained to the members of the Central Baptist church Friday evening at the church by George E. Merrill of New York city, architect of the Northern Baptist convention. Mr. Merrill's talk followed the prayer meeting and business meeting of the church which was held at 7:45 o'clock. Nineteen applications for baptism and membership in the church were favorably acted upon. It is expected that about 30 will be baptised and admitted to membership in the church at the Easter morning service.

Following the church meeting, at which Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor, presided, and which was held in Bushnell chapel, adjournment was taken to the church auditorium where Rev. Dr. Pitt introduced George E. Merrill, New York city, architect of the Northern Baptist convention. Mr. Merrill explained how comfortable furniture and attractively arranged Sunday school rooms are replacing the old time Sunday school room. Attractive Sunday schools, he added, tend to greatly increase the school membership. Mr. Merrill advocated separating the younger members of the school from the older members.

He showed a number of slides of Sunday school rooms, illustrating the modern layout which increases the efficiency of the school. Classes in session were shown and pictures of various churches, exterior and interior, were shown. Each picture was explained by Mr. Merrill.

Mr. Merrill, at the close of his talk, answered a number of questions as to how the Sunday school of the Central Baptist church can be improved. He advocated a new building to be used exclusively for Sunday school purposes and to be connected with the church proper.

JEWISH WOMEN'S INTERSTATE CONFERENCE FOR BRIDGEPORT

The Connecticut-Rhode Island interstate conference of the Council of Jewish Women will be held at Hotel Stratfield, Bridgeport, on April 21 and 22. Nathan Krass of New York, Miss Matilda Drefuss, Mrs. Captiman, Miss Zussman and Mrs. Leo Herz, national chairman, will be the speakers on the opening day. Religious schools, social welfare, reports, five-minute papers and fifteen-minute discussions will make up that day's programme. On Wednesday other important social problems will be taken up. On this day, Mrs. Milton Simon of Hartford will give her legislative report for Connecticut and Mrs. M. Einstein for Rhode Island. Mrs. William Loeb will speak on extension work between the two states.

There will be a luncheon Wednesday noon at which the Rev. W. H. Day of Bridgeport will speak on "Peace," Miss Florine Lasker, national chairman on immigration, will talk on that subject. At the luncheon there will be several round table discussions. Mrs. Slabodkin of Norwalk will lead the talk on "Probelms of Small Sections;" Mrs. Shapiro of Bridgeport, "Programs and Speakers;" Mrs. Fellman of Woonsocket, R. I., "Immigrant Aid" and Mrs. Levy of Newport, R. I., "Religious Schools."

Mrs. Jerome Mayer of No. 238 Oxford street is in charge of the reservations.

JUDGE BURPEE'S ESTATE LEAVES LITTLE FOR WIDOW

Former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb appeared Thursday before the judiciary committee in favor of the bill directing the comptroller to pay the amount of the salary of the late Judge Lucien F. Burpee as a state referee to his widow, Ina S. Burpee, of Hartford. Ex-Governor Holcomb based his appear more on the state's indebtedness to Judge Burpee for his services as chairman of the military emergency board during the World war and said that the death of Judge Burpee was really a war casualty. He had worn out his life on the job in the military emergency board. Former State's Attorney Terance W. Carmody, of Waterbury, who is an executor of the will with Mrs. Burpee, also appeared for the bill. It was stated that Judge Burpee's estate provides an income of less than $1,000 a year for his widow.

SEDGWICK RELIEF CORPS HELD REGULAR MEETING

Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps met Friday afternoon at Buckingham Memorial with the president, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, presiding. Reports of officers and of several committees were read and approved. On April 22 a masquerade social will be held for the members and their friends and in the same week a supper will be given. Salute to the flag and the singing of America brought the meeting to a close.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO ST. PATRICK'S PARISH

During the Holy Thursday services at St. Patrick's church the mass at 8 o'clock was celebrated by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. In the procession, when the Sacred Host was preceded by lines of little girls dressed in white and by 30 altar boys carrying lighted candles, the canopy was borne by Thaddeus Leahy, Francis Caulfield, Joseph Mahoney and John Brennan.

The Good Friday mass was read by Rev. John J. Reilly, and Rt. Rev. Mgr. May assisted in the solemn ceremonial of the veneration of the cross.

Those present in the church during the evening of the parish welcome home to Mgr. May still comment upon the beauty of the high and side altars, which are of choicest marble and which had been adorned with lillies in tall gold vases by Miss Annie Edwards. Miss Abbie Sheehan and Miss Elizabeth Sullican, of the Altar society.

It is a matter of interest to each member of the big parish that Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who so successfully formulated and carried out the plans for the recent reception, is to have a vacation next week, to be spent at the home of his parents in Waterbury.

As an aftermath of the great celebration, parishioners and others are expressing pleasure with the music during the march—the excellent and inspiring numbers by Swahn's Band, the Italian Band, St. Patrick's Boy Scouts' Drum Corps and the martial music of George Houston's East Side Drum Corps. The natty white uniforms of the last named players made a hit all along the line and the little drum major, Billie Gallagher, who led the 25 players came in for a big share of compliments and admiration.

These drummers were organized by Charles Dickerman and have been instructed by George Houston, a drummer of exceptional skill.

To Jail From City Court.

In the city court Friday morning three men were committed to jail for inability to pay their fines for intoxication. All were out of town men hailing from Willimantic, Hartford and Providence. A Canterbury man, charged with intoxication, was more fortunate as he had the $5 and costs for his case.

William Dempski of Greeneville obtained a nolle in his case, on recommendation of Acting City Attorney Telley E. Babcock, when John Yaremski, the complainant, failed to appear in court. Dempski was charged with the theft of $64 from Yaremski, the latter claiming that while he and the defendant were on a drunk together, he went to sleep, and upon awakening, missed the $64 he had in his clothes. He claimed that Dempski was the only man with him. Evidence showed that Dempski had no money with him prior to his arrest, but when arrested had the sum of $25 on his person. Dempski claimed this money was given to him by his wife, his mother and other persons.

Knocked Down Small Boy

Late Thursday afternoon, a small boy, Joseph Koziol of 283 Laurel Hill avenue, was struck and knocked down in front of The Bulletin office by a motor truck driven by Henry J. Hoefer of Highland street, Taftville. The boy reported at police headquarters that he was not hurt at all.

The boy was crossing the street with a lot of small change in his hand and his chief concern was to recover all the dimes and nickels which were sent flying in all directions as he fell.

ACADEMY OPENS BASEBALL SEASON TODAY AGAINST ALUMNI TEAM

Providing the rain, which was steadily falling when this edition went to press, does not continue so as to make the Academy campus a mire the Academy baseball team will open its 1925 season against Willie McKnight's alumni team this afternoon. The local superiors of the Academy team will have their first opportunity to see the rejuvenated club in action today against an experienced aggregation of local ball players. Coach Brigham intends this game to be more or less of a practice game but from all indications the Academy boys will have to step high, wide and handsome to start the season with a victory.

Coach Brigham, provided the weather is suitable, expects to start Lloyd Jarvis, the Jewett City ace, against the Alumni team. Jarvis has shown that he has the makings of a real first class pitcher and it is predicted that before the season is over, Johnny Green, the freshman smoke ball pitcher, is also expected to work part of the game as is Ray Woods who is showing up very well.

Jack Hinrichs, Mace Goldblatt and Mish are expected to work behind the bat while Burke and Sullivan will split the work at the initial sack. The second base position will find Mope Carlin and Izzy Sadinsky battling it out. Cimilkowski and Busch will alternate in the short field while Les Carroll and Labinsky will split the game at third. In the outfield the time will be split up between Jarvis, Green, Hamill, McGowan, Brewer, Welch and McVeigh.

It will be a disappointed crowd if Coach Brigham does not let Shorty Hamill get into the game. Local fans who have seen the midget outfielder play realize that in spite of his size he is a natural ball player and besides that he is really a dangerous man at bat. He is going to be the nemesis of many a pitcher this season. He presents only a small target for the pitcher and if the occasion demands he can hit and bunt with the best of them. After Thursday's practice Shorty picked out a bat for himself and says that nobody else is going to use it but he. Shorty in the short space of time that he has been at the Academy has become one of the most popular of the undergraduate body.

Bill McKnight's lineup will include several of the old-timers who still think that they are good. The spirit may be willing but the fish may be weak. Today's game will tell. Ellie Segal, last year's Academy pitching ace, will oppose his former teammates. Perry Hollander, also of last year's team will be in back of the bat completing a battery that should be able to hold the school boys in check. On first will be Big Ed Harris, former Red Sox player. Standish will try to cover the second base district; Hal Hull will take care of the shortfield position while Manager McKnight will knock them down at third. In the outfield will be Phil McNamara, captain of last year's team and home run hitter. Phil will play left field. In center will be George O. Madden, athlete extraordinary. Use your own judgment on that last phrase. George says he is going to wear tweed knickers and golf stockings so that people can tell him from the other players who will be in baseball uniforms. And last but by no means least will be Leslie Veronica Manchester. Everyone knows Leslie's ability as a ball player. That last remark is not meant in any disparaging sense. Also there will be plenty of spare material to send in should any of the veterans go bad.

BULKELEY SHUTS OUT COAST PATROL TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 10.—The Bulkeley team for the second time this week has swithin the space of three days to be exact enjoyed another batting bee at the expense of the Coast Guard Division No. 4 here at Morgan Park this afternoon, pulling out on the long end of a 14 to 6 score. In concluding the series with the government outfit, the Bulkeley pitchers were far more impressive in their work this afternoon than in the previous contest. Both Dazzy Parisi and Tillie Daniels, who shared the work during the afternoon, held the marauding gobs to a mere four hits. And the support these twirlers were accorded in the pinches was nothing to scoff about.

By way of incident, a part reproduction of the game played on Wednesday was enacted for the fans. This was a home run by a Bulkeley player with the bases fully occupied. Daniels performed this feat on Wednesday against the same team in the first inning but failed to touch second in his trip around the sacks. This afternoon, Joe Gaetano, diminutive shortstop, found the same setting in front of him and proceeded to clean up with a four ply wallop which put the Bulkeley team to the front to say. It is very seldom that a high school team will go through the season with such an event happening once, not alone having the same thing happen on almost successive days and in the same inning.

There was some improvement noted in the work out of the gobs, but their work was not good enough to give them a chance for a victory. Minus three of its first string players, Montall, the hard hitting Sheffott behind the plate, and Mansfield in right field the team was a weakling in comparison to the real strength it can possess with all of the regulars there, played well enough offensively if not defensively. There are a few rough spots which prevent the team from operating more evenly and better balanced in the field. But it is early in the season as yet and no reason need be harbored for a bad beginning next Saturday.

Bulkeley is probably fortunate to have the batting responsibility shifted from a group of players one day onto the shoulders of some other players the next day. This was particularly true this afternoon, with Booth missing fire with his deadly bat and the absence of Sheffott and Montall brought about the shifting of their burdens to a new group this afternoon. Gaetano had a home run and two singles to account for an afternoon's work, while Joe Barry managed to connect for a triple, a double and a single. The remainder of the batting order remained inactive, but the first team batting order can be feared by any pitcher which will stack up against the Bulkeley firing squad this spring.

Parisi was impressive on the mound during his stay and had seven strike outs to his credit. Tillie Daniels, who placed him, had a delegation of his former Duwell friends pay him a visit and he obliged them with a fine game, and a long double which should have been longer but he again forget the essential part of touching second base. He was held to two bases, but it was a long drive which rebounded from the fence in left field.

The score:

Bulkeley	a.b.	r.	h.	p.o.	a.	e.

CELTICS HAD EXCEPTIONALLY SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The Taftville Celtics have completed a most successful season being beaten but twice, these being the last two games. These games were played under amateur rules.

They also wish to remind the teams that have defeated them that they won the Junior title at amateur rules with the double dribble and will withdraw the claim to the title if defeated at those rules only.

The Celtics opened up the season by defeating the Battery B team and then went out and won the Junior championship of eastern Connecticut by defeating the fast Army-Navy 2nds, a feat which has been accomplished but once in the past two seasons, and then continued their winning streak by defeating the Bantams, Emps and the Buddies, but failed to come through in the last week of play by being defeated by the Y. M. H. A. and the C. F. C., both games amateur rules.

The summary of games is as follows:

Celtics		Opponents
35	Battery B	18
24	Army-Navy	21
42	Baltic Bantams	14
22	*Y. Emps	14
30	Baltic Bantams	21
40	Plainfield Buddies	17
27	*Y. Emps	19
38	*Y. M. H. A.	26

FOWNES AND GATES IN N.-S. AMATEUR GOLF FINALS

Pinehurst, S. C., April 10.—The issue in the United North and South amateur golf tournament rested tonight between W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, former national champion, and Arthur Yates of Rochester, N. Y.

Fownes defeated Frank C. Newton of Boston in a 21 hole semi final match today, and Yates disposed of W. W. Rixey of Princeton, West Virginia, four and two.

The Fownes-Newton match was the hardest fought of the tournament. Both missed opportunities to win on the first two extra holes because of a falling off in their putting, and the downfall of Newton on the next apparently was due only to a stymie which made it impossible for him to halve that one, too.

The Yates-Rixey match provided no such contention. Yates was out in 35 and was four up at the turn. Rixey succeeding in halving the next six, but did no better than that, and the match was over.

BASKETBALL RULES COMMITTEE MEETS FOR DISCUSSION.

New Yor, April 10—The joint basketball rules committee, representing the national collegiate athletic association, the Amateur Athletic Union and the Young Men's Christian Association, meets tomorrow at the Pennsylvania club, to revise the playing rules for the 1925-1926 season.

The three bodies all met in separate sessions today and adopted changes which will be brought before the joint committee tomorrow for official sanction.

While nothing definite was announced as to what changes were recommended, it is understood that the rulemakers seek to bring about a unification of the rules as interpreted in the east and west. The elimination of zones and a modification of the rule providing for the placing of hand behind the back in a case of a jump ball are also slated for consideration.

BROWNS ARE THROUGH WITH BILL JACOBSON

St. Louis, April 10—The pennant hopes of the St. Louis Americans this season received a severe jolt late today when the Browns' management announced that no more communications would be sent to Bill Jacobson, centerfielder, who has been holding out for an increase in salary.

Club officials said they intended standing pat on the terms already offered and refused by Jacobson, who asserted the contract sent him was "unfair," since he has not had an increase in four years.

Jacobson was one of the leading outfielders in the American league last year. He said he would quit baseball rather than accept the terms offered.

If the big outfielder does not sign within 10 days after the opening of the season, he will be automatically suspended.

ST. LOUIS MANAGERS ARE PLEASED WITH TEAMS

St. Louis, April 10—Radiating confluence, both of St. Louis' entries in the Major league races returned home today from their spring training jaunts, preparatory to the first contest of their two game series for the City championship.

Both managers, George Sisler of the Browns, and Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, expressed themselves as well satisfied with the condition of their men.

The Browns returned with a record of not having lost a single day during the training season, and with none of the players complaining of injuries.

In the Cardinals squad one or two players reported slight injuries.

The Browns and Cardinals will play the first game for the City title tomorrow. The second game will be played Sunday.

BERLENBACH ISSUES DEFY TO CHAMPION MIKE M'TIGUE

New York, April 10—Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, today filed a challenge with the state athletic commission for a match with Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion. The challenge was accompanied by a certified check for $2,500.

The board accepted the challenge and notified McTigue. The market will remain for further challenges after which the commission will recommend to McTigue that he risk his title in a match with the man it selects as the most logical contender.

McTigue, who has been on the blacklist in this state, was reinstated this week upon the condition that he meet any challenger the commission selects within 60 days.

CAST IS REMOVED FROM MARANVILLE'S ANKLE

Chicago, April 10—With the cast removed from his fractured ankle, Walter "Rabbit" Maranville tonight was hopeful that the first of May would see him performing at short for the Chicago Cubs, in his role as field captain. President Veeck and the club physician were not so sanguine but had to admit that Maranville seemed able to move his foot without discomfort.

Maranville said he would be on the coaching line when the Cubs open here and would go with the team to Pittsburgh, his home, on the first road trip April 22. When the club returns here May 4, he insisted he would be ready to take his place. He hopes to abandon his crutches for a cane within a week or so.

COBB WILL BE ABLE TO LEAVE NASHVILLE TODAY

Nashville, Tenn., April 10—Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, who for 24 hours has been confined in bed at his hotel here, suffering from a severe cold, was advised by his physician tonight that he might safely leave Nashville early tomorrow with his team.

Tonight Cobb had not definitely determined whether he would leave. The physician's advice was issued only on condition that Cobb remain at a hotel in Louisville, Ky., where the Tigers are due for an exhibition game tomorrow.

While the condition of the baseball chieftain was considered improved and he was without temperature, it was admitted that he would merely accompany the team if he left with them and would be unable to participate in the opening game of the season.

Ehmke is Ill.

Rochester, N. Y., April 10—Howard Ehmke, pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, is confined to his bed here in Dr. Knight's hospital and will not be allowed to leave until Tuesday.

At present his temperature is normal, having been reduced from 103 since his arrival here late yesterday. The star hurler came for treatment of his arm, but was found to be suffering from a slight attack of the "flu."

His arm has been pronounced by Dr. Knight as in fit condition and he will be able to resume active work late next week.

BABE RUTH IS PRONOUNCED OUT OF DANGER BY HIS ATTENDING PHYSICIANS

New York, April 10.—Babe Ruth, pronounced out of danger by the physicians who are trying to rid him of the influenza that caused his collapse yesterday, was so far improved tonight that he was beginning to worry as to whether he would be able to play with the Yankees when they open the 1925 baseball campaign against Washington here next Tuesday.

The Babe's doctors were of the opinion that he would not be in condition to play, and one of them said he'd be lucky if he was out of the hospital in a week. However, officials of the Yankees were hopeful that Ruth having passed the most critical stages of the disease, would be in the lineup when the umpire calls "play ball."

Ruth's temperature was 100 today, one degree less than yesterday. He spent the day quietly in St. Vincent's hospital, seeing no one except his wife and small daughter, Dorothy, with whom he joked about his illness. He also felt able to read the newspapers which printed columns about his condition.

A further examination of the home run star's head assured the doctors that he had neither received a slight concussion of the brain nor a fractured skull when he fell in his pullman washroom while entering New York yesterday. Dr. George D. Stewart, in consultation with Dr. Edward King, Babe's physician, confirmed Dr. King's opinion that all that ailed the patient's head was the large bump which he received in falling against the wash basin.

Baseball fans trooped to the hospital throughout the day to inquire about his condition. Many asked to see him, but everyone was told that the patient was receiving no visitors.

Small boys were perhaps most numerous among the callers. The Bank Street givers, a juvenille ball team from Greenwich Village, mustered its full strength and trooped into the hospital with a request that the players be allowed at least a glimpse of their hero. Informed that Ruth could not see them, they cross-examined the nurse until assured that Babe would get well, whereupon they left the building and camped for some time under his window.

Two other youngsters made their first business of the day the purchase of fifty cents worth of daffodils which they thrust into the hands of a hospital attendant with the word that the blossoms were for Ruth. The gift pleased the home run hitter, who likes "the kids."

MISS COLLETT OFF FOR ENGLISH GOLF CONQUEST

New York, April 10.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., former national women's golf champion, today subjected all her strokes to the professional scrutiny of Alex Smith, instructor at the Westchester Biltmore club, in final preparation for the British ladies' championship tournament at Troon, Scotland. She will embark tomorrow for the European touprnament at Troon.

After two lessons by Smith, followed by eighteen holes of play in which her game was declared to have been noticeably strengthened, the Rye professional pronounced her ready for the test abroad.

AMERICAN FLAG NOT TO BE USED IN GOLF SERIES

New York, April 10—The executive committee of the United States Golf association announced tonight that it had requested member clubs to refrain from using the American flag in all "flag contests."

The committee, it was said, had approved the stand taken by the Daughters of the American Revolution in protesting against the display of the national emblem in such contests, and was asking the clubs that the flag be used "only in strict conformity with the regulations issued by the federal government."

ATHLETICS BEAT PHILLIES IN FIFTH SERIES GAME

Philadelphia, April 10—The city championship series here was tightened up today when Connie Mack's Athletics recovered their batting eye, nicking three National pitchers for fifteen hits and ten runs while the Phillies garnered only four hits and one run. The game was called after five innings owing to rain. The series now stands Nationals three, Americans two games. The score:

Americans	480	42	10	15 1
Nationals	000	10	1	4 1

Batteries: Groves and Cochrane, Knight, O'Neal, Ulrich and Henline.

GIANTS LEAD SENATORS IN SPRING SERIES

Washington, April 10—Rain, trickiest element in baseball, today washed out the World Champion Senators' chance for victory over the New York Giants in their 15 game spring "world series." Unless three games are played in New York, whither the teams entrained today to play two scheduled exhibitions, Washington can do no better than tie the McGraw clan.

With ten contests behind them, the champions are two down to the Giants.

LARGE SALE OF TICKETS FOR BASKETBALL GAME

Manager Joseph Grills of the Armory Five basketball team of Westerly was a Friday afternoon caller in Norwich and Plainfield, on business connected with the Saturday night's game in the Dixon street armory, Westerly, between the Celtics of New York, champions of the world and the Armory Five, champions of New England. He reported good seats still left for the big game, despite a large advance sale.

PACIFIC COLLEGES TO RACE AT OAKLAND

Oakland, Cal. April 10—Crews representing the Universities of Washington and California will race on the estuary here tomorrow in the renewal of the annual event by which the winner is chosen to go to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for the national intercollegiate regatta.

Washington has won the title at Poughkeepsie for the last two years and largely by virture of that is favorite in tomorrow's race.

BRIDGEPORT AND PROFS PLAY TO TIE SCORE

New Haven, April 10—The Bridgeport and New Haven Eastern league teams were tied 2 to 2 at end of the ninth inning of an exhibition game here today when the game was called on account of rain and darkness. The score:

Bridgeport	2	7	1
New Haven	2	7	0

Caffery, Terhune, Wolfe and Wilson; Nichols, Morrell, and Berger.

Tunney at Saratoga.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., April 10—Gene Tunney, light heavyweight champion, will train at Tom Luther's on Saratoga Lake for his bout at New York June 12 with Tom Gibbons, of St. Paul, friends of Tunney said here.

COLES ELECTED CAPTAIN OF BROWN SWIMMERS

Providence, R. I., April 10—Mark F. Coles of Washington, D. C., was today elected captain of the Brown university swimming team for 1925-26. Coles, a short distance man, was Brown's most consistent point winner during the past season, taking first place in the 50 and 100 yard swims in every dual meet except one in which the Brunonians engaged. He also won the New England intercollegiate title in these two events.

COLORED GIANTS BEAT HARTFORD EASTERN LEAGUERS

Hartford, April 10—The Brooklyn Colored Giants this afternoon defeated the local Eastern league club 6 to 1, in a six inning game, rain halting activities at that stage. The score:

Brooklyn Giants	6	6	3
Hartford	1	5	1

Flournel and Spearmon; Eyrich, Thompson, Tromley and Moriarity, Coakley.

Lowry Wins Trapshoot

Pinehurst, N. C., April 10—Robert Lowry, Shamokin, Penna., today won the hundred target trapshoot tournament here in a shoot-off of a tie with Byron V. Covert, Lockport, N. Y. Both Lowry and Covert finished the main shoot with perfect net scores, the Pennsylvanian winning the tie shoot with a perfect 25 while his opponent missed two.

Yale Wins at Polo

Pinehurst, N. C., April 10—The Yale University Polo quartet today defeated the San Hills team of Pinehurst, 12 goals to 7 in the annual spring tournament. Yale will play Fort Bragg Monday

A Challenge

The Trojans would like to play the team from Troop No. 9 of the Boy Scouts at the Lucas lot in the near future. For arrangements notify Manager John Murphy, 95 Peck street.

Yale Trapshooters Lose.

Richmond, Va., April 10—Trap shooters of the Richmond Gun Club defeated a team from Yale University here, scoring 624 to the collegians' 620 out of a possible seven hundred.

Brazilian Team Wins.

Strasbourg, Alsace, April 10—The Brazilian Sao Paulo soccer football team defeated a Strasbourg eleven, 2 to 1.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

King Albert of the Belgians is one of the most accomplished horsemen among European royalty.

More than 1,000 athletes are expected to compete in the University of Kansas relays on April 18.

At 99 years of age, Richard Ferris, living near Dartmouth, England, still rides to hunting meets.

Pari-mutuel racing has been legalized in Utah. Two seasons of 30 days each will be permitted under the new law.

The total value of the stakes to be run at Churchill Downs and Latonia during the coming spring meetings will be $165,000.

In the early days of baseball as played in New England the rules gave the victory to the club first scoring one hundred runs, and this after required two or more days to settle the question of superiority.

Sport annals can show few parallels to the case of Jay Gould with respect to long continued holding of a national championship. Gould first won the national amateur court tennis championship nineteen years ago.

It has been claimed that the first intercollegiate athletic contest of any kind to be held in the United States was a lacrosse game played in Boston about a century ago by teams representing McGill and Harvard universities.

Lacrosse was first introduced into England fifty years ago, but it did not gain a foothold until the early '80s. Combridge was the first of the big universities to take it up and has been loyal and constant in its support ever since.

Georges Hackenschmidt, the former George Hackenschmidt, the former world's mat champion, has taken to a new kind of wrestling. He has written a ten-volume work on philosophy. Hackenschmidt, once known as "the Russian Lion," began his literary work while he was a war prisoner in Germany.

The Childs Cup race, which this year is to be rowed on the Harlem river course, is the oldest triangular boat race in America. Back in 1876 George W. Childs of Philadelphia offered a cup to be contested for by Pennsylvania, Princeton and Columbia, who formed an association under the deed of gift and held the first race in 1879 on the Schuylkill.

The largest number of tennis tournaments ever sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis association is contained in the schedule for the coming season. There will be increased competition in events for juniors, boys and girls as well as in the men's and women's events.

The Grand American Handicap is expected to establish a new trapshooting record for actual number of competitors this year. Interest in the sport is greater than ever before, a fact attested to by the number of shooters that have taken part in the fitures that have already been held this season.

AERIAL ARCTIC EXPEDITION TO TRANSMIT BY RADIO DAILY

Chicago, April 10—News of the progress and discoveries of the aerial expedition into the north next June to be headed by Donald B. MacMillan, who will be making his ninth trip to the Arctic Circle, will be transmitted to civilisation daily, Eugene F. McDonald, Jr., president of the National Association of Broadcasters, announced here today.

Mr. MacMillan confidently expects to talk from the Arctic back to civilization, he said. Failing to transmit the human voice, wireless code will be depended upon, he said.

News of dissemination in the press will be sent through the U. S. navy and the National Geographic society, said Mr. McDonald.

The expedition will make new history in radio, put new lands on the map, and eliminate much of the at present unknown area, said the radio manufacturer, who also holds a commission in the U. S. N. R. F.

Each of the three airplanes which will be used will be manned by a pilot who also is an expert mechanician and rigger; a navigator and a photographer. Each plane will carry 100 pounds of radio outfit; 150 pounds of food, camping equipment, ammunition, firearms and harpoons and 100 pounds of camera material.

The party of scientists and navy personnel will total sixteen, said Mr. McDonald and the crew will number 10.

GOV'T COUNSEL ARGUED IN THE PACKERS' CASE

Washington, April 10. — Answering the contention of the packers in the Armour-Morris berger controversy that monopoly was impossible in the packing industry, W. L. Fisher, chief counsel for the government, argued today that the "vital thing is the preservation of competition in reality."

The packers' attorneys, he told Secretary Jardine, who is conducting the hearing preparatory to ruling on the question of whether the merger violates the packers and stockyards act, have admitted that they meant a 100 per cent. monopoly, which they described as the only kind that could have been made effective. On the other hand, he declared, the courts have held time and again that monopoly does not necesarily involve 100 per cent. control of an industry.

The tendency of moredn industrialism, he declared, is toward centralized control, and he predicted that unless this is curbed the government will have to step in and fix prices.

Secretary Jardine allotted the entire time of today's hearing to the government's attorney. He plans to close the hearing tomorrow and take the case under advisement. He can either exonerate the packers or issue a rule against the merger, which would send the question to the supreme court for final settlement.

Dwelling on the argument that the only kind of monopoly that could be effective in the packing industry would have to be a 100 per cent. monopoly, Mr. Fisher continued:

"I defy anyone to name a market where the producer of raw material has to sell in such a slightly competitive market as this one. The selling on the farms and local slaughterer, which the packers contend is their keenest competition is encouraged by the small competitor on the regular livestock markets."

HARBEAS CORPUS WRIT DENIED W. D. SHEPHERD

Chicago, April 10.—Today was a day of ill luck for William Darling Shepherd, held in jail here for the murder of his youthful ward, William Nelson McClintock, millionaire orphan.

The state supreme court denied a motion for a writ of habeas corpus to release Shepherd on bond, blocking the fourth and probably the last attempt of his attorneys to effect his release pending trial. His counsel announced that an immediate trial will be sought as soon as official word was received.

A few hours before the supreme court acted Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist, had announced that sufficient mercury had been found in the vital organs of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of the young millionaire, to have caused her death.

The possible implication of Shepherd in this death was being studied today by authorities, while chemists continued an examination of the vital organs of Dr. Oscar Olson, the McClintock family physician who died three years ago. Mrs. McClintock died 16 years ago, and her son last December.

New evidence which the authorities said tended to establish a connection between Shepherd and the death of Mrs. McClintock was received during the day, when Dr. George Fosberg, the first person to disclose that Shepherd had made a study of deadly drugs and poisons, appeared at the office of Judge Harry Olson and amended his former statements. Shepherd, he said, had begun his interview with Dr. Fosberg by asking particularly about the action of bichloride of mercury and the length of time after death that it might still be detected. Dr. Fosberg said he replied that it could be detected almost any time after death and Shepherd then started to inquire about other poisons.

Shepherd's attorneys said they would ask that the case be placed on the trial calendar next Thursday when Shepherd is arraigned for plea. Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, said that his office will take no action concerning the deaths of Mrs. McClintock and Dr. Olson until the coroner's inquest is completed.

MYSTERIOUS MEMORANDA IN HOME OF VOODOO DOCTOR

Camden, N. J., April 10—Mysterious memoranda which name persons listed "to go" and others "to be ruined," have been uncovered by police while investigating the home of the seventy-one year old negro who, police declare, was a voodoo doctor.

The "doctor" calls himself "the Rev Ebbinger H. H. Hyghcock." He was held without bail after the finding in tunnels and caverns beneath his home of bodies of two infants and bones of an arm. Hyghcock told police he had been married five times and is father of thirty-seven children.

The notes discovered bore no addresses. "Mary and Jim are both to go," one entry read. "Mrs. Maisie Gibson— her husband Alfred must be ruined," "Thomas Herring and Laura Herring are to go as far as God's winds and waters will carry," were other entries.

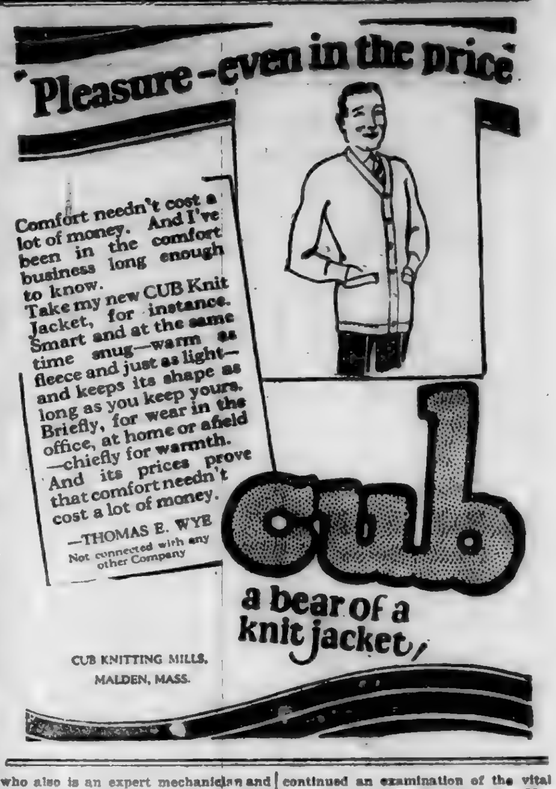
Hyghcock was held by the police after his seven year old daughter declared her father had shot a "light colored" woman and had buried her in a cemetery here. The father denied the child's narrative, saying she had "great imagination." The "doctor" explained the anatomical specimens as gifts of a Philadelphia physician.

ANNUAL DIVIDEND FROM PANAMA RAILROAD CO.

Washington, April 10—A check for $350,000 was transmitted to Secretary Mellon by the war department, representing a five per cent. annual dividend from the Panama Railroad company, owned by the government and operated across the Isthmus by the Canal Zone administration authorities.

"CRUEL CARESSES" WERE GROUND FOR DIVORCE

Chicago, April 10—What he called "cruel caresses" were named by Judge Sabath as ground for a divorce granted by him to Mrs. Tessie Menze Fritz. The woman said her husband gave her kisses so intense that her lips became numb and even bled, and that his hugs were so arduous that they bruised her ribs.



Pleasure—even in the price
Comfort needn't cost a lot of money. And I've been in the comfort business long enough to know. Take my new CUB Knit Jacket, for instance. Smart and at the same time snug—warm as fleece and just as light—and keeps its shape as long as you keep yours. Briefly, for wear in the office, at home or afield—chiefly for warmth. And its prices prove that comfort needn't cost a lot of money.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
EASTER MORNING

Hark! through the dim, gray silence, softly swelling,
Like echoes from some olden Easter-tide,
Cometh again the sound of sweet, telling
Of Christ, the crucified.
Now faint and slow as when, heart-sick from sadness,
One whispers of grief with bated breath,
Then loud and clear, proclaiming with great gladness,
Life's victory over death.

Far in the east the rosy dawn is breaking
Through clouds of mist floating o'er the sky,
And from the wood, where bright-green leaves are waking,
Is heard the spring bird's cry.
Back from the meadow-lands, where buds are peeping
To greet the day, a wondrous note resounds:
And, rushing on, true time the brook is keeping,
A sweet and silvery sound.

And o'er and o'er glad voices are repeating
The bird-note and the gurgling streamlet-song,
The half blown buds in kisses pure are meeting—
Joy swiftly sweeps along.
This Easter morning! Oh, the love clear ringing
Through all the gladsome sounds that greet the day!
This Easter morning! Heart, rejoice in flinging
All worthless things away.

Look up and live! The golden gates are swinging,
And we may enter there and calmly rest.
Look up and live! The angels join the singing,
Praise to the morning blest.
Sad, mortal hearts, be touched with joy's sweet leaven;
Weak, mortal hands, fold soft in happy prayer;
The oh! the Lord has risen to high heaven,
Our kingdom to prepare.

Blind Biddy

You can't hardly see at all,
Can you Biddy?
But you alway's hear me call,
Don't you Biddy?
And you come right straight to me,
Even though you cannot see,
For you know my voice is me,
Don't you Biddy?

Nice to have a pet like you—
Ain't it Biddy?
And you know I love you too—
Don't you Biddy?
When your friends leave you behind,
And you think they are not kind,
Come to me, and never mind,
Won't you Biddy?
Here is food, and drink and sand,
For you Biddy.
You may eat it from my hand—
That's right, Biddy.
When you pick it feels so funny!
Wouldn't bite me, would you honey?
Not for lots and lots o money—
Nice old Biddy.

When I sit and hold you—so.
Old blind Biddy,
All I say you seem to know—
Don't you Biddy?
And you "talk—talk—talk" to me,
Makes me smile—but you can't see,
Can you Biddy?

can lift you if I try,
Can't I Biddy?
But you're oh, so heavy—my!
Ain't you, Biddy?
I must hurry up and grow,
'Cause when I'm a man
You know—
Take you everywhere I go,
Honest Biddy.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

April 15. — Club No. 3 meets at Baptist Church in Lebanon.

ANTICIPATING THE FLOWER GARDENS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I must make time now and write just a few lines. It has been quite awhile since I have sent a letter to the Corner, but have enjoyed the letters each week from the sisters. Such nice interesting letters you all do write.

I have been very busy house cleaning and am most finished now. How nice it would be if every thing would stay clean. Seems so it isn't long before every thing gets dirty again.

Seems good to see the grass so green and trees all budding out and it won't be long before we can get our flower gardens started.

Had a pretty Easter card from Rosalind this week. Many thanks. I hope you all enjoy a happy Easter, and hope all the sick ones are on the gain now.

I was glad to hear we are going to have pins instead of the yellow bow. I think the pins will be much nicer and I want to have one.

I must close now and get busy. Best wishes to you all.

CLUB NO. 3 MEETS APRIL 15

Social Corner Editor: A social Corner meeting will be held at the Baptist church, Lebanon, on April 15. Please bring plate, cup, spoon, knife and fork with something for the dinner. Will the sisters please be prepared to assist in some way toward their entertainment.

All will be welcome.

ONE OF THE HOSTESSES.

THOUGHTFULNESS APPRECIATED

Editor and Sisters of the Social Corner: It is a long time since I have written to the Corner, but have been sick and am far from being well now. I often think of the social gatherings and wish I might be with you and hope I may be able to meet with you next month. I want to thank the sisters who have sent me cards, also the sunshine package, which came as a great surprise, for I didn't know as many knew I was sick. It was nice to be remembered and again I thank you all for your thoughtfulness.

BETTY BROWN.

GREETINGS FROM MAVIS

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: I want to say "Welcome to our Corner." to the new members and hope more will come in. How nice of the Bulletin Company to obtain pins for us. I would like one and will say thank you. I hope all the sisters that were ill at last writing are better.

Crimson Rambler: Thank you for the little gift. Hope I can return the favor.

Peggy Anne: I shall appear to you some time. I meant to have called on you befors this but time goes so fast I have not been able to get there yet.

Anna Z: Was glad to see you and hope you will call again. Hope your husband is better.

Sister Jennie: Received your nice letter and am glad you are improving. You spoke of peacocks, I have not seen one for years. When I was a child one of our neighbors had several. There was one large fellow that was a beauty.

Some of his tail feathers were nearly a yard long. My sister and I used to go out early in the morning and look for feathers.

The peacocks would not stay in the poultry house with the other fowl but roosted on top of a tall chimney or on the ridge board of the barn. Such a noise as he did make when he screeched. It would scare one if they didn't know what it was.

This big bird lived several years. There came on a big snow storm and no one saw him for several days. When they found him his beautiful tail was frozen in a pool of water under a shed where he had gone to get out of the storm. It was a sad ending for him. We saved some of the feathers from the breast that we had found and made a band for a hat. The colors were beautiful.

Some one asked if any of the sisters felt the earthquake. Yes, it was quite severe in this locality. Water splashed in the tanks, pictures hung at an angle, electric light fixtures swerving for half an hour and people ran out of doors. There was a dizzy sensation that was indescribable with it. I don't want to see a worse one.

Remember Me, Boo Peep, Tiny and Lucille: Where are you? Why don't you write?

I am sorry to hear J. E. T. has met with an accident. Hope it is not serious. What a lot of helpful letters in March 28's paper. Long live the Corner.

Wishing you all a happy Easter.

MAVIS.

LINE CLUB

Dear Social Corner Members: What a good number of letters we had in Saturday's paper April 4.

Ma of Greene Gables, You sure have started something but don't worry you have plenty of backers.

Tafts: Am glad to see you have come to life again in the Corner and more than glad to get a letter myself from you. You sure have been having a busy time, but isn't it good to get it all done? Will write you soon.

I want to thank R. I. for writing so soon after my mentioning your name and now Helitrope gives us an idea that she lives in that direction. She surely would be eligible to "Shore Line Club." Now some one else speak up. As I said before I know people that way used to be a very sociable lot.

Some of the recipes sent in sound good and I mean to try them soon. I think the poetry was fine.

I must tell of the dessert we had to day. On Friday night I put two thirds of a cup of pearl tapioca to soak thinking I would make a cream tapioca pudding, but on Saturday morning I found I had to use my milk for some thing else and no more to be got so I took stock of the pantry. I put the soaked tapioca in the double boiler with one quart of water, the juice of two lemons, pinch of salt and there was about half a cup of each of strawberry preserve, prune juice and a handful of seedless raisins. I let this cook until the tapioca began to get transparent then sweetened it to taste and finished cooking. While this was cooking I pared and quartered some apples and put them on to stew, sweetening them when I first put them on so they would hold their shape. When all was cooked I poured the tapioca mixture over the apple. I served it cold with a few dates cut in small pieces, on top of each serving and topped all with whipped cream. If I had not had any cream should have used whites of eggs. It seems rather elaborate and expensive but it is not, as one can use up so many left overs and with the plain tapioca foundation it can be varied as one seldom has the same 'odds and ends" to use up.

BEE.

HELPING FILL THE PAGE

Dear Editor and Social Corner'est: I will try to help fill the page. It take much pleasure reading the nice letters week after week. I like the one written by Don't Worry on punishing children. I, myself, have great patience with children. I think talking and coaxing does more good then whipping. They will get the slaps and bumps when they are away from mother. What is greater than mother love!

I will send my recipe for

Pineapple Pie: 1 can grated pineapple, 2 eggs beaten light, 1 1-3 cups sugar, a little pinch nutmeg. Beat all together, bake with two crusts. This makes two pies.

I never see a letter from Cakkie. Come wake up and do your bit Cakkie. And it's time for blue birds to be heard. Wish all a happy Easter.

If this don't find the waste basket will try again.

MERCY.

PEA FOWLS

Dear Social Cornerites: It has been a long time since I wrote to the Corner. I meant to, but I see I'm not alone in answering the roll call late as there are others.

I was interested in one of the letters a sister wrote about pea fowls as I had two pair at different times. A cousin who lived in Kansas sent one pair to me; she had raised them. They are a very intelligent fowl. If anything was stirring around the buildings at night you would always hear them. They knew their names as well as a person, and would come when called even if they were out of sight. They liked bread better than anything else to eat. At night they would stay in some high building or in a tall tree. Once in a while they would fly off, but not at any great distance. I remember once they went over to see Dorcas' family. Finally one died and then the other died. We thought perhaps the climate here did not agree with them, as they were young fowls.

Amy: Thank you for the pretty card sent me when I was sick. I certainly did appreciate it and I was sorry not to be able to come to the gathering this week but I have another cold and dreadful cough so had to be content at home.

Bess Starbright: Received your letter and will answer soon. Was surprised to hear you were down to the Buckingham last week. Was glad you had the chance. Why not stop and see me on your way down to H. V? We are very easy to be found.

Aunt Sarah: I think it about time you put in your appearance, come down and spend the day.

Papa's Boy: Congratulations on the birth of that boy.

REMEMBER ME, (July 20th.)

WHEN RAW ONIONS DISTRESS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Here I come, so soon again. I rather didn't expect to write so soon but thought I would say I'd be glad to own a Social Corner emblem. Other societies have their emblems so why not ours?

Interested Reader: Yes, I lived in Willimantic 30 years ago and clerked in a store there. Should I know you? I can't seem to place you. Give me a clue.

E. L. M.: If you try my pie crust please tell me if you have good luck. I always use a bit of baking powder in mine.

Owaissa: Letter came Saturday. Many thanks. Shall be on the watch for other things now.

In Saturday's paper we had ways of using onions. How I do like them, raw and cooked, too.

Those who find raw onions distress them might be able to eat them if they first blanched them in hot water.

Let them stand in hot water for a half hour, then pour cold water over, then let them stand in cold water for a time to crisp them. They are fine with oil and vinegar dressing. I am sorry for all the invalids and shut-ins as the out door calls us all now.

Let us hope they will all regain their strength and health soon.

WHY PENNAME WAS CHOSEN

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: As I have never answered to the roll call I will say present. I was afraid I had been dropped from membership as I have badly violated the rules of the Corner, but as I see several lately answering, I got courage to do so by knowing I was not the only slow one. After having broken up my home for nine months as husband changed jobs and could not be at home very often I have finally got settled way off up here in Lynn, Mass., but can say although I have been here but a couple of weeks I think I shall like it very much, especially as Mr. Gene can get home quite often now, which we both feel very thankful for. I am living right next to the Lydia Pinkham laboratories and can see the beautiful Pinkham estates from my windows.

As I see some telling why they took their pen names I will tell why I took mine. I have been called five or six different nicknames derived from my correct name but the one which I take is one my only girl chum gave me and the next one to call me that was the fellow who is now my husband and it has stuck by me ever since. As I made new friends that is what they called me also.

To those who are sick and shut in as well as those who are in grief I will say be of good cheer as time heals all, and that time passes quicker when we are cheerful than when we are down hearted and sad.

Good luck to all.

SOON WE CAN HAVE FRUITS

Dear Sisters and Editor: How we welcome the advent of the first spring fruits. If cherries are not ripe in our garden we can usually find plenty of those in market. Strawberries, rhubarb and some times raspberries by the first of May or the first week in June. We may serve fruit not only once a day but at each meal as natural, as salad or incorporated in a pudding. The menus presented offer suggestions for combining fruits with other foods. Another worth while feature is the possibilities of yesterdays left overs have been considered. If some carrots have just been cooked a portion will furnish the cream of carrot soup for the next day and the rest will combine with other vegetables for the next day. Nut cheese balls to pass with the salad, and that German cheese cake for the following day's luncheon can be made from one cream cheese. Dates, cherries or strawberries may be served generously and once in combination with something else. The meat loaf can be made the sixth day of left over pork, and some fresh veal or beef, or this dish may be omitted entirely in favor of dainty slices of cold meat.

WAYS TO COOK ASPARAGUS

Dear Social Corner Friends: It's a long time since I have written the Corner a few lines but I am interested in your good recipes for cooking asparagus.

Cream Asparagus: 2 bunches asparagus, 1-2 cup cream, 1-4 teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne.

Cut the tender part in bits as long as the stems are thick and cook in a little water until tender. Toward the last of the cooking let the asparagus cook nearly dry, add the cream and let simmer till reduced to a thick sauce. Add seasoning and serve on toast or in sauce dishes.

Asparagus With Eggs: 2 bunches asparagus, 4 eggs, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons butter. Cook the asparagus, cut off the tender tops and lay them on a buttered pie dish, seasoning with salt and pepper and melted butter. Beat the eggs just enough to break the yolks, pour over the asparagus and bake eight minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with slices of boiled ham.

EVENING STAR.

DID I PASS HOMES OF SISTERS?

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am only writing a few lines this time. It was my privilege not long ago to enjoy a ride leaving the Hartford road at Colchester and going across through Fitchville to Norwich Town and I couldn't help wondering if I passed any of the sisters' homes as it seemed to me I had read of there being a picnic in that vicinity last summer.

About the pins of course we all want one. I wish the editor and all members a happy and joyful Easter.

Aurelia: I was so glad to read the recipe you sent in. My mother used to make it when I was a child and I have often wished I knew how she made it. She called it vinegar dumplings. It did taste so good when we got home from school and we had it for supper.

LARGE AND DISTINGUISHED ENOUGH FOR EMBLEM.

Dear Editor and Corner Folks: Have been enjoying your letters for quite a while now without saying a word myself, but as the page is full to overflowing every week I thought I would not be missed for a time. But now the pin question has been settled and the pins ready for distribution I surely do not want to be missed, so here I am asking for a pin. Have not seen one yet but from the description think they will be the proper thing. Shall never forget the yellow bows, but they were too conspicuous to wear anywhere except at our meetings and there one would see all shades of yellow different widths of ribbons and all sorts of bows. Feel that our family is large enough and distinguished enough to have an emblem all our own and I wish to thank our editor and all sisters who have worked to bring this about. Hope we all show our appreciation in some way to the good editor who is doing so much for us besides allowing us more than one page each week.

And now here is a thank you to all who remembered me with birthday cards and letters.

Whirlwind: Your card was received but you got dates mixed somehow for that important event in my existence occurred on Feb. 6, at about 10 A M, and in zero weather, and of a Friday, too. Sisters do not think this is a memory talk of my childhood days. Will give you one of those later on after house cleaning is finished. There, I did not intend to say a word on that subject but out it came so will have to tell you a little of what I think about it. There is nothing very enjoyable about it any way, but give me a warm sunshiny day windows and doors open, the fresh air coming in, and birds singing outside, and if you want a picture of me just look at the little old lady on the Dutch cleanser cans.

Gypsy Wanda: Have not tried the pie recipe yet but intend to this week end. You have several apple trees at your place so am wondering if you ever dry any apples. To me an old fashioned dried apple pie is very tasty at this time of the year. How about it Rural Annie and Rural Delivery? Bet you know how they taste? I slice off the outer rind of an orange and stew with the apple, put all through a colander, then add sugar, raisins, bits of butter and sometimes carraway seeds.

Nema: Thanks for nice letter and magazine. Here is a little composition on water which I read the other day. Water is a moist substance chemically known as H2-O. It is plentiful in wet weather and scarce in dry weather. Air is free, but water costs so much per 1,000 running feet. Before 1919 water was used chiefly to float boats on and to build bridges over, but since that date we drink it. Water is very frail stuff and you can't depend on it. If you boil water in a kettle it disappears. Put some outside on a cold day and it will freeze stiff. Throw a gallon of water on the ground, and when you come back after it in a few minutes it's all gone. Mixed with dirt, water becomes mud, mixed with salt it becomes ocean; mixed with noodles, it becomes soup; mixed with flour, it becomes bread; mixed with fish heads it becomes glue. water is notoriously lazy. It will run down hill with ease, but it won't run up hill unless pushed all the way. A watermelon is 95 per cent water yet you can't grow watermelons by planting water. It is estimated there is more water used on Saturday night than any other day of the week. There is nothing wetter than water. If you don't believe this jump into a riverful of it sometime.

My sincere sympathy goes out to the sisters and brothers who are ill or in trouble and am adding these little verses for those who are in hospitals, by Arthur Guiterman:

Because on the branch that is tapping my pane
A sun-awakened leaf-bud, uncurled,
Is bursting its rusty brown sheathing in twain,
I know there is Spring in the world.

Because through the sky-patch whose asure and white
My window frames all the day long
A yellow-bird dips for an instant of flight,
I know there is Song.

Because even here in this Mansion of Woe
Where creep the dull hours, leaden-shod,
Compassion and Tenderness aid me, I know
There is God.

You all have the best of wishes from

GREETINGS FROM WHIRLWIND

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Good morning all. It has been a long time since I have talked with you. 'Tis another Corner day and as usual can not attend the meeting. Foxglove is in Chicago, (some sport) and I have an all day meeting of the N. E. O. P., in New Haven. I have missed a meeting of the grand lodge in years. I wonder how many of the sisters belong to the New England Order of Protection. Last year they convened in New London and Foxglove and myself called on Dom Pedro. We are planning on attending both meetings in May and trust there will nothing turn up to prevent us doing so.

Dom Pedro: Foxglove and I are planning to attend the state convention of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty, May 19, and will surely call and see you. The call will be short as we will have to steal a few minutes of the dinner hour to see you. Trust you are well these beautiful days.

Cretia: So sorry I forgot your birthday but nevertheless I wish you many more bright happy birthdays. I trust you will forgive me this time.

Saville: Received your pretty Easter card today. Thanks so much for the kind remembrance.

To the sister who wrote about the oatmeal water, will say it is fine. Have learned to like it very much.

Sisters All: How many riddles did you guess? Here are the answers.

1. How many peas are there in a pint? Ans. One P.
2. What is the first sign of age in a comb? When it begins to lose its teeth.
3. Why is a tramp like white flannels? Because he shrinks from washing.
4. Why is the letter "H" so important to one's ear? It makes the ear hear.
5. Why does a horse never pay toll? His master pays it for him.
6. How many insects does it take to make a landlord? Ten-ants (Tenants.)

Will ring off for this time, so Good Night Ladies.

PLANNING WINDOW BOXES

Dear Corner Friends: Every season we are thinking of window garden decorations.

Whether the apartment in which you live be simple or lavish in its appointments, it can be hardly designated by the name of home unless it has its growing flowers to add to their brightness and individuality to the furnishings.

Window boxes and flowers are, therefore, among the necessary furnishings of any complete home, and the more in harmony with the individual character of the house and its other apartments. Any housekeeper with a little ingenuity can by the use of a few cans of paint, a brush and materials for stencilling transform the ordinary natural colored flower pots and one toned boxes into unique objects that will fit into the color scheme of the room. Suppose your living room needs a little touch of color added near its windows but not the broad splashes of any tone which would be given by window boxes painted in one color. A charming window box can be painted in black and white stripes with a conventionalized design, a pattern of roses in red and leaves in green.

Your first requisite will, of course, be a suitable box, strongly made boxes which have served their time as receptables of groceries will serve just as well as any thing for the purpose if you can get them the right size and shape to look well in your windows. Boxes 17 to 18 inches long, by about nine inches wide and seven inches high are a convenient size to look well in most ordinary windows, or you can have your boxes made to fit your windows if you like.

For the work of painting you will need either ordinary house paint or enamel. Enamel is better for the purpose. The first step is to draw with a pencil on the box, the line to match the width of the stripes. Next paint the white stripes and allow them to dry, then paint the black stripes. The stripes can be of various widths, according to one's own taste, but I think a very pretty, effect and not too flashy is three quarters inches wide, and the black stripes about 1-2 inch.

You may have to paint the stripes over a number of times before the clear black and white effect is secured. Let the paint dry thoroughly after each painting.

When the painting is entirely dry stencil the leaves and roses on it. In stencilling hold or tack the stencil board down very firmly to the box so the color will not run under the pattern and spoil the effect.

For the little conventional roses use the brightest red you can buy, use bright green for the leaves. Neither roses or leaves need be very large and the bright colors will be extremely decorative on a black and white background.

When you have stenciled the design carefully lift up the pattern gently and wipe it off. Be sure the pattern is perfectly clean before you attempt the next motif.

nti-Rcupofligbsq o ottt.tEE c.dahfove

It the boxes are used inside the windows it will be well to protect the window sills by placing little zinc trays under the boxes. These can be made in any size at any hardware store and painted to match the boxes.

Ordinary red clay-pots provided they are of graceful shape may be transformed into things of beauty by the use of enamels and stencils.

A flat flower pot which may be used on the center of the table has at times been painted around the top in a simple conventional design, a flower in white placed at intervals apart and in each space between the flower a square block of black.

Did you ever take an ordinary brick and paint it in two colors to harmonize with the colors of the rooms? Put on enough coats of paint to make the colors stand out quite clearly. They are beautiful. The more sharply defined the coloring the more effective the work will be.

HOW TO GROW ASTERS

Dear Corner Sisters: Asters give a very artistic garden. One can not grow very fine flowers, if the work of preparing for them is not done properly. The first thing to do is to spade up the soil well. Do not be in a great hurry to do this, wait until surplus water has a chance to drain off or out of it. Unless you do, the soil remains and when thrown up from the spade will be in clods and will remain so until broken apart by hoe or rake. If it is in proper condition to work well it ought to crumble away from the spade, and the labor of reducing it to proper fineness will be slight.

Do not attempt to pulverize it as soon as it is spaded up, allow it to be exposed to the sun and air for a day or two. This will give the moisture a chance to evaporate from it, and under the application of the hoe and rake it will soon become mellow.

A finely pulverized soil is absolutely necessary to the production of asters. In a soil that is lumpy it seems to clog seeds and they will often fail to germinate. Therefore, work it over and over until it is reduced to the greatest possible degree of mellowness before putting any seed into it.

Few soils are rich enough to produce fine flowers unless some good fertilizer is used. Barnyard manure is excellent when it is old and rotted, but it is not always obtainable. A good substitute for it in city or village is fine bone-meal say in the proportion of a cupful to a yard square of surface. Well worked in if barn yard manure is used a peck to a yard of surface will be sufficient. Work it over and over until it becomes a part of the soil.

It is not advisable to do this work before the middle of May. The aster seed should be planted before the middle of the month or after the danger of late frost is over. Nothing is gained by putting your aster seed in the ground too early but quite often everything is lost. The soil must be warm to secure proper germination. The aster seed will rot if it does not begin to germinate when first put in. Now another thing which is very important. Many plant seed with the impression that it must be covered well. The fact is that fine seed require no covering at all and the covering of aster seed should be very slight. Scatter your seed on the surface then press it down into the soil with a smooth board. This will make the soil compact enough to insure moisture that is needed for germination. Large seed should have little earth. The aster want enough earth sifted over them to cover but on no account follow the old method of making furrows in the soil, scattering the seed in them and then covering the depth of an inch. Not many plants will grow under such treatment.

APPROVES THE PINS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: suppose all the other members have received their pins as I have, but no one can appreciate it more. I want to thank the editor and who ever else helped in getting the pins for us. They are certainly very nice indeed and what a mark of indentification. Where ever I am I shall be on the lookout for other pins to show me members of our wonderful fraternity. I am afraid there are not many Social Corner members in my town though.

Trust all the sisters have their new "Easter bonnet" already and wish you all a happy Easter.

SOME MORE RECOLLECTIONS OF WESTMINSTER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: We, Miss Starbright and Cretia, spent a very pleasant day in Norwich on Wednesday, April 1. Bee carried us down in the morning and we did a little shopping and then went to the Social Corner where we met several new members and certainly enjoyed meeting those we had met before. The entertainment was lively with music by Black Eyed Susie and Joan right on time. Was introduced to Dahlia and was surprised to find her birthday is April 2, so we were interested in each other at once. How much more pleasure you get out of these gatherings when you meet personally the one the pen name belongs to! Do not quite understand why some are so afraid of being known especially to old members. There is a reputation of always giving a fine dinner at the Buckingham Memorial but how could the Social Corner do otherwise if they stopped to consider the building and who once occupied it! Must not disgrace the memory.

What is there to please us more than to be met by an old time friend after one of these meetings, going to their home and finish out the day by spending the rest of the afternoon and evening with a fine supper and a birthday cake given you to carry home for April 2! Found cake of fine quality but how could it be otherwise when made by descendants of a "king?" I carried a piece over to a lady in Card Home whose birthday comes on April 2. Gave A and A a taste also Cousin Fannie, so dear friends the cake was enjoyed by several people.

Saw the Corner pin. Good taste was used in the selection. It is easy to keep clean and not too conspicuous. I'd extend my right hand to the person if I could. I'd love to have one of the cute pins.

Received birthday cards from Mrs. Risley, Black eyed Susie, Kate Allen schoolmate of 1868, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. P. and Abbie L., Balsam Fir, Hope Cobweb and my twin sister Dahlia. Accept my thanks for the bright spots made on memory's wall, never to be erased while the mind remains normal.

Now just a little more of old time. The Butt's house of Westminster was mentioned. There lived Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roe whose daughter Mary married Samuel Church as second wife. They had one little girl with pretty curls. I saw her once when at her grand parents. There was a daughter Hannah who married John Hall and a son Amasa who was sickly, did not attend school, but did make a violin pronounced by people who saw it as good work especially with the limited amount of tools at his command. Family by name of Qualles once lived in Butts house was much disturbed one night and pleased neighbors when they soon folded their tent and departed. In 1865 family by name of Ockery lived in Butts house, then I lose all knowledge of the occupants as I leave Westminster.

Just before going to Henry Bingham's I used to pass by where there was a coal pit — burning wood to make charcoal. It looked so queer to me then, the only one I ever saw in perfect shape and active. The Bingham house was then occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bingham, daughter Sarah and son, Charles, who married Mary Neff and at one time lived in Backusville, and their eldest child, born there, was the first little baby I had ever seen, and being so very young I did not apreciate its full value. Sarah Bingham married William Tarbox of Brooklyn, Conn., and had one child Carrie. Mr. Tarbox and family went to Hartford to live being a florist. Mrs. Tarbox was a fine singer and her uncle Welcome Adams of Providence, R. I., gave her what was called a lap melodian, about the size of the covers to the older sewing machines, keys two colors with good size bellows, which was laid across the lap and the bellows operated by pressing down and up with right elbow using fingers of both hands on keys at same time. The music was sweet and it was the only one of this kind I ever saw. Mrs. Tarbox for her second husband married Mr. Watrous of Windsor Locks a business man selling furniture and lived in brick house on Spring street. She passed away just before we were married and went to Windsor Locks to live in 1880. As my husband and I knew her so well and others were all strangers to us then, how often we said, "If Sarah was only living she would be one we could count on." Well! people and house are all gone and I can only remember place and occupants. I must mention that Corbin of Webster used to send boots and shoes to Windham Center to be bottomed and people few miles away used to get them and peg on the soles and earn $1.50 per day. My father then quite young heard of some one who made $3 per day and said to Mr. Bingham, with whom he worked, "If I only could earn such a sum!" whereupon Mr. Bingham replied, "Alex, your $3 would not go any farther than your $1.50" and to use his own expression thought it "the D. idea he ever heard of." But in after years when getting the coveted sum, or more, as often I've heard him quote Mr. B's words as he well understood the meaning.

Hope sick ones are better.

Best wishes to every body.

CRETIA.

GREETINGS FROM THIRTY-TWO

To the Social Corner Editor and Members: My pen has got to going with seven pages of local correspondence and before it stops will send a bit to the Corner. I wonder how many other Cornerites do such work and if they find it as fascinating as I have. I have been at it for about 20 years, sending to three papers, two dailies and a weekly. In two cases it has meant a welcome monthly check and in all cases the papers which are always welcome. Then it seems to me an opportunity to boost certain worthy enterprises in the town, to report the good things in the grange and especially advance church notices. My ideal is exemplified by a correspondent in an adjoining town. I know only a few people there but on that account get to glancing at her weekly items, with the result that I have often felt that I should like to live in that town. The church services are made so vivid in their various activities, grange, school and local social affairs make the life there seem most attractive. Then I wonder if anything I write helps to attract outsiders to my town?

Neighbor Everready: Our mutual friend is on Boyden street, not far up from Southbridge street up College hill —very easy to find. She frequently comes to the old home here.

I should like very much to have a Social Corner pin.

We have peas planted, lettuce up and over 200 baby chicks.

With all best wishes.

THIRTY TWO.

GLAD THE PINS WON OUT

Dear Social Cornerites: So pleased we are to have a pin at last, as it has finally won out and I hope I may have one, although I too, love my little yellow bow. Now all those wearing their pins will have a uniform color, where before many had a badge, others a bow and still others little rosettes.

Calla Lily: I see you are the first to report having yours, others may soon follow.

Papa's Boy: I send congratulations.

Hope all are doing well. No! I have not been able yet to get my radio but they say all good things come to those who wait and you know patience is a virtue.

Saville: I will send you a letter soon as I have something very important to tell you.

Billie: Did you get offended by my last letter? Hope not, no offense intended.

Mavis: Received your card and glad you liked contents of the package.

Anna Z: Your card received. What a pretty picture! Sorry to hear you have been ill, but glad you are some better.

Interested Reader: I must plead guilty to the question you asked. I hope there were no hard feelings. If so I beg to be excused this time.

Queen Elizabeth: How are you coming on? Hope as soon as the injured arm is better, we may see a letter in the Corner from you.

Saville's Daughter: Your lovely letter at hand. Thank you. Just as soon as I get the material for your B. C. I'll make it for you if you can wait a little. Glad you liked those little things I sent you. How did Snooky like the first compliments of the season?

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

THE LITTLE THINGS OF LIFE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is much easier to arm ourselves to face a great battle than to be able to meet the little daily thrusts from the enemy. It is the little things that make or mar our life, that sweeten or embitter our disposition and prepare or fit us for Heaven. We look at disappointments or trials very differently. While one may use them as stepping stones to some great good, another will frown and fret and grow irritable under them. Often though we cannot see it at the time these same disappointments have resulted in our happiness. Do not allow the little worries to rob your temper of its sweetness.

Young folks should beware of hate. Do not anger old folks or you will feel the effects of it through your life.

PAULA.

I. J. B.'S MOLASSES COOKIES

Dear Editor and Sisters: Am very sorry to hear so many of our sisters in Club No. 3 are sick. Hope they will soon recover.

Chocolate: We missed you.

Joan and Black Eyed Susie: Duets were fine.

June Days: Where were you?

True Blue and Black Eyed Susie: Mary Sunshine wished me to thank you for birthday cards as she is blind and cannot see to write her thanks to you.

Glad to hear we are to have pins. Would be pleased with one.

Molasses Cookies: 1 cup sugar, 1 cup lard, 1 cup molasses, 2 cup cold water, 1 teaspoon ginger and cinnamon, two teaspoons soda mixed with molasses, two teaspoons vanilla. Flour to make quite stiff. Roll quite thick.

Best wishes to all.

I. J. B.

PLANNING FOR SUMMER FLOWERS

Dear Social Corner: I am glad we are to have pins. I am anxious to have one. What lovely weather we are having. I am planning to have plenty of flowers this summer if I can have good luck. Can any one tell me how to care for a primrose? I have been trimming off the blossoms as they go by. What is best to do with it this summer?

I am so sorry for Red Clover and hope she will soon be out with the Social Corner again.

I think it is about time we heard from Dew Kist and Midget. It seems as if they are rather slow but I think we are all a little inclined to be. I know I am. I was glad to meet Mayflower as she is acquainted with my daughter. Perhaps I will make myself known next time we meet.

Best wishes to all.

DOUBLE FUCHIA.

KEEPING PAGE FULL

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I guess it is time I got busy and did something to keep the Corner page full.

Crimson Rambler: How is the pillow cover coming? I have not started the other yet.

Ece: How is your rose bush doing?

G. E. M.: How is your cold?

Snowball: Why don't you write? Don't let your pen get rusty.

True Blue: How is your new dress?

Paula and Saville: How are you both feeling? It seems like spring since the birds have came again. Hope the sisters had a good time at the last meeting. Well, I will close and leave room for the other sisters to write. With kind regards to all.

LORNA.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I'd like very much to join the Social Corner as I have attended two of the club meetings and enjoyed them. Everybody seems so pleasant. I also enjoy reading the letters every Saturday in The Bulletin and the recipes.

Kindly tell me how to obtain one of the neat Social Corner pins? May I use for my pen name.

PLAIN JANE.

JUST WHAT IS NEEDED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: After reading Aurelia's letter April 4th I certainly consider myself a slacker. If I had a neighbor that was a member of Club No. 2 we could find much to write or talk about and it is I have the pleasure of meeting some very lovely sisters and often we pass each other on the street unrecognized. The pin is just what we need.

WHEN GREASE IS SPILLED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It is a long time since I have sent a letter to the Corner, but I am still interested and am anxious to get my paper and read the Corner page which has so many cherry and helpful articles. One, especially, was a great help to me. I wanted to know what to do to get rid of the little black flies and white worms that are around house plants. Sometime ago I read, to make white geraniums have a purer white blossom, sprinkle a little soot around the plant and mix into the soil.

Another article which may help tells what to do when grease is spilled. When hot grease is spilled upon a wood floor or upon other surfaces into which it is liable to sink and leave an ugly stain, dash cold water upon it as quickly as possible. This hardens the grease and stops further penetration into the wood. Scrape up the cooled fat and if a hot iron is handy it sometimes helps to place a blotter over the stain and iron it. Wet

NEW LONDON CITY MANAGER TO SPEED UP THE POLICE COMMITTEE'S REPORT

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 10.—City Manager William A. Holt stated today that he was unable to determine when he would submit any recommendation to the city council tending to improve the efficiency of the police department, for to date he had not received a report of the finding of the special committee of the city council, which conducted hearings for a long time with this purpose in view. He did state, however, that he would not countenance the withholding of the report a great while longer and would insist that a report be rendered him, that he may be in a position to make such recommendations as he deems proper for the enforcement of law and order in this city.

The hearings were started last October and were concluded six weeks ago, yet the city manager has received no intimation from the secretary of the committee when the report will be made.

Benjamin Beebe, former lieutenant of the police department, was retired October 1, 1924, and since that time no successor has been appointed in spite of the fact that it is close to seven months since former Lieutenant Beebe retired from police service. Since the retirement of former Lieutenant Beebe, Sergeant James D. Gaffney has been acting lieutenant.

Mrs. Mary Cobb, of North Bank street, and Jesse Liberatnoch, the latter of the tug Jupiter, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

Two drunks rambled into town last night to pass the holiday. They were Charles Carpenter, who said he was a tobacco hand employed on the plantations along the Connecticut valley. He was here fifteen years ago and then was in the court and accused of intoxication. The suns of many years had whitened his hair and he was a bit untidy in his appearance. "It's time for sterilizing the land in the tobacco country," he said, "and I never fail to get work then." He admitted that he had drank a little too much, but he did not regard that as a serious offense. The court allowed him to get out of town and to make his way to the fields of promise by suspension of judgment. Welch Ustach, a Pole, responded to his name for the eighth time when he was accused of having been drunk last night. Officer Ray took him into the station as much for safe keeping as because he was intoxicated. He was so intoxicated that he embraced Probation Officer Mansfield and that gentleman had to shake him off to permit him to go to a cell. The Good Friday spirit prevailed in court and Welch was allowed to go back to his work as a penitent. He was warned, however, that a different sort of treatment would be accorded to him if he appeared again under the influence of liquor.

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine Gunn, wife of William Gunn, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her residence, 240 Crystal avenue, and was attended by relatives, friends and neighbors. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Bearers were Angus McKay, Robert MacWalters, William Gunn, Jr., and John MacKenzie. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Russell J. Palmer, former conductor in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal church and was attended by a large concourse of mourners, among whom was a representation of members of the Order of Railroad Conductors, of which organization Mr. Palmer had been a member for years. A large number of railroad employes attended also. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter. The bearers were Winifred Stoddard, Stephen Crowell, William Kahler, Frank Ryan, Lawrence Budlong and Jeremiah Howard. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The highway bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad which spans the tracks on Montauk avenue, was discovered to be in a dangerous condition, early this morning, when Patrolman Henry Sylvia found some of the planking in such a loosened condition as to jeopardize the safety of automobilists. The matter was reported to the railroad officials this forenoon.

Mrs. Peter Truken, of Waterford, is under arrest, charged with violation of the liquor law and her husband, an old offender in the Waterford courts, is being sought. Both are charged with violation of the liquor law as the result of a cleverly secreted still having been found in operation at the Truken home yesterday by the state police, from Groton barracks. Mrs. Truken will be given a hearing in the Waterford court tomorrow noon and so will her husband in the event he is found and that is rather unlikely as a search of the wooded country of Waterford was made throughout today in an effort to locate him.

The state police have been of the impression for a long time that Truken has been a steady violator of the liquor law and although he was liberated from jail earlier in the week, he was prepared upon his obtaining his freedom to resume his vocation as a manufacturer of white mule. He started right away and when officers visited the Truken farm Wednesday they detected the odor issuing from the still, but could not locate it. Late yesterday they again visited the Truken home and going to a bed room they plainly detected the odor of the still in operation, but could not locate it. Finally the bed was pulled aside and the carpet on the floor removed and a trap door found. There is no cellar to the house, but the officers followed the opening and finally entered a cave and there found a still with 26 gallons of "mule" in it. This could not be seized at once for it was two hours after its existence was revealed that it became sufficiently cool to permit its being handled.

In the meantime Truken, who had gained knowledge of the visit of the raiders to his place, disappeared in the woods. The police searched last night and again today for Truken, but could not locat him, and it is now believed that he is being hid away in the farmhouse of some neighbor. Mrs. Truken however, was detained in the house and when the still was in condition to be moved, she was arrested, being later brought before Justice of the Peace Frederick L. Geer and held for trial tomorrow.

An automobile owned and operated by Sherman R. Stone, East Lyme, and a machine owned and driven by George J. Fox, 307 Williams street, were in collision this evening at the corner of State and Huntington streets. Neither car was damaged of consequence.

The city's sewer department has been engaged putting in new service pipes on Lower Boulevard, between Parker and Crocker streets several weeks and tonight, during the heavy rain two automobiles in passing over the newly replaced earth of the trenches, sank deep in the mud when the weight of the cars caused the earth to settle. So deep did the cars become wedged in the soft mud that they had to be hauled out by other cars. A force of laborers of the highway department were dispatched to the location of the trouble to make further repairs.

Since the arrest and conviction of Nicholas Palladini, Home street, charged with violation of the liquor law, and who was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail, the execution of the jail sentence suspended, it has developed that the information upon which Palladini was convicted was furnished by a Filipino sailor, but without the latter's knowledge that he was turning informer. The Filipino is being held a prisoner at the county jail at the request of the federal authorities for whom he obtained the information that convicted Palladini.

The Filipino, who had been stationed at the local coast guard station base, was approached by a sailor, also stationed there, to obtain a quart of liquor, the plan having been concocted by an officer. The Filipino purchased the liquor from Palladini and then delivered it to the sailor and was paid for his services. The information was then turned over to the coast guard officials and they in turn laid bare the information to the local police.

The arrest of Palladini and the Filipino resulted. New other Filipinos located in this city and several of them who are former members of the navy, are planning to go to the assistance of their fellow-countryman and already have taken steps to procure a lawyer to look after the accused man's interests.

Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar, conferred in full form the Order of the Temple upon three candidates. The commandery has made a change in the place of holding the Easter service and the templars will attend the service at the First Church of Christ. Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, prelate of the commandery, will preach. The service will be held at 4 o'clock, members of the commandery meeting at the temple and marching to the church in a body.

Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, formerly of New London, now residing in New Britain, is confined to the home of her mother, Mrs. Magdalen Ickrath, 80 Williams street, suffering form a fractured ankle sustained last night by stepping on a loose stone while attempting to cross Stewart street. In stepping from the curb, Mrs. Sullivan stepped upon the stone, causing the ankle to turn and producing a painful injury.

ANOTHER STOCK OFFERING FOR NEW DODGE BROS. CO.

New York, April 10—Encouraged by the enormous oversubscription of the initial $85,000,000 stock offering for the new Dodge Bros. automobile company, bankers tomorrow will defy Wall Street traditions and launch the final step in the $160,000,000 financing operation—the flotation of a $75,000,000 bond issue.

To undertake an operation of such magnitude on a Saturday, sandwiched in between two holidays, is a feat never before attempted in Wall street.

Fortified by a large volume of advance applications, however, Dillon, Read & Co., the bankers who are reselling Dodge Bros., to the public, are said to be assured that the oversubscription of the bond issue will be as prompt as that of yesterday's stock offering.

Tomorrow's offering of securities will consist of 15-year 6 per cent. debentures prices at 99 and interest. Of the total amount of $75,000,000 issued, $30,000,000 will be convertible, in blocks of $5,000,000 each, into the company's common stock at prices of $30, $35, $40, $50, $60 and $70 a share. Conversion will be in order of application.

The bonds will be callable at 110 and interest on any interest date. An annual sinking fund of $1,000,000 will be used to purchase the obligations in the open market up to par, if they are available.

Associated with Dillon, Read & Co., in the bond offerings are almost a score of banks and investment houses in the large cities of the country.

TO GIVE A PROGRAM OF UNPUBLISHED MUSIC

Rochester, N. Y.—Apr. 10—After considering fifty-four musical compositions sent by young Americans all over the United States in response to the invitation of the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester, a jury selected six for the first concert on May 2 by the Rochester Philharmonic orchestra, at which the program will be unpublished music by American composers. Following are the composers represented in the first program:

Aaron Copeland, Mark Silver and Bernard Rogers, of New York; George F. McKay, Lead, S. D.; William Quincy Porter, Cleveland; and Adolph Weiss, Rochester, N. Y. In addition to the chosen numbers, the Philharmonic will play a first performance of a work by Donald Tweedy, of the Eastman school faculty. Howard Hanson, noted American composer, and director of the Eastman school, will conduct the program.

FOUND THE BODY OF FLOYD COLLINS IN FAIR CONDITION

Cave City, Ky., April 10—Workers engaged in a second effort to recover the body of Floyd Collins from Sand Cave where he was caught by a rock fall January 30, reached the body this afternoon and found it in fair condition, says a report reaching here from Sand Cave. The body will not be removed today, however.

W. H. Hunt, Central City miner in charge of the work, said the party reached Collins through the old shaft which was abandoned when Collins was consigned to his natural resting place. The shaft was cleaned to the bottom, 55 feet, and the party then proceeded through the lateral, which volunteer workers excavated in February to the cave itself.

Hunt's only comment was that the body seemed to be in fair condition. He would not reveal his immediate plans for removing it from its wedged position.

When Collins was found dead, Feb. 16, volunteer workers decided to leave the body where Collins was caught because of the danger connected with any attempt to remove it. The body is caught from behind and no one has ever been able to reach and remove the rock which holds it.

ROOSEVELTS PACKING FOR THEIR HUNTING EXPEDITION

Ne wYork, April 10—The "Ovis Poli," Central Asia's bighorn ancestor of the modern sheep, probably would have trembled in his Rami highland haunts had he heard and comprehended the talk about his capture as Col. Theodore Roosevelt and his brother, Kermit, put the finishing touches to their packing for the James Simpson Field Musgum hunting expedition.

The Roosevelts sail tomorrow on the Leviathan on the first leg of an itinerary which will include Southampton, Marseilles, Bombay rail Ro Rawl Pindi and motor transport to Srinagar for the "jump off" about the middle of May.

From Srinagar the expedition will proceed by pack animals, principally yaks, through the lofty Leh and Karakoram passes which will take them out into the tableland wilderness of Turkestan.

The hunting grounds are historic Marco Polo country. There the Italian explorer first discovered the "Ovis Poli." When he described the length of its horns as six hands, he was not believed, and it remained for present day hunters to establish the truth of his statement. The Asian bighorn is one of the principal objects of the present expedition.

ORDERS CONCERNING THE GOVERNOR'S STAFF

Hartford, Conn., April 10—In orders from the adjutant general's office the governor's staff is directed to report to Gov. Trumbull at 6:45 p. m. on Wednesday, April 29 at Ansonia.

Permission having been given by Massachusetts for the First and Second Companies of Governor's Foot Guards and the Putnam Phalanx to enter that state under arms, orders are issued authorizing those commands to leave the state for the purpose of taking part in the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Lexington on April 19 and 20.

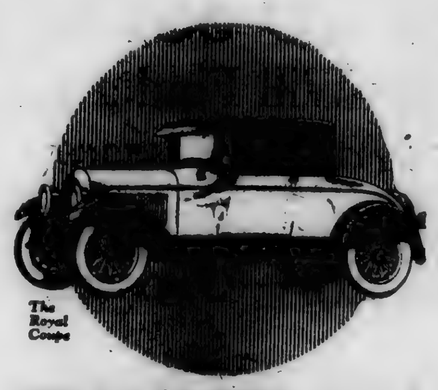
STRIKE AT THE ARMY BASE IN SOUTH BOSTON

Boston, April 10.—A strike for higher wages of the "hour laborers" of the dockmen's force at the army base in South Boston today tied up delivery of 20,000 bales of wool and will cause further indefinite delay, according to Herman Hormel, surveyor of the port, unless the importers agree to accept shipment on the basis of a 10 per cent weighing already made.

The Klan Killer

Dan Moody, of Austin, Attorney General of Texas, the one man in the Lone Star State who is really responsible for the decline of the Klan. Over two years ago, the Klan was the all powerful body of the State and floggings of anti-Klan folk was a common thing. Then Moody was appointed to office and the first Klansman who whipped anybody went to jail. From then on a relentless war against the Klan was waged, and now with the Klan power on the wane, a law has been passed in Texas making a death penalty of anyone being dogged or assaulted by a masked person.

Nothing Like These Results A Year Ago or Now -



The Royal Coupe

It is no trick to build a car that will go 65 or 70 miles an hour if it has a power plant big enough to haul a freight train.

It's a great achievement to get over 70 miles an hour out of a motor of 3-inch bore and 4¾-inch stroke, with gasoline mileage safely above 20 miles per gallon.

And that's the wonder of the Chrysler Six—a wonder so different and so superior that Chrysler was forced to build over 32,000 cars to meet the first-year demand.

Of course you don't want to drive your Chrysler over 70 miles an hour. In fact you may never go that fast. But there is something you do want that only a speed-ability of 70 miles can give.

That something is sure, steady power for steepest hill or deepest sand, a pick-up to flash you out of a traffic tangle, sturdy, dogged pull so you can throttle to five, even two miles an hour, on high without "bucking."

That's Chrysler performance in a nutshell. You surely must drive the car. It's the only way you can fully appreciate that it is the best built car you ever rode in. We are always eager to demonstrate the Chrysler.

WESTERLY

A special session of Stonington town court will be held before Judge William A. Wilcox in Borough hall, Stonington, when a number of track-walking trespassers on the New Haven railroad between Stonington and Westerly, will be brought before the court. Some of the offenders are said to be of tender years. The right of way has been patrolled by railroad detectives during the past week and a number have had "the pleasure of their company requested" for this court session.

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., in the absence of Judge Michael J. Turano, presided at the regular Friday morning session of the third district court and called the following:

Civil docket: New writ, Thomas H. Barber vs. William T. Sherman. Answered and continued two weeks. Acting Judge Flynn said that in accordance with custom of the district court all civil cases were continued one week. Thus the custom adopted by superior courts in Rhode Island, is followed by the district court.

Notice to assign were asked for the following: Granite Street Garage vs. Concetta and Edward Liotta. Set down for April 17th. Granite Street Garage vs. C. H. Marsh. Set down for April 17th.

In the case of Angelo Tuscaldi vs. Concetta Cafone, judgment was given for the plaintiff in the sum of $176.72 and costs.

Frank Myers had his Mercer roadster which was held as security by the Westerly police authorities when, in a special session Thursday evening, Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., found the driver, on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, guilty of operating his automobile recklessly. He was fined $50 and costs and paid into the treasury of the court $54.60.

The Washington County Medical society held its quarterly meeting Thursday morning. At the Central theatre at 11 o'clock Dr. J. Gordon Anderson of New York, formerly of Westerly spoke on "Para-Vertebral Anaesthesia in Hysterectemy," illustrating his talk with moving pictures. The business session followed at the Elm Tree inn. Among amendments adopted was that setting the date of the regular meeting of the Washington County Medical society on the Wednesday preceding the second Thursdays of January, April, July and October of each year. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock.

Judge Nathan B. Lewis, eighty-three, who for many years maintained a law office in Westerly, died at his home in West Kingston, R. I.

Directly descended from John Lewis, a pioneer of Westerly of Westerly, who was admitted as a freeman in 1668, Judge Lewis was born in Exeter, Feb. 28, 1842, a son of James and Mary Sisson Lewis. He was educated in the public schools and at East Greenwich Academy.

From 1872 to 1888 he was town clerk of Exeter, serving for two years after the appointment as judge, and for more than 20 years was superintendent of the Exeter schools. He was admitted to the Rhode Island bar in 1890 and to the United States circuit court in 1899.

He was elected judge of the second judicial district court July 1, 1886, serving until his resignation on April 3, 1922. He was attorney for the proponents of the will in the famous Hoxsie will and Barber will cases.

Justice Lewis moved to North Kingston in 1888 and then to West Kingston in 1894. He was chairman of the commission in charge of the building of the superior courthouse in West Kingston.

At the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted as a member of the Seventh Rhode Island Infantry, and while a corporal served as color guard. During the last year and a half of service he was postmaster of his regiment. He was a charter member of Charles C. Baker post, G. A. R., serving as quartermaster for four years and commander in 1892.

In 1869 Judge Lewis married Rowena K. Lillibridge, who died in 1879. He married Nettie Chester of Westerly in 1880. One son, Aubrey C. Lewis, was born of the first marriage.

He was a past grand of Exeter lodge, I. O. O. F., past chief patriarch of Uncas Encampment of Peace Dale and a member of Exeter grange. Judge Lewis was identified with various Masonic bodies and was a member of Narragansett Commandery, No. 27, Knights Templar of Westerly.

NOANK

Mr. and Mrs. Tenglesen have moved from St. Petersburg, where she has the Dougherty houses on Main street.

Mrs. William Bishop has returned from St. Petersburg, hwere she has been spending the winter. The trip was made by automobile with Mr. and Mrs. Allen, who are spending a few days in New York prior to coming to their home in Groton Long Point.

Mrs. C. I. Fitch recently entertained the Mispah class of the Baptist church at her home.

Engineers from the state highway department began recently to take soundings in the cove near Groton Long Point for the new highway bridge to replace the present wooden structure which spans the cove. The new road leading to Groton Long Point was completed last summer and joins the bridge from either side and is 16 feet wide with four-feet shoulders. The present bridge is only 15 feet wide. Under the standard bridge width adopted by the state the new bridge would be 23 feet wide. Present plans for the bridge calls for an iron structure about 50 feet long which would necessitate filling in the cove 175 feet from each side to complete the 400 feet stretch spanned by the present bridge. The bridge will be similar to the railroad bridge across the cove a short distance west of the wooden structure. The state has offered to pay three-quarters of the cost, the rest to be paid by the town; official action will be taken at the next town meeting.

A three-hour devotional service was held at the Baptist church Friday. Addresses ewre made by the following ministers: Revs. George R. Atha, J. G. Osborne, Byron U. Hatfield, Horatio J. Chase, Myron E. Center and J. Beveridge Lee and by Roger N. Daboll.

FORMER FOUNDLING NOW WEALTHY YOUNG WOMAN

Mineola, N. Y., April 10.—Joy Louise Leeds, 12 years ago a foundling, today learned that she was one of the country's wealthiest children.

Warner M. Leeds, who made a fortune in tin plate production, and who, childless, had adopted Joy Louise 12 years ago when she was a year old, left her the bulk of his estate estimated at more than $4,000,000. Two years ago the child was left the $4,000,000 estate of her foster-mother, Mrs. Louise Hartshorne Leeds, who was killed in a plunge from a window of her New York city home. The will of the foster-father, who died two weeks ago after a twenty years' fight against tuberculosis, was filed here today.

Available data of the estates of wealthy children in the United States show the Leeds heiress to be far wealthier than any of her contemporaries. Gloria Caruso received half of her father's $2,000,000 estate and half of his posthumous phonograph royalties, estimated at $320,000 a year. Each of the seven grandchildren of the late Senator William A. Clark received $1,000,000 at birth. The girl John Jacob Astor, whose father died in the Titanic disaster, inherited something like $3,500,00. John, Huntly and Edward, children of E. B. McLean Washington publisher, received trust funds amounting to more than $1,000,000 each.

Joy Louise is not to come into the principal of her foster father's estate until she is 25 years old. Henry Abbott was named in the will as guardian of the estate and Mrs. Abbott as the child's personal guardian. Bequests totalling little more than $400,000 were made to other heirs.

SOUGHT REFUGE IN JAIL FROM "NAGGING" WIFE

Ogdwen, Utah, April 10.—Tom Disanga, 60 years old, sought refuge in the Weber county jail a few days ago, declaring his wife had "nagged" him until he was ill. He asked and received a chance to catch up in his sleep. Now the sheriff is finding the case a puzzle.

The wife today implored Tom to return to their home. When he refused, she threatened to prefer charges of bigamy against him, declaring he had a wife in Italy, when he married her.

Tom chuckled, declaring he already was in jail and is perfectly satisfied.

He won't leave the jail to support his wife. If she charges him with non-support he will still be in jail, and if the charges of bigamy are pressed, he still contentedly, will be in jail.

If truth and morality are on an increase it isn't very creditable to our ancestors.

POETRY

EASTER.

I.

When in the starry gleam
They smarted the Lord Christ's tomb,
Two angels stood in sight
All dressed in burning white
Who unto the women said:
"Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

II.

His life, His hope, His heart,
With death they had no part;
For this those words of cheer
First heard that holy morn,
When the waiting angels said:
"Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

III.

O ye of this latter day,
Who journey the self-same way
Through mourning's twilight gloom
Back to the Sepulchery tomb—
To you, as to them, was it said:
"Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

IV.

The Lord is risen, indeed,
He is here by your love, by your need—
Not in the grave, nor the sky,
But here where men live and die!
And true the word that was said:
"Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

V.

Wherever are tears and sighs,
Wherever are children's eyes,
Where man calls man his brother,
And loves as himself another,
Christ lives! The angels said:
"Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

—Richard Watson Gilder.

THE HEARTHSTONE.

You and I—and an open fire—
Pile the logs up high and higher—

All the glaring lamps put out,
Friendly darkness all about,

Here before the living glow—
Friendships are cemented so—

You will tell me of your day,
What it means and what it may,

I will bring my doubts to you,
All I think and all I do.

Flaming fingers roam and gleam
While we share each hope and dream.

On the hearth a living fire,
In our hearts a sweet desire.

Cheerful neighbors do not die—
We shall tend them—you and I.
—Betsey Battles, in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"They say that pity is akin to love."
"A sob sister, I suppose."—Police Told Tales.

"Thankful! What have I to be thankful for? I can't pay my bills."
"Then, may alive, be thankful you aren't one of your own creditors."—Toronto Globe.

The lady—"Is Sir Reginald Whatname staying here?"
Hotel Clerk—"Yes, first floor, suite one."

The lady—"Sir!"—London Opinion.

"I see someone has suggested a statue to the man who invented rubber tires."
"Wouldn't a bust be more appropriate?"—Boston Transcript.

"How did you get that cut on your head?"
"His—musta—his—bit myself."
"Gwan. How could you bite yourself up there?"
"Musta stood on a chair."—Country Gentleman.

"Dusie, that's the fourth time you've asked me what trumps are, my dear."
"But you want me to take an interest in the game, don't you George?"—Humorist, London.

"Did you give the man the third degree?" asked the police officer.
"Yes. We browbeat him and badgered him with every question we could think of."
"What did he do?"
"He dozed off and merely said now and then, 'Yes, my dear, you are perfectly right.'"—Chicago News.

Olive trees more than 1,000 years old grow in the island of Majorca.

To demonstrate that Finland has a large native literature, a fair of the printing trades was recently held at Helsingfors. The Finns boast of being the most literate nation in the world. They point with pride to the fact that their little country has seventy-five book shops in the cities, 110 in the country, 400 book cash agents and some 130 news stands.

A barley from old Egypt is proving a precious gift to the western part of the United States, according to the office of cereal investigations, United States department of agriculture. In the last season in California, Club Mariout barely successfully survived an exceptionally dry year that did damage to many other barleys and other cereals. Club Mariout barley was brought from the Nile delta by Dr. Harry V. Harlan in his African agricultural explorations. It has just been well established and has now proved its resistance to severe drought in the west.

The River Shannon, on the Emerald Isle, has been chosen to furnish power for a gigantic hydro-electric development. Ireland is falling into line. Nottingham forest is to have a railroad through the middle of it; peaceline launches churn up and down the road to Mandalay, the Jordan is to have a dam, and now turbines for the River Shannon—to make more power to attract more factories, to use more power, where the three-leafed shamrock grows. Thus passeth poesy as modern progress makes its way.—New York World.

A duck, killed by Charles Gleasner, of Oneida, S. D., had a bone arrowhead imbedded in its breast. It is believed that the arrowhead, which is as sharp as a needle and only an inch in length, is made from walrus bone. The mark around the arrowhead was in perfect condition and indicated that the wound must have been healed for several weeks. Apparently this duck was a visitor from as far north as the arctic circle.

A weekly air mail service between Adelaide and Sydney, Australia, with intermediate stops at Mildura, Hay, Narrandera and Cootamundra, was recently started by the Larkin Aircraft Supply Company. The establishment of this interstate service will add considerably to the mileage of organized routes over which regular services are now in operation. The Perth-Derby service operated by the Western Australian Airways, Ltd., is 1,443 miles in length; the Charleville-Cloncurry route, maintained by the Queensland and Northern Territory Aerial service, Ltd., is 577 miles long, and the new route from Adelaide to Sydney will be 730 miles—making in all a total of 2,869 miles of air routes now in operation in Australia.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The state election was all important in Norwich a half century ago for James Lloyd Greene of this city was running for governor on the republican ticket. Norwich friends were doomed for disappointment however for the state went democratic by one of the largest majorities ever polled in the state.

Other items of interest taken in part from the files of the Bulletin of 1875 are as follows;

Monday, April 5, 1875—The horse cars are now running regularly on the Norwich Town line and extensive repairs are to be made soon to the track. Notices have been sent out that this line will make it possible for every voter, young and old, to use the horse car line to get to the polls and vote for Greene.

A minister in one of the local churches Sunday gave out the familiar verse, "I see that land where summer reigns; where everything is green." At this point he was obliged to sit down to wait for the applause to subsid.

George T. Bromley writes from the Pacific coast that he learned with regret that the Public Reading room is no more. He felt that a public reading room should have been supported in Norwich when the cost was slight. His views are the same as others, but the reading room was closed on April 1st. and probably closed for good.

Tuesday, April 6, 1875—James Lloyd Greene of Norwich, candidate for governor on the republican ticket was defeated at the polls yesterday by Charles R. Ingersoll, democrat. New London county and Windham county came through handsomely for Greene but the ticket failed to poll votes heavy in New Haven where Ingersoll rolled up a majority of over 2,000 votes. Other down state towns made his majority a safe one. Republicans gained largely in the state senate and house but probably lost two congressmen.

J. S. Brockway of Willimantic claims the first trout of the season, which he caught Thursday and sold for $5 to the Parker House, Boston. It was twenty-four and a half inches long, seven inches deep and weighed six pounds and a quarter.

Norwich is enjoying exceptionally fine railroad service at the present time. Twenty-four trains a day leave the two local stations, north and south, and the patronage is reported good. The freight is also reported to be heavy on both lines.

Wednesday, April 7, 1875—Park church was thronged last evening during the installation of Rev. M. M. G. Dana, to be pastor of that church. The first portion of the ceremony was in charge of Rev. Thomas L. Shipman of Jewett City after which a report was rendered by Rev. Robert T. Stanton of the Greeneville Congregational church. The sermon of the evening was preached by Rev. Dr. Richard Storrs of the Church of the Pilgrim (Congregational) of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the right hand of fellowship was given by Rev. Mr. Palmer of the Second Congregational church of Norwich. There was an excellent musical program and the ceremony closed with benediction by Rev. Mr. Dana.

An item that has attracted wide attention in the press of the state is one which tells of the falling of the bell on the Unitarian church in Mystic, recently, crashing through the steeple of the church and landing on the ground. It is a good item with two or three exceptions. (1) there is no bell in the steeple. (2) there is no steeple on the church. (3) there is no Unitarian church in Mystic. Otherwise the story is absolutely correct.

Thursday, April 8, 1875—The Ella has been hauled from her winter quarters to her old berth at the wharf. Extensive improvements will be made on her before the season opens. Among other changes she will have new paddle wheels, which it is expected will greatly increase her speed.

The sale of seats at the Second Congregational church, yesterday, amounted to a little over $5,000. On the same evening the pews of the Central Baptist church were rented for over $4,500.

Henry E. Griswold, agent of the Norwich Provident association has made public his report for the final quarter of 1874, and the first quarter of 1875. Expenditures in the final quarter of 1874 amounted to $220.77 while those of the first quarter of 1875 reached a total of $1,699.36. One hundred and thirty-nine families have received assistance and 498 individuals have been helped by the association.

New London citizens turned out yesterday to honor Hon. H. H. Starkweather, who passed through that city in the morning, enroute to Washington.

Friday, April 9, 1875—A number of Norwich men are to attend the annual reunion of the Andersonville prisoners to be held at the Crawford House in Boston, this evening.

There was a great deal of blasting at the Laurel Hill tunnel yesterday. Work there has been going forward at a rapid pace and the tunnel will be open soon it is expected.

To "postal card" is a new verb coming into use these days. People going away now say, "I will postal card you," meaning that they will write while away.

The pews at Park Congregational church were sold last evening for an amount in excess of $6,500.

A couple of new rowing clubs are being organized and it is expected that meets will be held on the river during the summer months.

William Sykes of New London reported getting 14 snipe yesterday. They are reported as plentiful and the stores have large quantities for sale.

Saturday, April 10, 1875—The Norwich Horse railroad company has defaulted in the payment of its bonds and trustees for bond holders have taken possession and will operate it with Mr. Gale as manager until the road can be sold under mortgage. George Pratt has been appointed by the directors in place of David Smith deceased.

P. J. Connor of Norwich was elected state treasurer of the A. O. H. at the state convention held in Middletown yesterday.

Bishop Clinton is to make his official visit to the African Methodist Episcopal society of this city on Tuesday evening of next week.

The Dime Savings bank has been moved to the former Probate Court building which has been handsomely fitted up for the purpose.

The clock on the Central Baptist church has been removed.

FINAL TALK BY DR. DANFORTH; MESSAGE FROM DR. JEFFERSON

The rarely interesting series of Lenten noon meetings held at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. building on the Fridays of Lent were brought to a close in the final meeting Friday noon, when the interest was deep as it has been at every meeting of the series. Dr. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London was the speaker of the series as he has been during the Lenten period of the two years previous, and he has surely won a warm place in the hearts of the men of Norwich. At the meeting Friday, President James C. Macpherson presided, and spoke the minds of the men in expressing genuine appreciation to Dr. Danforth for his services which have meant so much to those who attended. General Secretary Edwin Hill read a special message to the meeting from Dr. Charles E. Jefferson of the Tabernacle church of New York. Dr. Jefferson wrote to Secretary Hill in part as follows:

"Tell all my friends in Norwich that in this Holy Week, I am thinking of them, and wishing them the same rich blessings which I crave for my own congregation; tell them that every thought of them makes me glad, and that I rejoice in all the good things I hear of your meetings. In New York we are having perfect meetings, large congregations, and many evidences of the Divine favor; fifty joined my church last Sunday."

After prayer by the general secretary, and a sweet solo by Hugh Kinder, Dr. Danforth gave the message, which was in part as follows on the topic "The Sea of Glass and Fire."

"It is in the last book in our Bible that we read, 'And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire; and they that had gotten the victory over the beast and over his image, and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God.'

"The centuries of proclamation of the Christion faith are still passing by. The end is not yet nor can anyone tell when it will be. But there is that in the future, near or far, toward which the whole creation moves.

"The sea of glass and fire is transparent. No sooty obscuration of the flame nor muddy murkiness of flood mark that bright sea. The flame is clear, the glass is crystal. For God's revelation is never in the oracular obscurity in which the Delphic Apollo set the Greeks to guessing what the Divine will could be for them. To us is given the clear shining of the Way, the Truth and the Life. In the blest Master, to the memory of whose death on the cross Good Friday is devoted, we find God manifest in the flesh, redeeming the world unto Himself. He does not obscure God; he shows Him to us. What Christ is, God is.

On the mount of Transfiguration Moses and Elijah appeared with the Christ; whose face and garments shone with heavenly glory. By the sea of glass and fire the Seer saw them all the apostolic band, the countless host of the redeemed, gathered before the great white throne of God, and the glory of eternity crowns the Eternal. In the sea of glass and fire we find the light of all the other fires of faith is gathered up and kept for ever. And in it too we find the love of all our human generations is gathered glowing before the feet of God for ever.

"The clear glass is not that of cold intellect, though it is transparent as truth itself. The glowing love is not that of blind passion, no whirlwind of feeling devoid of knowledge. It is both truth and love together. For Christ is both of these for us. In Him was the eternal truth, so manifest, so shining bright. In Him was love, that makes us all His own, that passes through the shadow of Calvary, through cold death and the tomb that rises in triumph over the grave, that ascends to the many mansions His pierced hands prepare, and welcome earth's wayfarers at their journeys end.

"We mortals are so easily cold or blind. We need the sea of glass and fire to show us what we needs must gain and keep from all the fire lights of faith of which we have been thinking in these Lenten weeks. We need light and we need love. And we need them both together. The following of Christ is not cold truth nor blind affection. It is love and light together.

"And so we stand today before we part, upon the height of Calvary, the highest mountain this world possesses, when spiritually measured. Together we stand by a cross and are numbered with the faithful who are grouped about it. Together we see the sky obscured as on the morning when we all watched the eclipse. And in gloom of earth we see the glory of heaven. When earth's light fails the light of heaven comes bursting on our sight.

The centurion, looking from his spear to Christ, said, "Surely this was the Son of God." That is what we also say. Let us say it with our hands and our feet, with our hearts and our heads, with our lips and our lives. Let us say it through all the pilgrim days of earth, and let us say it when we, too, shall stand, by grace of God, where that sea of glass and fire is the vast firelight of an eternal faith."

BISHOP NILAN'S PAPER LAUDS MGR. MAY, OF NORWICH

This week's issue of The Catholic Transcript, Hartford, has an editorial on the elevation of Mgr. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church, Norwich. The Transcript's editor, who is the learned and able Rt. Rev. Mgr. Thomas S. Duggan, vicar-general of the diocese of Hartford, writes:

Every student of classical literature has learned to associate Rome with triumphs. The Arch of Titus remains to the present hour. When the great Pompey passed in the streets a universal shout was lifted and the Tiber trembled underneath her banks to hear the replication of the mighty sounds. Since those old half-savage days Rome has been transformed, rebuilt, revolutionized to the very core. A new world has been discovered, and has in the order of Providence become as mighty as the mistress of nations. From the capital of the ancient world the joyous spirit of triumph spread throughout Italy. It was at Capua that Lentulus with his victorious eagles furnished forth the dramatic moment for Spartacus to rise and lead his fellow-gladiators and fellow slaves to rebellion. And so the ancient spirit has gone forth and circumnavigated the globe.

Returning from Rome to Norwich, Monsignor May found the tables turned. A triumph had been arranged, all unknown to the central figure, and arranged to commemorate a victory proclaimed in Rome but won modestly and decisively right here in Connecticut. The conquest was begun quietly in those now far-off days when, as a youthful levite he labored zealously and incessantly under pastors who believed that their assistants were ordained to work, and who would not suffer themselves to be taxed with denying the young men an opportunity to spend their energies in the cause of the gospel. It was continued in less remote years when the young curate was called upon to preside as missionary pastor over the primeval section spreading to the west of Norwich and including Colchester, Moodus, Lebanon, Fitchville and, as the Scripture says, the "region round about."

Even in his wildest dreams the hard working pastor of Coventry and Colchester could not have foreseen a return like that of Tuesday evening. It is indeed a far cry from the Moodus noises to the acclaim of Roman prelates. Possibly Monsignor May had never foreseen the day when he would walk as a stranger the streets which once resounded with cheers for returning Caesars and laurel-crowned victors. But the fates had lofty designs over one who ran his race remote from towns and unobserved by the great.

Rockville, the next theatre of his zeal, learned to prize the devoted ministrations of the rising spiritual leader. When at length he was placed over Norwich, the capitol of eastern Connecticut and the "Rome of New England," those who could recall his two score years of service, saw in his advancement and acknowledgment of solid merit, and a becoming recognition of services rendered. At the present hour they behold in his new honor the placing of the seal of the Fisherman on a long record of unbroken service.

The faithful of Norwich who have had time to appraise their pastor at his real worth decked that he should find on his return an ostensible evidence of the high esteem in which they hold him. They rejoice in the honor which has come in his person to their parish. Spontaneously and naturally they resolved to pay homage to one whom the Supreme Pontiff has adjudged worthy of his distinguished appreciation.

St. Patrick's church, an expression in stone of the predilections of the great parish, calls it should seem, for pastor of prelatial dignity. It is becoming that a non-resident member of the Papal household should minister under such lofty arches, and where storied windows tell of the triumphs of faith and the vigilance of the church in seeking out and acclaiming what is inspiring in long and faithful service.

Attended Reception to Mgr. May.

Among the many out of town people who attended the reception to Monsignor May Tuesday evening at the church were: Mrs. W. Regan, Miss Cary and Mrs. J. Burns of Rockville, Misses Catherine and Annie O'Connell, Miss Nora Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. David Shea, Francis Shea, James Purcell of Colchester, Miss Connell and Miss Clain of Jewett City, Mrs. Louise Bailey and Miss Curran of Hartford, Mrs. Elizabeth May, Miss Moore and Miss M. Moore, of Westerly, R. I., Mr and Mrs. Joseph Harrigan, Mrs. Annie Newman, Mr. and Mrs. William T May and family, Mr. and Mrs. James R. May and family, and Miss Nellie May of New London, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doyle of Montville, Mrs. Nellie Sullivan of Central Village, Eugene E Hickey, of Willimantic.

Nicholas Cuneo, 72, who as president of the Cuneo Importing company of New York, was held to be the only independent rival of the United Fruit business, died at his home in Jersey City.

cloth in warm water, sprinkle with washing soda and rub the spot until the stain disappears or at least greatly disappears. Grease spots on the hardwood floor mar the neat appearance of the kitchen. The point especially to remember is to get the cold water on as quickly as possible.

Hoping it will be so I can meet with you in the near future.

Best wishes to you all.

MAYFLOWER.

APPRECIATES HER FRIENDS

To the Editor and All Corner Members: An Easter greeting! I wish I could have been with you Wednesday, but as it was only possible in spirit I will console myself by writing a letter to the Corner.

I have been having treatment from my old family physician and he has patched me up so I am fairly good now, only I cannot do much walking. I have two friends in the church who drive their own cars. One comes after me and the other brings me home, for I am not able to walk up hill. So I get to church every Sunday and I can assure you this kindness is fully appreciated.

I understand The Bulletin has pins for the Cornerites. I should like one.

I was treated to a birthday dinner at O'Leary's and enjoyed it very much. I also received an angel cake from a friend. It was lovely. It is nice to have so many good friends and they never seem to forget me on any occasion.

It is good to see the Corner page overflowing every week, and I hope it may continue to have a prosperous year. It has certainly grown to be very popular. I am wishing you all a happy Easter.

DOM PEDRO.

TWO EASILY PREPARED RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Editor: I should like very much to have one of the Corner pins, and think it is a wonderful idea to have a pin as it will serve as an introduction to each other.

The circle keeps growing and all the letters are very interesting. I am very sorry for all who are ill or in trouble of any sort. Hope to hear that all are gaining and happy.

Gypsy Wanda: I will send a recipe for

Pineapple Pie: 1 can crushed pineapple, 1 3-4 cups sugar, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons of flour, 2 well beaten eggs, small piece of butter. Beat up well together and bake between two crusts. This will make two medium pies.

Hope you will like this one as it is very easy to prepare.

Will also send another recipe for a quick dessert.

Brown Sugar Desert: 2 cups boiling water, 2 cups dark brown sugar, 2 tablespoons corn starch, (dissolved in cold water) 1 teaspoon vanilla. Stir until thick and smooth, and cool in individual molds. Serve cold, with whipped cream.

Rosalind: I am glad you noticed the recipe I sent in for mock cherry pie. Hope you will also note the ones I am sending in this week. We like them very much. Both are so easy to prepare.

Now, I will close, wishing all the Social Corner friends a very happy Easter, and special Easter greetings to the Social Corner editor for all courtesies.

ECLIPSE.

ENJOYED VISIT TO CLUB NO. 2

Social Corner Friends: After a very pleasant time at the Buckingham Memorial, April 1st, I feel I should write a line to the Corner.

The day was very nice for an automobile ride and I could not refuse when Cretia invited me to go to Norwich and attend the Social Corner gathering with her.

We arrived as they were seated at the long tables, but places were found for us at once, and we enjoyed the dinner very much. We also enjoyed the entertainment which followed, especially the piano duet by Joan and Black Eyed Susie.

We lingered until many had gone, then went shopping and calling on old friends.

The evening was pleasantly spent with friends of Cretia. Later her son drove to Norwich for us, and we arrived home after a day of pleasure.

Am told one can have a Social Corner pin by asking for it. If so I would be pleased to have one.

BESS STARBRIGHT.

RECIPES WORTH TRYING

Dear Social Corner Members: At last I have found time to write. As I am a new member of the Social Corner, it is hard to write when you do not know any one of the sisters.

Hope to meet some of them in the nice summer days.

I am sending some recipes and wish good luck to every one who tries them.

Annie's Nut Cake: 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup butter, 3-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 1-2 cups reliable prepared flour, 3-4 cup pastry flour, 1 cup chopped nut meats, 4 whites of eggs, beaten stiff.

Cream sugar and butter, add vanilla and milk, then stir in the flour and nut meats, lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten white of eggs. Bake in sheets.

Walnut Sweet Potatoes: Peel and boil twelve sweet potatoes. Cut in quarters, place in a baking dish, baste with butter, sprinkle with sugar and black walnuts coarse chopped. Bake in moderate oven until brown.

FOR-ME-NOT.

HELP SOMEBODY TODAY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Just a few lines to wish you all a very happy Easter. If it is as beautiful a morning Easter morn as it was this morning I am sure there will be lots of new Easter bonnets in evidence.

I wish I knew who some of the Corner Sisters were. I can't say that I know one of you, but I do enjoy your letters so much. Also your recipes.

I wonder how many of the sisters know the hymn, Look all around you, and I also wonder how many of us do as that hymn tells us to do. Perhaps I have the title wrong. I guess it should be, Help Somebody Today. Anyway it goes like this, Look all around you, find someone in need, Help somebody today! The' it be little a neighborly deed—Help somebody today, etc.

If we all of us would only do this what a beautiful world we would have.

I often think of this beautiful quetation:

A friendly word in kindness spoken,
A motion or a tear,
Has often healed a heart that's broken
And made a friend sincere.

SUNFLOWER.

GREETINGS FROM MAPLE LEAF

Dear Social Corner Pals: Thought I would write a few lines and not let my pen get rusty.

Crimson Rambler: How are you getting along? You should have been with us on our latest trip. It sure was interesting. If you don't think so ask Eos. Yes, I do go goarting quite often. The arbutus were lovely.

Eos: Would you like to take the trip again that we took this week? I wouldn't mind.

True Blue: How are the slips doing, are they growing? Will see you in the near future.

Papa's Boy: Congratulations first. Yes, I am the one you referred to who has M. G. with me sometimes.

Arise: Your letter received. Everything came o. k. Will send what I mentioned later on. Thanks for what I received.

U. C. E.: We will give you a surprise some day when you are not thinking of one, so look out. Sorry those did not relieve you. We shall have to try something else.

Calla Lily: We are going to come some day and would like to get some of your new radio recipes.

G. E. M.: How are you feeling? I hope your cold is better. Did you arrive home safely and not shake any of those chickens? I bet you cannot carry them as far as I did and not break any.

Paula: How are the daffodils? I suppose all in bloom.

Easter greetings to all.

MAPLE LEAF.

ONE WAY TO GET A PENNAME

Dear Sisters and All: It's been some time since last I wrote, but I have read the letters each week. And, also, I voice my desire to own a Social Corner pin. I shall always cherish my yellow bow as it was given to me by Keturah and I have one given me by Kitty Lou.

Whirlwind: Just have patience and I'll reward you by a long letter.

Calla Lily: I, too, have a radio cook book of recipes that I get over the radio. But I do not pay as strict attention as you.

Papa's Boy: Allow me to offer congratulations on the newest arrival. I knew your brother-in-law in the old days and your younger sister-in-law is a very dear chum of mine.

Alfara: Would like to see you in Willimantic but know it will be an impossibility.

Viola: Did I meet you on South Main street in Putnam Monday afternoon?

At first glance I was positive it was you and then as I came nearer I was quite undecided and I am yet. But if it was please accept my apology.

Will send a recipe for a pudding I got over the radio. No doubt Calla Lily has it.

Grape Nut Pudding: 1 cup grape nuts, 2 cups milk, 1-2 cup raisins. Steam one hour and serve with sugar and cream. That's all there is to it.

As to how and why I chose my penname, before the Miss was changed to Mrs. I merely added 'y' to my initials and became AIRY.

EASTER

Dear Corner Sisters: What shall we do to commemorate this wonderful season, this glorious day? I think we should resurrect the virtues of our neighbors. Meaning our families, friends and associates and not judge people of whom we know only by hearsay. I think we should strive to see the good there is in them and keep the eye single to that.

In every person, in every circumstance, there is to be found a grain of good, although so many times deeply hidden. Let us this Eastertide, resolve to resurrect that good which we can surely do by recognizing that it is there, and at the same time refusing to think or talk of that which seems to us not good.

This I believe, is what the Master meant when he said, 'resist not evil, but overcome evil with good,' and by doing this we aid in the resurrection of all that is true and noble and honest. The despondent one, who looks on the dark side and feels that the shadows have swallowed all the sunshine must resurrect hope and make a place in her heart for joy, turning resolutely away from discouragement and sadness. Not an easy thing to do once the habit has become strongly entrenched, but it can be done, and it must be done if we are to make life what God intended. The duty of the doubting heart is to resurrect faith—that marvelous "substance of all things hoped for" and those of us who are apt to forget that humanity is one, and that all are children of the same Father, must bring to life in our souls that charity, which is neither seeing nor speaking evil of another, but believing the very best of all.

Shall we strive to do this in commemoration of Easter?

Sisters: Did you know that Jack in the Pulpit grew beneath the cross and the edge of it's vase still retains the stains of blood? May God's fullest blessing rest upon our sisters who are ill and away from home and loved ones at this Easter time, I remain,

TRUE BLUE.

RECIPES FROM HOPE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Spring is on its way at last and of course one feels just like writing to tell how glad they are about it. I am one.

Here are a few recipes I am sending which I hope some of you will try.

California Apple Pie: 2 cups of grated apple (can be run through the food chopper). Add grated rind and juice of 1-2 lemon, 1 cup sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 2 tablespoons of melted butter and 1 cup raisins. Turn into pastry lined pie dish. Cover top with strips of pastry, lattice fashion, and finish with a strip around the edge. Place in hot oven, reducing heat after 15 minutes; bake until firm in center.

Creole Cake: 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 1-2 cup milk, 1 1-2 cups flour, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-3 teaspoon salt. Bake in two layers.

Scones: 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 cup chopped dates, 1-3 cup milk (or a little more if needed.) 1 egg. Mix these together and then pat it out. Do not roll it but only pat it. Then cut in little pieces. Then take 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and mix these together and rub some on each piece. Then put in oven to brown. Have the oven rather hot but watch closely.

Well, I hope I will hear some returns on these recipes.

I see where our editor is going to let us have the Social Corner pins. I am more than pleased to have one for I do enjoy our Social Corner and all the sisters.

A very happy Easter to Balsam Fir and also to all the sisters of our Social Corner.

HOPE.

IN HEALTH AND OTHERWISE

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: This is a beautiful spring morning, just the kind that brings cheer following a dark and weary long night. I was quite interested in the poem that Joan sent in to the Corner page last week.

When we are in health, and every thing goes along all right, we are not so apt to consider what the alternative means, but as soon as we are on the side of adversities we then can realize so fully these conditions. There seems to be so much sickness at present, that I presume many of our sisters will not complete their housecleaning very early, and I shall have to be among that number myself, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Insurance executive says Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is "Conqueror of Constipation"

Here is a most remarkable tribute to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN:

"For more than one-third of a century, I was an addict to all kinds of pills, drugs and nostrums to alleviate the tortures resulting from constipation. They brought only temporary relief. Then I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and as a result I have a new birth of freedom from the terrible foe of the race. I am again in the pink of condition, the personification even of youthful vigor in my advancing years. Truly, Mr. W. K. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the conqueror of constipation.

Gratefully yours,

(Signed) A. M. SWEENEY,
The Federal Reserve Life Insurance Co.

Let Kellogg's ALL-BRAN conquer constipation forever for you. Doctors recommend it. It is what they call a bulk food, that sweeps the intestine clean, stimulating digestion and normal, healthy action. Something habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, relief is guaranteed or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Mich. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The Woman's Auxiliary of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, met Monday evening in the Haile club rooms with President Mrs. Leipold in charge. Considerable routine business was transacted and plans made for a supper to be served in the near future. The remainder of evening was spent in working on the poppies to be sold Memorial Day to raise money to be used in service work among the disabled veterans in local institutions.

The list of charter members of the auxiliary was framed recently and has been hung in the rooms of the auxiliary.

EASTERN STAR

The regular meeting of Sachem Chapter, No. 57, was held Wednesday evening in Masonic Temple with Worthy Matron Mrs. Ella Barber in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted after which it was announced that there would be initiation at the next meeting of the chapter. The work committee reported that a sale was being planned for the month of June and reports on the May party, to be held at the first meeting in May, were made by the committee in charge.

EAGLES

Norwich Aerie, 367, held its regular was transacted. Ten applications were transacted. Ten applications were received. The committee on class initiation for Sunday, April 19, reported that everything is arranged for a good time. A class of 25 is expected. The aerie will hold a Ladies' night on Tuesday, April 28. At the next meeting there will be nomination of officers.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

At the meeting of Mercier Assembly No. 12, held this week the committee in charge of the motion picture play, to be given after Easter, reported a splendid sale of tickets. Members in all sections of the city have tickets on hand and it is reported that the pictures are well worth seeing. The feature picture, The Path of Love, is most entertaining and in the course of the picture tells of the life of St. Francis of Assisi. The second picture The Sin that was His, is a splendid story.

The committee reported that there will be a showing of the picture at 4 o'clock in the afternoon for the children who will be chaperoned by members of the assembly.

During the meeting John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce and James L. Case, chairman of the tax analysis committee appeared before the assembly and spoke concerning the tax question in Norwich, urging the members to give careful consideration to the subject and then vote for what they believed would best serve Norwich. The speakers received a vote of thanks for their instructive talks.

JUNIOR MECHANICS.

Buckingham council, No. 14, met Wednesday evening in Buckingham Memorial with Past Councilor H. E. Eddins presiding. The relief committee reported much improvement in the condition of Brother Ladd.

Two members were given the obligation including an honorary member. Several special committees were appointed to act for the good of the order.

Members of the guard team are being coached by Brother Martin, who has had much experience in this line of work. A number of members of this council will travel the Dusty Roads at New London Saturday night, when the council will put on the fourth degree.

The meeting which was largely attended closed at a late hour.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

The next regular meeting of New London county Fonoma Grange, No 8, P. of H., will be held with North Stonington Grange, No. 138, Thursday, April 16, 1925, at 10 o'clock a. m.

The forenoon session will be for business and conferring fifth degree.

Dinner will be provided by North Stonington Grange.

In the afternoon session, lecturer's programme will be as follows: Cornet solo, Brother Parker of Bozrah; A bird's eye view of the postal bill, Brother Goodenough, Ledyard; musical selection, North Stonington; Birds, Brother Perry of North Stonington; recitation, Sister Burdick of Mystic; Keeping our Boys and girls happy on the farm, Sister Bliss of North Franklin; farce, Mrs. Black's Pink Tea, Ladies of Groton Grange.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS.

Clara Barton tent, No. 7, met Tuesday evening at Buckingham Memorial with the president, Alice C. Brinkman, presiding. The mystery package which was a glass salad dish was awarded to Miss Gladys Newberry. The entertainment committee is arranging to hold a food sale in the near future. The tent had as their guests the Department Senior Vice Commander James Young of the G. A. R., who gave a very interesting talk on Appomattox's day, which is April 9th and a day which means more to the veterans of the Civil war than any other, for on that day the battle was fought which settled the great question of slavery and state rights. Appomattox's day saw the rebirth of a new nation. Commander Price of Sedgwick post, No. 1, also gave a talk on the history of the local post, 660 names having been on the roll since its organization 58 years ago, but today there are only 25, and but two charter members living, Comrades John Irish and John Service. Comrades Irish and Crocker were also present at the meeting. The tent closed in regular form.

A pretty 18-year-old girl v gave the name of Constance Craig was admitted to the Atlantic City hospital after having been found in a half-drowned condition on the beach in the fashionable Chelsea section.

What can't be helped will have to be endured.

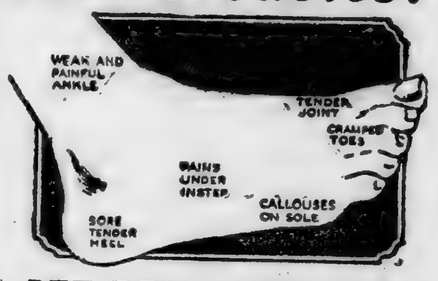
Hope Cobweb: I thank you for your cheerful letter and its contents. However, I am in a little relapse at present.

S. C. Editor: I would be pleased to receive a S C. pin.

Best wishes to all,

JENNIE.

Foot Troubles?



FREE DEMONSTRATION

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Seven persons out of every ten have some form of foot trouble. It may be weak or broken-down arches, weak ankles, corns, callouses or bunions or probably a case of tired, aching, painful feet.

Regardless of what may be the nature of your suffering, you will find quick and permanent relief, this week, at our Foot Comfort Department.

Foot Comfort Expert to Serve You

For the benefit of all foot sufferers, this store has arranged with The Scholl Mfg. Co., for the services of one of Dr. Scholl's most skilled demonstrators, who will be at our store to give free foot comfort demonstrations on the above date. Every foot sufferer should take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

Free Podo-graph Picture Made of Your Feet

In a few seconds' time, without removing the hose, he can make a photographic print of your foot that positively shows if you do have foot troubles and to what stage the trouble has progressed. This service is absolutely free and places you under no obligation whatever.

FREE SAMPLES

Do you want to know how to stop corns hurting instantly? Come in and get a sample of Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads. They remove the cause of corns—friction and pressure. Thin, antiseptic, healing.

Bring your foot troubles to this store during this demonstration and learn the true meaning of foot comfort.

THE "EASY" SAVES A WORLD OF TIME

WITHOUT an adequate amount of time for each household task or domestic pleasure, doesn't your daily routine become but a tiresome cycle, a hustle bustle? With an "EASY" you will possess this all important commodity—TIME. Time for rest, time for play, added hours of leisure to devote to the dictates of your fancy.

This tremendous advantage is but one of the many things the "EASY" Vacuum Electric Washer is designed to deliver. The benefits of washing your clothes in the "EASY'S" capacious copper tank are obvious—once they have been pointed out—that's why we earnestly suggest that you request a demonstration. It will be given in a courteous and efficient manner by a trained expert. The obligation will be entirely ours.

How Thunderer Really Does Drum

Patience and an open mind
The truth at last will surely find.
—Old Mother Nature.

There is one thing about Peter Rabbit which is exceedingly good. This is that he always is willing to admit his mistakes. He was quite upset when told by Jumper the Hare that what he had thought he had seen he hadn't seen at all in regard to the drumming of Thunderer the Grouse.

He suddenly became very shy, and presently flew away

But when Jumper suggested that it would take very tough sides indeed to stand the thumping of those stout wings of Thunderer's he saw right away that this was so. He just hadn't thought of it. In fact, he hadn't done any real thinking.

"Well," said he, when I watched Thunderer this morning it certainly looked as if he thumped his sides with his wings. It certainly did look that way. If he doesn't pound his sides, what does he pound? He must beat something to make all that noise."

"We'll go watch him again," said Jumper. "He is back on that old log now, so we'll go over there and watch."

They did. They reached a place where they could watch, yet were themselves unseen. There is only one Thunderer cares to see him drum, and that is Mrs. Grouse. It is wholly for her benefit that he drums. So Peter and Jumper remained hidden and watched. They were quite close, so that they could see clearly all that was to be seen.

"Watch!" whispered Jumper, as Thunderer's wings flashed out and up. Out and down, out, up and down those mighty wings flashed, gradually getting faster and faster. But before they were moving too swiftly to be seen Peter had made a discovery.

"Why," he whispered, "I do believe that all he does is to beat on the air!"

Jumper nodded. "That is all," said he. "And if you will watch closely you will see that in the beginning, anyway, it is when he brings his wings out and up that he makes the noise, not when he brings them down. I guess that when those wings are moving so fast they may make the noise when coming down, but I know that they make it going up. Whether he does it one way or both ways, he does it by drumming on the air, and that is all there is to it. He doesn't beat the log he stands on, he doesn't beat his sides and he doesn't beat his wings together above his back. Yet I have often said that he drums on all three. Folks are funny. They will believe anything rather than take the trouble to find out the facts. Why, some stopping to think at all would say that just feathers, no matter how stiff, struck together couldn't possibly make such a noise. It is all in the way he catches the air with those wings. Isn't it, Thunderer?"

Thunderer had discovered Peter and Jumper hiding there and was looking at them with suspicion in those bright eyes of his.

"I don't know what you are talking about, but if you say it is I guess it is," said he. "What are you doing there, anyway?"

"Admiring your drumming," replied Jumper promptly. "At the same time, Cousin Peter here has been learning that the air not a hollow log or your sides or your wings hitting together are your drum. Isn't that so?"

"Of course, of course," replied Thunderer. "People do get such foolish ideas. Of course I use the air for my drum."

"Drum again," begged Peter.

But Thunderer wouldn't. He suddenly became very modest and shy and presently flew away. So this is how Peter Rabbit learned the truth about the drumming of Thunderer the Grouse.

WESTMINSTER

At the Morning worship last Sunday the story of Christs Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem was outlined with the question "What has that to do with us?" St. John 14:6. Notice was given that next Sunday as for several years, the first part of the Easter service will belong to the church-school, their offering being for the homeless starving children from the land of the Savior's birth, to place more in care of the Near East, to help make sure they have one meal a day, clothing, and place to sleep, and care. Those intending to loan plants have been asked to bring them to the church early Sunday and take them at the close of worship. Many are desired.

The usual Easter Communion service will be held at the close of the church school session.

The Good Friday service was held at 10.30 a. m., at the Temporary Parsonage.

Mrs. Andrew J. Nash, of Darien, has lately been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Davies of Elm Arch Farm.

The Fromers, until lately owners of the Hicks-Ladd place, are returning to New York, their former home.

Mrs. Hicks has recently been a guest of Mrs. George Coombs and a caller at Wm. Davies.

R. P. Davis, who for some time has been in the employ of H. A. Rix, has hired the Ladd farm in Brooklyn.

Friday evening of last week, neighboring friends gathered at Carl Stahake's to help him properly celebrate his birthday.

Mrs. Martha Warren of Bridgeport, formerly of Westminster, has a position in Springfield, Mass.

The parsonage barn has been jacked-up and put in condition to start on its trip across the street, where it is to be transformed into a bungalow.

John Albin, of Darien, is planning to spend the summer in the home of his sister, Mrs. William Davies. Mr. Albin has been for years in the ice business in Darien. Impaired health necessitating an operation brings him here to recuperate.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Husbarl were in Plainfield Tuesday.

An airplane passed over Westminster Tuesday, flying very low.

Archie Green is working for Charles Barstow.

Clifford William's many friends all over town, rejoice to know that he is en route to "Wellville" after his critical attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. Jessie A. Meade, whose expected arrival for the summer was noted last week was detained in New York, but hopes to be here for Easter.

LEGAL NOTICES

TAX NOTICE
TOWN OF VOLUNTOWN
All persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Voluntown are hereby notified that I have a warrant to levy and collect a town tax of 40 mills on the dollar on the list of 1924. Also the personal tax. For the purpose of collecting the same I will be at Warren E. Tanner's house, Monday, April 6th, 1925 from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. At all other time I will be at the Town Clerk's office. All persons failing to pay this tax by August 31st, 1925 will be charged 9 per cent. interest. By a town vote I have been instructed to engage counsel to assist in the collection of all taxes now in arrears.
WILLIAM H. KAUFMANN,
Tax Collector.
Dated at Voluntown this 18th day of March, 1925. mar21d.

LISBON TAX NOTICE
Notice is hereby given to all persons liable to pay tax in the Town of Lisbon, that I have a warrant to levy and collect a tax of twenty-seven (27) mills on the dollar on the list last made, said tax becomes due and payable April 1, 1925, and for the purpose of collecting the same I shall be at the Blissville school house, Saturday, April 11th from 12.30 to 2, at the town house from 2.15 to 4; at the Bend school house, Saturday, April 18th from 2 to 3.30.
After May 1st, 1925, interest at the rate of nine (9) per cent. will be added from the time these taxes became due.
If tax is sent by mail enclose stamp for receipt if one is wanted; otherwise receipt will be held until called for.
Dated at Lisbon, Conn., March 10, 1925.
ALWIN KAMPFF,
mar21d. Collector.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS
All persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Preston are hereby notified and warned that I have a warrant to levy and collect a tax of seventeen mills on the dollar on the town list of 1924.

THE WEATHER
Conditions

The disturbance that was central over Illinois Thursday night has moved almost directly eastward to the the Middle Atlantic states and the disturbance that was over Quebec has moved eastward beyond Newfoundland.

There have been showers within the last 24 hours almost generally east of the Mississippi river. The temperature has risen along the North Atlantic coast.

The indications are for mostly fair weather Saturday and Sunday in the Washington forecast district except that local showers are probable Saturday night or Sunday in Northern New England and North and Central New York. The temperature will be lower in the North Atlantic states on Saturday but it will rise again in the Atlantic states during Sunday.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook, and Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Fresh north and northwest and weather overcast Saturday; showers Saturday morning.

Forecast

For southern New England—Clearing and slightly cooler Saturday; Sunday increasing cloudiness and somewhat warmer.

NORWICH TOWN

Thursday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Ward of Huntington avenue, a company of children was delightfully entertained in observance of the eighth birthday of their little daughter, Virginia Lucile Ward. Those present were: Doris, Muriel and Norma Rose, Sadie Portelance, Isabel and Florence Gemble, Florence Fowler, Betty Browning, Edna Judson, Mildred Carter, Dorothy Miller, with Blossom Ward and Reginald Ward, Jr., sister and brother respectively of the little hostess. Music and games provided much merriment for the children. In the donkey game, Florence Fowler won first prize, the consolation award going to Norma Rose. Two first prizes were given in the peanut hunt because of close competition, the winners being Isabel Gemble and Edna Judson. In the guessing contest prizes were awarded Florence Fowler first and Muriel Rose second, while the consolation went to Virginia Ward.

Seated at a table prettily decorated in pink crepe paper, Mrs. Ward assisted by her mother, Mrs. Albert G. [illegible] Miss Hazel Cruthers, served sandwiches, cake, fruit jello, [illegible] the decorated birth-day cake, the center of the table, was a feature. At each place [illegible] name cards, and small [illegible] were filled with candy. The little [illegible] received numerous pretty gifts.

STATE OF MAINE ASSOCIATION MEETS

The monthly meeting of the State of Maine association of eastern Connecticut was held Thursday evening at the Wauregan hotel with a supper at 6 o'clock and an attendance of twenty-five. President J. Nelson Waymouth presided.

Dr. Fred L. Varney of the Backus hospital staff gave an interesting talk about his trip to Europe and was followed by Mrs. Carl W. Brown with a discussion Maine current topics. An entertaining feature was provided by a Maine questionnaire in which each one present supplied information on [illegible] which should be familiar to [illegible] affiliated with the Pine Tree state.

For the May meeting it is planned to invite the associations of Providence, Worcester and Hartford here for an outdoor picnic.

GOOD FRIDAY SERMON BY PARK CHURCH PASTOR

Speaking from the text, Matthew 26, 30, And when they had sung a hymn they went out into the Mount of Olives, Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe delivered a sermon of characteristic intellectual power and lofty thought before a good sized congregation at the special Good Friday morning service at Park Congregational church.

In part the pastor spoke as follows:

There are some pretty legends about certain birds singing their sweetest songs in death. In the Phaedo of Plato the dying Socrates compares himself with the prophetic birds that are sacred to Apollo: For they when they perceive that they must die having sung all their life long do they sing more than ever, rejoicing in the thought that they are going away to the god whose ministers they are. For because they are sacred to Apollo they have the gift of prophecy and anticipate the good things of another world wherefore they sing and rejoice on that day more than they ever did before.

These legends are suggestive of something truer and greater. All true and great life ends in music. Gets into the swing and rhythm of the universal order and becomes part of that universal music. The discords are perhaps all down here amidst the clash and confusions of time out of all which we hope to find our own escape some day. All true life issues in music.

It is a notable fact that in the Bible nearly all the great saints die singing. Jacob ends his long and stormy career, to which so much of the book of Genesis is devoted, singing. The last chapters of Genesis contain the great poem with which he reviews his career and predicts the future of his race. But it is poetry. You wonder how the tangled skein of such a man's life can ever be straightened out and the hard bony nodosities formed by long habit of fraud can be unravelled. But he is in harmony with the music of the spheres as he approaches the end. Moses' life is strenuous enough dealing all life long with difficult tasks; broken by flashes of great inspiration, it is true, but hard handling a disorderly mob of rebellious clans but the old toughened veteran of many battlefields dies singing. The chapters at the close of the Book of Deuteronomy contain one of the greatest poems in all the world. David's nature grew softer and sweeter as he approached the end and expressed itself in high ecstacy over the preparation for the larger religious life of the people through the building of the temple and uttered itself with more of the sweetness than characterized many of his militant if not revengeful utterances. It is more likely that he wrote the Twenty-third Psalm after life passes for final review when he could say, "Surely goodness and mercy have followed me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever." Other instances of good men could be summoned from the examples of Socrates who with the cup of hemlock in his hand, discoursed his sweetest of immortality and the larger life he expected to enter. To St. Paul, who broke out in those later words of ecstacy, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of life which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day and not to me only but to all who love his appearing."

But our best illustration is found in the experience of Jesus himself. The four chapters of our Gospel of John, 14-17, have not inaptly been designated by some as His death song. He was in the upper room facing immediate death, and what was more formidable and dreadful, facing the travail of soul by which he would purchase the salvation of the world. Before that hour on the following day he would have gone to the Paradise of God. The exquisite agony of the garden and the cross was in his thought as an unescapable entail of his redemptive mission and yet in this last discourse and prayer, there is a rapture of exultation and an assurance of faith in his mission that reminds us of the dying songs of the great saints of the older ages and of the lesser saints of our own later ages; for Christian people die in peace always. "Our people die well," said John Wesley. Jesus had that inward peace, that radiant joy which was sufficient for himself and sufficient for impartation that turned life into music and lifted this last discourse to an elevation of thought that is little short of poetry. He is here you will notice far and away from those stormy hours of conflict in which his life was continually immersed. No inquisitorial critics on His track; no accusers, no plotters trying to catch Him in His speech. He is no longer in high debate with subtle dialectitians, stooping down to take notice of the groveling thought of His enemies. He is with His own, the heroic band who are soon to take His gospel to the world and His thought shoots up into the cerulean blue, rises to the great themes of his imperial kingdom. He is here discoursing of great themes that He could not declare to the world and His discourse deals with great subjects that from their supreme height of importance touch the region of poetry which is truth at its highest.

Atheism cannot be turned into music, neither can materialism, which expects the end at what we call death. The poets of negation are conspicuous by their absence. But Christianity gives a soul a future and a certain one. We may sometimes be a little uncertain about it. But Jesus was not uncertain. He would walk out of all this territory of death into life. It is a good thing to sit down and write a list of the things he was certain about. Heaven. He was going to His father's house and he said we were too. "In my Father's house are many mansions, if there were not I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you and will come again and receive you." Jesus was absolutely sure of heaven for Himself and for you. Does it become you to doubt after His assurance? Heaven may be cloudland to us, but to him it stood out like the mountains after storm under the rays of the westering sun. This was an ingredient in his joy in these last hours the joy of heaven for himself the joy of heaven for all of us and millions like us. The joy of introducing us into this, his joy. Think of the rapture of your redeemer in welcoming true and loyal men and women into the perfect life which is heaven whether here or a million miles from here. It is good to find people who are absolutely sure of heaven as we all ought to be for how magnificently we would live if we assumed its truth as beyond debate. And how sacredly would we regard other fellow Christians if we believed they would be in the Father's house soon.

Living according to Christ gets the approbation of the real master. Then once more the high rapture of the hour rooted itself in the assurance of the complete success of his mission. One of the strange facts exceedingly strange if we could transport ourselves behind the scenes and look at them in advance of their fulfillment instead of after their fulfillment is the absolute assurance on the part of Jesus that his mission would be a triumphant success. He was about to die and as short sighted men would say, about to fail and yet he plans for a successful campaign which would go forward through the coming ages. All other men would have been discouraged, their candle would seem about to be extinguished. But not He. He knew He would be successful. He knew he could raise up a band of men and women who would carry his name right through all the coming centuries. We do all the doubting about the success of Christianity. Jesus did none of the doubting. We may question his success upon us; but he never questioned his ability to make good men and women of the weakest of real followers. He knew he would be followed by heroes. And he has been so followed and will be; he was sure He could reproduce himself in his followers; He knew he would get the great souls of the ages and the great nations, and he has; he has done it because he has created them great by his personal influence over them. And he means that you and I shall be just as sure of the success of our work, of the success of our religious living.

He was sure of victory over the world that seemed to be triumphing over Him. "Be of good cheer in the world ye shall have tribulation, but I have overcome the world." In the face of suffering He triumphed. His death was the truly victorious power. How sure we ought to be then in conflict with evil temptation. It has been overcome in Him and will not be allowed to triumph over us. Evil is a defeated foe to those who have the indestructible power of life within them. Greater is he that is in you than all they that be against us. Out of evil we shall come and out of the discords of time and life to us will at last end in song. The statutes of the Lord which have been turned to music in the house of our pilgrimage will be the chords to which our hearts will be attuned forever. And life shall be at last rhythmical and a great harmony.

STATE SHOWS SLIGHT INCREASE IN UNEMPLOYED

The March report of the five free public employment offices of the bureau of labor indicated that the number of unemployed in the state who applied for places through these offices was slightly increased over February. Of all applicants for employment 69.7 per cent. were supplied with places as against 69.2 per cent. the previous month. Of the total number applying for help 91.8 were furnished help as against 92.6 per cent. the previous month.

The individual offices made these reports:

Application for employment: Hartford, 1,224; New Haven, 829; Bridgeport, 923; Waterbury, 1,000; Norwich, 355, total 4,331 of which 2,482 were males and 1,849 females.

Applications for help: Hartford, 874; New Haven, 838; Bridgeport, 773; Waterbury, 621; Norwich, 182, total 3,288, of which 1,625 were males and 1,663 females.

Situations secured: Hartford, 797; New Haven, 748; Bridgeport, 735; Waterbury, 558; Norwich, 182, total 3,020, of which 1,499 were males and 1,521 females.

AUTOMOBILE IN GARAGE DAMAGED BY FIRE

Squad A and Deputy Chief Henry Taft responded to a call for a fire in the garage at 262 Boswell avenue Friday morning at 5.52 o'clock, when the Cleveland sedan, owned by David Kerr was badly damaged by fire. The body of the machine was almost entirely burned off, the upholstering destroyed and the metal parts scorched. The garage was also damaged slightly along the roof. The automobile was insured.

WEEK DEVOTED TO KINDNESS TO ANIMALS

Be Kind to Animals Week, April 13-18, and Humane Sunday, April 19, will be generally observed by humane organizations. The governors of several states are expected to issue proclamations calling for the observance of the week. Mayors and other civic leaders will address meetings for the purpose of recognizing the debt that mankind owes to the animal world; children will hold appropriate exercises in public schools and scores of ministers will preach sermons on the subject of humaneness.

Many humane societies have arranged with motion picture theatres for the showing of films appropriate for the occasion. The cumulative effect of publicity will undoubtedly be felt throughout the year and people everywhere will be more kind to animals as a direct result of the week's celebration.

One of the most interesting observances of the week will be the exhibitions of posters made by the school children and others who are competing for the prizes. All societies holding poster contests have been urged to show the pictures in some place, even if it is only a store window, during the week. Thousands of young people are busily engaged making posters in competition for one or more of the various prizes offered.

Under the auspices of the Connecticut Humane society, unique colored slides have been shown the past few days on the screen at some of the local theatres, and will continue to be shown all next week. The slides which show the picture of a small dog, read: "Think Of Me, During Be Kind to Animals Week," April 13-18, Connecticut Humane Society.

MOST INCOME TAX RETURNS FILED IN 1920

The total number of persons filing income taxes in Connecticut increased from: 64,472 in 1917 to 128,431 in 1922, the banner year, however, being 1920, when 148,195 persons filed returns. The figures are from the bureau of internal revenue at Washington.

In 1917 the total income tax was $10,595,737 in Connecticut, and the following year, when $6,489 returns were filed, $17,690,943.

In 1919, 110,469 persons filed returns, with taxes totalling $16,533,829. In 1920, when the highest number of returns were filed, the taxes totaled but $15,774,598.

A total of 128,269 returns, amounting to $10,633,045 were filed in 1921 and in 1922 the tax was $13,130,562.

READ INSTRUCTIVE PAPER ON HOLY WEEK OBSERVANCE

The Missions department of Park church held its regular meeting Friday afternoon. Devotional exercises appropriate to the day were led by Miss Alice Cogswell. The reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar, was followed by a paper given by the chairman, Miss Edith Bliss, on Holy Week, Its History and Observance.

The interest and impressiveness of the descriptions given by Miss Bliss were greatly heightened by the fact that she had witnessed the celebrations. The subject was treated with religious feeling and in a reverent spirit. A detailed and thoughtful history of the rise and significance of many of the present religious observances was given. This was followed by a sympathetic and realistic picturing of the various ceremonies as seen during Holy Week in Taormina and in Rome. St. Chrysostom said "the whole of the time is a festival unto the Christians, because of the good things which have been given," but it has become the custom throughout the ages in every country and in many different ways to observe the fact of Christ's resurrection.

84 BIDS RECEIVED FOR STATE HIGHWAY WORK

Eighty-four bids have been received by the state highway department for the construction of approximately thirty miles of new roadway located in widely separated parts of Connecticut. Eleven separate contracts are involved in the work.

BRIAND REQUESTED TO FORM A NEW CABINET FOR FRANCE

Former Premier Has Asked For Time to Consult With Friends —Has Promised President Doumergue a Definite Answer Today—M. Painleve Had Previously Declined to Undertake the Formation of a New Ministry.

[illegible] April 12—(By the A. P.)—M. [illegible] requested by President [illegible] to form a cabinet. He asked [illegible] to consult with friends. [illegible] promised a definite answer [illegible]

Doumergue's [illegible] was M. Her[illegible] who remains leader of [illegible] group of 140 strong, the [illegible] assured M. [illegible] party support.

[illegible] M's insistence that the So[illegible] responsibilities of [illegible] cabinet may mean [illegible] n the event that the national council refuses to co-operate with him. At the time the Herriot ministry was formed, the Socialists, numbering 104 voted in favor of entering the government. Their number has been increased, and the party be placed in a difficult position if it refused co-operation.

HOW BRIAND IS VIEWED FROM BRITISH STANDPOINT

London, April 13—(By the A. P.)—If as seems to be the prospect tonight, a Briand cabinet should succeed the Herriot ministry in France, it will be interesting to observe that Premier Herriot's first government lasted about the same time as the McDonald labor government in England. Both premiers, from whose close friendship and active labors in the early part of 1924 so much was expected in bettering Anglo-French relations, have now suffered defeat.

The comment is made in London that both M. Herriot and Ramsay MacDonald were defeated through inexperience in the administrative field. Doubts are expressed as to whether a Briand government, which would be based on similar elements to the Herriot administration, would have any better success in overcoming the financial difficulty which has proved a stumbling block to the successive French governments since the war.

Such a change has importance for the British government, because, although it is believed on the question of negotiating a security pact that replacement of M. Herriot by M. Briand would make but little difference, it is feared there would be little prospect of a settlement of the inter-allied debt question in the near future. It has been reported that Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer had hoped to be able to receive from France something in the neighborhood of ten to fifteen million pounds yearly if he could have put through the settlement of the debt question. This would have enabled him in preparing the coming budget, which will be delivered April 28 to risk some reductions in home taxation.

With the fall of Herriot there must inevitably be considerable delay, even should the new government prove willing to do anything at all in the matter of the debt question.

TROOPER WOUNDED DURING LIQUOR RAID

Montauk, N. Y., April 12.—State troopers, announced tonight seizure of alleged liquor valued at $200,000 at bootleg prices last night. The capture was made in a raid at the home of Frank Diverson, at Ditch Plain, near here, during which State Trooper Delmage and an unidentified companion were wounded by gunfier.

It was learned tonight that about 3,-300 cases of alleged liquors were captured in the Dickerson cottage and bushes nearby. It was said that information leading to the raid was furnished by Delmage, who was on furlough at the time. The trooper was shot through the back and his companion suffered a face wound. Both went to a doctor for treatment and then were reported missing by police.

Authorities tonight said that the two men had been found but would not divulge their present whereabouts.

John A. Wilbur, speaking over the telephone from the office of state troopers at Montauk Point, said tonight that he with other prohibition enforcement agents of the New York district, took part in the raid and that the seizure was one of the most important ever made in this district. He said that Dickerson was arrested and arraigned before Justice of the Peace D. Lewis Edwards at East Hampton, who admitted him to bail.

MATTERS TO COME BEFORE THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Washington, April 12—International as well as domestic economic questions will be considered at the thirteenth annual meeting May 20 to 22 of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

The program of the meeting, made public today, lists commercial treaties as one of the principal topics, it being pointed out that "the country is on the eve of a complete revision of commercial treaties with other nations."

Other international topics include discussions of the European situation and the Dawes plan by a speaker from Europe, yet to be named, and of competition in foreign trade.

Secretary Jardine is to review the agricultural situation in the United States and former Representative Winslow of Massachusetts, is to speak on "congress and the American business."

PLAN TO HELP YOUNG AMERICAN MUSICIANS

New York, April 12.—The general federation of women's clubs today announced that through its affiliation with the National Music League it would take an active interest in helping young American musicians who have not yet "arrived" to launch upon their careers in the professional concert world. Every important woman's club throughout the United States will be urged to present at least one concert a year by some young musician who is seeking to bridge the gulf between student days and a professional appearance.

OBITUARY.

William E. Glassock.

Morgantown, W. Va., April 12.—William E. Glassock, 63, former governor of West Virginia, died at his home here early this morning. Mr. Glassock has been ill for several years and death was due to a general breakdown in health.

He was elected to the governorship on the republican ticket in 1909 and served until 1913.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BALFOUR ON STEAMER BOUND FOR ALEXANDRIA

Beirut, Syria, April 12—The steamer Sphinx sailed today for Alexandria with the Earl of Balfour as a passenger. There were no untoward demonstrations.

It is officially announced that twelve gendarmes were wounded and one rioter was killed by the Spahis during the disturbances in Demascus when Lord Balfour was there last week.

CONSIDERING EXTENSION OF AIR MAIL ROUTES

Washington, April 12—Opening of a number of new air mail routes linking some of the more important cities is being considered by Postmaster General New under authority of a law passed by the last congress.

Some of the new links will be put in operation probably this summer. Inauguration of an over-night air mail route between New York and Chicago, which is a major item in the program will be within a month or so, the first step in the expansion of the world's greatest regular air route.

With the beginning of the new fiscal year July 1, funds will become available under which contracts can be made for carrying mail by airplanes or airships on any routes selected and numerous organizations already have asked for extension of the service to their cities.

Extensions now under consideration include routes between:

New York and Boston; Chicago and St. Louis; Los Angeles and Salt Lake City; Elko, Nev., and Pasco, Wash.; Minneapolis-St. Paul and New Orleans; and Chicago and New Orleans via Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville and Birmingham.

The New York-Boston route probably will be arranged to make connections with the trans-continental service and the new Chicago-New York night service. The Chicago-St. Louis service likewise would be a feeder of the over-night New York-Chicago service. The Los Angeles-Salt Lake City and the Elko-Pasco routes would connect with the trans-continental service.

The routes between New Orleans and the northern cities would operate independent of the transcontinental service.

In working out its plans, the post-office department has taken the position that development of air service commercially should not be undertaken at the expense of the government, but should be sustained by revenues from mail, express and passengers. Under the new law contractors carrying air mail may be paid up to four fifths of the amount received in postage, and are permitted to carry express and passengers in addition.

457 BOTTLES OF LIQUOR SEIZED IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, April 12—Milo Elwell of Corinth, N. Y., was a visitor in Danielson Sunday afternoon. While here Elwell called at the state police barracks and left 457 bottles of liquor. In the early evening he made a visit to Justice Frank M. Bedard on the West Side and he left $411.50. Elwell was the fourth rum-runner to be knocked off in this section within the last few days. State Officer Stephens caught Elwell on the West Side. The Hudson coach with New York numbers looked overloaded and Officer Stephens made an inspection. He found 161 bottles of Gold Thimble Scotch, 40 of Rob Roy Scotch, 40 bottles of Old Worthy Scotch, 48 bottles of Gordon Rouge Champagne and 178 Canadian Club rye. The loot cost between $1,200 and $1,400 at wholesale and if delivered would have retailed for fully $5,000. It was the highest priced cargo of booze seized hereabouts in a long time. A telephone message to Providence by Elwell brought friends with money to pay his fine. Elwell did not say where he was bound nor where he was going after he left here.

A room at the barracks on North Main street is so filled with liquor seized within the past week that it looks like a wholesale liquor store.

RECORD EASTER CROWD AT ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, N. J., April 12.—A record Easter crowd, estimated at 250,000 persons today promenaded in the ideal weather on the boardwalk.

Fourteen resort churches participated in a sun rise service on the beach at six o'clock and many persons later took initial swim of the year.

The boardwalk parade began shortly after the conclusion of elaborate Easter services in the churches, and was marked chiefly by its gay colors and the short skirts of the new costumes.

Among the early promenaders were Senator James Couzens of Detroit and Mrs. aCouzens; Mayor Kendrick of Philadelphia; Dr. Alfred Gonzalez Prada, secretary of the Peruvian embassy at Washington; Richard E. E. Enright, police commissioner of New York, and George M. Cohan and Chas. B. Dillingham and Frederick A. Gimbel of New York.

LEAVES POSTAL SERVICE AFTER 51 YEARES OF DUTY

New Haven, April 12.—Postmaster Charles W. Birely announced tonight the retirement of James C. McGuire, who has been in the postal service for 51 years, having entered the railway mail service in 1873. In 1900 he was transferred to the New Haven post office and in 1911 was made assistant superintendent of mails.

The service record of Mr. McGuire is recognized by Postmaster General Harry S. New in a letter he has written to the retiring postal worker and which says in part:

"Such service as men of your type render day after day has caused people to consider the work of the post office department as an activity upon which they can depend utterly. It forms the strength which enables the postal service to continue as a great human enterprise.

WIND TOO STRONG FOR FLIGHT OF LOS ANGELES

Lakehurst, N. J., April 12.—Unfavorable winds, which whipped out of the northwest at the rate of 30 or 40 miles an hour, today forced officers of the naval air station to cancel the projected Easter flight of the dirigible Los Angeles.

Another attempt to remove the ship from her hangar will be made at dawn tomorrow, and if weather conditions are favorable the trip will be made over New York city, as scheduled.

Brilliant Easter Parade In New York

Fifth Avenue Was Thronged All Day With Prommenaders—Coney Island Also.

New York, April 12. — New York went through its annual spring preening today during the golden hours of a climatical, made-to-order Easter Sunday.

From a little before midday until evening, crowds thronged Fifth avenue, the traditional stage of the city's glamorous Easter pageant, and made liberal display of the modes and colors that will rule feminine America sartorially for the coming months.

The crowd—it was the largest in years—literally filled the broad avenue from building line to building line. For not only were the sidewalks filled with the constantly moving throngs, but the street, with long lines of overburdened "two decker" busses and an almost unbelievable number of taxicabs, with equally long lines of private motors, presented traffic cops problem throughout the day.

Full as it was, Fifth Avenue could not hold all of the day's gay promenaders. The overflow, transported by elevated, subway and taxicab, thronged Coney Island, a dozen miles away, promenading in two endless lines along the boardwalk. This overflow was largely drawn from the Bowery, Grand and Canal street and the crowded streets of the lower East Side. Ordinarily these crowds held their Easter promenades on their beloved Bowery. But today's weather and the fact the Coney Island boardwalk, skirting for more than four miles the shining Atlantic, recently was completed, lured the East Siders to the famous resort by the hundreds of thousands. It was estimated that half a million persons were at Coney Island.

The Coney parade was not a whit less brilliant than the more exclusive Fifth Avenue pageant. It was a bit more so, in fact, with the colors of the girls' and women's clothes a shade more pronounced, the skirts quite a bit short er, and the apparel of the young men just a shade more "stylish" than that of their brothers on the avenue.

Probably the day's greatest surprise, in a fashion way of speaking, was the absence on Fifth avenue of the extremely short skirt that the mode makers have been predicting. All of the skirts (with rare exceptions) extended some inches below the knees.

Another conspicuous feature of the Easter clad was the "quietness" of the colors of dress fabrics. There was an unlooked for amount of black, relieved, usually, by small splashes of color here and there. Many black satin coats, the lower edge trimmed in fur, were women. There was no fur at neck or sleeves.

In the hours when the fashionably gowned throngs were released from the churches and cathedrals—St. Patrick's, St. Thomas' the Brick Presbyterian, the marble collegiate, St. Bartholomew's, over on Park avenue; St. John the Divine [illegible], and half a dozen others [illegible] many street costumes in straight sweeping lines of white, yellow and gray were seen.

Many of the women who discarded their coats for the pleasantly warm promenade were seen to be wearing shoulder bouquets of orchids, sweet peas or pansies. Few overcoats or top coats were worn by the male promenaders.

One of the post-church strollers to gain considerable attention was a black-eyed girl, tall and slender, who appeared clad in black satin pajamas, almost hidden by a long coat of the same material, and with a black satin bonnet. Bits of red and green here and there provided the contrasting colors. She carried a long staff, unadorned.

Many of the women provided reminiscence of the visit of the Prince of Wales, appearing in double-breasted coats of serge or cheviot. These partially covering straight, simple skirts of the same material, were predominately in the darker shades.

There semd to be little startling new in the matter of shoes. Coffee shades with a fair sprinkling of reddish bronze footwear shot with meal and giving off rainbow light, were conspicuous [illegible] in spite of the overwhelming predominance of rather severely plain black and great leathers.

Chase Has Big Dream

Hal Chase, former Cincinnati Reds first baseman, the man without a peer, who was banished from organized baseball for participation in the 1919 World's Series scandal, has a big dream or idea. He has received sanction of Mexican cities and the Government, and is now forming a Mexican National Baseball League, with teams from every city, as in the United States. This would make him the "Czar" of Mexican baseball, should the idea perfect itself, which is quite possible. Hal is at present the proprietor of a cafe in Agua Prieta.

Public Reporting Auto Law Violations

People Cooperating With The State Police to Lesson Traffic Hazards.

Hartford, April 12.—That the public is co-operating with the state department of motor vehicles in an attempt to lessen traffic hazards was shown today when the department reported that during the past year 1,-518 complaints against motor vehicle operators had been received by the department from unofficial sources.

The department in investigating these complaints received satisfactory explanations in 797 instances. In 178 cases, the complainants were found to have sent in the wrong registration numbers, making the complaints valueless. Sixty-one licenses were suspended directly as the result of such complaints, 289 operators were warned by the department and the state police were called in to investigate 15 of them.

Speeding at railroad crossings constituted the chief source of complaint, 555 operators being reported for this offense. Complaints of reckless driving, were second in the list, with 347 reported. For cutting in 132 were reported; for violating the rules of the road, 125; for failure to stop in back of standing trolley cars, 48; for speeding, 36; for operating while under the legal age limit, 24; for failure to give right of way, 16; for driving without a rear light, 14; for using illegal markers, 11; and for negligence, 26.

Anonymous complaints are disregarded by the department and no complaints are taken over the telephone. All must be presented in writing.

JUSTUS A. SOUTHARD HAD LONG RAILROAD CAREER

New London, April 12.—Justus A. Southard, 79, who died late Friday night at his residence, 196 Montauk avenue from a heart attack aggravated by grip had been confined to his home for several days, but not until Friday was he compelled to remain in bed. The action of his heart becoming weakened, Mr. Southard's decline was rapid. He is survived by his widow. He was secretary and treasurer of the New London Northern railroad and was a director of the Willimantic Gas & Electric company. He was at one time treasurer of the Connecticut Power company in this city. Mr. Southard was a member of Brainard lodge of Masons, John Winthrop club and of the Second Congregational church. He was born in Vergennes, Vt., the son of Lent G., and Susan Bishop Southard. He married Agnes M. Keeler Feb. 11, 1868 and with his wife came to New London in 1871.

Mr. Southard had a long career as a railroad employe. He entered the employ of the Rutland and Burlington railroad in 1862 and was a clerk for 17 years. In 1872 he was appointed chief clerk in the passenger freight service of the New London Northern railroad and the following year he was made station agent of of the former Old Colony railroad. Mr. Southard held many positions of importance with the Central Vermont railroad. New London division, between 1873 and 1893, among them being chief clerk, auditor, paymaster, assistant to the superintendent and assistant to the general freight and passenger agent of the New London Northern railroad. Upon the death several years ago of John C. Averill, of Norwich, Mr. Southard assumed the duties of treasurer of the New London Northern railroad, an office which Mr. Averill had held for a number of years.

For a number of years Mr. Southard was secretary and treasurer of the New London Gas and Electric company. Finally when the duties in the employ of the railroad company became so pressing, Mr. Southard resigned from the employ of the gas and electric company, but he had continuously acted as keeper of the employes' savings fund of the Connecticut Power company.

BABY WAS BORN IN GRAND CENTRAL STATION

New York, April 12.—While crowds of Easter travelers thronged the Grand Central station early today, the stork paid a visit to the terminal—one of the city's busiest spots.

Waiting for a train to take her to her home in Hartford, Conn., Mrs. Jessie Anderson, 20 years old, suddenly became ill and was removed to the station's emergency hospital, where a five-pound son was born. Later she was removed to Bellevue hospital where it was said that both mother and child were doing well.

HINDENBURG IN POLITICS CALLS FORTH CRITICISM

No Longer Accorded the Same Consideration by the Political and Military Critics That He Enjoyed During His Post-War Retirement—Critics Claim That the Famous "War Lord" Was Brushed Aside by Ludendorff When Critical Decisions Were in the Balance.

Berlin, April 12—(By the A. P.)—The Easter message of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, candidate of the national-conservative bourgeois bloc for the presidency of the German republic, obviously suits the organ of the united right party, which assert that it was inspired by a spirit of lofty non-partisan patriotism and civic duty.

Notwithstanding his failure to refer to the republic, the field marshal's initial utterance is commended in the editorials on the ground that he confesses fealty to the republican constitution if he is elected.

Now that von Hindenburg has entered the area of practical politics, he no longer is accorded the same consideration by the political and the military critics that he enjoyed during his post war retirement, and the initial stages of his campaign finds his military record a target for fierce attacks.

The field marshal not only is designated as a convenient screen for General Ludendorff throughout the latter years of the world war, but entire credit for the battle of Tannenburg (in which von Hindenburg decisively defeated the Russians), also is denied him in the columns of the democratic organs.

These newspapers claim that the decisive battle on the eastern German frontier in 1914 would have been carried out with equal success by the men who drew up the original plans of strategy before von Hindenburg and Ludendorff were sent out to envelop the Russians.

That von Hindenburg was merely a "respectable cipher" in his capacity as chief of the General Staff is charged by the critics of his presidential ambitions. They freely cite opinions by Colonel Bauer and other collaborators with the field marshal, to the effect that he was brushed aside by Ludendorff when critical decisions were in the balance.

These newspapers also say that von Hindenburg totally underestimated the significance of the proportions of the American expeditionary forces and of the efficiency of the "tank" as a new implement in warfare. They also charge up against him Colonel Bauer's observation that "politics is a book with seven seals to him" and say he is totally unequipped for the post of president in the point of political training.

The election is only a fortnight away, but the campaign to the present time has been confined entirely to editorial skirmishes. Dr. Wilhelm Marx, the democratic socialist-centrist candidate, will begin has tour of Germany this week. He will address two monster meeting in Berlin Thursday and Friday. Although his campaign managers are determined to have von Hindenburg appear at least at one big public rally, the field marshal is reported to be opposed to any public appearance. He is said even to desire to have politics eliminated from his household in Hanover.

MEN BECOMING FEMININE; WOMEN BECOMING MASCULINE

New York, April 12.—The "he-man" is slipping out of the picture and men are adopting feminized ways just as rapidly as women are becoming masculine in their outlook on life, Dr. Charles Gray Shaw of New York university said today in a discussion of the social problems evolved because of the emancipation of women.

"It is the man in his effeminancy who is inclined to be domestic," Dr. Shaw said. "Modern men marry for the sake of a home with its dog and radio set, while women approach the wedded state with the idea of getting a companion or a lover."

To a great extent, man is to blame for the new order, Dr. Shaw believes, because he has changed his wardrobe. When men began to wear soft hats, silk socks, pearl colored spats, lilac pajamas and embroidered bathrobes, the progress of feminization gained a good start, he said. Even the safety razor contributed.

"Men used to pay the car fare and the restaurant check," Dr. Shaw added. "But girls now have their own nickels and dollars hidden away in their handbags. Marriage has gone the same was as money. Women is taking man's view of that ancient institution, marriage is becoming more like a way station where the train stops and less like the grand terminal of woman's ambition."

CONGESTION IS DRIVING BUSINESS FROM NEW YORK

New York, April 12.—Despite New York city's position as the "market place of all America," congestion in the business districts of Manhattan is steadily driving important wholesale markets into New Jersey and neighboring cities, says a report issued today by the regional plan of New York and its environs.

Study of New York's wholesale market showed that New York was steadily overhauling London in the fur trade and might soon take leadership in that field. A wholesale shoe market of national size is developing in upper Manhattan.

The report shows that the factories of New York and its environs use annually more than five billion dollars worth of raw materials and convert these into manufactured products worth more than nine billions. In addition to this, nearly half of the foreign trade of the United States passes through the New York customs district.

COAST GUARD PATROL CREW UNDER GUARD

New York, April 12.—The coast guard patrol boat, C. G., 208, employed in patrolling rum row, was held at the barge office basin today under a heavy guard of coast guard officers and customs guards.

Under guard, the nine members of the patrol boat's crew were taken off the boat for luncheon, and were returned to the boat by armed coast guard officers who prevented them from communicating with anyone.

For the first time since the war, reporters and even customs men were refused admission to the coast guard officers. Captain W. E. V. Jacobs, commandant of the New York coast guard, refused to make any statement in regard to the guard over the patrol boat and its crew, or the reasons for maintaining secrecy.

25 SPRINGFIELD FIREMEN PARTLY OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Springfield, Mass., April 12.—Twenfive firemen were partly overcome and more than 40 guests at the Grand hotel here were forced to the street when a two-alarm fire of undetermined origin did $25,000 damage to the hotel building today. The principal loss was sustained by a grocery store and restaurant on the ground oor. The fire starting in the basement sent out thick clouds of smoke that greatly hampered the work of the firemen who worked in relays one group taking the place of another, as the firemen were helped from the building. All the firemen were able to return to duty after emergency treatment.

NOANK AND STONINGTON GREAT LOBSTER PORTS

Hartford, April 2. — The annual statistical canvass of the fisheries of Connecticut is now in progress and will be continued during the coming week. The Tern, a launch belonging to the state board of fisheries and game and used in the annual canvass docked in Hartford Friday. The craft, commanded by Captain Cris Culver, is expected to start back down the Connecticut river early this week.

Captain Culver, in charge of the canvass for the state, is co-operating this year with Robert L. Greer, representing the federal government, which conducts a canvass once every five years. In the opinion of Captain Culver, this is the first time any state has co-operated with the federal government in the investigation.

On its trip down the river, the Tern will stop at each hamlet while Mr. Greer and Captain Culver make inquiries of the local fishermen as to the number of value of their 1924 catch. On the river, shad, carp, suckers and ale-wives constitute the largest catches of the commercial fishermen.

Passing Saybrook, the craft will proceed along the sound to the state line near Greenwich, canvassing the anglers in that section in the same manner. Here, the most important catches are composed of lobsters, flounders and flat fish, lobsters having the highest commercial value.

To New London county fishermen the 1923 catch of lobsters brought a return of $250,000. Noank and Stonington have two of the largest lobster beds in the state and are scoured every year by great fleets of power boates.

TO CHECK CRUELTY TO FUR BEARING ANIMALS

New York, April 12.—Plans for a nation-wide campaign to check cruelties to fur-bearing animals inflicted by present trapping methods, particularly the use of the steel trap, were announced here today by a new organization called the Humane Trapping Committee.

The committee hopes to establish national headquarters at Washington and to obtain the enactment of state laws prohibiting the use of non-killing traps, said William K. Horton, president of the American Humane association and chairman of the new committee.

"The proposed campaign," said Mr. Horton, "is not an attack upon the fur industry or an indictment of the wearing of furs. Upon the contrary we hope to have the co-operation of the fur industry and the moral support of the public. The brutality of present trapping methods is unquestioned and unjustifiable. We want to eliminate that brutality."

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, who initially financed the movement, will be honorary chairman of the general committee.

WILLIAM SHAW GEORGE DIED IN HOTEL ASTOR

New York, April 12.—William Shaw George, head of the W. S. George company of East Palestine, Ohio, second largest pottery concern in the country, died suddenly in his apartment in the Hotel Astor. He was 60 years old.

Mr. George had recently returned from a trip to the West Indies and in New York on his way to East Palestine to transact some business.

Sixteen years ago, he suffered a stroke of paralysis which weakened his heart. Last Wednesday he had a setback and on Saturday pneumonia developed, resulting in his death.

Cleveland, April 12.—H. B. P. Wrenn, assistant electrical engineer of the Cleveland Union Terminals Co., and his wife, Mrs. Isabel Norman Wrenn, were found dead in their home in Lakewood, a suburb, today. Mrs. Wrenn is believed to have shot and killed her husband and then killed herself Friday. They came here from New York about three years ago.

WILLIMANTIC

There will be no board of arbitration taking a hand in the American Thread Company strike, it was definitely stated Saturday morning, in a reply made to a Chamber of Commerce resolution that the Company would not consider submitting its side of the controversy to arbitration. The resolution was adopted by the Chamber of Commerce last Tuesday night and was introduced by Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. It called for the strike situation to be laid to an arbitration committee to be composed of the state board of conciliation and arbitration, or some other board of arbitration, with the suggestion being an amendment by Mayor Norris. The striking speakers at mass meetings held since Tuesday, have expressed themselves as being heartily in favor of such a procedure and Thomas McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers of America, explained [illegible] that the American Federation of Labor was in support of [illegible] that arbitration in the [illegible] in those talks to Am[illegible]

[illegible] decision as issued by Agent [illegible] of the Willimantic plant follows in line with the precedence of the general neutral public in the town. It is based on the fact that the company cannot accede to any form of arbitration, as it is not at present prepared to consider the restoration of the wage cut in part, or in full. The communication reads, "I wish to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 5th inst. Whilst fully appreciating the spirit which actuates your proposal I am instructed by my board to inform you that they regret they are unable to accede to your request to submit the question at issue between our employes and ourselves to arbitration. My board are not prepared to consider any restoration of the recent reduction in wages or any part thereof. Yours Truly, The American Thread Company, Don H. Curtis, agent."

Beautiful musical programs were rendered at [illegible] the regular Easter services at [illegible] St. Mary's, and St. Joseph's churches Sunday, in charge of the choir directors Joseph F. May 2 these officers will be installed by Past Dictator P. J. Lavemee.

The strike of the operatives of the American Thread Company enters upon its sixth week today (Monday) with the situation at a standstill as far as developments toward a settlement of the controversy are concerned. Both sides are holding their own and in the interim of watchful waiting the strikers are rallying their forces to continued determination and continuing in their program to finance their cause. The parade and mass meeting was omitted from the routine of Saturday. The executive committee met in the afternoon at Central Labor Union Hall. A general denial was made of a report that some of the strikers were filtering through the mill gates and returning to work. It is said that there are a few going to work, but the number is small. Needy families remaining in the ranks are being taken care of by the committee. This (Monday) morning the parade will be resumed from the mills to the Gem Theatre where an address will be delivered by Hon. Frank Gorman of Pawtucket, R. I., a member of the national board of the United Textile Workers of America.

SITE FOR A NEW HOTEL IS SECURED ON MAIN STREET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, April 12—Willimantic's new Community Hotel again comes to public attention, through the announcement made at noon Saturday that the Youngs estate, between the Hotel Hooker on the east and the Gilman property on the west, on Main street, has been purchased as a site for the new building. Negotiations which were started in earnest a few days ago were completed later Saturday forenoon by dealings of the committee which Mrs. Ada Young, of Newport, R. I., principal owner of the property. First payment has already been made on the land and the committee will decide soon on the time when the present buildings on the land will be razed. The Hotel Johnson, a four story wooden building conducted as a hotel by various owners for sixty odd years will be torn down to make room for the modern structure. Solomon Isaacs who has conducted the hotel for four years has reached an agreement with the committee whereby he will release his lease. The purchase price has not yet been made known. To the east of the estate is a two story building with three stores on the ground floor and two flats above and in the rear is a large brick garage, until recently occupied by the Jackson & Sumner Company and now leased by James Simpson. A driveway leading to the garage is about in the center of the property and runs through to Meadow street. The drive is known as Young's Lane.

JEWETT CITY

Easter Sunday was a record breaker for sheasonably fine weather. Automobile traffic over the state road opened in form, and all day long was like a summer parade. In the afternoon the borough's finest feminity, claimed the stage, and all dolled up in smartest Easter finery, made a pleasing hight to see. Old Boy Solomon would have had to go some, to be arranged life one of these!

Tickets for plays by Ethel May Shorey Co. on sale each morning, Finn's store, at 9.—adv.

The Easter Sunday congregations were very much larger than usual, and heard carefully prepared music and sermons, and admired the beautiful decorations.

The flowers at the Baptist church were arranged by Miss Alice A. Brown. The setting of pink geraniums which were loaned by Mrs. H. E. Bond for the centerpiece was very beautiful. The communion table was spread upon the platform, and on either side were tables of Easter lilies, hyacinths, daffodils and geraniums.

In the evening under the direction of Mrs. G. H. Prior, the cantata The Thorn Crowned King, by Fred Holton, was given, the numbers including Let the Righetous Be Glad, chorus; alto solo, He Chose the Cross of Shame, Miss Doris Carpenter; male quartette, There Was No Other Way; Betrayed, C. F. Gardner and chorus: soprano solo, The Thorn-Crowned King, Miss Varna Tarbox; Let Him Be Crucified, G. H. Prior and chorus; chorus for women's voices, Alas! and Did My Saviour Bleed? They Laid Him Away, soprano obligator, Miss Mabel Frink; duet, Have Faith in God, C. F. Gardner and G. H. Prior; He is Risen, Tyler Gilbert and chorus; soprano and alto duet, Glory in the Garden, Misses Winifred Scates and Doris Carpenter; double chorus, Jesus Lives; final chorus, Praise Ye the Lord.

The voices were: Sopranos, Misses Mabel Frink, Esther Frink, Verna Tarbox, Winifred Scates, Bessie Hock, Florence Quimby, Beatrice Cathcart, and Mrs. George H. Prior. Altos, Misses Alice A. Brown, Doris Carpenter, Lillian Barber, Emma Dearnley. Bases, G. H. Prior and L. E. Green. Tenors, Charles F. Gardner and Tyler Gilbert.

The specially prepared music at the Congregational church was sung at the morning service. The chorus comprised: Sopranos, Sadie Thompson, Flora Littlefield, Ruth Ballou, Violet Peterson, Marian Jeffers, Isabel Marshall, Ada Harrison. Altos, Bessie Thompson, Christine Marshall, Clara Adams, Doris Johnson, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. Tenors, William Dealtrey. Basses, Byron Kinnie, Harry Paul, Earl Hiscox, Everett Hiscox, Jr. The male chorus solo, the obligato by Sadie Thompson and Flora Littlefield and the offertory by William Dealtrey, were especially good. Most effectively arranged decorations with a color scheme of purple, yellow and white, included purple and white hyacinths, Easter lilies, and daffodils, the background being asphidistres, palms, ferns and ivy. Miss M. T. Burdick, and the Misses Marshall arranged the display. Misses Ellen Prior at the Baptist church and Irene Stewart of the Congregational church, both pupils of Fred W. Lester of Norwich, received many compliments for their part as organists in the services.

The decorations at the Methodist church were arranged with beautiful arched entrances of laurel and pine branches and vari-colored spring blossom sprays at either side of the platform. The Garden of Judith was represented as far as possible with the pots of tulips, geraniums, daffodils, Marguerites and hyacinths, flowers of an old fashioned garden. Easter lilies and a Johnsonii lily were also used. The decorating committee was Mrs. A. C. Burdick, Christine and Arlene Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mell, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thornton, Edith Howe, Cecil Howes and Mary Richmond. In the evening there was a half hour concert by the children and a pageant, Jesus Is Risen, given by eighteen young people.

The programme followed in this order:

Houses Built in Day

Modern four-room dwellings, built of non-burning materials, covered with a thin veneer of metal, are being erected completely in 24 hours by builders of Budapest, Hungary. Although the homes are inexpensive, says Popular Mechanics, it is claimed they have the advantage of being protected against fire and will last over a long period of time without the need of repair. The parts of the structures are all designed and prepared before construction is started so that the pieces may be quickly slipped into place and fastened without further fitting or cutting. The method is reported to have been copied from that employed in the manufacture of toy houses made from sheet metal.

Apes Help Science

Monkeys and apes are being raised on a farm in French Guinea by the Pasteur Institute for experimental purposes in studying measles, typhus, yellow fever and other diseases that cannot be transmitted to rabbits and guinea pigs, commonly used in such tests. Chimpanzees are also kept at the farm, as they are considered the most suitable of the animal "relatives to the human race" for the studies and also afford material for experiments in psychology. A director is in charge of the laboratory and special buildings have been erected for taking care of the patients while they are given inoculations and treatments.

Ice-Box Alarm

By a simple device the problem of an overflowing ice-box is at once solved. All that is necessary, says the Scientific American, is to attach this alarm to any pan and, when the water rises to the level set, the float to which the alarm bell is attached is pushed up to the point where it will start the bell ringing and thus give ample warning.

The pan can be emptied and the alarm rewound to act as a reminder on the next occasion.

"Why! He's Nothing But Skin and Bones"

'Marry Him? Never'

"Quit kidding me, Agnes; when I get ready to [illegible] he's got to be a real man with plenty of good healthy flesh on his [illegible]."

"Of course I dance with Ed; He's a good enough fellow and I just feel sorry for him just no skinny, hollow cheeks, [illegible]-looked lath is going to spoil the [illegible] of life with me."

Cheer up Sis—things aren't as bad as they look to you right now. Many hundreds of skinny, faunt, emaciated men looked even worse than you do till someone told them about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets (the new way to take Cod Liver Oil) and how it would put pounds of good firm, healthy flesh on their bones in just a few weeks.

Nothing like these health creating, weight producing tablets for skinny, underweight men, as thousands can testify. Start to take them today—60 tablets—60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. or any real druggist anywhere in North or South America.

And listen; If they don't put 5 pounds of good flesh on you in 30 days, get your money back—that's fair enough, but be sure—very sure that you get McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Easter Program at the Broadway Theatre.

The management of the Broadway Theatre announces for a special Easter program seven big acts of B. F. Keith Vaudeville, the world's best. These seven acts that have been in the picking for the past four weeks, are certain to eclipse anything yet seen on any vaudeville stage and with the exceptional Paramount Photoplay for this special occasion, we readily see where hundreds will have to be turned away due to lack of room.

The program has been arranged as follows:—

The Three Pals, considered one of the finest kiddie acts on the vaudeville stage today, present in their own way a juvenile revue of songs and dance that have been a hit everywhere.

Paul Brady in Versatility which is a versatile assortment of comedy and dances. He follows in number two spot.

Arnold Bayley and Ray Lloyd in The Radio Robot, offer the last thing in radio science. They have a receiving instrument that immediately picks up France, California, or the North Pole. A radio instrument that speaks any language and sings songs from jazz to opera, resulting in 15 minutes of fun and song.

Fred and Loretta May in "Keep out of my Cellar" have a comedy offering that is beyond criticism. It is filled with bright lines and good songs and played so that every line has a laugh of its own. Everybody is going to be happy in their cellar.

Arthur Whitelaw is called The Irish Chatterbox. He is a natural comedian and has a running fire of wit and humorous philosophy.

Louis Love and Co. with Jean Spence in Romance of Romany closes the show. This company of six artists put the finishing touches on a perfect program of vaudeville. There are three men and three girls who sing and dance their way straight to your hearts, and their special scenery, costumes and lighting effects make this offering stand out in every respect.

What is "The Devil's Cargo?"

It's Victor Fleming's latest production for Paramount, which is the feature all this week at the Broadway Theatre, featuring Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery, William Collier, Jr., and Claire Adams, with Raymond Hatton and others appearing in support.

Wallace Beery has his greatest screen role in this picture, an adaptation of the story, "The River Boat," by Charles Whittaker. He plays the role of a massive stoker on the river boat which is chartered by the vigilantes of Sacramento to deport the town's undesirables. There is a mutiny on board and Beery comes up on deck to find the captain slain.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

More people went to church in Danielson Easter Sunday than have attended on any other day this year. This may be set down as an arbitrary statement. No accurate count was made of the number. The fact remains that many people who do not regularly make a practice of attending Divine service did so Easter day and the congregations as a whole were more numerous than is ordinarily the case. Impressive sermons and special festival music were features of the services.

The Easter parade was of interest to the women. They found special delight in checking up what this one wore and how that one looked and as observers, were themselves observed and commented upon, as to dress. First and last it was a great day. Seen in congregation the new hats of the feminine members of the attendance were reminiscent of a peculiarly colored floral garden. And there were new ensemble costumes, or new coats or gowns galore. Business in the apparel trades cannot be as bad as it had been painted. Else some other community is getting the trade. The men did not amount to much as fashion plates—not taken as a group. It was one particular day in the year when they made a perfectly good background. Even in the early afternoon when a freight train crew were engaged in doing some switching in the local yards and there was a rush to see the gowns of the engine crew, the workers proved to be mere men wearing ordinary overalls and jumpers. It would appear that the men will have to assert themselves and decide on some day for dolling up and making a colorful spectable. But they are just so contrary that they probably will not do it. A change of style, is for them without a thrill.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

We have once more reached that period of the year which is designated as Be Kind to Animals week. It is a matter in which there is need of frequent reminders. We are not naturally cruel, but there are times when we fail to exercise our thinking apparatus, when we are irritated and when we do not stop to seek the guidance of our best judgment.

Unfortunately there are some who fail to give any consideration to the dumb animals just because they are beasts. Some figure that a kick here, a bang there, a beating, overloading and underfeeding are all right so long as it is an animal that is involved. Nothing could be more grossly unjust and it is unfortunate that those who are so disposed do not realize that by their very conduct do they determine the character and value of the animal with which they are dealing. The dog that is properly treated does not bite the hand of the man who feeds him, the horse that is fed, treated and driven with consideration doesn't balk, or kick or loaf. It is the same with other animals. They understand and appreciate kindness and they are entitled to fair treatment.

If it is impossible for individuals to be kind to animals they ought not to be allowed to have them. Ownership doesn't give them the right to mistreat them. It is, however, because there is a failure to properly care for animals that there are organizations which shoulder the responsibility of making individuals do this or stand the penalty which goes with conviction for cruelty.

Through the attention which is created by Be Kind to Animals week much good is unquestionably accomplished. It is a worthy cause, and one where there is no danger of overdoing. Every day there is need for being kind to animals. It is not something that should prevail for a week and then be forgotten for the rest of the year. But it is through just such reminders and stimulations as Be Kind to Animals week that more are brought to this realization.

DEMURRAGE CHARGES

When it is shown that the railroads of New England received a total of nearly $22,000,000 in the past 14 years from demurrage charges, there is furnished some idea of what is back of the occasional demands for the prompt unloading of freight cars.

Demurrage charges were made necessary in quite the same way that many laws are. There are those who unload cars as soon as they are set and the work of unloading can be started, but there are others who like to use the cars for storage purposes. It is such a practice that ties up the rolling stock of a railroad, creates car shortages and makes it impossible to get a proper return from such equipment. Demurrage charges are imposed with the view to stopping it. That it cuts down the time of unloading is without question, but the large sum received in demurrage fees indicates that it is far from ended.

It isn't to be supposed that the imposition of the demurrage fee is as profitable to the railroads as the use of the cars for the purpose of transportation. If those same cars for which demurrage was charged had been available to the railroads, it is not improbable that a larger return would have been received by the roads during the 14 year period. On the other hand it is quite probable, inasmuch as they permitted the charges to pile up, that those who neglected to unload the cars promptly gained something by accepting the demurrage charge rather than avoiding it. This doesn't hold good in all cases for there are plenty of instances where demurrage is not intentionally incurred.

Demurrage charges have their part in the making of prices. It can be expected that they are passed along, like others, and for that reason it becomes a matter that concerns the consumer even though he sees no such charge on the weekly or monthly bill. Thus the prompt unloading of cars means an advantage not only for the transportation lines but for the consumers who buy the goods that are hauled.

PLUNGING INTO ASIA

The departure of Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt for Europe means the beginning of an expedition into the wilds of Asia that not only gives promise of providing all the advanture that might be desired by the intrepid sons of a fearless father, but which will provide an opportunity for the study of conditions in a part of the world that is little known.

It isn't necessary to go to the polar regions for an explorer to take chances, it isn't necessary to go into the heart of Africa to find savages. It isn't South Africa that has all the attractions of the searcher for the ancient and the little known. It is possible to go in many directions and be confronted with conditions which few people would prefer as the place to take a vacation, or for which they would leave their own happy fireside, but there is a combination of wild country, wild people and wild animals, in this trip into northern India and the Tibet region.

The Roosevelts are not exactly pioneers. Others have preceded them and passes are known by which they can get through the mountainous region, but it is fully understood in advance that there must be proper provision for the necessary safeguards. It will be a vacation where plenty of hardships and a full measure of adventure can be expected, and under such circumstances danger is inevitable.

There never has been a Roosevelt expedition that did not command international attention. There is a change in the leadership but the name and the spirit are back of this plunge into the Asian wilds, and from it there can be expected in time the thrills that follow the telling of the experiences that occur on just such expeditions.

The best wishes of the country will accompany the Roosevelt sons and it is to be hoped that their six months' trip will be safely concluded as well as successful in other respects.

CUTTING GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES

Reorganization of departments has been under consideration at Washington for a long time. The desirability of eliminating the deadwood and promoting greater efficiency can be readily appreciated. Evidence that such work, or investigations leading to such an end, is experiencing no let up is furnished by the survey which the president has authorized concerning two score or so bureaus with a view to ending needless expense. This is a continuance of the president's economy plan.

There have been several efforts since the close of war for the reduction of government employes. These have been made when it has been shown that there was no longer any need for them, that the payrolls contained too many for whom there was little or nothing to do and that equally needless red tape was keeping others at work.

It is entirely proper that there should be a demand for just as much economy and efficiency in the conduct of government bureaus as in keeping other governmental affairs on a business basis. If it is possible to abandon bureaus by consolidating two or three into one, with a corresponding reduction in the number of government employes, there will be an appreciable relief experienced. Such is no more than would be done if it were found to be advisable by a private corporation, and certainly there is no reason why the same method should not be applied in handling the nation's business. Inasmuch as the government has never gotten entirely away from the inflation of the employe list during the war, the present survey should be able to accomplish much even though there are increased governmental activities because of the war.

BRIAND'S CHANCE

The French cabinet crash came despite all that Premier Herriot could do in his effort to prevent it. In desperation he told the senate that conditions of a financial character in France date back of the ten months that he has been holding the reins. That didn't spare him, but it has given France something to think about in making adjustments. It is bound to be brought forward again and by others. Herriot assumed the premiership under the belief that his term would be short. Perhaps he has remained in office longer than expected, but it will be impossible to overlook the importance of the contribution he made in supporting the Dawes agreement.

One cabinet follows another. The task of reconstruction has been entrusted to former Premier Briand, after Painleve had declined. There may be times when such a task is comparatively easy. Such can hardly be said of it at the present time. The situation is one where those who have been supporting Herriot have a strong membership in the senate. They do not control or Herriot would still be in office, but they can do much to embarrass and handicap another. Consequently cabinet building must be done with that in mind and it is not improbable with certain concessions in that direction.

Briand has been turned to at other times when the same kind of a job was necessary. He has been selected undoubtedly because his sympathies run along in the same general direction as the president of France, who was elected by the French congress and who also picked Herriot. His task just now is to pacify and get the cooperation of those who hold the balance of power.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Potatoes will bake nicely on the ledge inside the furnace.

Rusty knitting needles can be cleaned by rubbing up and down in earth.

Add the white of an egg to the mustard plaster and it will not blister.

Enameled ware that has become discolored or burned may be cleaned by rubbing with a paste formed by coarse salt and vinegar.

When cleaning silver, mix the powder used to a paste with ammonia. The silver will be brighter and the polish will last longer.

Before cleaning a fireplace, sprinkle damp tea leaves over the ashes. This prevents the dust from rising and keeps the room clean.

Use egg shells to wash bottle or vinegar cruets. Crush them fine, put into the cruets with warm, soapy water and shake well. This will clean the finest glass with out scratching it.

To remove the odor of smoke put a basin of water in the room, leave overnight and keep a window slightly open. The air will be quite sweet by morning.

Dry your orange peels and grind them to a coarse powder. This can be used to flavor cakes, sauces, puddings, etc. Lemon peels may be used in the same way.

A few drops of oil of lavender sprinkled on the shelves of your bookcases and closets will dispel the moldy smell caused by damp weather.

A candle may be made to fit any candlestick if dipped for a moment into very hot water. This will soften the wax and it can then be easily pushed in.

Cut a piece off the ends of potatoes before they are roasted. This will let out any moisture and make them mealy.

An excellent dish for the breakfast of the convalescent is poached eggs served on toasted brown bread.

After a bottle of glue has been opened rub a little fat or oil around a sound cork before inserting it in the bottle, and the cork will pull out quite easily. Glass stoppers should be treated in the same manner.

CAKE MAKING

All modern recipes call for level measurements. The rounding measure for dry ingredients is too uncertain to use with the uniform liquid measures. Use the same size cup and spoon in measuring all ingredients.

When using pure leaf lard for shortening use one-third less than of ordinary lard. When oleomargarine is used the result will be the same as with butter, if a little salt is added to the oleomargarine and a little less is used than is called for in butter.

Too much sugar makes the crust hard and crumb sticky.

Too much shortening makes greasy crust and crumb.

Too much egg makes crumb wet and soggy.

Dry, crumbly crust is caused by too much baking powder.

Proper mixing insures uniform texture.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

No diet is properly balanced without it's complement of vegetables, particularly green vegetables.

As soon as anyone is put on liquid diet in one household a little lime water goes into each glass of milk. It helps in the digestive process and sweetens the stomach.

Rub baby's bruises with butter as soon as the accident occurs and they will not turn black and blue.

Blisters are nature's protection for the injured surface, but after it is necessary to prick them (with a sterilized needle) to get rid of the fluid they must be treated as open wounds and protected in every way from exposure and infection.

Children put almost anything in their mouths—marbles, coins, pins and beans. Feeding the child bread and milk and quantities of mashed potatoes is recommended if a sharp object has been swallowed. It becomes imbedded in such food and is eliminated.

FOODS FOR THE STOUT

Good news for those who are "watching their calories" is contained in a recent statement of Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, director of public health of Illinois, who says: "Oysters are regarded by health authorities as one of the most valuable of all sea foods. The chemical food value of oysters is practically the same as milk without the fattening constituents. Oysters are, therefore, especially suitable for the diet of persons who have a tendency toward obesity. Oysters also have a relatively high mineral content, including a small amount of iodine. Iodine in food is particularly profitable for the prevention of goiter. Altogether oysters constitute a very valuable food, from the dietary standpoint, and in addition they have this certain value as a preventive of disease."

THE NEW SPOOL

So often a new spool of cotton will break continually when first put on the sewing machine. Put the spool in a box on the machine, right beneath the usual place for it and thread the machine. Let it rattle around in the box for a while you are stitching. As soon as those first rather loose yards are off the spool can be replaced on the machine and the cotton will not break.

FOR YOUTH OF TODAY

The youth of the last generation were known by their jewelry and how and when they wore it. The youth of today are known by their sport clothes and the way they wear them. Just now nothing is more popular than the jumper frock of fine kashmir jersey. The skirts are featured by kick plaits and the jumpers by collars of crepe or georgette of contrasting colors.

THE BEST FOR BABY

If your baby is a bottle baby, it will be wise to spend the few extra cents on the quart and buy certified milk. It is perhaps the best way to make up the difference between mother's and cow's milk.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Unusually attractive and extremely reasonable in price is the salad bowl of luster in tones of blue, yellow or lettuce green. There are salad forks and serving spoons also of lustre.

The most attractive vanities, made of rose, blue, green or violet, ocrase leather, are triangular in shape. They contain compact powder and rouge and a tiny enameled lipstick.

Lingerie in the finest voile is exquisitely made by hand and the colors are the delicate pastel and flower tints so wonderfully flattering. It is remarkably reasonable for anything so dainty.

One of the most satisfactory materials for summer sports frocks is pongee, which now comes in a wide range of colors besides the natural tone that is so smart.

Adorable little coats and hats are made of mandioom woolens in soft colorings so appropriate for the years of the tiny wearer. Both coats and hats are trimmed with wool embroidery.

One often relies upon the bag to give the desired accent of color to a costume of rather somber tones. For this purpose nothing is more attractive than underarm bags of red or green leather striped in black or in two-tone effects.

The hand-knitted scarf of gay wools continues to hold its own as one of the most important accessories of the sport ensemble suit, but in its newest version it is somewhat narrower than last season.

Long, sweeping narrow trains are a feature of the London season. Americans who have been a part of the social life of the British capital say these are so long that they are frequently looped to the left wrist, so that they can be handled in a crowded ballroom.

WOOL TAPESTRY COATS

Among the most interesting of the new modes are coats made entirely of yarn in multicolors. Some are hand knitted in designs resembling old tapestry patterns, but others are done in the regular tapestry stitches on a background of lightweight canvas. Lined with crepe de chine and frequently bordered with fur or hand hooked edge they are distinctly and strikingly effective.

JUMPER SUIT POPULAR

The vogue of the two-piece jumper suit among the college girls of the country cannot be questioned, according to the leading American designers. The materials are kasha, wool kashmir or balbriggan. Knitted garments of this type also have a distinct place in spring wardrobes. Contrasting color effects are secured in the treatment of the collars and pockets.

LACY SHAWLS OF WOOL

Fragile and delicate as they are in appearance, there is considerable warmth in hand-knitted shawls of the open-lace stitch. One clever designer has utilized two hand-knitted shawls, or scarfs, as a lining for a delicate pink negligee of chiffon. The filmy texture permits a faint suggestion of the design of the knitted lining, to show through the chiffon. Narrow bands of marabou which match the tone of the chiffon, outline the edges.

LAUNDRY NOTES

Fasten the snaps of a garment together before putting the article through the wringer. This will protect the little knob from being crushed and broken.

Sour milk will bleach cotton and linen materials.

Art muslin curtains should never be washed in warm water. Make a lather with hot water and when it is nearly cold wash the curtains. If these are green add a little vinegar, if lilac or pink, a little ammonia. Salt will set the color of black and white muslin.

Do not sprinkle all the napkins, but dip every third napkin into clear warm water. Place this between two dry napkins, fold and roll the three together tightly. In twenty minutes they will be ready to iron and will be evenly dampened from hem to center. Next fold each napkin right side out, with the hems together, and iron double until dry. In this way the corners are easily kept square. If the napkins are embroidered, that part of the napkin must be pressed on the wrong side first.

YARN FLOWERS FOR BLOUSES

Even the daintiest of wash materials are decorated with yarn embroidery this season. Simple lines and gay colors are the distinctive notes of the new styles. The yarn scrap-bag may be called upon to trim the sheerest of costumes, as well as to decorate the sweater about the neck line, pockets and cuffs. Cross stitching is very smart. Flowers of woolen yarn, crocheted, knitted or fashioned by hand, are good, as are pompons, to finish streamers

WET FURS

If you are caught in the rain and your fur coat becomes watersoaked, suspend it on a coat hanger and hang it close to an open window. Never subject it to heat to dry. After it is dry brush thoroughly with a stiff clothes brush.

HASTENS THE PROCESS

When whipping cream or beating whites of eggs, the process may be quickened by having the materials in a large vessel and working where a cool current of air reaches them.

NO MORE BURNS

One woman who frequently burned herself in lifting puddings, pies, etc., from the oven, now uses a cheap dustpan as a lifter and claims it is a great help.

CITY WINDOW BOXES

One need not have a garden to enjoy the beauty and fragrance of flowers, for a narrow rack of black wicker holds four flower pots painted a brilliant orange. Single pots are inclosed in wicker holders painted in gay flower designs.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Women bootblacks in Brussels shine shoes of citizens and tourists at rate of about 3 cents a shine.

Miss Sara Muir, who recently handled the gavel of the Nebraska legislature, is the first of her sex to even be accorded the honor in that state.

Mrs. Alexander H. Rutherford of San Francisco has quit society to go into the real estate and insurance business in the Golden Gate City.

Several girl inmates of the Western Pennsylvania School for the Blind recently completed a course in nursing with exceptionally high averages.

Virtually every nationality is represented among the mothers of 14,926 children born in Pittsburg, Pa., during 1924. The mothers come from 32 countries.

The New Jersey Mosquito Extermination Association is headed by a woman. Mrs. Bertha Boynton, the first of her sex to lead the association of pest fighters.

SOFTENS IT

The peanut butter gets mighty stiff and hard to spread these cold days. Put it in the double boiler with a large lump of butter and let them melt together. Then pour back into jar for future use.

SEPARATES YOLK AND WHITE

If a funnel is placed over a tumbler and the eggs cracked into it, one at a time, it is easy to keep yolk and white apart as the white runs down into the glass and yolk can be tilted out of the top.

RECIPES

Prune Pie with Whipped Cream: Soak one pound of prunes over night in cold water to cover; cook in the water in which they were soaked until tender, let cool, drain and remove the stones. Turn into a deep pie plate lined with flaky pastry, sprinkle over three-fourths cup of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, the juice of half a lemon, dot over with two tablespoons of butter and add enough prune juice to moisten. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.), chill and cover with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Raised Doughnuts: One cup milk, 1-4 cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup butter and lard mixed, 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1-3 grated nutmeg, flour. Scald and cool milk; when lukewarm, add yeast cake dissolved in water, salt and flour enough to make a stiff batter; let rise over night. In morning add melted shortening, sugar, eggs well beaten, nutmeg, and enough flour to make a stiff dough; let rise again, and if too soft to handle, add more flour. Toss on floured board, pat and roll to a 3-4 inch thickness. Cut into strips and roll under hands until round and tie. Place on floured board, let rise 1 hour, turn and let rise again; fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper. Cool and roll in powdered sugar.

Are You Discouraged?

Mallinson, the Cash Boy

"Hi" Mallinson was different from other boys. He was sandy haired and freckled, and he seemed to have little interest in what attracted their attention. Furthermore, he was not satisfied with himself—always trying to find what was wrong and what he was going to amount to.

In his home town of Utica, N. Y., he went to public school, but at nine started to work as cash boy in the little general store of Hugh Glenn. He dreamed of being a great salesman, but at 15 was made buyer for the firm, one of the youngest holding that position in the country.

When the concern opened a branch at Detroit, Hiram was sent there, but yearned to be a salesman in New York. Finally he obtained an introduction to Pelgram and Meyer of New York, dealers in silk, through a letter written by one of their salesmen. Believing it was his great opportunity, he went to New York filled with high hopes, and arrived there at the height of the panic of 1892, when firms were laying off instead of adding help.

Meeting with flat refusal to his appeal for a job with Pelgram & Meyer, he tried to find other work, but without success although he visited many concerns time after time and even offered to work six months without pay just to show what he could do. Frequently he had to "take stock" of himself and try again. Finally his persistency won the employment manager of Pelgram & Meyer and he was made a salesman.

Sales were slow in those times of depression, but by long hours of work he held his position. Still serious, alert and self-analytical, he attended night school, saved and gradually increased his income.

After twenty years as employee he went into partnership with the salesman who had introduced him to his employers. Soon afterward the partnership was dissolved and Mallinson became sole owner of the R. H. Mallinson silk factory.

Finally came success and R. H. Mallinson now has mills in eight cities and an extensive store in New York with branches in the United States and Canada.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, who celebrates his fiftieth birthday anniversary today, is a distinguished educator who for nearly ten years has filled the presidency of Leland Stanford, Jr. University. Dr. Wilbur is a native of Iowa, who graduated from the institution he now heads in 1896, and then abroad to fit himself for the medical profession. He enrolled at the University of Munich, at Frankfort-on-Main, and in London professional schools, and joined the Stanford faculty in 1900 as professor of physiology. In 1911 he became dean of the medical school and continued in that position until elected to the presidency of the university. During the war Dr. Wilbur was one of many California friends of Herbert C. Hoover who volunteered to do high-grade expert service for the nation, serving as aide to Mr. Hoover in the department of education of the Food Conservation Commission.

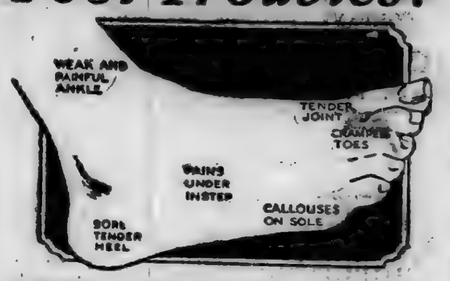
Foot Troubles?



FREE DEMONSTRATION
MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Seven persons out of every ten have some form of foot trouble. It may be weak or broken-down arches, weak ankles, corns, callouses or bunions or probably a case of tired, aching, painful feet.

Regardless of what may be the nature of your suffering, you will find quick and permanent relief, this week, at our Foot Comfort Department.

Foot Comfort Expert to Serve You

For the benefit of all foot sufferers, this store has arranged with The Scholl Mfg. Co., for the services of one of Dr. Scholl's most skilled demonstrators, who will be at our store to give free foot comfort demonstrations on the above date. Every foot sufferer should take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

Free Pedo-graph Picture Made of Your Feet

In a few seconds' time, without removing the hose, he can make a photographic print of your foot that positively shows if you do have foot troubles and to what stage the trouble has progressed. This service is absolutely free and places you under no obligation whatever.

FREE SAMPLES

Do you want to know how to stop corns hurting instantly? Come in and get a sample of Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads. They remove the cause of corns—friction and pressure. Thin, antiseptic, healing.

Bring your foot troubles to this store during this demonstration and learn the true meaning of foot comfort.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

TRINIDAD: WHERE ASPHALT COMES FROM

"The pavements of city streets cry to the cloop of horses' hoofs and the whir of automobile tires, 'Trinidad,' in tribute to the island's asphalt deposits. Radio and telephone wires reverberate the refrain. Even the walls of houses shut out these sounds, as well as the cold, with the world-famous product of this emerald island of the southern Caribbean," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The most southerly island of the West Indies and the largest of the British Islands in the Caribbean with the exception of Jamaica, lying just a few hundred feet from the Venezuela coast, Trinidad ships yearly to the United States more asphalt and bitumen than all the other countries of the world combined. Our 80,000-ton importation from Trinidad, however, is only about one-fourth of the quantity used in the United States. Much of our material is a by-product of the petroleum and coal tar industries.

"When Sir Walter Raleigh stopped on the shores of Trinidad to pay his vessels with pitch from the famous 'lake,' he declared that there was enough of the substance for all the vessels of the world for centuries to come, and even the demand which modern civilization has put upon the supply has scarcely changed the truth of his statement.

"About a mile from the shore, near La Brea, the peculiar phenomenon, which has been variously termed an 'inferno,' a 'Stygian pool,' and 'the fountain of Etyx' is located. Had Dante known of its existence, it probably would have served to stimulate his imagination to still more fantastic flights. However, the lake about which so many interesting stories have been told does not deserve its reputation. A man who contemplated suicide in its black depths would die of starvation before the ooze dragged him in above his knees.

"The sensation produced by walking over its surface is much like that of treading upon some great beast whose flesh gives beneath the feet—it is soft, blood-warm, and the wrinkles over its surface in the blinding light of the sun seem to rise and fall with his breathing and the water which gathers in the furrows suggests that the animal is perspiring.

"It is said that the area of the pitch-bearing lake is 110 acres and no one knows how deep it is. There is an almost uncanny feature connected with the removal of the asphalt from the area. Rails and sleepers have been built out in the lake and each day the laborers dig up chunks of the pitch, which break off with dry, blue-flintlike fractures, and throw them into a car which runs on rails. Each day they make a trough along the sides of the track with their picks and when they return the next morning the trough is filled again level and solid for them to dig up—a furrow that is never finished.

"Like the Burning Bush, the lake seems never to be consumed, and like the daughters of Danaus, who had to catch water in a sieve, the men never see the results of their labors. At night a great gully runs across the horizon, and at dawn the surface is level again.

"About every three days, however, the pitch swallows up the rails and the sleepers and they must be raised and readjusted on the surface. Although about 100,000 tons of asphalt are being taken from the lake each year, the little track need never be moved; the pitch comes to the railway.

"The subtle movements of this queer pool have produced some 'spooky' effects—islands wonder like lonely ghosts from shore to shore; sometimes a tree trunk sticks up out of the surface like the arm clothed in white samite which bore 'Excalibur,' points its warning finger, and again is drawn back into the Cimmerian depths.

One writer has estimated that at least 10,000,000 tons of the mixture have been churned into asphalt by gas during the ages in Pitch Lake, which is known as Devil's Cauldron among the natives. About 4,000,000 tons have already been removed, and by 1920 the surface of the lake had fallen 18 feet below its former level. Once during its history the viscous fluid overflowed its banks and made its way to the sea near La Brea. Now the world's supply is shipped from Brighton, which fairly reeks of its stock in trade. Asphalt boulders stick up out of the sand, along the shore like monsterious black sea worms, the piles of the piers are caked with pitch the pavements are of the same material, and the black children of the island play with dolls whose little black faces and bodies are made of pitch.

"The island is really a beautiful resort, its roads are excellent and it is easy to reach from the Venezuela shore, its green trees towering on the sky line from far out at sea. On his third voyage Columbus saw its three mountain peaks, which gave it its name, rise out of the sea on July 31, 1498. At the foot of these hills clusters the group of buildings which forms the capital city, Port of Spain, a rather nondescript modern town which has grown up on the charred ruins of the old Spanish city.

"Though the island has been British since 1797, it is as polyglot as Zanzibar; negroes, mulattoes from high yellow to ginger, French Spaniards, Venezuelans, Chinamen, East Indians, Tamils, American and English loiter in its streets or hang over its balconies."

Stories That Recall Others

Some Days Must Be Dreary.

In telling about having company one evening John says: "Our guests brought their children. The youngsters had quite an exciting time together. After the guests left we were putting our five year old to bed. He was very tired. He looked up to his mother and said: 'Mudder, I won't say my prayers tonight for God knows I am too tired.'"

Modern Life.

Henry lives in the country and has not had any experience with trains. It was a much anticipated pleasure therefore when he set out. The train had but started when Henry realized it had been brought to a sudden start and heard the hissing of steam. That created disgust in the youngster's mind, who said: "O, gee, there goes a tire, now we will have to wait another half hour."

The lack of money is the root of most evils.

WANTS TO OUTLAW THE "PARSONIC" VOICE

An outspoken attack on the "parsonic" voice was made by St. John Ervine, the dramatist and novelist, at the Glasgow musical festival.

"The parsonic voice," he said, ought to be punishable by law. Clergymen using the unnatural whining 'miserable-sinner' tone should be unfrocked and compelled to listen for years to professional elocutionists. Commenting on Mr. Ervine's remarks a well known divine said: "I quite agree doing their worst with the recitation 'We Are Seven.'"

Archdeacon Charles of Westminster Abbey, commenting on Mr. Ervine's remarks, said: "I quite agree with the spirit of the criticism. The parsonic voice ought to be punishable. It is artificial and characterless, and when the lessons are read in such a voice the words lose all their beauty and meaning."

OBITUARY

John G. Wightman

The death of John G. Wightman, 72, occurred early Sunday morning at his home in Stafford from pneumonia after an illness of a few days. He was born in Colchester, the son of Deacon John and Caroline Standish Wightman, and was a direct descendant of the Rev. Valentine Wightman, one of the first Baptist ministers in the state of Connecticut. He is survived by three children, Clifford S., of Hartford, Herbert R., Stafford Springs, and Mrs. W. Raymond Park of Stafford, four grand children and three sisters, Mrs. Nellie Chapman of New York, Mrs. Jennie Patterson of Long Island and Mrs. Annie Hatch of Stafford. He was active in politics through his entire life and served for several years as state commissioner of motor vehicles. He was a Mason in good and regular standing. He was sent as representative to the general assembly from the town of Stafford for two successive terms in 1915 and 1917.

Philo H. Barnes.

The death of Philo H. Barnes, formerly of this city, who had been living at Jacksonville, Fla., for the last six years, occurred there Sunday, according to word that was received by his Norwich relatives, but they were without particulars as to the cause of his death. He had been employed in hotel work there.

Mr. Barnes was born in Norwich, June 2, 1890, and was the son of the late Chester W. and Emily Dean Barnes. His home had always been here until his removal to Jacksonville and he was a veteran of the Spanish American war, in which he served with the Norwich company. He was well known among his many friends as "Cap" and he leaves many who will regret his passing away. He is survived by two sisters, Miss Lena B. Barnes and Mrs. F. A. Pike, both of Yonkers, N. Y., and a brother, Charles H. Barnes of 52 Hedge avenue. He also leaves an aunt, Mrs. Lucy Bromley, of this city.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Frank L. Palmer

Relatives from Norwich, Fitchville and Montville were with others in New London Saturday afternoon, in attendance at the funeral of Louisa Townsend, widow of Frank L. Palmer, held at 2.30 o'clock at the family residence, 581 Pequot avenue. The services were conducted by Rt. Rev. Bishop E. C. Acheson, of Middletown, and Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, New London. The bearers were William H. Reeves, Townsend Palmer, Leonard W. Dart, Howard E. Palmer, Frederick A. Johnson, Embury Palmer, Ralph H. Melcer, and Frank E. Palmer. During the service a hymn was sung by Frederick Weld. Relatives and friends had sent beautiful flowers. The body was placed in the Palmer mausoleum, Cedar Grove cemetery.

Ralph Langevin

Funeral services for Ralph Langevin were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Peckham Church in Ledyard many relatives and friends attending. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The service was conducted by Rev. Horatio Clark, pastor of the Baptist church, New London, who also read the committal service at the grave in Indian Reservation cemetery, Ledyard. The bearers were W. E. Smith, John George, Joseph Guervemont and sydney Steinhouse.

Arrangements were by Cummings and Ring.

NINE RECEIVE PRIZES FOR PERFECT ATTENDANCE

Awards of prizes for perfect attendance were made from the Polly Fox fund to nine of the pupils of Trinity Episcopal church school at the Easter festival for the school which was held at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the church. Those receiving the prizes were Lawrence Prodell, Leslie Meech, Virginia Meech, Frank Hill, Lillian Hill, Madeline Wright, Maida Wright, Alice Wolfe and Donna Davenport.

Easter carols were sung and an address was made to the school by the rector, Rev. J. Eldred Brown.

Each child of the school received a geranium plant, and the flowers that were used in the decorations were distributed to sick and shut-in members of the parish.

HUNGARIANS WORRIED BY EMPRESS ZITA

The activities of the Austrian ex-Empress Zita are attracting a good deal of attention in Central Europe, and appear to be causing anxiety to the Hungarian royalists, among others.

At present the ex-Empress is living at Lequeitio, near Balboa, in Spain, but there are persistent rumors that she is endeavoring to return to Hungary. Her 12-year-old son, the ex-Archduke Franz Joseph Otto, is put forward as claimant to the Hungarian throne.

The Hungarian royalists, however, have no sort of desire for the restoration of the old dual monarchy, embracing both Hungary and Austria, and they have been made very uneasy by the publication of a letter which the ex-empress wrote to the Bishop of Funchal.

In this letter she makes reference to the future "emperor" and speaks of herself as regent, allusions which are held to prove her aspiration to re-establish the Hapsburgs in Austria and Hungary alike.

In this she is believed to be strongly supported by her aunt, the ex-Archduchess Maria Theresa, who is popularly supposed to have engineered her marriage to the ex-Emperor Karl. Countess Schmissing-Kerssenbrock, daughter of a former officer in the Austrian army and now governess to the late Emperor's children at Lequeitio, is another party to the scheme.

It is said that truth lies at the bottom of the well. That is why the lawyer pumps the witness.

CONGREGATIONS FILL CHURCHES FOR SERVICES OF EASTER SUNDAY

Congregations that filled the Norwich churches were in attendance at the Easter Sunday services for which the joy of Eastertide was given recognition in the special floral decorations that had been arranged in every church and the appropriate music that was rendered by the choirs. The lessons of the resurrection were presented and various applications of the thought of the day were made in the sermons of the pastors, through all of which there was the note of triumph which is regnant on Easter Sunday.

United Congregational

At the United Congregational church, Rev. Alexander H. Abbott spoke upon The Power of Resurrection from the text Philippians 3:10,11 I want to know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, becoming conformed unto his death; if by any means I may attain unto the resurrection from the dead.

In substance he said: "This was written by a man imprisoned at Rome. This he wrote to his dear friends at Philippi, some thirty years after he had begun the Christian life. It was all due to the mysterious experience he had had on the road to Damascus, when it seemed as if the voice of Jesus changed everything in the world for him. He had sat at the feet of Gamaliel; now he sat at the feet of Christ. He had lived under the rules of the Law; now he had become enfranchised by a new faith. He had sought to lead the early Christians in chains to Jerusalem; now he sought to meet with them in a new hero-worship. He had played with death; but now he had found something that triumphed over death itself. Something which literal words can never describe, was vitally creative experience. The Spirit of Jesus had found the spirit of Paul; and Paul had become a new man in Christ."

"Again and again we say, there was something of pity or justice or kindness or service about that man, which death can not destroy." It is the memory of something so great that we believe it is imperishable. This is the experience that those had who were nearest and dearest to Jesus. The vision came that what was supreme in him was still a living thing; and the world began to acclaim the power of the resurrection of these timeless things.

"It is the Easter faith that those who meet with Jesus, at the points where he speaks and acts, learn more and more of the eternal things of life itself."

The following were received into membership in the church on confession:

Trinity Methodist Episcopal

The Assertions of Easter was the sermon at Trinity M. E. church Sunday morning, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church, preached on the text Let not your heart be troubled —in My Father's house are many mansions—John 14: 1 and 2. In part Rev. Mr. Graham said;

These words of Christ carry the note so characteristic of many of his sayings about the "unprovable realities" of life—that of confident assurance. They are addressed to the citadel of personality, 'the heart', as our authorized version translates, to the center of our complex being, "where the entire personal life concentrates itself." It is the appeal of Christ through the self to the self.

There is the assertion of the primary of faith over knowledge. "Let knowledge have her place, she is the second, not the first," says Tennyson, in In Memoriam, his "spiritual autobiography. It is a sin against the mind to accept as true that for which we lack evidence. But evidence for faith is hope, desire yearning within us. The fear against which this exhortation warns is a fear which grows out of doubt, and which, without evidence, is often accepted as final and decisive.

There arises in the application of this exhortation to our thinking the need of a second assertion, namely, "man cannot die". Only the body dies. Death is an experience known only in the physical world. It is our failure to distinguish between ourselves and the houses in which our selves dwell that causes so much confusion and troubling of our hearts. Men hate death, fear death, dodge death. Instead let them challenge death. Let them look it in the face. Then it largely vanishes. Only death of the body remains. For too many, loved ones "lie," or "sleep" in the cemetery. For too many, life is a short journey beginning in a cradle and ending in a cemetery" instead of a long journey, beginning so far as human knowledge sees, in birth upon earth and never ending.

The third Easter assertion of this text is the assertion of immortality. There are here linked together as an essential entity belief in God, faith in Christ and confidence in a joyous and inviting future existence.

The figure of the house of many mansions carries the hint of a home, a place to live and develop in character and capacity.

The 'many' suggests diversity of life, suited to our several capabilities, and needs. It hints at progressiveness and possibly at change. Edwin Markham the poet has recently given the conclusion of his meditations upon the nature of the future life as one that must necessarily provide for the expanding development of each individual.

In the catacombs Christians of the first century have left the symbolic characters, two concepts of their thought of the state of their friends who have gone from them. Their state is one of peace as contrasted with their life in earth as persecuted and hunted suspected. And again they are thought as "alive in God." Our modern Christianity needs a revival of Easter thinking, having lapsed at this point. "Our people die well," said John Wesley. Our faith should be no less clear and confident than was theirs.

A class of about 20 was received into membership at the morning service.

St. Andrew's Episcopal

Three services were held Easter morning at St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Central avenue. At 6 o'clock in the morning there was a communion service followed by the Children's Eucharist at 9 o'clock and morning prayer, holy communion and sermon at 10.30 o'clock. There were large congregations at each service. At the 10.30 o'clock service a special Easter message was given by the rector, Rev. Lionel E. W. Mitchell. In part the rector said:

Why are you all here today?

Three days ago we mourned the loss of one whom, two thousand years the world called Jesus of Nazareth, A great teacher and one of the finest examples of manhood the world has ever seen, died the death of a criminal on a cross of shame. The Apostles and other faithful Christians heard in the death cry of Jesus the knell of their own hopes. They understood not the Scripture that He must rise from the dead and for them the cross was the end. The Sacred Body was taken from the cross and laid in the loving arms of the broken hearted Virgin Mother and then placed in the tomb in the garden of St. Joseph of Armathaen. Even the apostolic band considered this the end.

But something happened. There is a reason for our being here this day. There is a reason for us keeping Sunday the first day of the week rather than the Jewish Sabbath. When the church made Sunday the Christian holy day she did it in opposition to long established custom. The seventh day had always been the holy day. Yet from the beginning of the Christian era Sunday has been observed and has indeed entirely replaced the Sabbath. We must seek an explanation of this in some tremendous fact. Again the Catholic church bears witness to the fact that Calvary was not the end, as does the Holy Sacrifice of the altar offered up for nearly two thousand years. A dead Jesus does not explain these things.

Time and again men have tried to cast doubt upon the Christian faith by stubborn theories. Some have said that Jesus was not slain but only wounded that He fainted on the cross and was laid in the tomb while in a swoon and that from this swoon he awoke and came forth. But a person so nearly dead as to have been pronounced dead, a body so mangled and weakened could never have rolled away the stone from the door and if it were possible a pale, emaciated figure, weak with suffering could never have inspired men to believe in Him even unto death. A figure recovered from death only to live for a short while and die in obscurity is not the Christ of history.

Others have said the apostles stole the body. I ask you do men collectively invent stories to startle the world and then die for them? The apostles all sure St. John died because they preached the resurrection.

Still some have said that the appearances of Christ after death were hullucinations, that apostles expected it and hence thought they saw the risen Christ. But they did not expect it. The idea was not in accord with Jewish thought and furthermore, granted that one man might have had such a hullucination it is not likely that the teacher, the women and more than five hundred brethren were effected with the same mental disturbance.

Something happened on that first Easter Day and the only explanation possible is the explanation that Holy Church has given from that day to this. Christ is risen from the dead. That is why we are here today, that is why we observe Sunday.

Those sincere but mistaken Christians who would substitute the Jewish Sabbath for the Christian Sunday would destroy one of the greatest living proofs of the resurrection. Every Sunday is a little Easter just as every Friday is a little Good Friday and as a Christian priest I bid you observe the weekly feast with joy. Sunday should be like Christmas, a day of rejoicing, a day of religious observance and a day when we enjoy all the legitimate pleasures that God has given us. We should look forward to Sunday with joyful expectation not with dread. Sunday is a day of joy not a day of gloom, Christ is risen let us rejoice and in our joy let us rise with Him. God grant that He may rise in use and that through Him who has conferred death we may come to those unspeakable joys which await those who follow in His turn.

Christ Church.

The beautiful Easter services at Christ Episcopal church, Rev. C. M. Budiong, rector, began with the early eucharist at 7.30, when a large number of the faithful members made their Easter communion. At 10.30 the large procession around the church with the vested choir singing Easter hymns was inspiring. All of the music was beautiful and the sermon by the pastor sounded the note of victory for Easter morning. The text was, Whom seek ye? and the key word was Conviction. The meaning of the word Easter was explained, then the story of Mary Magdalene's life was pictured and of her great conversion to the Christian faith, as the proof of her devotion was proven by her early appearance at the sepulchre and the joy of meeting her Master. Jesus had made her long for purity of her soul. The dream of immortality is what a real meeting with Jesus does for us all. The echo of Repent, is to put away our past life like a garment that is stained with selfishness, hate, gossip, evil thought, deceit and sin. On Easter we strive to put on our new garment and adorn our souls with the robe of righteousness. Then was pictured the scene in Simon's house, Repentence knelt at the feet of Confession, Misery looked up at her Master of Mercy. Her sins are many, but they are forgiven for she has loved Much. Does the question of the text, Whom seek ye? ever sound strong enough in your heart and mine to make our conviction, a conversion?

Do we recall what He said. Seek and ye shall find? Can the world say of us, "Thou art one of His Disciples and was with Him?" What is your conviction?

At 4 in the afternoon the church school Easter service was held with a pageant, Be At the Helm, finely given by those participating. The characters were taken as follows Priest, Robert Moody; messenger, Burton Robinson; Soul of the Parish, Gordon Cruickshank; three guardian angels, Ruth Cruickshank, Ruth Robinson, May Vallin; Sister, Mabel Bjorn.

The mite boxes with the missionary collection from the school were presented during the pageant.

The fellowship league meeting at 6 in the evening and the confirmation lecture at 7.30 closed a busy but happy day for the parish and the rector.

First Methodist.

Rev. J. B. Aldrich spoke at the First Methodist Church, Norwich Town, from the text Matthew 26:31.

In brief he said:

The words of the prophet Zechariah had come to pass. The shepherd had been smitten and the sheep scattered. Darkness was upon the little world of the friends of Christ for the Shepherd was gone. He was dead. The grave was closed upon him and the sheep had scattered abroad. The sun, too, on that national feast day had darkened at the time when the shepherd let fall his head and darkness was upon the Holy City. What that darkness was we do not know. We only know that for three hours where in the Saviour hung on the cross the horror of darkness was on the land but in the breasts of those who followed the victim there was a darkness deeper than night. Darkness was upon the friends of Christ because the lamp of hope was guarded, faith itself had been crucified, love's pure flame had died on the cross. He was dead who they hoped had come to redeem Israel. Who spake as never man spake; who did even say, "If any man believe in me he shall never die." All was dark and desolate, abandoned and beaten down but suddenly there was a dawn.

The Lord is risen, He is risen indeed. Jerusalem heard the note and we after the lapse of years we hear it and believe. He was seen by individuals, by companies and by multitudes. We sing it in our Sunday school. The resurrection is one of the great facts of history. It is the foundation of the Christian church. If the resurrection ever be abandoned as a historical fact, the Christian church will fall to pieces because its one power of gravitation will cease to exist.

The question of Job, "If a man die will he live again" was answered by the resurrection. Paul was a believer in the resurrection of Christ. "But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that shift." The resurrection is the pledge of immortality as in Adam all die so in Christ shall be made alive.

St. Patrick's Church

The Alleluias of Resurrection Sunday had more than ordinary significance in St. Patrick's church, where the parish was noting, not alone the triumphal ending of the solemn period of Lent, but the signal honor which has come to the entire Catholic church in Eastern Connecticut through the elevation of St. Patrick's rector, Rev. Michael Henry May to domestic prelate of the Vatican, with the rank of Monsignor. The three altars of the church were richly yet simply adorned, with lillies in tall gold vases on the high altar, the gold of Spring daffodils giving color at the base. In the sanctuary were flowering ascension lilies against the glossy green of tall palms. At the gospel side of the high altar the Paschal candle, lighted for the first time, signified the Light which shone among the Gentiles.

As is his custom, Mgr. May read the first mass at 7:30, speaking briefly to the large congregation. The mass at 9 was read by Rev. Father Conlon of Hartford.

In the solemn high mass at 10:30, Rev. Myles P. Galvin was celebrant, Rev. John J. Reilly deacon and Rev. Thomas J. Conlon, M. S., of Hartford, sub-deacon. Mgr. May occupied his throne at the gospel side of the sanctuary. Lang's orchestra of seven pieces supplemented the organ, the musical portion of the mass as arranged by Prof Frank L. Farrell proving especially inspiring and melodious. Of the solo numbers, Frank R. Murdy did magnificent work, particularly in the Bohm "O. Salutaris," in the "Incarnatus" during the Creed, and throughout the benediction. Mrs. Frank L. Farrell had a very effective solo in General's "Agnus Dei" and the other soloists, Miss Loretta Bellefleur and Frank G. Aubrey were heard to fine advantage. The choruses were uniformly smooth and even the entire choir doing marvellous work for purely volunteer singers.

Having read the gospel for Easter Day, Mark 16. 1-7, Rev. John J. Reilly preached on the events of the Resurrection morn, making the point that, as Christ's death and resurrection was unlike any other death and its result and influence, so likewise the church which Christ founded differs from every other church and must survive, not only any other church, but must always rise above any opposition, calumny, or onslaught. He traced the events on that memorable morn when the holy woman, walking sadly through the garden to the tomb, amazed, saw the stone rolled away and were met by the wondrous tidings of the angel. Other great leaders of the world have died —have been laid to rest in ornate tombs—Napoleon in the Parthenon of Paris, Unknown Soldiers in massive tombs to be honored by nations; Westminster Abbey holds the tombs of kings and others who were great—Dublin, in Glasnevin honors the tomb of O'Connell,—yet, no matter who the man or how wide was his earthly renown, the narrow coffin is, after all, the horizon of his influence.

But with the Saviour how different—no dumb stone bounds His resting place; His resurrection is individual and characteristic. As He had promised, He proved Himself the Son of God, conqueror of death. He, the Founder and Protector of the Catholic church, had to die, as He Himself had declared, or had He not, then the Holy Ghost would not have come to that church which was to continue His teaching and enunciate His doctrines. By His death and his astounding resurrection He prove dHis divinity. He proved His claim—He founded His church.

Throughout the centuries, that church has witnessed the rise and fall of what innumerable dynasties, has withstood the onslaughts of foes which have been as powerless as any of the little upstart gusts of storms which rage against the everlasting mountains. Neither hell nor earth can prevail against that which the Risen Christ has founded, marking it as the custodian of truth, the force which promulgates His word. To paraphrase Macaulay, when the Traveler from New Zealand shall stand on Brooklyn Bridge and wonder at the ruins of the loftiest skyscrapers, the Church which Christ instituted will have the same vigor and influence as throughout the generations past. Reasonable is it then that this church should rejoice on Easter morn in the triumph of her Lord and Founder, and the preacher pointed out how this joy can bring spiritual uplift and graces to every soul which has made fitting preparation for the Redeemer's bursting of the bounds of the tomb, which brings not alone earthly joy, but hope of everlasting life with the Risen Lord.

Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament followed the Mass, given by Mgr. May, who also imparted to the great congregation the papal benediction.

First Baptist

Rev. E. C. Dunbar spoke upon The Easter Challenge at the morning service at the First Baptist church, using the text, John 8:51. If a man keep my word, he shall never see death.

In part the pastor said:

"The best defense is an offensive," some one has said. The Allies won the war when they stopped defending Paris and started out to take Berlin. This is a lesson for Christian people and for the Christian church. We have a religion which is able to defend itself. After the resurrection of our Lord, the disciples needed no further proof that Christ was the Messiah. Contrasting the disciples before the resurrection and after that event, one sees the difference. Peter had been brave and courageous when he made the first Christian confession. In the upper-room again he voiced his belief. When the test came, however, Peter was found wanting. Questioned he professed ignorance. Challenged he denied. Accused he cursed in the name of the one he had pledged support. But all that was before the empty tomb. Later we find him preaching before crowds, with such boldness that the people marveled. This boldness came after he had seen Jesus' words fulfilled. Peter had become an aggressor.

The Bible teaches that God created a spiritual undying man. That death came into the world through transgression of law, called sin. Jesus came into the world to show men how to overcome sin. He also came to reveal to us a loving heavenly Father. Most people recognize these purposes of Jesus, with little difficulty. The chief difficulty is to overcome the selfishness of our own natures. We build our lives upon the foundation, of self. Self enters conversation, work and pleasure. Then serious minded people are confused when their world crumbles. We need only to get back to the teachings of the Master, and keep his words. If we keep them then we become aggressive Christians. Aggressive Christians are concerned with affairs of the Kingdom and are unconsciously building upon a foundation that is sure, strong and permanent. A foundation that all the saints of all time have built upon.

Faith and service are handmaidens. It is not enough to have faith alone, even if one can. It is usually lack of faith that makes one a defensive Christian. Service is the drive and urge that sends one out to live and preach faith. The greater the service, then greater the faith. When our actions harmonize with the lessons Jesus taught we establish ourselves in right relationship with the Father of all man-kind. Thoughts are the forerunner of action, action of achievement, achievement of success. Jesus calls active believing followers. Leave the defensive in his hands, go forth ready to do or die for him.

Central Baptist

Four were baptised at the Easter morning service Sunday at the Central Baptist church. There was a very large attendance at the service. Special music by the choir and organist and beautiful floral decorations added to the attractiveness of the service. The sermon preached by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, was on A Religion of Hope. Rev. Mr. Pitt took his text from Rom. 8:24—For in hope were we saved. In part he said:

A Norwich woman has written a book entitled "His Religion and Hers." In that book she accuses man of giving too much thought to the future in the next world and too little to the future of his world. If that is true, it shows how far we have departed from the teaching of the Bible. The Bible has a great deal more to say about the future in this world than the future in the next.

In the men's class a few weeks ago, we found there was a difference of opinion as to how much the Old Testament had to say regarding immortality. But there can be little difference of opinion as to the large place in the Old Testament given to the future of this present world. The dawn of a tomorrow that is to be better than today (or yesterday) is a characteristic note of the Old Testament.

Do we look for a new earth in which dwelleth righteousness? And do we believe that Jesus' way was right, rather than the Kaiser's? Then we are being saved by hope.

Moreover, the Bible teaches us to look forward with hope for the individual as well as for the race. There is nothing in our Bible next to the revelation of God more important than its teaching of the value of human personality.

Professor Honline was speaking of the four-fold development as seen in Christ, physical, intellectual, social and religious. This is the standard we should apply to ourselves, to our homes, to our business, to our community and our country and eventually to the world. According to this book that is the standard by which we must all be judged some day—the standard of Christ-likeness. Why not begin to apply it now? Growth, development is what we should expect as we look forward into the future.

Our fellow citizen may be right when she writes that man has an overemphasized life in another world. And yet I wonder if any other group has done as much for the well-being of this world as those who have had faith in the next. Even the Wall St. Journal says that it would rather do business with a man who believes in immortality than one who dies not.

Here as everywhere our Master is the perfect example. He held the two hopes in perfect balance. He had a great hope for the coming of the Kingdom of God on earth and to that He dedicated Himself even with death.

At the same time He held into perfect confidence the hope in the life everlasting. The one in the pagan world who seems to have come nearest to Christ was Socrates. He too hoped for immortality and he argued for it. Jesus never argued. He affirmed. Socrates sometimes questioned. Jesus, never. In My Father's house are many mansions. No wonder that Paul said Jesus took life and immortality to light this His Gospel.

Brethren is the main hope for ourselves and for the race, for this world and the next given the place it should have in our minds and hearts. If so we are being saved by hope. If not let me entreat you on this Easter morning to bring you the message of a great hope. The future for you and for the race for this world and the next is as bright as the promises of God. This is the gospel of Him who was dead and is alive forevermore and has the keys of death and of hades. May we all enter more fully into the meaning of this blessed hope.

Trinity Episcopal Church.

For his Easter morning sermon at Trinity Episcopal church Rev. J. Eldred Brown took his text from second Timothy, 1:10. "Our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

The belief of man, he said, in a life beyond this world has persisted from the first historical records we have of him. As we ponder over the whole career of man on this earth, whether historic or prehistoric we find as an instinctive feeling, a conviction that life here does not constitute all of man's life, that death here does not bring the annihilation of his being.

We often times prove things by texts but a proof of life beyond can come only to us, as far as we know, by death itself, and the individual who dies cannot return to give us this proof. We have hope, however, and when we think of the years it took to bring about this human body of ours it cannot strike us but utterly futile that such a process should end in everlasting anihilation. We cannot believe that the Great Architect and Builder of the world would spend all those years to make the noblest of His created beings in order to allot him a brief time on earth and then forever to blot him out of existence.

Can we believe that God is less wise than man? Shall we accuse Him of raising within us high hopes and noble ideals only to dash them to the

ACADEMY OPENS SEASON WITH 9 TO 6 VICTORY OVER THE ALUMNI TEAM

The Academy baseball team played its first game of the season before a large-sized crowd here Saturday, defeating an Alumni team composed of many baseball veterans by a score of 9-6. The Academy team although playing a steady game was at no time certain of winning the game. The Alumni were out for a win and they threatened up to and in the very last inning, finishing the game with a rush that but being unable to score enough to overcome the big lead held by the Academy team.

The game gave some pointers concerning the ability of this year's Academy team. Woods who started the game in the box was very dependable in the three innings that he pitched. No one could touch his deliveries for even a single. Greene who replaced Wood in the fourth inning was unsteady and seemed to be working too fast to be effective. He allowed three runs in the fourth but thereafter seemed to control himself. Jarvis was sent in to replace Greene in the seventh and although the Alumni scored three runs off him in the ninth inning, he worked in fine fashion showing his capability to emerge from tight places. These boys promise some fine pitching as the season grows older.

The game considering that it was the first game played with ability marking only three errors. The outfield played an errorless game. With the exception the players proved that they could do effective work, making fourteen hits off Segal that netted 9 runs.

The Alumni played a fighting game considering the odds they played against. They displayed good team work from start to finish refusing to accept defeat until the end of the ninth inning. Swedish and "Big Boy" Madden were dangerous at the bat, always pounding out the most opportune times. Harris put a scare into the Academy pitchers and they preferred walking him. The Alumni made eleven hits off the combined efforts of Woods, Greene and Jarvis, netting them their six runs. The big innings for them were the fourth and ninth, scoring three runs in each inning.

The game had its feature. "Shorty" Hamil proved the old saying "Good things come in small packages." "Shorty" is a fine player now and when he grows up he will mean doom of many pitchers. Harris and "Shorty" on first base reminded us of "Mutt and Jeff" and attracted the attention of all the spectators.

The Academy team as a whole is composed of fine material and with more practice some things will undoubtedly be accomplished by them. The N. F. A. team will next be seen in action against the Pomfret nine Wednesday. The game will be played at Pomfret.

RED SOX BEAT BRASSCOS IN EXHIBITION GAME

Waterbury, April 13—Lee Fohl, former Waterbury manager returned here with the Boston Red Sox and handed the Brasscos, champions of the Eastern league a 9 to 1 defeat, in the opening baseball game of the season. The visitors bunched two singles and a double in the second for two runs, which proved sufficient to carry away the decision.

The Brasscos threatened in several innings, but lacked the punch to put over the needed runs. Score:

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

CHAPMAN WINS PITCHING BATTLE FROM MADISON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 13—A real pitcher's battle took place at Morgan Park Saturday afternoon between Chapman Tech and Madison High. Morris Brown twirling masterly ball throughout the nine innings and with sixteen strike outs to his credit gained a 1 to 0 decision over Cusano of Madison.

The twirling of Brown was exceptionally good and he allowed but one hit in the nine innings he was on the mound. Cusano was also loath to give out hits, the locals touching up his delivery for four hits, one a triple, by Hewitt in the third inning.

Tech scored its only run in the first inning on a scratch single by Hewitt, his steal of second, a sacrifice by Courbouis and an infield out. The locals threatened to score again the third when Hewit tlined out the only extra base hit of the game, a triple to left center. He failed to score, the following Tech players were easy outs.

Madison had a golden opportunity to score in the eighth inning having a man on second and third with only one down. Gaurer flied out to center, Dibble the Madison catcher who was on third at the time did attempt to score on the catch.

BRIDGEPORT-BULKELEY TRACK MEET IS CALLED OFF

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 13—Announcement was made at Bulkeley school that the dual track meet scheduled to be held between Bulkeley cinder path men and the Bridgeport High squad performers has been called off due to the inability of the Bulkeley management to be able to secure Morgan field for the date the meet is scheduled to take place. This means that the track program for the Bulkeley performers will include but one dual meet with South Manchester next month and likewise the participation in the Yale interscholastics at New Haven.

After the indoor track meet which was held at the State armory recently, the track men at Bulkeley under the direction of Coach Frank B. Hamlin have been taking it rather easy and will not begin strenuous practice for the busy month which faces them until the latter part of this month.

Meanwhile a serious problem confronts the Bulkeley track coach and that to find some men who are capable to stand up against the first class competition which will result in the meets in which Bulkeley is entered. In the program events which will constitute the dual meet with South Manchester and at the Yale interscholastics, the Bulkeley men are untried in the discus throw, the javelin and the 12 or 16 pound shot-put which will be used in these meets. The rule which governs track athletics which makes it impossible for the coach in this sport to use men who are connected with some other sport will deny Coach Hamlin the use of his best dash man, Sheflott. Other athletes will also be missing from the Spring program in track due to this ruling.

BABE RUTH'S CONDITION IS VERY MUCH IMPROVED

New York, April 12—The condition of Babe Ruth was improved, it was announced by Dr. Edward King, his personal physician, who has been attending the American League's star home run hitter since he was taken to the hospital Thursday suffering from an influenza attack. His patient was still running a slight temperature, Dr. King said.

No announcements were made concerning Ruth's prospects of joining his team for the American League opener Tuesday.

SENATORS EVEN UP IN SERIES WITH GIANTS

New York, April 12—The world champion Washington Senators, by defeating the New York Giants in their final exhibition, 11 to 5, evened up the series at six games won for each club. The Senators started off with a five run lead and were never headed.

BULKELEY TO PLAY SUB BASE TEAM THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 13—Bulkeley will bring its preliminary baseball campaign to an end with the contest which is scheduled with the regular Submarine Base team at the Sub Base grounds on Monday afternoon. With two victories already scored as the result of early season activities before the regular season is opened the game with the gobs of theg overnment will furnish the real test for the Bulkeley team Monday afternoon. The game will get under way at 3:30.

Captain Tillie Daniels is expected to start the game for the school nine with either Lefty Harrell or Harry Compton in the box for the gobs. The game is expected to be one of the most interesting games of the early season, with the Sub Base opening its present ball campaign with this contest. The game will give the aspects of a return game between the Duwells of Norwich and the Moosup aggregations if both Harrell and Daniels are allowed to oppose each other in this game. For it is remembered that it was the same Tillie Daniels who lost a 5 to 4 decision to Moosup last summer and with Lefty Harrell opposing him. In the return game at the Duwell grounds, Daniels defeated Harrell and the game Monday will be the play off between these two twirlers.

It is expected that Bulkeley will have its strongest lineup in this contest. Sheflott will be in back of the plate and Montali who was out of the last game on account of a leg injury is expected to be back in harness again. Mansfield who was also absent in the last game with the Coast Guard will ze on hand again. First base is still a toss up between several candidates.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Pitcher Fulton Woods of the Spartanburg Club of the South Atlantic League has been purchased by the Boston Red Sox.

In the game with Columbus of the American Association, March 17, which the Reds won, Jimmy Caveney and Bubbles Hargrave both hit home runs.

Vancouver, B. C., is to have a new swimming pool which will cost $200,000.

On May 1, 1877, Fred Nichols, pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, held the Syracuse Stars down to two hits in a fifteen-inning game.

The late John M. Ward, in his days of active baseball playing, was one of the most successful base runners that the game has known.

Earl Coombs will start the season in center field for the Yankees and Joe Dugan will be the lead-off man, unless plans made by Miller Huggins at St. Petersburg are changed.

Jimmy Johnston, veteran infielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers, sprung a painful charley horse in the game with the Phillies at Bradenton, March 16, and had to be supplanted.

Maurice Archdeacon, outfielder of the White Sox has been ailing with a cramped-up hip toe. He injured it when he slipped on a cake of soap while under a shower bath in the clubhouse.

Big Boy Buckeye, the 235-pound pitcher of the Cleveland Indians, has been doing very well with the tribe. He has also convinced Tris Speaker that he is more than an ordinary hitter for a pitcher.

The Philadelphia American League club is so well pleased with training conditions at Fort Myers, Fla., that the owners have signed a contract for the Athletics to train there for the next five years.

Joe Hauser and Al Simmons of the Athletics got into their home run stride against the Giants at Fort Myers last week. Both sent the ball out of the park and helped pile up the 15 to 3 victory for Mack.

Three young pitchers have been released by the Cincinnati Reds. They are Linneman, Eberwein and Clark. All showed considerable class but need much experience before they are ready for fast company.

Walter Johnson's training work was given a serious set-back last week when he sprained an ankle. He had to take a complete rest, so painful was the injury. Walter sprung the sprain while doing track work.

George Kelly, first baseman of the Giants, in his first appearance at bat in a practice game at Sarasota socked the ball out of the park. It was a fine entry for the long athlete.

Charley Dressen, infielder of the Reds, has been taking treatments for a sore arm. The old soup bone has been bothering him almost constantly since he joined Cincy and he has been a bit alarmed about it.

Five California volunteer recruits have been dropped by the St. Louis Cardinals. They are George Berry, Roland Roberts and N. P. Boysen, pitchers; Matt Sullivan, catcher, and Charles Touli, shortstop.

Mike Kelley took his squad of Minneapolis players to Laredo, Tex., on the Mexican border, March 22 to play the semi-pro team of that place. After the game the players crossed over into Nuevo Laredo, Maxico, where they saw a bull fight.

Eddie Collins, it has become known, is giving many of the pitching signals to the catcher when the team is in a tough hole. It is said that Manager Eddie is sparing no effort to give Catcher Crouse a thorough schooling in the art of handling pitchers.

Before the opening of the Big Ten season the University of Iowa baseball team will make a quick trip south for games with Tulane and Louisiana State universities.

Pal Moreau and Young Leonard, the two New Orleans lightweights, have been signed to meet in a 15-round contest before one of the clubs in the Crescent City on April 10.

One of the most one sided baseball games between college teams took place June 16, 1882, when the Dartmouth college nine defeated the Middlebury university team by a score of 49 to 0.

Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill. is to have the first three-decked solid concrete football stadium in America. The plans as now arranged provide that the stadium shall have a total seating capacity of nearly 75,000.

Mathews of the New York Mutuals and Nolan of the Indianapolis team were among the first of the professional baseball pitchers to become proficient in the use of the curve, which has been first introduced by Arthur Cummings of Brooklyn in 1867, but was not generally adopted until nearly ten years later.

The roster of the Chicago baseball team which won the first National league championship in 1876, was as follows: Spalding, pitcher; James White, catcher; McVey, Barnes and Anson, on the bases, Peters, shortstop; Glenn, Hines and Addy in the outfield, and Bielaski and Andrus, substitutes.

A. A. Alekhine, the Russian chess expert who recently astounded the Paris enthusiasts with his performances, has accepted an invitation to take part in the international masters' tournament which is to be opened at Baden-Baden the middle of April. The United States will be represented in the tournament by Frank J. Marshall.

ORIGINAL CELTICS DEFEAT WESTERLY ARMORY FIVE IN FINAL ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, April 13—The basketball championship of the world crown remains firmly placed on the brows of the original Celtics Basketball team of New York City. The Saturday night pretenders, the armory five, basketball team of Battery 1, 243rd R. I. C. A. C., the alleged champions of New England still retain their near royalty class. A crowd of nearly 1,200 basketball fans gathered at the Dixon street armory to witness a possible enthronement of a new royal line but the question of who should wield the sceptre seemed never in doubt for when the shock of the rather one sided, though interesting battle, was over the Celtics were victorious by a score of 31 to 24.

"Fid" Morley drew the first blood by caging a basket for the Westerly players from the center of the floor. For the Celtics Denhart caged the first goal and was followed by a goal from a hard side throw by Beckman. Bernot scored with a long toss tying the score, and the visitors retaliated with two baskets in quick succession. Martin playing centre continually got the jump on Leonard, substituting for Lopchick who was not in the game owing to an injury. At half time the score stood 17 to 8.

At the beginning of the second half Wilbur substituted for Nigrelli. Beckman scored for the Celtics and Bernot made the first point of the half for the Armory Five with a foul. Martin netted a pretty basket, receiving the ball off the backboard, and shortly after scored again. Keeney followed on a pass from Martin. Barry replaced Leonard at centre. Martin again scored on a one hand throw. Denhart netted a basket for the New Yorkers and Kenney came through with his first score of the game. The score at this point was 23 to 19 and Morley cut the visitors lead to 2 points with a long toss. Ripley increased this with a foul. Beckman netted a basket from the centre of the floor and Holman shot another foul. Bernot scored the most spectacular basket of the game with an overhand shot. Denhart scored next and Morley made one point on a foul. Taking the ball down the floor in the last minute of play Holman scored the final basket.

Our Banana Record.

The import record of 1924, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, shows a larger number of bananas entering the United States than in any earlier year, and the sum paid therefor also the largest on record. The total value of the bananas imported was $22,674,000 against $16,398,000 ten years ago in the fiscal year 1914, and $7,710,000 twenty years ago in the fiscal year 1904. Originally a native of the Malayan archipelago, the banana was introduced to tropical America especially the Caribbean countries, in the early days of the development of that area. Its importance as a food supply attracted attention in the United States, and a very large sum of American capital has been invested in its development, and that of the railways by which it is transported to the water's edge, the steamships which bring it to our ports and the especially constructed railway cars and warehouses by which it is distributed the country over. The number of bananas consumed in the United States now approximates 6,000,000,000, since the 47,000,000 bunches imported last year are estimated to average about 125 bananas to a bunch.

Zebras.

Zebras from the wilds of Rhodesia are soon to be added to the animal collections of several of the vast British and Scottish estates, where they will have nearly as much freedom as in their native haunts. Twenty-two zebras arrived in London recently for G. B. Chapman, an animal importer, who will have charge of the experiment of raising the little striped beasts in the British climate.

Several pairs will be assigned to the grounds surrounding Chilham castle, in Kent, owned by Edmund Davis, while others will go to H. Whitley's Primley Park, Paignton, Devon, and eight or ten others to Beattock Park, Dumfriesshire, owned by Sir William Cross.

Bachelors Form League

The Backelors' League, similar to one formed in Venice in Rutino, near Solerno, has been organized in Italy. The members take a vow never to marry and they will publish a paper to be known as The Bachelor. Several hundred young men have joined.

Newsboy Now Lord Mayor

Opportunity for the poor exists in Europe as well as in the New World. Mr. Percy Bower, the new Lord Mayor of Bermingham, England, is a good example. He was left an orphan at ten, sold newspapers in London and was later a blacksmith before his rise to power and position.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Mouse's Petition

Oh! hear a pensive captive's prayer,
For liberty that sighs;
And never let thine heart be shut
Against the prisoner's cries.

For here forlorn and sad I sit,
Within the wiry grate;
And tremble at th' approaching morn,
Which brings impending fate.

If e'er thy breast with freedom glow'd
And spurn'd a tyrant's chain,
Let not thy strong oppressive force
A free-born mouse detain.

Oh! do not stain with guiltless blood
Thy hospitable hearth;
Nor triumph that thy wiles betray'd
A prize so little worth.

The scatter'd gleanings of a feast
My scanty meals supply;
But if thine unrelenting heart
That slender boon deny.

The cheerful light, the vital air,
Are blessings widely given;
Let nature's commoners enjoy
The common gifts of heaven.

The well taught philosophic mind
To all compassion gives;
Casts round the world an equal eye,
And feels for all that lives.

If mind as ancient sages taught,
A never dying flame,
Still shifts through matter's varying forms,
every form the same.

Beware lest in the worm you crush
A brother's soul you find,
And tremble 'ere thy luckless hand
Dislodge a kindred mind.

Or if this transient gleam of day
Be all of life we share,
Let pity plead within thy breast
That little all to spare.

Chew Puppies

Our names are Ping-Wing-Chang-Ming
And I am Wing.—the best
That's true! I heard the master say,
He soon will sell the rest

I ate his slipper yesterday
Gave the remains to Ching
He caught her with them—punished her
And raved like anything

Today I found a garter snake
And passed it on to Ping,
Just as the mistress picked him up;
She make the welkin ring

Just now I stole Ming's juicy bone;
He chased me and I sprang
Unsetting the aquarium
All over Ming and Chang

I heard my master's son remark:
"He now is home from Prep)
This Wing seems an attractive pup,
But needs a bit more nep!"

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

This week has been designated throughout the width and breadth of the land as Be Kind to Animals Week. During this week everybody, boys and girls and grownups as well, are asked to be kind to animals. Not only this week but every week throughout the twelve months of the year should be a Be Kind to Animals Week. Animals as enemies or animals as friends—which do you prefer. Would you rather have a dog glad to see you and glad to be with you, or would you rather have him growl and snarl at you? It is up to you to make your choice.

Kind, considerate treatment will help you make friends with animals, whereas rough, brutal and inhumane treatment tends to make animals your enemies. Take the boy with his dog, for instance. The boy who owns and likes dogs treats his dog chum kindly. He is gentle with him, treats him as he would a real boy chum and never lets him suffer for want of food or water. What the boy really does is to make a friend of his dog and a dog chum is the truest kind of chum there is.

Weakling cowards boast, swagger and brag whereas the brave and the good are gentle and kind. Cultivate kind, gentle thoughts towards every person and animal. You will find yourselves growing more happy each day and with happiness comes health and everything you want. Whom do you love among your school mates? Not those who throw stones at dogs and cats. Not those who quarrel and fight; but you do love and respect those who are kind, gentle and unselfish. Be kind to animals every day, every week!

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Our Own State

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you some facts about Connecticut. Connecticut is in the northeastern part of the United States. It is the most southern of the New England states. It is one of the smallest states.

It was first settled by the Dutch in 1614. Later the English people from Massachusetts began to settle here and gradually the Dutch people withdrew. The first settlements were made at Hartford, Windsor and Wethersfield.

The coast of Connecticut is irregular. The best harbors are at New Haven, New London, and Bridgeport. New London is the only harbor deep enough for large steamers. The largest river is the Connecticut. Other rivers are the Thames, Quinnebaug, Willimantic, and Housatonic.

The leading crops in Connecticut are hay, tobacco, potatoes and corn.

The rock of the Connecticut uplands contain a great variety of minerals. Granite quarries are found in a number of places.

The chief wealth of Connecticut lies in its manufactures. Connecticut has a population of 1,380,631.

The two largest cities are New Haven and Bridgeport. The capital is Hartford. Other cities are New London, Norwich, Waterbury, New Britain and Meriden.

The counties of Connecticut are Litchfield, Fairfield, New Haven, Middlesex, Hartford, Tolland, New London and Windham. I hope the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story about Connecticut.

Belling the Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about Belling the Cat.

Once upon a time there lived a great many mice that ate all the pie, and cake that was in the pantry. The only enemy they had was the cat.

One day they had a meeting and one of them said I know what we shall do, tie a bell around the cats neck so when he is near we shall run away. Who shall tie the bell around the cats neck? They all ended out [illegible] that no one [illegible] cat's neck!

My Bird House

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my bird house. One morning my mother awoke and saw a Phoebe at the window. At first my mother thought it was her canary that had gotten loose. Then she say that the Phoebe was looking for a place to build a nest. So that afternoon my mother told my uncle to build a bird house. He built a bird house with four apartments in it. It looked cunning after it was finished. Then he showed it to my mother. My mother liked it very much. She told my uncle to put it in the tree by my house. He put it in the tree. I wish some birds will come in it. Don't you?

Her First Letter

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I live on a farm with my father and mother. I have a little dog for a pet. He is very pretty and his name is Billy. Every morning he wakes me. When I come home from school he comes to meet me. He cannot run very fast because he is too fat. We have much fun playing together.

The Pilgrims

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time that I have written to the Wide Awake circle.

Many years ago the Pilgrims lived in England. Their king was very unkind to them. They moved to Holland. Then they moved to America. The Pilgrims crossed the ocean in a sail boat. It was the Mayflower. One hundred Pilgrims came over in the Mayflower. It was a long hard trip. They reached here in winter. It was Christmas week. They landed on Plymouth rock. There were no houses anywhere. Indians lived in wigwams. The Pilgrims had to cut down trees and build log houses. They had a hard winter. There was little to eat. Many were sick and died. Some Indians were kind to them. They showed the Pilgrims how to plant corn. In the fall there was plenty to eat. The Pilgrims wanted to thank God for all their good things. They had a great feast. This was the first Thanksgiving.

Penn's Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I thought I would write to you about William Penn. William Penn was an English Quaker. King Charles owed him a large sum of money. Penn asked if he could have a piece of wild land in America. King Charles was very glad to do this. He named the land Pennsylvania or Penn's Woods. Penn named the town which he settled Philadelphia, meaning the City of Brotherly Love. He placed the streets very carefully running north and south cut by right angles and other streets running east and west. The Indians were very friendly with Penn. They made a treaty with Penn which was never broken. Not one drop of Quaker blood was ever shed by an Indian.

Abraham Lincoln

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake Circle. I thought I would write a letter to you about Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, February 12, 1809. The house his parents lived in was only a rough shanty. The school where Abe went was kept open only a few months of the year. He studied hard at home. He didn't have paper and pens to work with so he wrote upon a big wooden shovel using a piece of charcoal for a pencil. He had to clean the shovel off, when he needed a fresh place to write on. Abe had very few books but he read them until he knew them by heart. He was nearly twenty one when his father moved to Illinois. He built his stepmother the nicest log cabin he could. He cut down the trees and planted corn and made a fine rail around the little farm. Then he left home to work for himself. A man hired him to take a flat boat to New Orleans. There he saw a poor negro girl sold. He felt so sorry that he wished he could stop slavery forever.

A Baby Lamb

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell you about my little lamb. It is about as big as our dog. It is white and wooly. It was born March 29, 1925 in the morning. My brother went to get the lamb. My little niece was afraid of it. I fed the lamb with a bottle this morning before I came to school.

The Greatest President

Dear Uncle Jed: Yesterday I was looking through the Sunday paper and saw a contest asking the readers who was the greatest president of the United States and why?

I think that everyone should answer that Washington was the greatest president because he gave the opportunity to other great presidents, such as, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Wilson, etc. If not for him they would never have had the chance to show their greatness because there might not have been a union. That is why Washington's greatness remains forever.

Cotton and Its Uses

Dear Uncle Jed: Cotton grows in India, China, Japan and Egypt. It is one of the most useful materials in the world. It is used for dresses, stockings and many other articles.

You cannot grow cotton in Connecticut because the climate isn't hot enough. Our southern states raise much cotton which is picked by negroes.

Cotton looks like many bushes from afar. They don't get any higher than a bush. First it is red then the balls turn white and burst open.

Then it is time to be picked. The negroes pick it and then it is shipped to the cotton gin, where it is separated from the seeds. From the seeds is made cotton seed oil.

After it has been through the gin it is packed and shipped to factories where it is made into cloth and other articles.

The Little Dog That Made Mistakes

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my friend's dog. He belonged to a boy named Fred. His name is Rover. There were three other dogs in the same family, and all bigger than Rover.

The big dogs were collies and used to chase rabbits all day and that is how Rover got chased at home with Fred. Rover did not have a good time. Fred [illegible] with the dogs. Rover [illegible] him for [illegible] he has come down to the [illegible]. Topsy was always second. Then lifted a forepaw and scratched him.

Lucy said "Fred, your dog is so cross" and then Fred boxed his ears.

After that Rover thought he would not play with cats any more. He would play with playthings.

So one day he buried Lucy's hat in the sand. But he left a pink ribbon sticking up. They found the hat, and found a shoe, too and a rubber doll, and a jewel-box.

Then Rover was whipped.

Rover noticed that the big dogs were never whipped. He thought it was because they caught rabbits and birds.

He knew where there were rabbits and birds. So one day when the big dogs came home there sat Rover with his game. Lucy's pet rabbits and the old rooster.

How the big dogs looked at Rover! How Lucy looked at him; and Fred and Fred's father!

They gave Rover away, and Rover ran off, and became a tramp dog.

Blue Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time that I have written to you and I hope you will be interested in my story.

The bird that I am going to write about is the bluebird. The male one is a bright blue with an orange breast. The female one is a dusky gray so she cannot be seen on the nest. She also has an orange breast.

There is a pair of them around my house. They are looking for a place to build a nest. The male one flew on the rope in the well and the female one sat on the outside of the well. I think they are very pretty.

An Old Battered Coin.

Uncle Jed: Life first came to me in Philadelphia in 1795. Uncle Jed you can imagine how nice and shiny I was. I am a penny and you might think it is not worth while speaking about. But if we did not save our pennies we would not get along well.

However it came to be I was lost by some careless being who thought me useless. I lay in a ditch, rain coming down on me but I could not move. It poured for a day and a night. When it cleared off a little girl found me.

She went in a nearby candy store to buy some candy as all children like candy. She bought 3 large pieces for me. I was put in the register with many of my sisters and brothers. The storekeeper needed change so he took me out. How sorry I was. But it did not help. I was given to a careless little girl. She took me home and put me on a shelf. The dust collected on me as fast as ever. She put me in the bank. I was handled by some nice people. I was glad I was there and thought I could stay there. I was soon taken out by a boy. I am sorry to say a sad thing happened. He gave me to his sister. As this was a hot day she went bathing. She took me along and while wayout she dropped me. Just imagine I only lived ten years. So this ended my life. If you ever go to Philadelphia remind yourself of me.

Germany in 1914

Dear Uncle Jed: At the beginning of the World War Germany had a population of about 63,000,000 inhabitants, and an area of 209,000 square miles. There were only two countries in Europe that had larger population and they were Russia and Austria Hungary. From the industry of agriculture she changed into a more industrious nation. She ranked next to the United States in iron ore. She stood next to Great Britain in the production of iron. One third of the people lived on farms. She was beyond question the most powerful nation on the continent of Europe.

Lost in New York

Dear Uncle Jed: Here are a few lines of an exprince that happened in New York City. When I was four years old my cousin and I were going to the store. As usual, when we started to go home I did not want to go. So my cousin left me on the sidewalk and walked away.

I did not know which way to go because I was so small. I began to cry and I cried for quite awhile. Then I was frightened because I thought I would never be home again and never again see my father or mother. A kind man came along. He bought me an ice cream cone and a bag of candy and then he took me home.

Europe

Dear Uncle Jed: I have just written to you about South America, so so now I will write about Europe.

The Caspian sea and the Black sea are the largest inland seas in the world. The Caspian sea is about eighty-five feet below sea level.

In the Alps are two noted lakes, Geneva and Lucerne.

In the highlands many sheep and goats are pastured. In the food belt there are great herds of sheep and cattle and in the forests hogs fatten upon acorns and beechnuts.

Coal and iron are the most important mineral products of Europe. Large quantities of copper, zinc, quicksilver, salt and petroleum are obtained. Lead tin, silver, and gold are also found.

A few of the rivers are Volga, Danube, Rhine and the Rhone.

The Shaping of a Nest

For seeing eyes here is a test—
The building of a robin's nest.
—Old Mother Nature.

Welcome and Mrs. Robin had returned early to the Old Orchard and were already at work on their nest before many of their feathered friends had arrived from the Sunny South, where they had spent the winter. Peter Rabbit had been one of the first to greet Welcome and Mrs. Robin, and frequently in the early morning he slipped over to the Old Orchard for a gossipy chat with them.

So Peter was one of the first to know when they started nest building. Even before they had begun actual building, he knew that they were getting ready. He knew the signs. They didn't have much time for gossip. There was a great deal of looking about. Welcome Robin was continually being called here and there by Mrs. Robin to look at this place and that. And when at last they decided on a place Peter was rather disgusted. It was in the lowest crotch of one of the apple trees and only a few feet above the ground.

"Now what was the use of all that looking about?" muttered Peter to himself. "They didn't have to hunt to find that place. It was right under their bills from the time they arrived. And what a place for people with perfectly good wings to build. Why, Farmer Brown's boy can reach that nest without getting off the ground. It is a good thing that it is so near Farmer Brown's house though if I were in Welcome Robin's place I would be worried to death for fear Black Pussy the Cat would visit it in the night. Well it is no business of mine where they build their nest."

But, if you had been around to see how often Peter found an excuse to visit that part of the Old Orchard you might have suspected that it was none of his business. The truth is, Peter was much interested in the building of that nest. Always it had seemed to Peter a very wonderful thing that birds with only bill and claws to work with can build such wonderful nests. Indeed, it is wonderful. There are no familiar things more wonderful in all the great world.

From where Peter sat, close to the old stone wall, he could look up and watch the builders at work. At first there wasn't much to see. But gradually the walls of that nest began to rise—walls of mud. Peter never will forget how surprised he was the first time he saw Mrs. Robin getting mud. What she could want of mud he couldn't think. It wasn't until some time later that he learned that she used it for the inner wall of her nest, covering it with straw and coarse dead grass on the outside and fine grass on the inside.

What interested Peter most now was the shaping of that nest. He would see Mrs. Robin add a bit of mud and then settle down in that nest so that just her black head was above the edge of it and her breast was down in against the inner wall. Then she would work around back and forth seeming to push with her breast.

After he had watched her do this many times it was all very clear to Peter. "She is shaping her nest with her breast," thought he. "Of course. That is how she gets it so nice and round. She pushes that mud into the wall with her breast. Just see her work! It is a wonder to me that she manages to keep looking so trim and nice when she uses her breast so in such rough work. I must ask her about it the first chance I get."

And so it was that Peter went home sure that Mrs. Robin shaped her home wholly with her breast. Hadn't he with his own eyes seen her do it? He thought he had, anyway.

DEFECTIVE AUTO BRAKES COSTLY FOR VISITOR IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 13.—H. B. Cairns, representing the Springfield Lumber company, and travelling by automobile was careless when he was in New London a week ago on his way from Westerly, while going along the line of the New Haven road to consult trade in the various cities and towns. He stopped on Main street and left his car far away from the curbing. When Officer Clyde Murphy called him to account for that it was found that his automobile brakes were not in order and that they were so defective that they constituted an element of danger in the operation of his car. He asked for a postponement of his case then and it was granted, so that he appeared in court Saturday and was penalized for the defective brakes. His fine was $10. Cairns did not have his operator's license in his possession Saturday. He said he came by train from Bridgeport, where he resides at the Y. M. C. A.

Charles Christensen and Miss Edna A. Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Greene, 17 Home street, were married Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. Myron E. Genter, at the parlor of the Methodist church, in the presence of relatives and intimate acquaintances. Raymond Greene, brother of the bride, was best man and Mrs. Charles Marsdale was matron of honor. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Christensen held a reception at the home of the bride's parents, after which they left for a wedding trip. Mr. Christensen is engaged in the trucking business and his bride was until recently stenographer in the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran.

Mary McCarthy has sold to James H. and Maria G. Lawrence two tracts of land on Robinson street.

Mrs. Leonard Mallett, of 624 Bank street, reported to the police Saturday that while she was in a shopping crowd at a fire sale her pocket was picked and that her purse containing $24 was stolen.

Mrs. Joseph Truken, wife of Peter Truken, of Waterford, was before Justice of the Peace Frederick L. Goss, in Waterford, Saturday afternoon charged with violation of the liquor law. She was fined $100 and sentenced to jail for 30 days, but the execution of the sentence was suspended. Mrs. Truken filed a notice of appeal but it is understood that she will vacate the appeal within a few days, paying the fine and costs of the court.

Mrs. Truken was arrested several days ago by state police when a large still was found in operation in an excavation in the yard, which was reached through a trap door in the Truken home. Mr. Truken made his escape at the time and has since eluded the authorities.

Justice Goss also nolled the case of a Polish resident of Waterford charged with harboring a vicious dog, upon payment of the costs of the court.

John Joseph Keating, 20, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Patrick Keating, of 121 Willetts avenue, died at the residence of his parents Friday night, after a brief illness. Mr. Keating was a member of Knights of Columbus and C. L. Ockford Hose company. He was a graduate of Chapman Technical High school and was employed for several years by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad as car inspector.

Lieut. Col. Giles Bishop, 47, U. S. M. C., stationed at San Diego, Cal., died in a hospital in that city Friday following an operation which he underwent several days ago. The patient showed symptoms of improvement until late Friday afternoon when he experienced a sudden weakness of the heart. Lieut. Col. Bishop is survived by his wife and daughter and by two sisters Mrs. Sidney H. Miner and Miss Nettie Bishop and a brother, Isaac Bishop, all of New London.

Lieut. Bishop was the son of the late Giles and Charlotte Comstock Bishop and was born in New London. He received his education in the public schools of this city and was graduated from Bulkeley High school. He later entered West Point and upon his graduation from that military school, he was assigned to duty with the marine corps. Lieut. Bishop saw service in the Spanish-American war and was stationed at various times at Vera Cruz Philippines, Haiti, Cuba, Guam and Nicaragua.

John Piascik, 37, residing at 687 Main street, was taken into custody late Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer William Graham upon complaint of his wife, who charged her husband with intoxication and breach of the peace. Piascik furnished a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning. Piascik, who is a moulder, is alleged to have gone to his home shortly before 6 o'clock and to have engaged in such a vigorous quarrel with his wife that she was forced to asked for the man's arrest.

Reuben Lubchansky will appear in the police court Monday to answer to the complaint of his wife, who was Lottie Usher, for failing to support her. There has been trouble between Lubchansky and his wife for some time. He is a prosperous junk dealers and a dealer in condemned vessel property and married Miss Usher a comparatively few years ago. Since then there has been times when the pair have not always been in harmony, and Reuben has kicked out of the matrimonial traces. As Miss Usher, the wife was much younger than Lubchansky when she married him, but the couple went to Westerly and there donned the matrimonial harness which has so chafed them at times since.

Nick Pappas, proprietor of a bar-bershop at 9 State street, was taken into custody Saturday night by State Police Officers Watson and Mugervero, of Groton barracks, charged with violation of the liquor law. He is being held in bail of $750 for trial in the police court Monday morning. Being held as a witness against Pappas is Charles Leckey. He furnished a surety on his bond of $200 for court appearance. Late Saturday night, it is understood, Leckey went to the place and purchased wine. The officers then visited the barbershop and when a search of the place was made a quantity of wine was found, which it is alleged, Pappas had there for sale. The wine was seized as evidence against Pappas.

Automobiles owned and driven by Frederick T. Sholes, Old Saybrook, Edward Sperzyiwes, Gardner avenue, and Anthony A. Kosowski, 75 Curtiss street, Hartford, figured in a three-cornered collision Saturday night on Bank street, corner of Golden street. All three cars were damaged.

City Manager William A. Holt has communicated with Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney regarding the efficient service members of the department rendered at the fires at the Rialto theatre and Crocker house last week. Particular mention is made of the deeds of coolness and bravery of Acting Lieut. James D. Gaffney, Sergeant Dennis Murphy, Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey and Patrolmen John Foley, William Manice, Braxton Hall, Clarence Wells, John Clifford and Edward Grand William Riordan and Frank Philopena, the officers being at the Crocker House shortly after the fire was discovered and rushing through the several floors arousing guests and assisting them in safety to the street.

City Manager Holt si in receipt of a communication from Sergeant Allen C. Slade Stonington Ambulance Corps, Inc., thanking New London officers for their extremely efficient and courteous methods of controlling traffic and the cooperation of the officers in giving right of way, to the Stonington ambulance on its numerous visits of late with patients to New London hospitals.

A resident of Blinman street com-municated with the police early this morning, stating that a man was trying to open doors of stores on that street. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman William Riordan hastened to Blinman street and found Patrolman John Foley there. The act of the officer in closing a store window he had found open led the Blinman Street resident to believe that a thief was operating on that street.

Barbara Brandos was arrested early this morning charged with maintaining a house of ill fame at 10 Hebron street. A. B. Brooks, 24, carpenter, residing at 14 Pearl street and John J. Farrell, 25, clerk, of 143 Broad street, were arrested, charged with being frequenters of the place. The Brandos woman was released upon furnishing a surety on her bond of $250 for her appearance in the police court Monday morning. Brooks and Farrell each furnished a surety on his bond of $50 each. Residents of the same building occupied by the Brandos woman, are alleged to have lodged complaint with the police that all was not what it should be at the place. Shortly after 1 o'clock, when Brooks and Farrell entered the house the police were notified that male company was at the place and Patrolmen Frank Philopena, John Foley and William Riordan and Motorcycle Officer William Babcock were dispatched there and what they observed caused the three arrests.

Two young girls, both of respect-able parents, were taken into custody tonight when found in rooms at a local hotel with sailors from the state pier and submarine base. They and the sailors, the latter also having been arrested, were released later as their was not evidence of the men or girls having been guilty of committing any crime.

The sailors stated that they met the girls and that an automobile ride was taken to Chesterfield where a purchase of [illegible] quarts of wine was made from the return to New London the sailors invited the girls to their room for the purpose of drinking the [illegible] Sergeant Samuel Hall and Patrolman Frank Philopena [illegible] came upon the scene [illegible] upon the arrival of the police and caused the quartet under arrest.

The weather today was glorious for Easter, an atmosphere that was life-giving prevailed and the temperature was warmed by a bright sun that was [illegible] during the day. The churches here [illegible] assembled for the [illegible] and evening. The [illegible] with [illegible] speaks of the new life that had [illegible] to the world after the solemn [illegible] of Lent. The [illegible] that [illegible]

Governor [illegible] and his staff [illegible] the N. [illegible] overlooking the [illegible] of the [illegible] Adjutant-[illegible] service [illegible] New London and here he received his [illegible] local military [illegible] Governor [illegible] a warm greeting for he has many acquaintances in this city.

The First Church of Christ was filled this afternoon when Palestine Commandery, K. T. held Easter services. The knights marched in the church in a body, entering to the music of Mendelssohn's [illegible] The service commenced with responsive readings by the knights and their [illegible] followed by an anthem, "Hail, Easter Morn!" by the quartette of the church. The address was by Rev. J. Romeyn Ingersoll, the prelate of the commandery, [illegible] W. Keewin was heard in a tenor solo, "Jubilate Deum," accompanied by Miss Roberta Bitgood on the violin. At the conclusion of the service, the congregation sang "Onward Christian Soldier," and the knights left the church. The quartet was W. W. Keewin, E. L. Sayer, Willis A. Waterman and A. N. McPhail.

The church had the capacity to seat hundreds more people than could be accommodated in the Temple on Green street.

Rev. Mr. Spaulding from Worcester district of the Methodist church conducted services in New London church today, the former pastor here having been chosen district superintendent.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

(Weekly Financial Review.

New York, April 12—The successful flotation of $168,000,000 of Dodge Brothers, Inc., securities was the outstanding feature of this week's financial market. Stock prices made further recovery from recent weakness in the early part of the week and then turned irregular with the approach of the holiday. Bond prices drifted rather aimlessly with the exception of the French governmental, municipal and railroad liens, several of which established new low records for the year following the announcement that the bank of France's note circulation had exceeded the legal maximum of 41,000,000,000 francs.

Wheat prices rallied sharply on the publication of the department of agriculture's estimate of a winter wheat condition of only 68.7 per cent. as against 83 a year ago and a ten-year average of 81.2. This estimate was well below that expected by the grain trade.

Foreign exchanges held relatively firm in the face of the French political crisis. Demand sterling ruled between $4.77 and $4.78 while French francs averaged around 5.15 cents.

NUMBER FOUR

ground it an instant? To doubt a life beyond would be to doubt the permanence of love—and so to doubt the permanence of God Himself, for love is the very essence of God's being.

Above all it behooves us as Christians to remember and respect the reserve with which even Christ Himself speaks of the details of the future life. For, after all, as our text says, it is our Saviour Jesus Christ who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. Christ has taken the sting away from death. Christ voluntarily submitted to death as a sacrifice for the sins of the world. In Him we have the forgiveness of our sins. So that by His death, He made the fear of death of no effect for His people, made it so it cannot tyrannize over them.

Christ has assured us that the time is coming when there shall be no more death. The text goes on to assert that Christ hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. First of all Christ revealed to us the character and life of God, that in His life we find these things emphasized, love, truth and righteousness. In Christ's human life we have revealed to us how God can implant His own loving spirit in man when man once gives Him free play by trusting Him and obeying Him. Christ also revealed God in His teaching of a God of perfect truth. Here again He portrayed in His human life how God can implant this in men.

As to the triumph and joy which awaits those who try to live as He would have us live, that await the outcome of such a struggle, carried out in co-operation with the Spirit of Christ dwelling within us, let us listen to the inspired apostle's assurance, "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love Him.

St. Mary's Memorial.

The Feast of the Resurrection was observed with the usual solemnity at St. Mary's Memorial church, Greeneville, with three large congregations at the different masses. The seating capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost. The Easter lily predominated in the altar decorations with potted plants gracing the sanctuary. The decorations were in charge of the Altar society of the parish.

The paschl candle blessed on Holy Saturday, where it will remain for the next forty days, stood out prominently at the gospel side of the altar, being lit at the gospel of the mass, which was significant of the light of faith given to the Gentiles.

The purple vestments worn by the priests at the daily masses during the Lenten period denoting sorrow within the church gave way on Sunday to white, significant of joy over Christ's victory over the world, the flesh and the devil through the triumph of His resurrection, which He had already foretold.

The low mass at 7.30 was offered by Rev. Fr. Farrell, S. J., and the communicant list was very large, it being the second Sunday of the month, the monthly holy communion day for the women of the parish, amongst which were the Young Ladies' Sodality, going to the altar in a body. The second mass for the day at 9 o'clock was the largest attended of the three and as at the earlier mass, many received the sacraments. This mass was celebrated by Rev. Frederick M. Cohalan and the Easter music was rendered by the Junior choir.

The high mass at 10.30 was sung by Rev. Dr. Patrick J. McCormick of the Catholic university at Washington, D. C., and the Easter musical programme was rendered by the Senior choir, Henry J. La Fontaine, choirmaster.

Preaching at the three masses for the day Fr. Farrell, S. J., found his text in these words, "Rejoice and be glad therein for this is the day which the Lord hath made." The preacher based his remarks on the virtue of hope which fills the Catholic mind on each renewing Easter Sunday. Christ as man, had suffered the trials, temptations and difficulties of this life, had suffered an ignominous death on the cross and had risen from the dead to enter His heavenly home and prepare a place for us beyond this life. Man may seek the honors, riches and pleasures of this life, but all these end at the grave; the life beyond the grave is what we must prepare for, determined on the life we have led here. St. Paul says if there is no life beyond the grave then our faith and all good works here are in vain. The preacher further urged the youths of the parish to be true and loyal to the teachings of their faith.

Benedjction of the blessed sacrament took place in the evening at 7 o'clock being given by Rev. Fr. Cohalan.

First Congregational

The Easter sermon at The First Congregational church, Norwich Town delivered by the pastor, Rev. G. F. Bailey was based on the text Galatians 2:20 "I live, yet not I, but Christ who liveth in me." The speaker said in part:

When you account for Saint Paul and ascertain the source of his power you have gone a long way toward proving the existence of the living Christ. As these days become vibrant with the Easter hope, the faithful servants of God will turn in various directions for proofs of Christ's resurrection. Everything centers around Him. Some will scan prophecy to catch for gleams of promise of a messiah who could not be holden of death. Others may dwell upon the words of the Master who said "I am the resurrection and the life." Still others will linger on the story of the empty tomb, or trace the mysterious footprints of one who appeared to two on the way to Emmans, and to a few at the lake side and to five hundred assembled elsewhere. Whatever interpretation we may give to the account, of these various appearances, we can not fail to be impressed with psychological significance of the accounts. The appearances were described as coming to Jesus' friends only. He evidently made no visit to Herod or Pilate or to the comrades of Judas. Minds in the and spirits in harmony have no difficulty in finding a common ground for fellowship. In addition to all that is written of a positive nature about the resurrection of Jesus, let us turn to indirect evidence. Certain facts in the history of mankind must be accounted for. One great fact of Christian history is the change which came over the disciples of the Lord within a few weeks following His death. Before the crucifixion these men were materialistic in their conception of the Kingdom of Heaven, they were selfish in ambition striving for chief places in that Kingdom when it should be established on earth. They were weak, often inefficient and easily discouraged. In the hour of fear the chief apostle populated his Master's friendship and when the pane came all forsook him and fled.

Now see these same men a few weeks later. They are in the same world, with practically the same opposing forces against them. But a great change has come over the men. They seem to have thrown off their materialistic notions of the Kingdom, selfish ambition has given place to a holy passion to serve their God. Now they are bold in the presence of forces that are meant to terrify. Now they are ready not only to obey the voice of God rather than the voice of men, but they are ready to die rather than forsake their high and holy task.

There is no way to account for the change save that the living Christ has come to them and made Himself real to them. He has entered into their lives and given them irresistible power to do what they ought to do, and to be what they ought to be.

Take a man like Saint Paul. Trained in the Hebrew philosophy, schooled in the history and traditions of the Hebrew people, a Pharisee of the Pharisees, a member of the highest Ecclesiastical tribunal among his people, he was assigned the important commission of exterminating the hated sect of the Nazarene. He accepted his commission and made good reports to religious headquarters at Jerusalem, concerning his work. He was making a marked success, when suddenly he was laid hold of by a great vision on the way to Damascus. The vision did not contain a dead theory, not a worn out philosophy, nor a ritual which had served its purpose in days long since past. It was the living Christ who came and entered the head of this intellectual giant and made him the power he proved to be in the years to come.

The world has seen thousands upon thousands of "twice born men" since the Christian Era opened. Men have turned the world upside down, and "moved empires off their hinges" because they have truthfully been able to say, "I live, yet not

AUCTIONS

AUCTIONS AND AUCTIONEERS
The auction season is now at hand, and our business has been for the past eighteen years selling public sales through the eastern United States. Your Sale, Mr. Farmer, Administrator or Executor, no doubt represents the hard earned savings of a life time. Whether large or small, you can not afford to experiment with an inexperienced public sale crier, neither do the beneficiaries in an estate wish you to do so when it comes to the point of turning property, either real or personal, into cash.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

A disturbance of slight intensity has moved rapidly southeastward from the Lake Superior region to Western New York within the last 12 hours, and it is being closely followed by an area of high pressure of some extent.

There were light rains or showers in northern New England and Northern New York during Saturday night, but otherwise with temperature above normal prevailed almost generally over the United States during Sunday.

Except for rain precipitation in portions of New England Monday or Tuesday the weather will be generally fair Monday in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be somewhat lower Monday in the North Atlantic states but will rise again on Tuesday in the interior of the North Atlantic states.

Winds

New York and Sandy Hook.—Fresh West and Northwest and weather mostly clear Monday, probably local rains or North portion.

Cape Henlopen to Hatteras.—Fresh Northwest and weather fair Monday.

Weather Forecast

Eastern New York:—Generally fair today; cooler in south portion; Tuesday fair.

For Southern New England:—Partly cloudy and cooler Monday, probably preceded by light rain in north portion Monday morning; Tuesday fair.

NORWICH TOWN

Easter Sunday, large congregations attended the three churches during all services, morning and evening. Special music, beautiful flowers and inspiring sermons were in keeping with the day.

The programme at the First Congregational church, comprised besides the regular order of worship, baptism, reception of members, communion, etc., concluding in the evening with a sacred cantata for Easter, "Crucifixion and Ascension," by Fred W. Peace. This was under the direction of Organist Herbert L. Yerrington and was given by a mixed chorus of about thirteen voices. Organist Yerrington also arranged choice Easter music for the morning worship.

The pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, preached on The Living Christ, the concluding sermon in a series of four, on the Life of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, which have been greatly prized by the members of the parish and friends. The text was Galatians 2:20 I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. The pastor spoke with particular reference to the last verse.

Observing a custom of several years, the exquisite floral decorations on the platform and about the pulpit were the gift of Mrs. Wallen (Ruth L. Potter) of Hartford, formerly of Norwich [illegible] in memory of her mother, Mrs. [illegible] Lathrop Potter, a valued member of the church and loyal worker in this parish for years. The decorations comprised flowering Easter lilies, hyacinths daffodils and spiraea, effectively arranged among showering palms. The pastor mentioned that each year Mrs. Potter's memory is kept fresh to the members of this parish through the gift of these flowers. For many years prior to her death it was her pleasure to provide flowers at Easter time.

The floral basket was the gift of Miss Harriet Washington, in memory of many pleasant associations with this church in former days. In the basket which stood on a small table were various plants.

[illegible] were received into the church at this service, by letter from other churches, on confession of faith, the number seven, by Rev. Mr. Bailey, the right hand of fellowship being given candidates. Those baptized were Frank C. Chapman, Jr., Dorothy Charles Chapman, Lyle Ory [illegible], Florence Thatcher Ricker, Miss Carrie A. Ricker), Woodbury [illegible] Wheeler, Nathan Wilcox [illegible] and Florence Ethel Wheeler. Those received were Mr. and Mrs. William [illegible] Thatcher, from Fitchville Congregational church, and Elton Odgers [illegible] Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich.

At the communion of the Lord's Supper, Rev. Mr. Bailey was assisted by a former member of the parish Rev. Edward Huntington Smith, of [illegible] Hok, China, who also pronounced the benediction.

There were many visitors who availed themselves of the opportunity to commune with this parish, upon the cordial invitation of the pastor.

Easter was observed at Sacred Heart church with festival music under direction of Miss Elizabeth A. Malone, organist. Both masses were largely attended. At the first mass, when the junior choir sang the hymns in harmony there were several hundred at Holy Communion.

Koeman's mass was sung at the 10 o'clock high mass, the solo parts being rendered by Cronin, Miss [illegible], Le Roy Hubbard and [illegible].

The sermon by the [illegible] was replaced by the reading in gold, of the gospel. The sermon, the pastor, Rev. [illegible] W. Brennan, read the gospel of the day, Mark 16:1-7. Altar and sanctuary were especially beautiful with Easter lilies, roses, carnations, daffodils and palms, the artistic arrangement of the Altar society.

Typical of the light that shone among the Gentiles, was the Paschal candle at the gospel side of the altar. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament concluded the service.

When the Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society meets in the First Congregational chapel, Tuesday afternoon at 3.30, Mrs. Edward Smith of Ing Hok, China will give a talk on China.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith of Upper Washington street, have as their guests their son and daughter-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. Edward Huntington Smith from China, who have been passing some time in Auburndale, Mass.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church there was special music by the choir arranged by the organist, Miss Hazel Cruthers. The pastor Rev. James B. Aldrich, chose as the text of his Easter sermon Matthew 26-31. "Then saith Jesus unto them, all ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the Shepherd and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad." The preacher used the last half of the verse. On the platform and around the pulpit calla lilies, daffodils and flowering plants were artistically arranged by the flower committee. In the morning at the Easter [illegible] was given, while Sunday school in charge of Mrs. Richard Carter and Lewis Aldrich. Because of this the Young People's Christian Endeavor service and evening sermon were omitted.

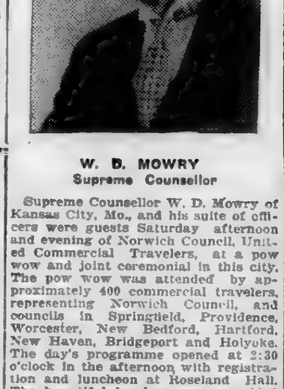
NEW ENGLAND COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS HOLD JOINT CEREMONIAL HERE

W. B. MOWRY
Supreme Counsellor

Supreme Counsellor W. B. Mowry of Kansas City, Mo., and his suite of officers were guests Saturday afternoon and evening of Norwich Council, United Commercial Travelers, at a pow wow and joint ceremonial in this city. The pow wow was attended by approximately 400 commercial travelers, representing Norwich Council, and councils in Springfield, Providence, Worcester, New Bedford, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport and Holyoke. The day's programme opened at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon with registration and luncheon at Roseland Hall. The bountiful luncheon was provided by the ladies auxiliary of Norwich Council.

From 3 to 4 o'clock the Ladies Auxiliary of the local council held a business session and from 4 to 5 o'clock, Norwich Council met in session to transact business. The half hour from 5 to 5:30 o'clock was utilized for balloting upon and preparation of the candidates by the various councils. Shortly before 6 o'clock there was a brief band concert in front of the hall.

At 6 o'clock the 400 knights of the road paraded through the central part of the city. P. C. E. N. Lyon of Norwich Council was the parade marshal and the line of march was from Market street to Main, through Main to Burnham square, counter march,



HERBERT R. BRANCHE

through Main, to Franklin square, up Bath street, down Broadway, onto Main, west through Main street to Washington square and down Water street to the hall.

Arriving at the hall Norwich Council formed lines at the door between which the visiting U. C. T. men passed into the building. A half hour public session was held at the hall with Herbert R. Branche of the local council as chairman. Mayor Milo R. Waters in a brief but enthusiastic talk gave the visiting U. C. T. men a hearty welcome to Norwich. Following the welcoming talk by Mayor Waters, Arthur E. Story, president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, presented the handsome loving cup to Holyoke Council, No. 571. The cup was offered to the council that had the largest per centage attendance at the pow wow. Holyoke council had 20 per cent of its membership present. Then followed an entertainment in the form of a sketch by Connelly, Ward and McNally after which the councils went into joint session.

Sixteen candidates were initiated. Grand Counsellor George A. Daniels and his suite were introduced to the gathering as were Supreme Counsellor W. D. Mowry and his suite. The initiation of the sixteen candidates was put on by the crack Springfield degree team. Addresses were delivered by Grand Counsellor Daniels and Supreme Counsellor Mowry. In a highly interesting address to the members Supreme Counsellor Mowry urged them to enter active local organizations which contribute to the expansion of the commercial interests of their cities. As representatives of the jobber and manufacturer, said Mr. Mowry, our members are not only selling their merchandise, but their cities as well. Local councils that [illegible] the success of commercial clubs, Chambers of Commerce and kindred organizations as means of contributing [illegible] to the continual betterment of business conditions. Their optimism and dissemination of facts have much to do with stimulating and stabilizing business conditions, especially in their contact with merchants in smaller cities.

CHARLES W. PEARSON
Pow Pow Secretary.

The general committee in charge of the pow wow comprised Herbert R. Branche, chairman, C. S. Peckham, D. Tingley, Leroy Nash, J. E. Campbell, and Charles W. Pearson, secretary.

A feature of the evening was a concert programme by Norwich Council's Own Orchestra. The members of the seven piece orchestra comprised [illegible] Albert Otis pianist; Frank [illegible] cornet; Gaylord Matt [illegible] Nelson T. Crowell, [illegible] Louis R. Smith, violin; S. E. Peckham, flute and Mr. Grover, drums.

It is of special interest to note that George E. Johnson, Manager of The Norwich Electric Company, is a charter member, and officer ever since its organization of the Holyoke Council. He is also a Past Counsellor and member of the Grand Council of New England. Mr. Johnson was greatly pleased to have so many of his Holyoke friends come to Norwich for this Pow Wow and win the cup.

This handsome cup will be on exhibition for a week in the window of The Norwich Electric Company, 42 Franklin street.

NORWICH NAVY LIEUTENANT IN COURT MARTIAL GROUP

R. D. Hill, Jr., lieutenant, junior grade, in the navy, is included in the group of six officers of the naval transport Beaufort for whom a court martial has been ordered by the secretary of the navy because of the arrival of the transport at Hampton Roads, Feb. 24, with liquor aboard.

Lieut. Hill graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1914 and his father conducted Sharbark farm at Norwich Town while the family resided here.

EASTER SUNRISE SERVICE BY BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE

Seventeen young people of the Central Baptist church held a sunrise service Easter morning at Hinckley Hill. The service was held at 6.30 o'clock with Miss Constance Raymond as leader. The committee in charge of the service comprised Charles Harberg, Laura Shields and Mary Peckham. The fire was built by Reginald Laubin.

BREWSTER'S NECK HISTORY FOR CHILDREN OF REVOLUTION

The regular meeting of Ebenezer Huntington Chapter, C. A. R., was held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. A. Burdsall at Brewster's Neck. Junior President Emily Bidwell presided and the meeting was opened in the usual patriotic form.

The magazine committee reported that a number of fine books had been sent to the Ellis Island kindergarten and that the chapter had forwarded a collection of books to the Tamassee Industrial School of South Carolina. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., and daughter Marion for their gift of books to be sent to Ellis Island in the name of the chapter.

The following delegates were then selected to represent the chapter at the Children of the American Revolution Congress to be held in Washington, D. C., Marion Gibbs and Marion Mitchell, Emily Bidwell alternate. The sum of $35 was voted for the Harriet M. Lowthorpe Memorial hall in Washington and $5 for each delegate to the congress, for expenses.

Following the business session Mrs. E. E. Rogers gave a most interesting talk on Brewster's Neck. Only 20 years after the landing of the Pilgrims, she said, Jonathan Brewster received a grant of land from the Indians, totalling between 300 and 600 acres and he settled on his grant. After telling more of the history of the Brewster family, Mrs. Rogers conducted the children to the old cemetery at Brewster's Neck where they saw the monument erected to Jonathan Brewster by his descendants, in the year 1855.

The party later returned to the home of Mrs. Burdsall where a flag drill was held, led by Dorothy Stewart. Historical games were played and refreshments served by the hostess, who later received a vote of thanks from the chapter for her hospitality.

NUTRITION SPECIALIST GAVE DEMONSTRATIONS IN FRANKLIN

An interesting meeting of the Franklin Group, Farm and Home Bureau, was held last week at the home of Mrs. Frederick Lewis on Lebanon Road, with fourteen in attendance, Mrs. Marion Dakin, Nutrition Specialist of Storrs College, demonstrated the various ways of preparing and serving canned vegetables, which was served warm at the noon hour. During the afternoon, cream carrot soup and a one piece meal was prepared and served, then a talk was given on canning vegetables, what to have for the home garden as well as for the market. The next meeting with Mrs. Dakin will be May 13th.

45 KILLED BY AUTOS IN PAST THREE MONTHS

Forty-five people were killed by automobiles in Connecticut during the first three months of this year, according to the statistics for the first quarter of 1925 completed at the state motor vehicle department. Fourteen of these deaths occurred in January, ten in February and twenty-one in March. The total is eleven less than the number of fatal automobile accident victims recorded for the corresponding quarter of last year.

In only one month, January, was the record for the first quarter of last year better than that for the same quarter of this year. Thirteen people were killed in or by motor vehicles in January, 1924, as against fourteen in the initial month of this year. The record for February, 1924, showed seventeen fatalities, as against ten for February, 1925, and the total for March, 1924, stood at twenty-six as compared to twenty-one in the month just passed. The department regards the figures for the past quarter as somewhat encouraging when it is considered that the driving conditions have been better this year then in the early part of 1924, and that approximately 20 per cent. more cars have been on the highways of the state this year than in the corresponding period of 1924.

Twenty-three of the fatal accident victims in the past quarter were pedestrians, and twenty-two of the whole number killed were children. Four of the children were on sleds and coasted into motor vehicles, one was on roller skates and another was riding a bicycle. The fatalities among children usually show an increase about this season of the year, when the use of bicycles and playing ball and other games in the streets become more general with the advent of warmer weather. They constitute one of the most difficult problems in the safety movement throughout the state. Motor cycle acidents usually begin to show up in greater numbers about this time of the year, and three fatalities due to this type of vehicle are listed in March. Four people have been killed thus far this year in grade crossing accidents.

Seven of the fatalities of the quarter just ended happened in Hartford and five in Waterbury. New Haven, the largest city in the state had none, and Bridgeport, the second large at, three.

The extent to which private citizens co-operated with the state motor vehicle department during the past year in the effort to lessen traffic hazards is indicated by a statement from the department that 1,518 complaints against motor vehicle operators were lodged with the department from unofficial sources in that period.

Satisfactory explanations were secured by the department from 797 of the operators complained of. In 178 instances, the complainants were found to have sent in the wrong registration numbers, making the complaints valueless. Sixty-one licenses were suspended directly as a result of such complaints, 289 operators were warned by the department, and the state police were called in to investigate fifteen of them.

Speeding at railroad crossings constituted the chief source of complaint and operators being reported for the offense, while complaints of reckless driving came second in the list with 347 reported. For cutting in 132 were reported, for violating the rules of the road, 125; for failure to stop in back of standing trolley cars, 48; for speeding, 36; for operating while under the legal age limit, 24; for failure to give right of way, 16; for driving without rear light, 14; for using illegible markers, 11; and for negligence 26.

Anonymous complaints are disregarded by the department, and complaints favoring or satisfaction or spite often have the effect of a boomerang. A driver who has tried to prevent another car passing him and then reported the passing car after it has outstripped him in a race for the right of way, usually gets into hot water before the department's investigation is complete, just as the driver of the passing car is disciplined if he is found to have taken unnecessary chances in his determination to pass. The department rule is not to accept complaints over the telephone, requiring them to be presented in writing.

MANY BAPTISMS AT TWO CHURCH SERVICES

Fifteen were baptised at the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church, making nearly a score of baptisms for the day. The evening's musical programme comprised Christ Is Risen from the Dead, Coombs; Easter Day Has Crowned Him King, Hawthorne, Mrs. Potter; Victory, Shelby; carol, Christ the Lord is Risen Today, Rathbun.,

Following the service the Easter lilies and other plants used in the pulpit decorations were distributed to the shut-in members of the parish.

WENT THROUGH FENCE ON JEWETT CITY ROAD

A new Jewett-Paige coach with Connecticut registration, 65-552, was over the bank and down among the bushes Sunday night on the river road to Jewett City at a point a short distance north of the ice house near Taftville. The machine had been coming towards this city and had smashed its way through one of the white highway fences on its right when it left the road. According to the motor vehicle department the registration is that of John J. Panek of Taftville.

SORE, TENDER FEET
RAW, ITCHY TOES

Irritating acid perspiration from the foot pores produces and aggravates cracked toes, itching between toes, rawness and tender, aching, swollen feet.

The moment you apply "Phillips Milk of Magnesia," all this soreness, itching and tiredness disappears. Just pat it on, it dries instantly. Nothing else stops foot odors, relieves foot soreness and foot weariness so promptly as this harmless antacid.

Insist upon genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia." All drugstores sell 25-cent bottles.

FITCHVILLE DOG WINNER AT SPRINGFIELD SHOW

The Springfield, Mass., Kennel Club held its second annual dog show in the auditorium at Springfield Saturday. There were nearly six hundred exhibitors. More than one hundred were turned away for want of accommodations. Among the Boston terriers exhibited was the handsome little terrier "Sullivan" Bashful Lassie A. K. C., 448985, owned by J. J. Sullivan of Fitchville.

The puppy was awarded second prize out of the class of seven. Bashful Lassie A. K. C. 448985 was shown by Joseph P. Barry of Springfield, a former Norwich boy. He also showed a Boston terrier for a woman exhibitor that was awarded a blue ribbon for the best dog from Connecticut.

"Sullivan's Bashful Lassie is a product of Sweeney Kennels".

ARRESTED AFTER CRASH ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

Late Sunday afternoon an automobile owned and driven by Salem Tamer of Westerly collided with two machines at the junction of Routh and North Main streets. Tamer was driving down Routh street and was just about to turn into North Main street when the collision occurred. The other machines were driven by Charles Aryan and Arnold Headon, both of this city. Aryan's machine received the most damage, having two wheels taken off.

Tamer was arrested by Officers Fenton and Smith and booked on a charge of reckless driving. He was released on bonds of $300 for appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

Holy Land Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

The parlors of the Y. M. C. A. were filled Sunday afternoon at the 4 o'clock meeting. After the evening exercises of hymn, scripture reading and prayer, [illegible] solo by Hugh Kinder, [illegible] other series of The Holy Land were shown, by stereopticon. These pictured the habits and customs of the people and several places associated with the life of Christ were shown on the screen. Secretary Hill made a brief talk emphasizing the fact that we have a living Christ to follow whose purpose now as when he lived in bodily form on earth is to give the people peace, and no lasting peace can be found except as we find it in Him.

The speaker urged all present to seek this peace by coming to Him in very truth. Emmett J. Fritz operated the lantern.

Daughters of Veterans' Supper

A largely patronized baked bean supper was given at the Buckingham Memorial Saturday evening from 5 to 7 by Clara Barton tent, Daughters of Veterans. It was served under the direction of the supper committee, Mrs. D Louisa Atterbury, Mrs. Minnie B Turner, Mrs. Elizabeth Bogue, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackie and Mrs. Lena O'Brien, assisted by Mrs. Cora Botham, Mrs. M. Florence Dean, Mrs. Jennie Newbury and Mrs. Lillian E. Brewster. The waitresses were Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Hattie Parsons, Mrs. Maud Moody, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Mrs. Mary Aldrich, Miss Gladys Newbury, Miss Ruth Brinkman and Miss Dorothy Brinkman.

SPECIAL EASTER MUSIC WAS FINELY RENDERED

An Easter music programme of exceptional merit was given Sunday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church which had one of its largest congregations in many a day. The Trinity quartette whose members are Miss Eunice Taft soprano, Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, contralto, Frederick Alter, tenor, and William H. Bush, bass, was assisted by Mrs. William Kane, Jr., of New York, soprano, Miss Mildred Crowe, contralto, Robert Gray, tenor, James B. Jackson, bass, and Henry Brynan, Miss Marcia Stanton, Miss Anna Rodier and Henry Ladd violinists.

Two anthems by the double quartet were rendered with fine balance and harmony and the offertory anthem, The Magdalene (Warren) was well rendered by the church quartette.

Mrs. Kane's beautiful soprano was used with admirable expression in a solo from Handel's Messiah, I Know That My Redeemer Liveth, and a duet, Day of Days (Van DeWater) was given with fine effect by Mrs. Kane and Mrs. Church, whose voices blended in perfect harmony.

David Hale Fanning Vigorous

Eastertide news to Norwich and Jewett City friends of David Hale Fanning, president of the Royal Worcester Corset Company, is to the effect that the millionaire philanthropist, now in his 87th year, continues in very good health. This is evidenced by the fact that since Thanksgiving he has scarcely lost a day from his desk in the big manufactory.

Mr. Fanning is one of the donors toward the fund for Windham Hall at Connecticut College, although his birthplace, was Jewett City, New London County.

Rub It On At Bed-Time

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

This double action usually checks the most stubborn cold overnight.

SUFFERED BROKEN NECK IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Hartford, April 12.—Alec Bouchard, 25, died this morning at the Nepaug sanitarium in Collinsville of a broken neck as the result of an automobile accident in Collinsville last night when the car in which he was riding failed to make a turn into the road and crashed broadside into the railing of the bridge over the Farmington river. Fred Parent, driver of the car, has a fractured skull and O'Neil Page, another occupant of the car, is also at the sanitarium for treatment. Another member of the party, William Pelcher, was thrown through the windshield, but was not seriously hurt.

Flout Equal Rights.

French women do not desire equal political rights with men. They have enough to do with housekeeping and bringing up children and do not want their lives burdened with politics meetings. So at least said three of the foremost women leaders of the feminist movement in France—the Duchess d'Uzes, Mme. Andre Corthys and Mme. Colette—at the meeting of the France-America committee which aims at developing friendly relations between the citizens of the two countries.

SOCIALISTS PROLONG THE CABINET CRISIS IN FRANCE

Her...

The premier's tenure of office has been actually that of a cabinet which he knew would be doomed within a short time. They declare that he has maneuvred the socialists up against the wall, no matter whether he forms a cabinet with or without them, and furthermore, that if M. Painleve or some other man from the left groups heads the ministry with their cooperation, the socialists will be greatly weakened by the events of the last three days. This party held a conference today and its members are about evenly divided as to participation of socialist representatives in the government.

The situation is stationary tonight, and probably will be for another twenty-four hours, as M. Briand is resolved to give his final answer to President Doumergue only after the socialists have declared themselves. In the meantime, the president can call upon no one else.

The probabilities are that in the event of Briand's refusal a cabinet will be formed by M. Painleve, or some other of the left groups, M. Briand not being averse to accepting the ministry of foreign affairs in such a cabinet. The crisis bids fair to last well into the week before any cabinet can come before the chamber with a ministerial declaration and asking for a vote of confidence. In the interim, the usual fantastic slates and combinations are being put forward. More than ten parliamentarians are mentioned for the post of premier, while there are hardly 50 deputies from the left who have not heard the ministerial bee buzzing for some portfolio or other.

Paul Painleve, president of the chamber, who is prominently mentioned for the premiership, is one of the most renowned scientist in France. Numerous parliamentarians today called at the chamber to make a decisive attempt to convince M. Painleve that he was to accept the task of forming a cabinet and save the left groups from disintegration.

The president of the chamber, however, had gone an hour before; he was heard telling his chauffeur to proceed to the Bois de Boulogne. Search parties located the automobile parked in a wooded lane behind the Longchamps race course and came upon Painleve in the thicket holding a magnifying glass in one hand and a tiny plant in the other.

"I think I have found a real specimen this time," said the president of the chamber. The long latin word with which the scientist described the plant was all "Greek" to the deputies, they said, in relating the incident.

COAST GUARDSMEN DICKERED WITH RUM ROW AGENTS

New York, April 13.—Two alleged agents of rum row were held under $2,500 bond for grand jury action by Federal Commissioner Rasquin in Brooklyn today, upon a charge of violation of the prohibition act. At the same time police began a search for two others, supposedly their confederates in a conspiracy to bribe coast guard officers to bring liquor from rum row in a government boat and smuggle it to bootleggers ashore.

The men, who gave their names to the commissioner as Harry Murphy and J. C. Maloney, both of Manhattan, were trapped when officers of the coast guard boat G. G. 203, pretending to accept the scheme, went to rum row under guidance of the men, took on board between $100,000 and $150,000 worth of whiskey and champagne and, returning to New York delivered both agents and liquor to federal authorities.

Captain E. V. Jacobs, commandant of the New York coast guard division, revealed that rum row representatives have recently made numerous attempts to bribe coast guards to assist them in getting liquor ashore.

The supply ship from which this load of liquor was taken escaped to the high seas after the two agents were caught, officers learned today. Its name was withheld, but officers said it flew the British flag.

COMPULSORY ARBITRATION DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Washington, April 13—Holding compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes unconstitutional, the supreme court deprived the industrial relations court of Kansas of its last material weapon to force settlement of such controversies with the object of preventing strikes.

In an opinion delivered by Justice Van Devanter, the court recalled that the present case, arising out of a protest by the Charles Wolff Packing company against an order of the industrial court fixing the hours of labor in its plants, was not the first time the statute had been before it for construction, the fixing of wages in the same company's plant by the industrial court previously having been held unconstitutional.

The court refused to pass upon the question whether the fixing of the hours of labor would be valid if independent of a compulsory arbitration system, applicable to all business of a particular class, declaring that the case before it did not require it to go that far.

RECALL GERMAN NOTES OF HUGE DENOMINATIONS

Berlin, April 13—(By the A. P.)—The last issues of German notes of huge denominations, the product of the era of inflation are being withdrawn from circulation.

Holders of hundred billion mark notes, designated as the first issue, and bearing the date of October 26, 1923, and holders of ten million mark notes, dated November 1, 1923, have been warned to turn them in for redemption before April 30, 1925.

Death Of Pioneer Automobile Builder

Elwood Haynes Made First Trip in Gasoline Driven Vehicle in 1894.

Kokomo, Ind., April 13.—Elwood Haynes, inventor of America's first automobile and internationally known as a scientist and metallurgist, died at his home tonight, following a brief illness.

Two weeks ago Mr. Haynes returned from a southern trip with his wife, during which he had endeavored to regain his strength from an attack of influenza suffered during the winter. A few days before he started north he was advised that the condition of his heart made it advisable for him to return home.

Last week he suffered an attack of acute indigestion but he apparently withstood the effects and was on the road to recovery when a relapse occurred.

His wife, daughter and son were at the bedside.

On the Fourth of July, 1894, Elwood Haynes, then a young field superintendent for a natural gas company with headquarters at Kokomo, Ind., had a queer buggy, without tongue or shafts towed out onto a country road. He drove it triumphantly back into Kokomo, at the remarkable speed of eight miles an hour, under power generated by a gasoline engine. That, it is claimed, was the first trip of a gasoline driven vehicle in America.

This horseless carriage, which soon became a familiar sight in the streets of Kokomo, was the result of two years of experiments and now is preserved in the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C. Mr. Haynes said he was ordered to "get that contraption off the streets," when he drove his first automobole into Chicago.

The automobile was the direct result of the fact that Mr. Haynes had a large territory to cover in his duties as field superintendent for a natural gas company. He desired to make his rounds more rapidly than he could with a horse and started his experiments, being of an inventive turn of mind and having a considerable education.

A year after his first successful trip with his horseless carriage, Mr. Haynes formed a company for the manufacture of automobiles and was president of it for many years. He invented numerous improvements in the automobile.

"The Father of the Automobile", was a school teacher at the start of his career. This did not suit him, however, as he always was of an inventive turn of mind and, long before he developed the idea for a horseless carriage, was given to experimenting in chemistry. One of his ambitions was to find a combination of metals that would resist the oxidizing influences of the atmosphere and at the same time take a good cutting edge. An alloy of cobalt and chomium, which is used now for making metal and surgical instruments, was the result.

Mr. Haynes was a native Hoosier, having been born at Portland, Ind., October 14, 1857. After completing the course in the public schools there, he attended Worcester Polytechnic Institute at Worcester, Mass., where he was graduated in 1881. Later he was a student at Johns Hopkins university. He was married in 1887 to Miss Bertha Lanterman, also of Portland, Ind. The two children, a son and daughter, both assisted their father in his laboratory work.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Compulsory arbitration in industrial disputes was held unconstitutional by the supreme court.

Mrs. Coolidge joined a throng of Washington youngsters in the annual egg-rolling on the white house lawn.

The Sherman anti-trust law was not violated, the supreme court ruled, in the fight for the open shop in San Francisco.

An increase in the tariff duty on potassium chlorate from 1 1-2 cents to 2 1-4 cents a pound was ordered by President Coolidge.

Plans for a non-stop flight of new type planes from California to Hawaii next summer were announced by the navy department.

The supreme court held that California's inheritance tax can be imposed upon an estate before the federal inheritance or estate tax is deducted.

Argument was begun in the supreme court in a case testing the president's power to remove from office his own or his predecessors' appointees.

20 CASES OF SMALLPOX IN VICINITY OF PAWTUCKET

Pawtucket, R. I., April 13—Three additional cases of smallpox were reported in the village of Valley Falls, near here, in the town of Cumberland, bringing the total number of cases in the vicinity of Pawtucket to 20. Valley Falls now has four cases, Pawtucket three, and Central Falls, lying between Pawtucket and Valley Falls, 13.

Health officer Stephen A. Kenny of Cumberland ordered all household pets in homes where smallpox has developed and in homes where individuals have been exposed to the disease, killed. Dr. Byron U. Richards, secretary of the state board of health, said that Dr. Kenny would be upheld in this and any other necessary drastic measures.

Children who were unable to present certificates of vaccination against smallpox were not admitted to Pawtucket schools. It was indicated that similar action would be taken within the next few days in neighboring towns.

OBITUARY

Count Tosuke Hirata

Tokio, April 14—(By the A. P.)—Count Tosuke Hirata, formerly lord keeper of the privy seal, died this morning. He was 76 years old.

Count Hirata had an active political career. He became chief secretary of the privy council in 1888, and was director of the legislation bureau from 1889 until 1891, when he entered the House of Peers. Later he was appointed keeper of the privy seal in 1922.

During his youth Count Hirata studied in Germany and after his return to Japan was an official of the Imperial University of Tokio.

Ellen Thompson, 21 years old, is suffering at her home in Newark, N. J., from a possible skull fracture, head and body lacerations and shock, following an attack by a man who entered through the open window of her bedroom and struck her as she screamed.

State police investigating the death of the unidentified woman, whose partly burned body was found on the Broad Mountain a week ago, declared tehir belief that there was an organized ring near Pottsville, Pa., who made a business of enticing young girls from their homes.

Police and boat hands dragged the bottom of Mill river near the Grand Avenue bridge, New Haven in an effort to locate the body of Captain Tony Raney, of the coal barge Blue Bonnet, who is believed to have fallen into the water Sunday night and drowned.

A man in Lakeville, this state, decided the other day that he wanted to talk to a relative in Santa Barbara, Calif. He was amazed to hear the voice of his relative on the other end of the wire across the continent within four minutes after having given the Lakeville operator the call.

Mrs. Ida Hughes, of Atlanta, Ga., after having been condemned to be hanged on April 24, for the murder of her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes, in December, 1923, spent Easter rejoicing that she had escaped the gallows through the decision of Governor Clifford Walker to accept the recommendation of the Georgia prison commission and commute the sentence to life imprisonment.

Statistics Of Taxable Incomes In This State

Figures Were Compiled at the Internal Revenue Office in Hartford.

Hartford, April 13—Income tax reports for the year ending March 31, 1925, list 67,778 taxable incomes in the state of Connecticut and 69,771 incomes that are non-taxable according to figures compiled at the internal revenue office today.

Gross incomes exceeding $25,000 were filed in 3,124 taxable reports of which 2,073 have been fully paid and of which 1,052 have been paid in part. Four hundred and twenty six people listed non-taxable incomes above $25,000.

Taxes on gross incomes between $5,000 and $25,000 exceed those above $25,000 nearly five times, listing 15,217 taxable reports. Eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy four of these are non-taxable.

Forty eight thousand forty nine citizens of the state listed incomes under $5,000. Of this number 29,936 were non-taxable.

Partnerships filed 2772 returns in March alone with a total of $309 for the year.

Corporations filed 1346 taxable returns for March. Forty nine hundred and fourteen were filed for the year. Twenty six hundred and ninety five of these were non-taxable.

WORK FOR EXPANSION OF JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT CLUB

Washington, April 13—President and Mrs. Coolidge were hosts at luncheon today to a group of New England business men and manufacturers who are meeting here to expand the scope of the junior achievement club work among city boys and girls.

After the luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge witnessed a demonstration by four members of the work and win junior achievement club of Holyoke, Mass. The team depicted the manufacture of a scarf and office work incident to it, and presented Mrs. Coolidge with a summer weight, all wool scarf of Coolidge gray, and the president one of the interchangeable dark gray and blue.

Horace A. Moses, of Mittineague, Mass., chairman of the movement, announcing a $100,000 donation by himself to make the work nationwide, urged establishment of a $1,500,000 endowment, in the next three years.

Ivan L. Hobson, director of the junior achievement bureau, Springfield, Mass., outlined its work and was assured of the moral and financial support for the movement of the business men and manufacturers assembled.

The junior achievement club work is a new idea in community insurance he explained. It is possible, he said, to induce youth to work by interesting them in it, and the movement in this way will supplement and round out the efforts of other organizations.

CHILDREN ROMPED OVER WHITE HOUSE GROUNDS

Washington, April 13—Washington children romped and frolicked to their hearts' content over the spacious White House grounds, rolling their Easter eggs and generally enjoying themselves under the smiling eyes of Mrs. Coolidge.

The warm sunshine of a perfect Spring day helped to make the annual Easter Monday egg rolling festival the success which soiled small faces and happy weariness showed it to have been at the end of the day. Tonight, the papers and broken eggs that littered the broad lawn, with the grass worn off completely in spots, provided still further, and slightly more enduring, evidence of this success.

The president appeared on the south portico for a few minutes after luncheon to greet his thousands of youthful guests, and was able to take an occasional glimpse of the scene from his office window. Mrs. Coolidge went out early, but an attempt to mingle with the children was frustrated when her two pet dogs became so excessively boisterous that she had to retire with them. Then and again in the afternoon, she received several intimate friends and families, including some children of cabinet members, on the portico overlooking the grounds.

Those in charge of the gates counted 38,377 entering the grounds. This is 2,000 more than last year.

More than forty parents became lost, but Girl Scouts established headquarters and quickly rounded them up for their distressed children. Two women were overcome, but quickly revived.

DECISION ON STRIKES BY THE SUPREME COURT

Washington, April 13—When labor strikes or lockouts do not result in any material restraint of interstate commerce, the supreme court held, the federal government is powerless to intervene.

The decision was handed down in a case from San Francisco, where the industrial association of that city, the California Industrial Council and other organizations of employers had been found guilty of violating the Sherman anti-trust law in a fight for the adoption of the open shop, as opposed to the closed shop which labor unions had enforced up to 1921.

As a part of their campaign, the employers adopted a permit system under which supplies could be obtained only by builders who would agree to join the open shop movement. The lower court finding that these permits were required for the purchase of building materials and supplies produced and brought from states into California, held that there had been an unlawful restraint of interstate commerce.

ITALIAN VESSEL AFIRE IN DELAWARE RIVER

Philadelphia, April 13—Fears were expressed tonight that the Italian freight steamship Valrossa and its cargo of cork and shavings will be almost a total loss as a result of the fire which started yesterday in No. 3 hold shortly after the ship passed the Delaware breakwater.

It was believed that fire boats, summoned from this city by wireless, had succeeded in subduing the flames, but they broke out anew and gained such headway that the crew was taken off and the vessel beached at Liston's point, Del., 46 miles below Philadelphia.

POISONED THREE PERSONS SHE ATTENDED AS NURSE

Confession Made by Antoinette Scier at Saint Gilles, France —Result of Culmination of Six Mysterious Deaths Under Almost Identical Circumstances—Accused Another Woman of Being an Accomplice.

Nimes, France, April 8.—(By The A. P.)—Six mysterious deaths under almost identical circumstances in the ancient town of Saint Gillis, culminated today in the arrest of Antionette Scierri. The police said that she has confessed that she poisoned three persons she was attending as a nurse, and named Rosalie Gire as her accomplice. Police also said she accused Mlle. Gire of suggesting the poisoning of their victims with a preparation used in the district for ridding the grape vines of insects.

Mlle. Scierri arrived in Saint Gilles in November. She was attending a poor woman named Marie Audourard, who died in December after terrible sufferings. Mlle. Scierri then installed herself in Mme. Audourard's room with her brother-in-law, a man named Rossingnol.

On Christmas day Mr. and Mrs. La Chappelle, friends of Mlle. Scierri, died of poison. Their deaths were attributed to their having eaten tainted fowl. One day at the beginning of March, Rossignol left home taking his dinner with him. He died during the night after he had return home. Mlle. Scierri said he had eaten mussels.

At the end of March, Mlle. Scierri invited two neighbors, Mme. Martin and Mme. Boyer, to have coffee with her. Mme. Martin died next day. Mme. Boyer swallowed a mouthful of the coffee because she said afterward, it tasted bitter. She was taken violently ill and has not yet recovered.

The two women had eaten mussels the preceding evening and the police say that suspicions against Mlle. Scierri were somewhat allayed until a woman to whom Mlle. Scierri had given her child to rear, a Mme. Goulu, died with symptoms resembling those which had been noted in the cases of the five other persons who died.

The townspeople tried to lynch Mlle. Scierri when she admitted having murdered the La Chappelles and Rossingol. Police saved her by putting her in prison. By these deaths, the police say the woman admitted obtaining 800 francs.

Mlle. Gire denies having been an accomplice of Mlle. Scierri. She says she herself was taken ill after having drunk wine one day at Mlle. Scierri's home. The police assert that Mlle. Scierri has a morbid passion for inflicting suffering. They express the belief that her alleged crimes yielded her nothing.

10,000 ORPHANS AT CIRCUS IN MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

New York, April 13—Ten thousand orphan kiddies from orphanages in all parts of the greater city had the time of their lives today when they attended the circus in Madison Square Garden as guests of the show management, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey.

Twenty thousand eyes underwent an unusual ordeal in trying to keep simultaneously watch on the wonders continually enacted in five rings. Not to mention the side-splitting antics of the clowns carried no all over the place.

Peanuts and pink lemonade were distributed free. There seemed to be no limit on the peanut supply, enough gobbers being handed out to permit the delighted children to feed the peanut-eating animals in the menagerie, in addition to the generous amount given for child consumption.

There was one unlooward incident—2,000 children arrived late and couldn't be accommodated. The circus management will provide for them at a later performance.

CHAPMAN ALIBI WITNESS ARRESTED FOR EXTORTION

New York, April 13—Lyle Chastain 29, Brooklyn stationery store owner, who was one of the chief alibi witnesses at the recent trial in Hartford, Conn., of Gerald Chapman, mail-robber and escaped convict, for the murder of Patrolman James J. Skelly, was arrested tonight by detectives on a warrant charging him with extortion.

The arrest was made as Chastain was leaving the law office of Frederick J. Groehl, who defended Chapman.

The complainant, Alfred Bert, insurance broker, charged Chastain with obtaining $70, and demanding $50 a week for life, on the threat of exposing "certain information" about Bert.

At the Chapman trial, Chastain testified that Chapman had been in his store on the night Skelly was killed. Chastain admitted he had been a prisoner-nurse and had cared for Chapman in the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

STATISTICS OF FOODSTUFFS NOW IN COLD STORAGE

Washington, April 13—Cold storage stocks of eggs have more than doubled in the last year, the Department of Agriculture reporting 1,156,000 cases in storage April 1 compared with 579,000 on the same date a year ago and 406,000 five years ago.

Less meat was in store on this year than last year, the report showing 93,093,000 pounds on the first of the month compared with 1,033,853,000 last year and 1,153,807,000 five years ago.

Storage supplies of poultry were larger, 108,426,000 pounds being held April 1 compared with 76,067,000 a year ago and 72,632,000 five years ago. Cheese in storage April 1 totalled 40,488,000 pounds compared with 42,413,000 a year ago and 28,124 five years ago. Butter in storage this year amounted to 10,900,000 pounds compared with 7,842,000 last year and 9,813,000 five years ago.

'GRAFT" TRIAL OF THREE CINCINNATI DETECTIVES

Cincinnati, April 13—Cincinnati police and "dry" agents of neighboring villages conducted a licensing system whereby they were paid week by week for protecting liquor law violators. United States District Attorney Mau said in his opening statement in federal court, in the graft trial of three Cincinnati detectives.

The detectives are Fred Bulleridick, James Hayes and Robert Kinney.

District Attorney Mau stated that the evidence would disclose that the indicted men were paid by operators of soft drink establishments sums of money amounting to thousands of dollars for the illegal purpose of selling moonshine whiskey. In some instances, the district attorney said, the payrolls of the establishments were as high as $1,500 a week.

"Police officers went about collecting this graft. There was a collector for each group. He got the money and split among his colleagues," said Mau.

Mau said the violations continued for nearly three years.

The three detectives among 48 municipal police and 23 village "dry" enforcement officers indicted on charges of violation of the national prohibition law, in connection with the alleged payment of "protection money" from liquor bootleggers and narcotic drug operatives, thirty six policemen and 21 "dry" agents have pleaded guilty to the charges. The two remaining "dry" agents are being sought by federal agents.

MRS. ANNA CUNNINGHAM PLACED UNDER GUARD

Crown Point, Ind., April 13—Mrs. Anna Cunningham of Gary, Ind., whose husband and four of her six children had died under mysterious circumstances within six years, was brought here and lodged in a hospital ward at the county jail. She was placed under guard to prevent a second attempt at suicide, as she had tried to strangle herself to death in a Chicago hospital yesterday. A son, David, is in a critical condition in a Chicago hospital due to arsenical poison.

Lake county authorities announced that she will face a sanity hearing tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Gary.

Mrs. Cunningham was weak when she entered the jail here and constantly bit her lips to restrain her emotions, but had no statements to make. Answering questions of the jail, she said that she was a housewife, was 49 years old, weighed 180 pounds and was 5 feet 7 inches tall. Asked if she were married, she said she was a widow.

SHIPWRECK OF STEAMER NEW HAVEN PROBABLE

Miami, Fla., April 13.—Shipwreck of the steamer New Haven is considered a possibility here with the finding today of a board with the following message on its surface: "Sinking off Long Key—S. S. New Haven. One life boat left, heavy seas, loaded freight. All other boats lost. Captain Nelson."

The inscription evidently had been made with a nail. No information leading to the identity of the boat is available here.

WHEELER "DRY" ENFORCEMENT BILL HAS BEEN MODIFIED ON THE EVE OF HEARING

Hartford, April 13.—A substitute for the Wheeler bill agreed upon by the state's attorneys of Connecticut will be submitted to the judiciary committee of the legislature tomorrow by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn. It will be the basis of the long-heralded hearing tomorrow afternoon on the proposed tightening up of the "state Volstead act" as provided for in the bill prepared under the direction of Chief Justice George W. Wheeler.

While the substitute bill modifies the original in several important respects it nevertheless leaves undisturbed the chief bone of contention, namely the liquor buyers' culpability clause, as well as the right to search dwellings for liquor upon "information and belief" that liquor is sold there or manufactured there for sale and much of the other controversial matter.

Mr. Alcorn tonight confirmed the information that the state's attorneys had met in his office here Saturday and drawn up the substitute bill. He said the modifications were made to meet "reasonable criticism" of the original bill, and he had gone over the substitute bill with United States District Attorney John Buckley today, who endorsed most of the contents and will appear before the committee in favor of them.

The objection raised by former Corporation Counsel Francis W. Cole to the clause requiring the registering by owners with the county commissioners of any vessels or parts of vessels which might be used in the illicit liquor traffic, has been met in the substitute bill. The clause in the Wheeler bill had been construed by some authorities to require the registration of coffee pots and radiators and other purely domestic vessels or coils with the county commissioner by serial numbers. The substitute bill covers the objection by changing the phraseology to make it applicable to stills and similar objects which are unlawfully used.

Confiscation of trucks would be limited by the substitute bill to cases where the trucks have been used in the illicit liquor business with the knowledge and consent of the owners.

WILLIMANTIC

Frank Gorman of Pawtucket, R. I., a member of the national board of organizers of the United Textile Workers of America, who addressed the striking operatives of the American Thread Company, at their mass meeting Monday, strongly expressed his disapproval of the concern for refusing to submit its side of the controversy to the judgment of an arbitrating board. Miss Amy L. Hooker, local president presided at the meeting and introduced the speaker. Beginning with the statement that the present situation was not a Saturday afternoon holiday but a fight for justice and right, a fight for existence and a living wage, Mr. Gorman went into detail as to the financial ability of the company to restore the wage demanded by the operatives. In one argument he pointed out that it was the policy of manufacturing concerns to hinder the development of better conditions and increased education among their operatives, as that had a tendency to make "bossing" by these employes. He asked "Why does the American Thread Company refuse to arbitrate, are they afraid, have they something to conceal? Let them produce their books and then let the operatives produce their wage envelopes!" He called for a show-down by all sides before an impartial board. He praised the Chamber of Commerce for its endeavor to have the operatives and the concern come to terms by adopting the resolution to call for arbitration. In coaching the operatives on not to do "as Fall River did," he said that the mills erected here were for a purpose, to manufacture sewing thread and they could not be kept closed any long length of time, also that labor was legal and a department of the United States government. It must be recognized, he said, although there are those who do not care to pay any attention to it.

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Arel were held Monday from her home, 30 John street. A requiem high mass at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. A. C. Belec. The choir of St. Anne Society rendered special music, with Mrs. J. F. Gaudreau at the organ. A delegation of the Ladies of St. Anne Society met the body as it was being borne into the church and acted as an escort to the sanctuary rail. The banner bearers were, Mrs. Gideon Cote, Mrs. Odillon Lamontagne, and Mrs. Joseph Boulais; the canopy bearers were, Mrs. Francois Xavier Caisse, Mrs. Pierre Cote, Mrs. Thomas Chabot and Mrs. Alphonse D'Auteuil. The bearers were George Baillargeon, Edmond Theroux, Joseph Boulais, Joseph Aubin, Samuel Beaulieu and Fortuna Bernier. At the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Fathers Belec and Mathieu read the committal prayers. Arrangements were by Hurteau-Bosse Corp.

Roswell D. Eastman, 81, a native of Ashford, died at Fitch's State Soldiers Home, Noroton Heights, Friday after a brief illness. He was a Civil War Veteran and member of the Twenty-First Connecticut Volunteers. For the past twelve years he had been at times an inmate of the home. He was born in Ashford, December 10, 1843 and after the war he returned to that town, later coming to this city to reside. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Edgar Frederickson of South Coventry, three grandchildren and a niece. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the J. C. Lincoln Company undertaking parlors at two o'clock. Rev. Andrew S. Muirhead officiated. Burial was in Willimantic cemetery.

Mrs. Ella May Bishop, wife of William S. Bishop, died at her home in Andover at a late hour Sunday night. She was born in Suffield, April 10, 1864, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. LaVerge. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Esther M. Curtis of Detroit and Mrs. Anna L. Nelson of Yonkers, N. Y.

Funeral services for Adam Huffer were held at his home, in Coventry, at two o'clock Monday afternoon with Rev. Charles G. Johnson officiating. Burial was in Nathan Hale cemetery where a committal service was conducted. Avery and VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

Funeral services for Fred Judson Tader were held at 62 North street Monday afternoon at two o'clock with Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiating. The bearers were Clarence Avery, Walter Backus, Mr. Maynard and Mrs. Lapham of South Windham. Burial was in the Windham Center cemetery. Arrangements were by Avery and VanZandt.

George Rouillard and Theodore Ladd of this city and Isadore Pollock of Gurleyville were recently presented in the Columbia town court to answer to charges of violation of the automobile laws for having defective headlights on their cars. Pleas of guilty were entered by all. In the case of the Willimantic men, each had one light completely out in addition to other minor light defects. Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins granted that there were extenuating circumstances in their cases, which he nolled, upon the payment of costs of $11.53. Pollock's car had more noticeable defects and he was inclined to make excuses. The court taxed him $5 and costs, amounting to $16.53 which he paid. The arrests were made by State Policeman Hardisty and Hulburt, of the Stafford Springs barracks.

Mrs. Susan Cook Nichols, 85, died at her daughter's home in Windham Saturday afternoon. She had been ill about a week. She was born in England, March 28, 1840 and leaves three daughters, Mrs. D. L. Mathewson of Providence, Mrs. Moses H. Kenyon of Hampton and Mrs. George E. Nichols of Windham; a son, George E. Nichols of Hampton, a granddaughter Miss Marion A. Potter of Windham and two grandsons, Alfred R. and Lester N. Mathewson of Providence.

Mrs. Samuel W. Brown, 99, died at the home of her son, Raymond Brown in New York City recently. The body arrived in this city shortly after noon and funeral services were held at the South Coventry Congregational church at 3:15 o'clock, Rev. Charles G. Johnson officiated. The bearers were, Judge Christopher L. Avery, A. M. Maine, Curtis Dean and Delton A. Copp of Groton. Burial was in the Nathan Hale cemetery. Avery and VanZandt were in charge of the arrangements. Mrs. Brown was the widow of Rev. Samuel W. Brown who was pastor of the Congregational church in South Coventry about sixty years ago. From that community, where he remained two years, he went to Groton and he died there in 1866, at the age of thirty-eight while holding a pastorate. Her only survivor is her son.

The Youths' Welfare Association of St. Mary's parish is planning a series of old fashioned dances for the benefit of the striking operatives of the American Thread company, it was announced Monday by the committee: Edmond Dupont, chairman; Joseph Vincelette Ovilla Garceau, Louis C. Vegiard and Edward Grenier. The baseball candidates of the association have already started practice under Coach "Mon" Peloquin. They have been given complete new baseball outfits. The officers and members of the association are: President F. J. Bergeron; F. X. Caisse, vice-president; Joseph Paulhus, secretary; Edward Grenier, treasurer; Joseph Vincellette, Joseph Aubin, Louis C. Vegiard, Edmond Dupont, Ovilla Garceau and Arthur Cartier. Rev. H. C. Belec, director and advisor.

The primary department entertained the adult Sunday school, during the school hour at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday. The program opened with a march to music by Miss Florence Jones. Mrs. E. Byrd Freeman, superintendent of the primary department read a poem and Miss Nellie Dainton, assistant superintendent read the bible Easter Story. Recitations were by Ruth Shedd, Harold Scollin, Jr., Grace Cross, Rosamond Donohue Miss Ruth Easterbrooks played for the recessional.

In the police court Monday morning Leonard Hall, 17, pleaded guilty to intoxication and as the youngster is considered incorrigible considering his past actions, judgment was deferred until Wednesday to allow time for an investigation of his case.

Joseph Moriarty pleaded guilty to intoxication. He was placed on probation, with a suspended ten day jail sentence.

Machines operated by George Hollister and Mildred Cummings crashed at Tilrred Mill Square early Monday afternoon. Slight damage was done to the cars. A report was made to the police department.

The public informal dance given at Al-Pierre Tabarin, Monday evening, by San Jose Council No. 14 Knights of Columbus was well attended. The dance is given to replace the annual Easter Monday Ball which is considered as one of the outstanding social events of the year. The action was taken because of the present industrial conditions here.

John Sellers of this city and Lillian Marschat, of Mansfield, were united in marriage Monday morning at St. Joseph's church by Rev. Charles M. Kelley, who also sang the nuptial high mass. A reception and breakfast followed at the home of the bride.

NORTH STONINGTON MACHINE IN WILLIMANTIC COLLISION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, April 13.—John D. Avery of North Stonington was adjudged responsible for damage which his Nash car caused to a Ford delivery truck owned by Jake Chus of Ash street, this city in a preliminary investigation conducted by the police here, about four o'clock Monday afternoon, following a collision of the machines on Main street in front of the Windham Pharmacy. Chus came up from the east and turned over to the left of the street with the intention of entering a driveway to the Jack Oguschewitz garage. He was more than half way across Main street when his Ford was given a broadside blow by the North Stonington machine, which came out of the fracas without the slightest damage. The fender and running board on the right of the Ford were damaged. After some discussion the men informed Officer William Hurley that they would take care of the settlement of the damage between themselves.

MILO ELWELL AGAIN NABBED—CARRYING LIQUOR IN CAR FULL

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, April 13.—Milo Elwell, of Corinth, N. Y., visitor in Danielson Sunday afternoon when he was nabbed by the state police with 457 bottles of liquor concealed in his car and was fined $411.50, met with identical hard luck in this city, about 10 o'clock Monday night, when Officer Edward Leahy arrested him with 159 bottles of Canadian Club rye aboard his Hudson coach. The local police department acted upon a tip from state police barracks in Danielson that the car was headed toward this city. Officer Leahy played a lone hand in Lower Village and as Elwell drove around the sharp corner of Ash and Main street he was halted. The liquor was found in half dozen packages and 27 single bottles carefully packed in regular salesman grips, on top of which rested a large box of clams as a camouflage. Elwell had a New York driver's license, but he was driving with Rhode Island registration markers, he will be charged on the count, in addition to the transportation of liquor. The load which Elwell was conveying Sunday would have retailed for $6,000. This loss in addition to the fine of over $400 and another fine to be imposed in the local police court Monday morning will leave him practically penniless, he stated. He was making arrangements over night to have his friends in Providence, from which city he was coming again, contribute for the payment of the fine.

COMMON COUNCIL HOPES THREAD CO. WILL ARBITRATE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, April 13.—The common council voted at its April meeting Monday night to second the resolution of the chamber of commerce, in expressing the desire that the American Thread company submit its case, in the present strike of the 2500 operators of the local plant, to the state board, or any other board of arbitration. The strikers have stated their willingness for this method of settling the strike, but the request of the chamber of commerce has been rejected by the concern.

The resolution of the board of aldermen was introduced by Alderman James J. Lee and comes in the form of additional pressure to induce the Thread company to accept the proposed procedure. Alderman Lee was the founder of the mediation board which acted without success here a few weeks ago, after a joint conference of a civic committee, the officials of the concern and a strikers committee. The word reciprocation for past consideration extended the company by the city was used in talks by Aldermen Lee and Jackson relative to the resolution. The discussion waxed warm for a few minutes.

In introducing his resolution Alderman Lee said that he could not see how any man could stand by and watch his city fall to ruin. He advocated that the council change its policy of keeping hands off matters except of municipal concern and warned that it would already take two years or more for Willimantic to recover completely from the strike which is only five weeks old. Alderman Jackson stated that to his own knowledge the company had done little if anything for Willimantic and to accede to the request for arbitration would be a splendid opportunity to show its consideration for the city.

Other business at the meeting included: A grant of a piece of land 10 feet deep and 18 in each direction at the corner of Willow brook and Natchaug streets to improve the corner, by Joseph Peck on behalf of Mrs. Peck, for the returned favor by the city of the extension of the culvert for ten feet on the street, referred to the street committe; claims for damage to their automobile by Celia Remington and Injuries to H. C. Brown, teacher of the Hebron school, referred to the claims committee; appointment by Mayor Hickey of three members of the board and three members of building trades to draft a composite building code at request of building trade council, approved; resolution by Alderman Lee to instruct chief of police to oppose ordinance that awning on Main street be seven feet above sidewalk level, adopted; matte rof installing water on Youngs, Friendship and Dwinhill streets, referred to water committee; resolutions by Alderman Laramee for installation of a light opposite Blish store on Church street and two lights on Birch street, adopted; authorizing Mayor Hickey to borrow the sum of $15,000 to defray current expenses, by Aldeman Buck, adopted; resolution to secure estimate for filtering plants, extra pump and additional water main at the pumping station, Mansfield and appropriation made for same by Alderman Buck, referred to water committee with power; authorizing mayor to secure surety bonds for wor on highways in city, adopted; resolution by Alderman Lee to have lighting system at corner of Jackson and Union streets improved, adopted; motion of Mayor Hickey to have water committee t take necessary action to collect back bills for water rent and to post, ad-

Y. M. C. A. Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the directors of the Y. M. C. A. which will be held Wednesday evening at 6.15 will be followed by the annual meeting of the association when the reports of the various departments, the officers and the directors will be presented.

vertise or curtail service of names on list, adopted; appointment of John O'Rourke as sidewalk inspector for ensuing year, made unanimously; unfavorable report of police committee on placing former Chief of Police Edgar W. Richmond on police pension, accepted; report of definite progress on question of regrading Chapman street and acceptance of same for city street by City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell, accepted.

The petition of the American Thread company that the city take over the concern's several streets in Lower Village, which had already been graded, lighted and equipped with sewers, was discussed in a favorable light by the board and it is believed that some action will be taken in that direction soon. Adjournment was taken at 9.35 o'clock.

Frederick Roy Martin, General Manager of the Associated Press, who has resigned his post, to take effect April 21. Mr. Martin, who is probably the best liked and known of A. P. men, is to enter a new business connection.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Ritz Revue.

Those who have been privileged to see rehearsals of Nemrod Grotto 3rd annual show, The Ritz Revue are more than pleased with the work of the cast who are rapidly reaching perfection. Great interest is being shown by the people of Norwich in this show and capacity houses are in evidence for both performances on April 14th and 15th.

The Ritz Revue is a show of the Follies type made up of 20 complete scenes in 2 acts featuring singing, dancing and comedy. Some of the Feature numbers are Cockleshell chorus, The Debutantes, Silk stocking, Rolls Royce and Mah Jongg.

Among the principals are Miss Eunice Taft, Mrs. Walter Buckingham, Mrs. Myra Frink Ward, Mrs. Lyle Fillmore, Miss Helen Woodworth, Miss Mary Gray, Tyler Stanton, Tyler Fillmore, Wm. Mitchell, Frank Crowell, Robert Gray, Herbert McNeely, Paul Chivers.

The Nemrod Grotto committee in charge is headed by Louis Brown as general chairman.

Seats are now on sale at the Palace Theatre.

Geraldine Farrar's Return to Opera

Geraldine Farrar's public—which is pretty much all the public—has enthusiastically applauded her Manon, Cio-Cio-San, the Goose Girl, Elizabeth and the many other characters which she so successfully protrayed, but as Carmen Miss Farrar won her supreme success and as Carmen she returns this season to the operatic stage, with her own company, after a season of concertizing.

The untiring soprano has devised a modernized edition of Carmen and the production is novel and the scenery (made from Miss Farrar's own designs,) of artistic interest. Those who love "tradition" may sigh but for some years Miss Farrar has studied the public and she knows what it likes. An interpreter of genius, her success with the public is so complete as to be nothing short of a triumph. A few seasons ago Miss Farrar made the following remarks to an eminent writer on musical topics. Emma Calve was frequently harshly criticized but whenever she sang the opera house was crowded. It was because she gave her "personality" to the public. Very frequently there are singers who give most excellent interpretations, who are highly praised and whom nobody goes to see! Now in the last analysis there are two things which I do. I try to be true to myself and my own conception of the dramatic fitness of things on the stage, and—I try to please my audiences. To do this you must give unmercifully of your "personality." There is no other way. In my humble way I am an actress who happens to be appearing in opera. I sacrifice tonal beauty to dramatic fitness every time I think it necessary for an effect, and I shall continue to do so. I leave mere singing to warblers. I am more interested in acting myself.

Special Program at the Broadway.

It's N. V. A. week at the Broadway, and we can truthfully say that it is too big for anyone to miss, so take a tip and make a trip to the Broadway. The Three Pals opened with a song and dance revue with three youngsters giving their own interpretation as to just how a miniature revue should be arranged. They proved to be a great success.

Paul Brady, the versatile chap, followed in a very good versatile offering of comedy and eccentric dances.

Bayley and Lloyd offered The Radio Robot, which proved to be the last word in radio science, with 15 minutes of excellent fun and songs.

Fred Mayo and Loretta Mayo drive their abilities through an unusual presentation of surprises, resulting in a great reception.

Tom and Dolly Ward offered their comedy riot called "Keep Out of My Cellar." It is filled with bright lines and good songs, and played so that every word has a laugh of its own.

Arthur Whitelaw, the Irish Chatterbox, came through strong in sixth spot with his comedy and wit. He is a natural comedian and as a result gets more fun out of his offering than the usual comedian.

Love and Romance should be one and the same thing. They are when Love is Louis Love and Romance is Romance of Romany. With five associates including Jean Spence, Mr. Love offered a singing and dancing revue that is above anything of its kind that has been seen in Norwich for some time. Brilliantly staged and with unusual lighting effects, this is an offering not to be missed.

"And we're here, gentlemen, to consider ways and means of ending the lawlessness that is rampant in Sacramento——"

There, in brief, you have the plot of "The Devil's Cargo," the new Paramount picture which opened last night at the Broadway theatre. Victor Fleming directed the production from A. P. Younger's adaptation of Charles Whittaker's story, "The River Beat" Pauline Starke, Wallace Beery, William Collier, Jr., and Claire Adams are featured in leading roles.

Raymond Hatton heads the strong supporting cast.

These are the eight good reasons why you should see this great show at the Broadway.

Palace Theatre

In his latest starring vehicle, "Headwinds," the Universal-Jewel feature coming to the Palace theatre, commencing Thursday, House Peters, as a wealthy yachtman, brings to the screen a brand new idea of a lover and of love.

Love is perhaps the oldest theme in existence and has been exploited by everybody in every walk of life since the beginning of the world. Yet, withal, "Head Winds," directed by A. M. Sinclair Wilt, deals with an old theme from, if not exactly new, an extremely entertaining point of view.

Through a trick the heroine of the piece, as played by Ruth Miller, is married off to a man for whom she has little, if any, love. House Peters, as her husband-under-protests, kidnaps his bride, takes her to sea on his yacht, a ship manned by a crew of Orientals, and there, as heaven as his witness, woos his own wife and wins her.

It is not easy sailing, for the young bride is strong-willed, temperamental and obstinate. On the other hand, Peters has not only to deal with the illusive god of love, but is confronted in a physical way with a terrific hurricane. Then follows an electrical storm that nearly shatters the frail craft while miles out at sea.

Peters is surrounded by an unusually strong cast, including Patsy Ruth Miller, who plays the leading feminine role, Arthur Hoyt, William Austin, Richard Travers, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Togo Yamamato, George Kuwa, and K. Nambu.

Bread Theater

The Great Divide, Reginald Barker's screen version of the famous American play by William Vaughn Moody, is the feature attraction at the Bread theater today and tomorrow. The role of Stephen Ghent will be played by Conway Tearle, while Alice Terry will appear as the New England girl, Ruth Jordon. Others in the cast include Wallace Beery, Za Su Pitts, Huntly Gordon, Allan Forest, George Cooper and Ford Sterling.

Percy Hilburn, the cameraman, is said to have obtained some exceptional views in the Arizona Painted Desert, where the exteriors were made. The Great Divide was adapted by Waldemar Young, and is presented by Louis B. Mayer. It is a Metro-Goldwyn picture.

The Pathe news and an Al St. John comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

There is a bit of reflected glory for Danielson in the fact that William A. Phillips is a partner in Dillon, Read and Company, whose recent purchase of the Dodge Motor company properties rates as the greatest financing deal of the kind ever attempted and represents an investment of $146,000,000, the largest in industrial history.

Mr. Phillips is a figure behind the scenes in this giant transaction, but it was through him that Clarence Dillon, head of the concern and now an outstanding figure in the financial world, came into the firm, which has grown to be regarded as in a position to challenge the supremacy as such concerns as J. P. Morgan & Company.

Mr. Phillips is a son of the late Charles A. Phillips, for years, manager here of the store of the Quinebaug company. He was graduated from Killingly High school in the 90's and eventually entered Harvard university, from which he received a degree at graduation.

It was while at Worcester academy, prior to entering Harvard, that Mr. Phillips first met Clarence Dillon, who hailed from San Antonio, and a warm friendship sprang up between them. They went to Harvard together and were room-mates until their graduation in 1905.

Young Dillon then parted ways with Phillips, going to Wisconsin, where he married and from where he went abroad. He and his bride stayed two years, while Dillon studied painting and architecture.

At graduation Phillips entered the brokerage field and has remained therein. In the meantime Dillon had entered an industrial concern in which his brother-in-law was interested, as manufacturer of machinery.

Years drifted along until 1913, when Phillips induced Dillon to join him in the old established investment banking house of William A. Read and Co. Phillips was anxious to have his friend with him and brought about an introduction to Mr. Read, who was head of the concern.

Mr. Read invited Dillon to come with the firm and he accepted, going with the Chicago branch of the house. He remained there until the spring of 1914, and then was transferred to the New York headquarters. Two years later, April 1, 1916, he was made a member of the firm. That very day Mr. Read was stricken with illness and died six days later.

When the war broke out, Dillon was drafted for service on the war industries board. Since then his climb to fame has been remarkable, and has attracted the attention of the nation in the Dodge Motor company deal.

Incidentally, Mr. Phillips is one of the most important of the partners of Mr. Dillon, who would not have been a banker were it not for his college chum's urging.

All the young sheiks in Danielson are in a state of uncontrolled curiosity. It's all due to the fact that they read in The Bulletin the other morning a brief despatch from New Haven stating that three girls taken into custody there said they were on their way to Danielson. The girls names were given as Katherine Walsh, 18, of Charlestown, Catherine Lynch 17, and Lillian Goodwin, 16, of Somerville. The girls were on a porch near New Haven one night and were riding on a motor car coming this way when a constable took them in charge.

It was then that they said they were on their way to Danielson, but did not say where it was. That's where the local sheiks appear to come in. The assumption is that their reputation as courtiers has been broadcast far and wide, and that while people think of them as from Danielson it has been quite an easy to fix the location of Danielson in the public mind.

But in the meantime the youthful and hopeful sheiks are simonizing their hair and practicing up on ringing the bells at the bottom of their trouser legs. Looks like a great season!

Henry C. Babson, long a resident of Danielson, is leaving this town today to make his home with his niece at Princeton, Mass. He will be the only Civil war veteran resident in that place and no doubt the distinction will carry with it various honors for him. Mr. Babson only recently returned here after spending the winter, as is his custom, at Winterhaven, Fla.

Last fall a fire in the Leavens building was followed by a reconstruction that made it inconvenient for Mr. Babson to remain as a tenant there, so he is to go to Princeton. All of his many many friends in Danielson wish him well and many more years of good health and comfortable living.

Rev. F. T. Ledwith, M. S., who completed a series of sermons at a tridium ending at St. John's church in Plainfield, Easter Sunday evening, is leaving here today (Tuesday) for Hartford and will not return to Danielson until early July. Father Ledwith is to preach a retreat for the boys in LaSalette college for a week and goes then to Boston for a month of mission preaching in St. Clement's parish, one of the largest in the city. Other assignments will keep him busy until the end of June.

Because she is to speak at a hearing at the capitol in Hartford today (Tuesday) Mrs. Lillian Frink of Canterbury will not address the members of the W. C. T. U. at their meeting here this afternoon. Instead the speaker will be School Supervisor William E. Parker.

Samuel Dolbey, head of the Dolbey Ice Cream company of Providence and with its eastern Connecticut distributing center here, is expected to be in Danielson Wednesday to further plans made incident to the big merger of his concern with other ice cream manufacturing companies, as told in this column Monday. What the plans are for Danielson in consequence of the big deal are known in some detail, but may not be divulged for the present.

A theory exists that a riot of rum running out of Rhode Island is on, because the runners figure that the going isn't going to be so good as it has been in Rhode Island after the new state police force that is being formed begins to operate. Four captures of important cargoes of booze in this vicinity within a week indicates how the traffic is just now. The runners are taking time by the forelock, or the bottles by the neck, as it were, and are trying to make hay while the sun shines. Their luck hereabouts hasn't been too good for a week.

Monday afternoon at two o'clock, at the home of Miss Lillian E. Bailey, Broad street, funeral services for her nephew, Paul Theodore Chase, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter I. Chase, were conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Friends of the family acted as bearers. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Unusually beautiful floral pieces and bouquets attested the sympathy of friends for the bereaved family.

At Wauregan Monday morning, the funeral of Mrs. William Riley was held from her home, with services at the Sacred Heart church. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. J. C. Mathieu, the pastor, Rev. J. E. McCarthy of All Hallows' church, Moosup, and Rev. F. T. Ledwith, M. S., of Danielson. There were many relatives and friends in attendance. The bearers were James Doyle, Edward Langihan, John Goven, Michael White, Michael Connell and William Egan. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery, all of the priests of the mass assisting at the committal service.

A week end motoring accident involved a light machine driven by George Butts of East Killingly. The machine was in collision with a pile of railroad ties stacked up close to the edge of the highway. Mr. Butts was cut and badly bruised in the jam and Hiram Warren, who was riding with him, escaped injury. The machine was badly damaged. Mr. Butts was treated for his injuries at the office of a Danielson physician.

Three young people received minor injuries, late Sunday night, when a motorcycle, with sidecar, driven by Walter Smith of Greene, R. I., went out of control near the Wolcott Witter place on the state highway leading from Brooklyn to Wauregan and plunged into a stone wall, from which stones were knocked. Smith escaped with a minor injury to his hand. Miss Lucy Lafantasie and her brother, Edmond, of Brooklyn were cut in the crash, each receiving, among other injuries, cuts over the left eye.

In an unavoidable accident on the West Side, Sunday, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gaudette was struck by an automobile driven by Albion C. Russell, also of the West Side. The child suffered only minor injuries.

At East Killingly Monday the death of Henry Wallace occurred. He had been in poor health for a number of years. Mr. Wallace had been a resident of East Killingly upwards of 45 years and during that time had been engaged at various occupations. He was a son of Rev. and Mrs. George W. Wallace and came to East Killingly with his parents when his father assumed the pastorate of the Free Baptist church; then in existence in that place. He leaves his wife, who was Miss Julia A. Hammond, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Hammond, a family long identified with the affairs of East Killingly. Mr. Hammond being engaged in the grocery business. They had no children.

SNOWSTORM WITH HAIL EARLY MONDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, April 13.—A snowstorm that could have ruined a couple of tons of Easter millinery, had it come a day sooner, swept over this area early Monday morning—and there was also hail. This particular snow storm was not of sufficient volume to make necessary the recalling of snow shovels from summer quarters. It was just a dinky little storm to make the Cloud Digger's forecast of the weather look right. There was about a half inch of snow to the east of here and trains that went through during the morning had snow on the roofs. Old Man Winter appeared to be having a final flirtation with promising Miss Spring. Most folks disapproved of it.

FRANK LEONE IN JAIL ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, April 13.—Frank Leone, charged with attempt to rape, was presented in the town court Monday afternoon, pleaded not guilty, was found guilty, and in default of $1500 bonds for his appearance in the superior court was taken to Brooklyn jail. Mrs. Beatrice Geer, who lives in the same house with Leone at Dayville, was the complainant.

BOROUGH ELECTION MONDAY, WITH ONLY 86 AT THE POLLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, April 13.—Danielson took its annual borough election very calmly Monday. Of nearly 1500 voters, only 86 went to the polls. These voted 81 straight tickets, two split tickets, while three were unmarked. The list of new officers and their vote follows:

Warden, Walter Anderson, 82; town clerk and treasurer, Frank T. Preston, 83; burgesses, Louis E. Young, 83; D. E. Jette, 82; Charles E. Austin, 82; Richard D. Bannigan, 82; Gaston A. Maindon, 82; Pierre Boulaine, 82; assessors, Thomas Bradford, 82; Joseph N. LaVallee, 82; William J. Young, 82; bailiff, John McFarland, 82; tax collector, Sidney H. Perry, 83; library directors for three years, Frank T. Preston, 83; Frederick E. Bitgood, 85.

The meeting accepted the reports of all the officials as printed and voted to give the warden and court of burgesses the authority to expend not to exceed $2500 in constructing an addional filtering bed for the sewer system on the borough farm. The meeting adjourned until the first Monday in August, when the tax rate for the ensuing year will be fixed. The report for last year by Warden Frank E. Kenneday shows that the debt was reduced $8,214.55 and is now $37,740.96.

PUTNAM

At North Grosvenordale Sunday night, a house and barn belonging to Mrs. Alice A. Bache were destroyed by fire. The furniture of the house was also consumed and practically everything that the barn contained. The loss will exceed $5,000.

The house and barn were situated on a farm one-half mile west of North Grosvenordale. Frank Jarvis, an employe who looked after the place was burned in trying to subdue the flames and was brought to the Day Kimball hospital for treatment. It was said there Monday that his burns were not serious.

The blaze started shortly after 11 o'clock, and burned so rapidly that the house was soon in ruins. The fire was visible for several miles. What neighbors there are and people from North Grosvenordale hastened to the place but were unable to be of any aid in saving the house. A high wind was blowing and burning brands soon set the barn ablaze. This structure was 100 feet away but it was impossible to save it. Mrs. Bache has owned and lived in the house for five years. The origin of the fire is said to be a defective flue.

At the Methodist church Easter Sunday, there was a baptismal service and reception of members at the morning service with special Easter music. At 7 o'clock in the evening the following program was given by the Sunday school and choir: Voluntary, Mrs. Wilcox, organist; opening hymn with choir processional; scripture reading; anthem, "O Sacred Head Now Wounded." Adams, choir, with obligato by Rev. N. B. Burton; prayer; anthem, "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," Heyser, by the choir; recitations, Raymond Evans; "Christ is Risen," Stanley Evans; "Easter Bells," Mabel Evans, Martha Shaw, Margaret Evans and Barbara Fox; "Ring It Out," James Bogardus; Grace Mansfield; Song "Bright Sunbeams," primary and beginners department; recitations, "We'll gather sweet flowers," Dorothy Bogardus, Winifred Litchfield, Sylvia Miller, and Zilla Evans; "Rejoice ye children, Russell King, Junior Devine and William Stockdale; "Children and flowers" Sybil Keach and Wilma Taylor; hymn; recitation, Rose DeCarlo, Helen Evans, Elizabeth Hughes, Dorothy Harvey and Elizabeth Winslow; reading; "An Easter Madrigal" Phoebe Franklin, Christine Wilcox, Ellen Corbin and Miss Harvey; remarks and offering; male quartette "The Lord...My Lord, is Risen," Ramler, Messrs Burton, Wilcox, Marsh and Tripp; anthem "My Redeemer Lives," Williams; Benediction.

The evening service on Easter at the Baptist church was well attended. Miss Elsie M. Kittlitz, a missionary to Southern gave a very interesting and entertaining talk. Miss Kittlitz is stationed at the Baptist mission at Suatau in the largest and most desolate province of South China.

Easter was observed at the Second Congregational church by a sunrise service at 7 in charge of the Christian Endeavor Society. There was the regular morning service at 10:30 a. m. and at 7:30 in the evening the choir sang the cantata "The Risen King" with Mrs. William K. Burke of the Union Congregational church of Providence, soolist. Mrs. Burke has a voice of unusual sweetness.

At St. Philip's Episcopal Easter day there was general communion of the parish at 8 a. m. at which the choir sang Easter carols. At 10:45 the Holy Eucharist was celebrated and Miss Ethel Chadwick sang "The Holy City" as an offertory solo. The Easter festival of the Sunday School with presentation of the Lenten offerings was held at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Twenty-two babies were examined at the well baby conference held last week at the High school building. Dr. Lamarche was in charge assisted by nurses, Miss Vincent of Hartford and Mrs. E. H. Burt of Putnam. Misses Geraldine Frost and Winifred Mellor also helped.

Miss Mary Wheaton of Grove street was in Providence last week.

Maurice Diamond of Hartford was in Putnam last week on business.

Herman Bernier is building a bungalow on Maynard street.

Miss Arline St. Jean is a patient at St. Francis' Hospital, Hartford.

Louis Valade and family are living in the house recently sold by Mrs. Dwight Webster on Walnut street. Mrs. Webster is now living at Southbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Covell of Boston have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones.

Miss Lucy Farrows spent the week end at Springfield with her sister, Miss Ella Farrows.

Mrs. Joseph Monroe and daughter Ethelyn of Warren, R. I., spent the week end with Miss Ernestine Sherman, of Woodstock avenue.

Wilbur and Donald Rook, sons of Rev. S. J. A. Rook a former pastor of the Methodist church, have been guests of Walter Wilcox of Farrow street.

Dr. K. T. Philips was the speaker at the Rotary Club last week. He talked of life insurance examination, telling of the significance of every question on the form and some about how the insurance determines whether or not a man is a good risk. At the business meeting it was reported that the attendance contest which has been running for some time had ended in a tie. All absences had been made up by attendance at meetings of other clubs, some of which had required special trips. The members of the Putnam Rotary Club have been invited to attend the ladies' night of the Norwich club to be held at the Wauregan Hotel, Norwich, on the evening of Wednesday, April 22nd.

A flurry of snow beginning at 1 a. m. covered the ground and roofs Monday, just a reminder that Spring is not actually here despite the almanac. The fall was not a heavy one however and by noontime all traces of it had disappeared.

Miss Flora Ellis of Watertown, Mass., formerly of Putnam, spent the week end as the guest of Miss Edith Bowen.

Merton Ames, linotype operator at Palmer, Mass., spent the week end at his home here.

Miss Elizabeth Rafferty of the State Highway department, Hartford, spent the week end with her parents on Grove street.

Mrs. W. F. Rafferty and Miss Elizabeth Rafferty motored to Boston Sunday to spend the day with Ensign W. F. J. Rafferty.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Richardson spent the week end with their son, Percy Richardson and family at Bridgeport.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Heath and children of Hartford and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heath of Bridgeport spent Easter with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Heath.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dubois have been visiting friends in Providence.

Miss B. A. Keough of Providence has been the guest of Mrs. John Brennon.

Miss Dora Allard of Baltic is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Allard for the vacation.

As already noted, at a meeting of the town school committees heldrecently teachers were elected for the next school year. Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent, will remain as he was elected a year ago for two years. E. L. Robinson was re-elected principal of the high school at a salary of $3,200, an increase of $200. Miss Anna Ash was elected teacher of music at a salary of $1,250. For the past year there has been no music teacher. A letter was presented from Owen J. White, principal of the Isreal Putnam school, tendering his resignation, to take effect at the end of the school year in June.

Miss Dorothy Baker, teacher in the eighth grade, was not a candidate for re-election as she wishes to return to Boston university to complete her studies.

The appropriations made for teachers for next year amount to $49,400. This is an increase over the appropriations of a year ago of $900 and over the present payroll of $4,700. The increase is represented in the employment of an additional teacher of English in the high school, another teacher in the Israel Putnam school and a teacher of music, as well as the annual increase to teachers until the maximum amount is reached.

Because of the industrial and general business depression two of the members of the committee were opposed to an additional teacher at the high school at this time, but the majority of the committee were of the opinion that the best interests of the school demanded it.

The complete list of teachers elected follows:

High School—Principal, E. L. Robinson, salary $3,200 (an increase of $200); head English department, Abbie H. Keith, $1,600; Latin, Janet S. Height, $1,250 (an increase of $50); French, Sara C. LOCAL PROBATIONARY CASES FOR TRIAL AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, April 13—Many of the probationary cases on the docket for the April term on the criminal side of the Superior Court to be held in Willimantic involve Putnam people who were rounded up in the big raid against violators of the liquor laws in January. Among them is Mrs. Victoria Brzuch whose husband, John Brzuch is now serving a sentence of three to four years in state prison. Mrs. Brzuch as well as the others mentioned below were also given prison sentences and the execution of them suspended during a probationary period of six months. They are Eva Goldstein, Philip Pagano, Fred L'Heureux, Bertha Osowska, John Tyburski, Joseph Reille, Joseph Kolat, Caroline Kulat and Victoria Semeneshen.

Joseph C. Bartlett and Joseph N. Nover are the engineer and firemen of the freight train in the wreck in the yards in this city last October which caused the death of the two trainmen. They pleaded guilty and were sentenced to one year's imprisonment in the Brooklyn jail but were released on probation, after serving one month.

JEWETT CITY

The marriage of Minnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard G. Megar and Herbert Shaw of Baltic, took place in the Baptist church at 1 o'clock Monday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. E. Scates. Mrs. G. H. Prior played the march from Lohengrin for the processional and Mendelssohn's Wedding March as the recessional. The bride was gowned in white canton crepe, her veil being held with a wreath. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. The matron of honor, Mrs. Fred Walton, wore poudre blue silk crepe with hat to match and carried white carnations. The best man was Wilfred Houghton, of Baltic. After a reception at the bride's home Mr. and Mrs. Shaw went to Rhode Island for their honeymoon. The bride received many gifts including checks, linen, china and glass. A number of guests were present from out of town.

Wednesday morning the new postal rates became effective. Postmaster William T. Crumb gives information of the advance that will be outstanding as applied to the Jewett City post office. The new regulations are printed on the Norwich page.

The third annual opening of the camping season at camp "Sun Rest" on the Quinebaug, owned by Arthur LeClaire, was celebrated Sunday afternoon with an elaborate dinner. The menue: Club "Alabam" cock tail, cherry stones, Irish cobbler mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, green peas, brown gravy, cranberry sauce, pickles, Parker House rolls, dressing a La Blanchard, queen olives, roast native turkey, cake, pinapple and date pie with whipped cream and jello, demi tasse. The feast was ably prepared by Chef Terrence McGovern, formerly of the Hotel Dealtry. Grace was said by George E. Lucier. After the dinner, Leon Wheeler was toastmaster. Vocal solos were rendered by Thomas Barnett and Terrence McGovern with George Lucier accompanist. Edward Blanchard gave a very interesting account of his recent trips to New York and Canada. Arthur LeClaire, owner of the pioneer camp established fifteen years ago then gave brief history of the camping grounds which has now developed into the Quinebaug Camps association, with thirty-six stockholders and many beautiful camps. George Lucier brought the afternoon to a fitting conclusion by playing on the organ The End of a Perfect Day.

Two Norwich men, Daniel Dennis and John Kilroy got an early start with the booze Saturday morning. Patrolman "Cap" Maynard borough bailiff, Hector Liebelland and Deputy Sheriff J. T. Dolan all figured in their arrest at 6 a. m. Both men were locked up and later in the day were admitted to bail. Monday morning Dennis got away with $14.37 fine and costs, Kilroy will be presented this (Tuesday) morning by Prosecuting Attorney Richard Dudkowski, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor.

Mrs. H. E. Paul owns a prize winner salmon queen geranium, with a dozen clusters of blossoms all from a single stalk. Sunday it added to the beauty of the floral display on the Baptist altar.

Postmaster and Mrs. William T. Crumb, and daughter, Rose, are visiting Mrs. Crumb's relatives in Springfield, Mass., for a week.

John Barnett has taken over the management of the Broadway theatre in Somerville, Mass. Mr. Barnett is a graduate of Boston university, by virtue of this fact the position was offered. He has had considerable experience in this line.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Lee of Webster, were in town Sunday. Returning they were accompanied by the former's uncle, Thomas E. Lee, who will be their guest for a number of days. T. E. Lee has lived during the winter with Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Albertine.

Local automobile drivers declare that any one driving on any road in this end of the state Sunday was sure to come upon from one to three automobile wrecks.

Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters is to meet at the home of Miss M. A. Burdick this (Tuesday) evening.

Names to be added to the list of contributors to the Gartska-Osga fund are: Rev. J. J. McCabe $5, (whose name by an oversight has not been published before), O. F. Johnson $10, E. A. Faust $10, L. G. Buckingham $5, F. W. Chase $2 and Edward Gomes $5.

Miss Winifred Scates is visiting her sister, Priscilla, in Boston, and with relatives in Everett and North Billerica, Mass.

Rowland Barber, Jr., of Westminster, Vt., and Claire Barber of Waterbury spent Sunday with their father, Rowland Barber in Lisbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall had for week end guests Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fraser and family, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Dean and family, Miss Anna Eichelberg and John Eichelberg. The guests were from Norwich, Plainfield and Providence.

The funeral of Mrs. Gilbert Miner was held at her home, in Sylvandale Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. J. W. Carter, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated. There were floral tributes from her husband, parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Harris, Mr. and Mrs. William Beaudry, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jeffers, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Burleson, Mr. and Mrs. Alex McCluggage, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wholley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Field, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Harris, Miss Ethel Adams, Miss Verna Tarbox, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Finn Opera House Friends, Post Office Friends, American Legion Officers, American Legion Auxiliary and The Methodist Church.

Relatives were present from Norwich Town, Mechanicsville, Attawaugan, Voluntown, North Grosvenordale, and Fishers Island. Burial was in Jewett City Cemetery.

The bearers were Harold Jeffers, Austin Harris, Chauncey Chase and William Beaudry.

Ruth May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Benjamin, was christened at Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. O. C. Sargent and daughter Beth of Concord, N. H., are guests at Mrs. E. M. Swift's. The late Mr. Sargent was a former pastor of the Baptist church here.

Mrs. William Cook of Ballouville and Mrs. Lucy Tucker of Willington are guests at N. J. Babcock's.

Prof. and Mrs. Champion Matheson and two children of New Haven, are guests at A. R. Young's.

Mr. and Mrs. Erme Myott of Boston spent the week end at Nelson Myott's.

E. J. Davan of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Edmond Jodoin.

Miss Madeline Raill reports picking a dandelion.

Byron Sweet recently caught his trout, the largest weighing half a pound.

Mr. and Mrs. James Flannery and daughter Alice of New Britain were week-end guests at Thomas McBroome's.

Easter Services

The main altar at St. Mary's church was elaborately decorated with pink and white carnations and Easter lilies, which with the lighted candles made a beautiful sight. The side altars were decorated with Easter lilies and begonias. The Sisters arranged the flowers. At the two early masses the singing was by seventy-two children, who showed the painstaking training of Sister Cecelia. The senior choir of twenty voices sang at the high mass, under direction of Jane A. Olson. Especially fine was the offertory trio, Andante Religioso by Mr. Olson, organ, William Driscoll, violin and Louis Boudreau, cello from Plainfield. The soprano and tenor duet by Mrs. Noel Garaud and Jerry Morey and the baritone solo by Charles Harrington were especially harmonious and effective.

Pachaug Church Congregation of nearly one hundred enjoyed the service Triumph of Love written by Margaret Slatterly. It was prepared by Mrs. J. P. Richardson, Miss Elsie Lord and Mrs. Benjamin Goldstein. Mrs. John Kaufman of Voluntown, was to have taken the part of Lois, but was ill and Mrs. Richardson substituted. The six herald's were Batie who was George Norman; school, Frances Montgomery; work, Adam Menick; joy, Gladys Watkinson; fears and sorrows, Mrs Lester Holmes and her son Born; journey, Blanche Montgomery; service, Ethel Rood; death, Bessie Burton; fear, Mary Wilkinson; hope, Mrs. Goldstein; faith Elsie Lord; love, Mrs. Herbert Salisbury. Mrs. William Edmond played, as Life knelt at the lily-decorated cross.

You just know he's NOT Well.
There is no reason for you to look or feel this way

CONSTIPATION means INEFFICIENCY

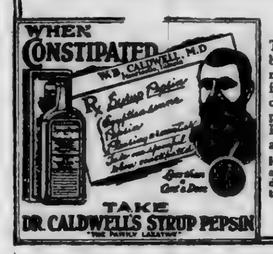
Watch your bowels! Constipation produces disease, misery, inefficiency, premature old age, senility. Have your bowels moved today? If not, you are constipated. They should act at least twice daily to be healthy. They should be kept open to carry off the parts of food the body does not use, and which, if left in the body, become horrible and loathsome poisons which breed sickness and often fatal disease. If your bowels don't move, they need help badly.

Dr. Caldwell's

SYRUP PEPSIN

The Family Laxative

—gently opens the gates of clogged-up bowels and allows nature to restore a healthful condition. It is the prescription Dr. Caldwell used for years in his extensive practice and consists of a pleasing liquid combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics. People have used it for over 30 years, and it has kept millions healthy and well.



It Helps Nature Do What Our Modes of Living Prevent

The work of professional men, clerks, bookkeepers, students, shop men and nearly every one today, because of deficient muscular activity, tends to produce constipation. If you are constipated, you need Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. 10,000,000 bottles used annually prove its effectiveness.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

THE WHEELER BILL

One of the important bills before the present general assembly comes up for a hearing today. If not otherwise disposed of, the fact that the use of the house of representatives has already shown the interest that people in the socalled Wheeler bill will take in the enforcement of the amendment.

The bill has been drawn in recognition of the hard spots that exist and are encountered in the enforcement of the dry laws. There can be no question that there are many loopholes which work to the advantage of the law breaker, and there are too many who are permitted to escape with little or no punishment. There is also the case where too much leniency is exercised on the part of the courts.

The Wheeler bill is regarded as a step in the right direction, making more severe the deliberate violation of the law, and at the same time those who are unintentionally guilty of violations are going to fare better than they do under present conditions. The bill is not a measure for the purpose of making drinking more disrespectful for the law, but rather to make it more difficult to obtain liquor.

The bill has strong support in the state and unquestionably much opposition. Its proponents are going to fight hard and the conditions that would bring about a real open disrespect for the law are not desirable.

Both sides have made public addresses and statements both for and against the proposed measure. It is to be expected that there will be a general tightening up of the laws, if the present loose, and undesirable character of enforcement is to be changed. Whether the measure adopted, drastic or modified there should be no action unless there is a thorough understanding of what is involved and what can be expected from putting a new measure on the statute books. A general scrambling can be expected whenever the question of the enforcement of the dry laws is raised, but what is required is the application of the determination to see that the enforcement of the dry laws is made effective.

MARYLAND'S HOLDUP

Motorists are confronted with many problems in connection with the recognition of markers of other states. Maryland permits cars carrying the temporary markers of Florida to operate in that state for a period of 30 days, and then requires them to be removed. These markers are obtained temporarily in Florida and that state in order to remain there more than a month and to obtain such markers they plan on reaching the Maryland objects because Florida does not keep a record of such temporary markers. The objection appears to be a good one but that objection should be registered with the Florida authorities for the information of purchasers of temporary markers and when it comes to informing auto owners that cars bearing such markers will not be permitted to operate in that state it should be done at the state boundary.

Maryland permits such auto owners to go into a trap, holds them up and if they balk at paying the price forces them to spend the night where they can, after the limited accommodations of the town are exhausted. It does not create a good impression of Maryland and it certainly is not a square deal.

Cars which carry temporary markers, of which no record is kept, might participate in all kinds of accidents or trouble and there would be no way of tracing the owner. Thus there can be no complaint over the protection which Maryland is endeavoring to obtain, but there is serious ground for complaint over the fact that such machines are permitted to proceed further into the state before being stopped, when there is no possibility of doing anything but pay the price or experience the inconveniences that are imposed.

MAKING OUR OWN

For many years up to the time of the war this country had been depending for the greater part upon foreign made dyes. It was insisted that we could not make them as good and that it was useless to try to make them for the price at which they could be bought abroad. Thus we participated in the building up of a monopoly on the other side of the water.

The war changed all that. It not only served notice upon us that the foreign markets were cut off but it forced us into doing something for ourselves. It replaced dependence by independence. We were forced to go to large expense and to go through long and repeated experiments in order to catch up with the dyemakers of Europe. It was not an easy task. It was possible to make dyes but it was an entirely different thing to make dyes that would produce the results desired. Above all it was hard to get certain of the dyes that would not fade. It was part, however, of the price that we had been paying for failing to make use of our advantages and opportunities in the past.

Temporary results while the war shut off the European dyes met emergency requirements, but it has been evident that the chance to get foreign dyes has not caused the abandonment of American dye production, if we are to judge by the statement which has been made by the chairman of the division of dye chemistry of the American Chemical Society who says that chemists in the employ of the color trade laboratory of the department of agriculture have made discoveries which free the cotton users of this country from the domination of the foreign fadeless dyes.

Not only has it been learned how to make them fadeless, but how to make them as cheaply as is done abroad. This is no small accomplishment. It has taken years to get there but that is small compared to the time the foreign chemists required for the same results. But for the war we would still be depending upon Europe for our dyes.

REGULATING HEADLIGHTS

Headlights furnish a problem in every state and community until they are properly handled. Just how to reach that desired point furnishes a subject for much thought, but it is invariably through the mazes of experience that most states come to very similar conclusions.

Just at the present time Washington is much wrought up over the lack of regulations concerning the headlights. Apparently there is no law governing them, beyond insisting that cars shall be so equipped. The traffic director has recognized the danger involved in operating with dimmed lights and threatens to require all lights to be turned on full blast. This may seem to be unnecessary in well lighted streets, but all streets cannot be so classed. In order to obtain uniformity and overcome the situation of having bright lights when not needed and dimmed lights when bright ones are required the rule to use bright lights at all times seems wise.

Bright headlights need not prove dangerous if they are kept within fixed limits as to the candlepower of the lamps used and are focused so as to strike the roadway instead of the eye of the drivers going in the opposite direction. Nothing is worse than a glaring headlight, and yet it is important that lights should be sufficient to show the driver what is coming in the way of a roadbed and to head up the side of the road sufficiently to permit of giving plenty of clearance to others.

The headlight problem is an important one but with regulations established and all required to abide by them the results will be favorable and the solution not so difficult. It will depend chiefly upon the compliance and the enforcement.

CABINET CHANGES

The report coming out of Washington as to the effect that "official Washington has about concluded that John W. Weeks will resign as secretary of war in the comparatively near future."

Such statements have been coming for several months. There are not many members of the cabinet but what have had their plans mapped out for them and had they been willing the date would have been fixed for them to send in their resignations and close in Washington who find it necessary to indulge in guessing contests under the guise of news.

Secretary Weeks is one of those whose resignation has been predicted. Is this maintained that he desired to tour Europe or the world with Mrs. family, but resignation under such an excuse failed to materialize. In fact his claim that it would come provided an opportunity for denying it later. At the present time the situation is as organized, Secretary Weeks is making recovery from a slight embolism, but he is not able to assume his duties or to leave his bed. His illness may prove to be the forerunner of his resignation. Such is of course entirely possible, and especially so if he had reasons as claimed, desirous of relinquishing such duties.

It is not surprising that the president should desire to retain the services of such a valuable department head, but against a plea of ill health there is no argument.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: And still the disposition is to speak kindly of April weather.

Any extra time those days can be employed in getting the bathing suits ready for the good old summer time.

From the list of fatalities, the results of heedlessness at railroad crossings this spring are exactly the same as last.

Chapman started his career of crime when he was only 19, but this seems to have been one of his eventful years.

Perhaps that New York man who brought his sweetheart into Connecticut to kill her hadn't heard of the Chapman conviction.

Many a pedestrian who has difficulty in getting across the street is frequently reminded of that old song "I'm Always in the Way."

One of the reliable barometers of good business conditions is the report that 10 of the country's largest postoffices report increased receipts for the past year.

Some papers have decided to print the crime news on an inside page. Is that for the purpose of directing greater attention to pages which readers have been skipping?

Every move the president makes for removing more deadwood from the government not only shows it is there but conforms to sentiment that prevails from coast to coast.

The president refers to the fact that the women are skimping on their dresses, but he ignored the effects of a few of the men to offset it by wearing the bell bottom trousers.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, April 14—Press prediction made the morning of the day on which the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers held its first session at the capital, that a drive would be staged and initiated for increases on tariff rates applicable to the cotton schedule, failed to come true, in session at least, whatever may have been private views. Mention was made by President Butler, of the N. A. C. M., of the Thoren investigation of the cotton industry, which was praised as being the most informative thing of its kind that had ever been submitted, and following Mr. Butler's address, Dr. Julius Klein, of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

Dr. Klein's address was in optimistic vein. As in his talk to the American Manufacturers' Export Association, two weeks before, he scouted any very dangerous European competition in our domestic textile market in the near future, and declared that European manufacturers were quite as concerned with respect to possible Italian and Japanese competition in their markets as we were with reference to British and German sales in the American market. He said that Britain is intent on lowering cost prices and increasing mass operation and that our unit price of cotton textile manufacture was two and one-half that of 1913 while that of Britain had increased to two and one-quarter the 1913 rate. He cited our increased exports of cotton textiles to Latin America, while British exports to those countries had been falling off. As an indication of future export trade, he called attention to the fact that:—

"If any one outstanding economic or social phenomenon has been demonstrated with irrefutable conviction throughout the world since 1918, it has been the truly astounding capacity of the human animal not only for recovery from the profoundest shocks, but for improvement and aspirations toward higher levels of comfort and well-being entirely beyond any expectations of a decade ago."

As for the tariff aspect of the convention reflected in President Coolidge's address to the Association Monday evening, it seemed evident that the delegates were more intent on holding fast to the present law than to risk a general business unrest by demanding higher rates on cotton textiles.

Last week a resume of the growth of the women's clothing industry in the course of the decade 1914-1923 was given, based on a recent Census bulletin for the latter year. Now we have the growth of the men's clothing industry for the same decade:

The number of establishments declined from 4,830 in 1914 to 4,607 in 1923. The number of wage earners increased from 173,747 to 194,820. The aggregate paid out in wages increased from $86,828,000 to $235,487,000. This means that the average per capita earnings were slightly less than $500 in 1914 and $1,209 for 1923, or a gain of 142 per cent.

The cost of materials increased from $230,032,000 to $584,804,000, or 154 per cent., while the value of products rose from $458,211,000 to $1,178,-[illegible], or 157 per cent. Of this production value a little over 6 per cent. represented receipts from goods made in contract shops, of which there were 1,863 in 1923, employing 42,610 hands. These shops were not separately listed in the 1914 census.

Although Washington is not broadcasting its message from the house tops, it can be said now, once and for all, that the American government is out to collect its foreign debts, and it will not be deterred from that program. The republican party, in its national platform, laid down the law and the gospel, and it is an open secret that that plank for the collection of the debts was virtually dictated by the president. A new meeting of the international debt funding commission has been called to take action. There will be a considerable amount of palaver. There will be delays, and social and courteous conversation with the representatives of the foreign nations which still stand aloof on their debt responsibilities. It is wholly possible they may gain time, but it can be also said that the most they can hope for is delay. They can never escape the payments. It is also well understood now that the American people will demand full reimbursement for the use of their money and that the foreign nations in cash will pay for each delay which they secure.

The people of the country can score one victory. They have impressed on congress, in no uncertain way, that they are with the president in his battle for tax reduction and determined to secure it. It is to the credit of congress that Chairman Green of Iowa and his associates have already agreed to devote the summer recess to developing a new measure for the lessening of taxes. Investigations will be made locally and surveys will be made of foreign methods and it is further hinted that the tax reduction measure will be given precedence in congressional action.

One of the curious twists of fate is that at the very time the government is seeking to abstain from interference in private undertakings situations develop which drag the officials into the interfering stage. Just at a time when Secretary Hoover and congress had decided that they could evolve the minimum of regulative features for the radio business, two gentlemen in Washington went on the air to broadcast speeches—perhaps they might be called briefs—in two very important governmental lawsuits. Always, from the beginning, it has been understood that newspapers were forbidden to comment directly on cases before grand juries or under trial in the courts. It is agreed, in these two recent instances mentioned, however, that through the radio the speakers, who commented directly on important cases, must have reached prospective members of juries who will have these matters under consideration. It will be no easy task to draft either the regulations, or the statute, to meet this problem. That it will have to be met cannot be denied.

A correspondent of the leading commercial paper of New York City, in an interesting article declares: "We need an organized banking system of our own in Latin America to protect what is ours and help our export trade, which we know needs encouragement for an expected and badly needed growth. We must bear in mind that America can not expect much business from Latin American customers unless they give them banks for their use as good as or better than the European. Such an organized banking system would give the small manufacturer a fair chance for competition."

Last year we did a business with the Latin Americas aggregating $1,-830,000,000 in value, our sales to them being $770,000,000. In 1914 the total trade, coming and going, was $798,-000,000. It is confidently predicted that it will reach $2,000,000,000 this year. And yet the correspondent is right about the banking system. We must protect what is ours, or see it revert to European competitors. Not only will the future witness a tremendous struggle to hold our own in the Latin Americas, but we will have our hands full in our domestic market, for Europe is coming after it. Our best defense is mass production and the more we can ship to the Latin Americas and the Far East the nearer we will achieve maximum production and hence the lower will be the unit cost.

As a result of the Stevenson restriction scheme, which has now been in force for about two years in British territory, a report from London says the rubber plantation outlook is bright. Prices are going to be held up. Last year we imported 736,000,000 pounds of "rubber, crude and milk of" valued at $174,000,000, compared with 852,000,000 pounds the year before, valued at $185,000,000—quite a drop in price. Over 60 per cent. of it came from the British East Indies, and the United States consumed over 77 per cent. of the world's production.

A year ago we were hearing great things concerning plans of the department of commerce and Harvey Firestone for developing rubber resources nearer home—particularly in the Latin Americas. "America should produce its own rubber," declares Mr. Firestone. What has become of the plans.

Luther Burbank Had to Make His Vision a Realtiy

Although displaying his inherited love for the beautiful in nature while still in the cradle, Luther Burbank was compelled to follow many unpleasant pursuits and suffered severe hardships before he was launched in his life work.

Born on a farm near Lancaster, Mass., he attended the district school and Lancaster Academy, then worked in a factory at Worcester at $3 a week. He invented a machine that would do the work of six men, but the sawdust of the factory impaired his health.

Next, he studied medicine for a year, until his father's death, then, at 21, bought a tract on Lunenburg and raised garden seeds and vegetables. With a few years' effort he developed his Burbank potato, sold the variety for $150 and this creation is now grown throughout the world and is adding millions annually to the farm incomes of America.

After recovering from a slight sunstroke he went to California, at 26, with a hand-bag containing Burbank potatoes, a lean purse and visions of triumphs in horticulture. Work was scarce, and he spent his last cent to buy a shingling hatchet on the strength of a promised job that did not materialize.

Next, cleaning chicken coops, he often went hungry. He later worked in a nursery and slept in a damp room over the hothouse until taken ill with fever. By saving his money he was able to rent a few acres near Santa Rosa, and at 28 started a nursery mornings and evenings while carpentering during the day.

By grafting prunes in almond seedlings he produced 20,000 bearing prune trees in nine months. He purchased four acres of unproductive land, made it bear marvels in horticulture, and his nursery became an outstanding success.

At 35 he became to devote his entire time to planet improvement, having at times over 3,000 experiments on hand. After 16 years of effort he produced the well known spineless cactus; 20 years' work yielded the rapid growing walnut tree; nearly 40 years were spent in perfecting peaches, plums, prunes and grapes. He also developed the white blackberry, the plumcot, the Shasta Daisy, the Giant Amaryilis, several beautiful roses, wheat, grasses, rapid-growing timber trees and many other miracles of nature.

Today, at 76, Luther Burbank is the world's greatest horticulturist, and the experiments he now has under way are producing results that dwarf all that has been done before.

Tomorrow—Drain, the One-Armed Father of Four.

FROM LUCILLE'S DIARY

When Uncle John and Aunt Annie asked all the family to the farm for the week end I begged off, for I must confess I am not keen on these semi-frequent gatherings of the clan, upon which all the rest of my people fairly dote.

"But I don't like to have you stay alone in the house," objected mother. Tilly, our cook, is having a month's leave.

"The furnace man is still on the job," I replied laughingly. And then at mother's frown I added: "Don't worry about that, dearie. I shall not be alone. I'll invite the Fullers to stay with me. In fact, I've already done it, and Louise said they would be delighted to accept."

"Then of course, Lucille, there's no use of my making any further objections, but I must say that I think you should have consulted me in regard to your plans."

"Mother," I asked, with some impatience, I have to admit, "is this my home or isn't it? Haven't I any freedom of action within these walls?"

"I'll broadcast the news that you have, my child," laughingly remarked father, who entered the room just at that moment. "What's all the rumpus?" he asked, and when I told him that mother was vexed because I was not going to the farm and because I was going to have company he turned to her with a pacifying gesture. "Oh, let Lucille do as she likes, dear. It is dull for her out at the farm this season of the year, and there's no harm in her having company over Sunday, is there?"

Mother made no reply but I squeezed dad's hand appreciatively, trying to show him unobtrusively what a comfort it was to have him understand and sympathize with me so much more fully than mother ever does.

Louise and Canby and I were straightening the living room and library when the folks arrived home late Sunday evening. Mother glanced around disapprovingly.

"Why, Lucille," she said, "it looks as if you had been dancing."

"And why not, dearie?" I answered gayly. "Surely you're not so archaic as to object to a little Sunday festivity? A few of our crowd happened to be here, and of course we had to do something to entertain ourselves."

"Oh, I am sorry," said Louise, taking mother's hand penitently. "I had no idea you would care, nor did Canby."

"It's all right, Louise dear," answered mother graciously. "Lucille knows my distaste for Sunday frolicking, but perhaps I am a trifle old fashioned. It was nice of you to come to stay with Lucille while we were all away."

All my friends think mother is lovely. They don't know how trying she is to me at times. For instance, this morning when she discovered that the Virginia ham which was sent to father from Smithfield had been eaten on Sunday, she was really angry.

"Why, Lucille, your father had invited some business friends to a southern dinner, with that ham as a big item on the menu. It was very selfish of you to eat it while we were all away. A home-cured ham like that is a great delicacy, and your father has been looking forward to his little party. It's a shame, that's what it is!"

"Of course I'm sorry, mother, but I didn't think you and dad had your hearts set on that ham, and Louise said she knew how to bake a ham beautifully and we wished to have some people for dinner, and I thought that was the economical thing to do—to use what we had in the house. You know that's what you're always telling me to do."

"But I didn't mean you to use something that had been sent especially to your father, and you ought to have known it, Lucille. Well, you can call him up and ask him what he wants for his dinner party in place of that ham. I don't wish to be the one to tell him that it's gone."

It was unkind of mother to make me tell father about the ham. He never is sharp with her, and she could have made it seem quite natural that I should have used it, but instead I had to try to break it to him gently, and he was really absurdly cross, I think, over such a small matter.

"You say you're sure I won't mind Lucille," he said. "Well, that's where you're entirely mistaken. I'll say I mind a whole lot. You hadn't any business to eat that ham which was sent to me. Ask your mother to come to the phone and I'll discuss the dinner with her. I don't care to have your mischievous finger in the pie. You've done enough."

That from daddy, who is usually my champion! He will feel bad tonight when he sees I have been crying.—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

CHILD TRAINING

TWO WAYS OF HANDLING TANTRUMS

Florence Bascom-Phillips

"Mamma! I want to go out and play," four-year-old Flossie announced one morning.

"Not today, dear," answered her mother. "It is too damp and rainy."

"Please, Mamma," coaxed Flossie, "I like rain."

"No, Flossie, you can't go outdoors now," answered her mother firmly.

After more teasing to no avail Flossie resorted to a new scheme which she was sure would bring Mamma to time, that of berating her mother's friends and relatives.

"Grandma's bad! Grandpa's bad! Aunt Mary's bad!" Flossie paced the floor as she made the announcements.

To the childs utter chagrin, her mother ignored her completely. Anything would have been better from Flossie's standpoint than to be ignored; even a spanking would have been preferable, for she would have known she was making some impression on Mother. She soon wearied of that scheme when she could see no effect at all. Then she resorted to the only means that she had left to bring Mother to time, that of having a tantrum, the first and only tantrum she ever had.

Flossie was not angry when she began her tantrum, merely determined to gain her point.—You see I have a perfect right to tell you what Flossie thought, for I was Flossie.—Flossie layed down on the floor and kicked furiously and yelled, "I want to go outdoors and play, I do!" Still, Mother paid no attention whatever, and after a few minutes Flossie wearied of her one-sided game and began playing with her dolls as good humoredly as ever.

Contrast Flossie's experience with that of young Charles. When Charles was about two years old he developed the habit of screaming for what he wanted and crying furiously if the other children did not give up to him. If this did not bring the accustomed, "Let the baby have it, Children," from Mother, or, "Give that to Charles this instant. You ought to be ashamed to make a little boy cry," from Father, Charles bumped his head, kicked his heels, stiffened himself and bellowed, until one of his distracted parents would give the desired command to the other children. Then he would grasp the coveted article, shut his jaw defiantly and grunt one long "Ugh" after another until the spell subsided. Th's course was followed until Charles became so adept at gaining his point that, even after the arrival of another baby, he continued to hold sway. It was the baby who had to give in to Charles, not Charles to the baby.

Charles soon learned that the whole family stood in awe of his "mad spells" and he made use of his supremacy on every possible occasion. Eventually, his parents wearied of having a great big four-year-old lying on the floor kicking his heels and screaming at the top of his voice a dozen times a day and began punishing him for it, and while they eventually succeeded in putting an end to his tantrums by this method, he is still, at eighteen years of age, so disagreeable that his family can scarcely live with him, for the selfishness which was cultivated in him in babyhood has grown to monstrous proportions.

The first time any child shows a determination to have its own way in defiance of better judgment or at the expense of others, whether by wilful disobedience, crying, holding the breath or tantrums, that is the time for the parent calmly but certainly to prevent it. One decided victory on the part of the parent will often practically end the matter, while one victory on the part of the child means constant trouble for the parents from then on, trouble for each teacher the child ever has, and perhaps the reform school or penitentiary eventually for the child. The learning in the home, of obedience to parents and respect for the rights of others is the foundation for obedience to God and respect for the laws of the land.

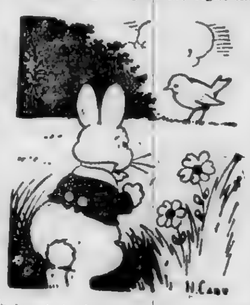
Peter Puts His Tongue to Use

Who never puts his tongue to use
For lack of knowledge has excuse.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter himself isn't likely to suffer from that complaint. Curiosity and a silent tongue seldom go together. "What good is a tongue to one who doesn't use it?" demands Peter, and that is a hard question to answer.

So early one morning, as Mrs. Robin was looking for just the right kind



"I want to know what you mean, Peter Rabbit!" she cried indignantly of dry grass near where Peter was sitting, he began putting that tongue of his to use.

"Mrs. Robin," said he "every time I see you I am surprised that you appear so neat and clean."

For a minute Mrs. Robin forgot all about dry grass and nest building. Her bright eyes snapped.

"I want to know what you mean, Peter Rabbit!" she cried indignantly. "Why shouldn't I appear neat and clean? Any one overhearing you might think that I have habits of untidiness. Explain yourself, Peter Rabbit!"

This Peter hastened to do.

"I didn't mean to even hint that you were not neat and clean, Mrs. Robin. Indeed, I didn't!" said he. "What I was thinking of was the way in which you shape your nest."

"Well, what about the way in which I shape my nest?" demanded Mrs. Robin. "What has that to do with keeping neat and clean?"

"Why, you make the walls of that nest of mud, don't you?" Peter asked.

"Certainly!" replied Mrs. Robin. "Certainly I make them of mud! I haven't been able to find anything else as good. But what has that to do with the subject?"

"Everything!" retorted Peter. "I wish you would explain to me how it is that even when you are just leaving that nest and have no time or place to clean your feathers, your feathers, your breast never seems to be the least bit muddy. It always appears to be clean and neat as if there were no such thing as mud. I don't see how you do it."

"For goodness sake, Peter Rabbit do talk sense!" exclaimed Mrs. Robin. "Just because I use mud in my nest there is no reason why I should daub myself all up with it. Why you should expect my breast to be soiled with mud is more than I can understand. I suppose you think it queer that my back isn't muddy too?"

"That is silly," declared Peter. "You don't use your back to work that mud into shape. Of course I don't expect your back to be muddy."

"And I don't use my breast to work that mud into shape, either!" retorted Mrs. Robin.

Peter sat erect and stared very hard at Mrs. Robin. "Now, what is the use of being untruthful?" he demanded.

"Who says I'm untruthful? Who says I'm untruthful, Peter Rabbit?"

My, how the bright eyes of Mrs. Robin snapped and how very angry she looked!

"Didn't you say that you don't use your breast in working that mud in your nest into shape?" demanded Peter.

"I said just that. What of it?" replied Mrs. Robin.

"Only that if I've seen you once I've seen you a dozen times shaping that nest with your breast," declared Peter.

"If I've seen you once!" mimicked Mrs. Robin. "Well, let me tell you, Peter Rabbit, you haven't seen me once doing anything of the kind. You haven't seen me because I don't do it. Now what have you to say?"

Peter was so surprised that he had to swallow three times before he could find his tongue. Then he certainly did put it to use.

Salvaging Lead

A man in California makes a living by picking up bird shot. He asks permission to salvage the shooting fields of gun clubs for bird shot. Then he scoops up the ground within a 200-yard radius of the shooting posts, sifts the shot from the dirt and melts it into bars for commercial use. His salvage from the old Vernon Club ground at Los Angeles amounted to more than $1,500.

Chamberlain of Norwich, besides four cousins. He was buried in the family lot at Winchester, Mass. He was a member of the Congregational church and grange of Melrose, Mass.

Alexander J. Sinay

The death of Alexander J. Sinay, 63, occurred suddenly at 11 o'clock Sunday morning at the home of his son, Edward A. on Poquonoc road, Groton. Mr. Sinay was born in Lorraine, Germany, but came to Florida with his parents when a small child. He was married, Oct. 29, 1882 to Adelia Kalmary and for a time their residence was in Linden, N. J., but soon after their marriage they removed to this city and lived in the Greeneville section for many years. For over 25 years Mr. Sinay was employed in the plant of the United States Finishing Co., and he had but recently removed to Groton.

He was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church until removal from this city when he transferred his membership to the Second Congregational church, New London. He belonged to no fraternal societies but found his chief interest in his home where he was a loving and considerate husband and father. He is survived by his wife and three sons, Edward A., Dr. Albert J., of Norwich and Henry R. Sinay of Kingston, Pa. A daughter, Adelia, died Oct. 7, 1918.

WEDDING

Hewes—Chapman

Miss Aurilla Gorton Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Chapman of Monument street, Groton, and Frank W. Hewes, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Hewes of Thames street, Groton, were married at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of the bride. The wedding march was played by Miss Mildred Thompson and the double ring ceremony was solemnized by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church. The house was attractively decorated, a bower of green being arranged in one corner of the parlor where the ceremony was performed in the presence of about 35 guests who were immediate relatives.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white canton crepe with princess lace and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Tizrah Long of Providence, R. I., the bride's cousin, was the maid of honor, wearing pink georgette and carrying sweet peas. Tyson C. Hewes, brother of the bride was best man.

Miss Chapman is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy, class of 1919, and attended Columbia university, New York. She has been teaching in the kindergarten of the Groton Heights school and is a prominent figure in local society circles.

Mr. Hewes is a graduate of the Pomfret preparatory school and took a year's course in the medical school at the University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Hewes will make their home in Thames street, Groton, upon their return from a honeymoon trip.

Parker-Carpenter

At Christ Episcopal church Saturday morning at 10 o'clock Miss Mildred Lillian Carpenter of Fort Point and Chester A. Parker of No. 27 Rogers avenue, were united in marriage by Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of the church. The church was decorated in Easter floral effects.

The bridesmaid was Miss Alice Avery and the best man was Edgar Parker, brother of the groom. The bride was charmingly gowned in a peadre soie canton crepe dress and carried a shower bouquet of roses. Her bridesmaid was also charmingly gowned in flesh canton crepe and carried pink roses.

After the wedding ceremony a breakfast was served at the home of the bridesmaid, Miss Alice Avery at No. 12 Alice street. About 25 guests were present at the breakfast.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beaded mesh bag and the bride's gift to the groom was a Masonic watch charm. The groom presented the best man a ring and the bride presented a ring to the bridesmaid.

Mr. Parker is the son of Mrs. F. H. Parker and has made his home with his mother, at No. 27 Rogers avenue. He is a well known musician, a member of Nemrod Grotto and is employed by Lee & Osgood. His bride is the daughter of John D. and Jane Partridge Carpenter and has made her home with her parents at Fort Point. Upon their return from a wedding trip to Boston and other places Mr. and Mrs. Parker will reside in a newly furnished home at No. 47 Bentley avenue.

START PLANS TO RECEIVE ST. MARY'S PASTOR UPON RETURN FROM ROME

Plans were put in motion Monday night at a meeting of fifty of the members of St. Mary's parish for a testimonial to Rev. W. A. Keefe, rector of the church, upon his return from Rome where he has been making the holy year. The parish was divided into twenty districts and organization was effected so that a canvass will be made to reach every house in the parish. This will begin (this) Tuesday evening.

Father Keefe is expected home the last of this month. Tentative plans were made for a reception and the presentation of a gift in St. Mary's Memorial hall. A spirit of marked enthusiasm pervaded the meeting and the preliminary details will be pushed with vigor from now on. Rev. F. M. Coholan was chairman of the meeting and is general chairman of the committee of canvassers.

Visitors at Mooseheart Legion.

Norwich chapter, No. 124, Women of Mooseheart Legion, held its regular business meeting last week at the Moose Home with the senior regent, Mrs. Mary Hunter, in the chair. Mrs. Blanche Hancock and Mrs. Dossie Johnson of Galeton (Penn.) lodge, were present as guests and made very interesting remarks on Mooseheart. The auditing committee met previous to the business session and reported the lodge to be in good standing. After the meeting refreshments were served by a committee of which Mrs. Nora Willett was chairman.

GOVERNOR GUEST AT BALL AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, April 13—Gov. Trumbull and his staff were in this city this evening, the guests at the ball of the American Legion. Gov. Trumbull arrived at 7:30 and was met by Mayor Waldo Clarke. The party were the guests of citizens at the Mohican hotel from 8:30 to 9:30 when they went to the armory. At a dinner served in the English room of the hotel there were gathered representative citizens, military officials, army and navy officers and professional and business men. The dinner was served during the hour or more which was at the disposal of the visitors, and when coffee was reached, Mayor Clarke introduced the governor who spoke briefly saying that it was a pleasure to be with his friends here. He declared Mayor Clarke a booster of the town and said he had told him about the newspapers, the fine beach, the commercial and industrial facilities of the city and had pictured the town as one in which it was a pleasure to reside. He said he hoped to have the opportunity to spend some time here in the summer and then he would have Mayor Clarke make good in all that he had said of New London. "But," said the governor, "I think he can do that." Mayor Clarke then called on "Jim" Danforth, meaning the pastor of the First Church of Christ. Dr. Danforth responded with his usual wit and in happy vein. He likened the governor to the Nutmeg that was good only when it grew to size. He said Gov. Trumbull had a staff to lean on and that staff was such as he could rely upon. He said he was the only lieutenant governor who had been chosen to that office and had become a full governor," for said the reverend speaker, "all married men are but lieutenant governors, really, but we have a chosen lieutenant governor who is a real governor." He pointed out that the governor was giving the people what they desired "a business administration." He said this state was known as the land of people of steady habits, and said he believed those steady habits would become habitual and that the state would thrive and prosper under the guidance of the governor, the descendant of the original governor Jonathan Trumbull.

Dr. Danforth was followed by Lieut. Leslie Arnold and Lieut. Wade, world fliers, who spoke briefly because the time was limited. They referred to their trip in flying around the world, and the former referred to Lieut. Wade as the pessimist of the crew that went through the air the circumference of the world. Lieut. Wade spoke of the experience the party had when Arnold was kept pumping till he could exert no more power, and said that he did his full share toward making the world-circling trip a success.

The party went from the hotel to the armory and there met other friends and enjoyed the dancing to excellent music till after midnight.

WHALING BANK OUTLIVES OLD WHALING TIMES

In the April issue of The Financial Digest contains the following sketch of the Lawrence family and the National Whaling bank of New London:

If some day you chance to be in New London, Conn.—that picturesque old New England seaport, which boasts the finest harbor on the Atlantic coast—by all means drop down to Bank street and visit the National Whaling bank. And if it is after banking hours, seek out the Jibboom club nearby, where the talk is of the whaling days that have gone by.

For the National Whaling bank—the only one of its kind in the United States or very likely the world, for that matter, was born, as the name indicates, in an epoch that gave to American maritime history many of its most colorful pages.

Those were the days—back in 1830—when the doughty whalers casually threw off their lines and sailed to far-off, almost unknown places in the Arctic seas in search of whale. A year—sometimes years—passed before the vessels loaded down with their valuable cargoes of oil, were reported at the Thames mouth and made their way triumphantly up the river to the docks of their owners. To read of the many adventures of these whalers that sailed the Seven Seas is to be transported to a romantic yesterday.

New London was then second only to New Bedford as the country's whaling center. Yankee skippers, swarthy Portuguese and negro sailors from the Western Islands, off Africa, swarmed the narrow streets. Strange tongues were heard on all sides. The waterfront coffee houses and cafes of the period were crowded with seamen, spending their hard-earned wages with a reckless abandon that knew no tomorrow. There was a din of hammer and sledge blows as ship repairs were made. Drays, laden with stores, moved heavily to the river. Clerks from the quaint, dingy offices of the whaling agents and ship owners darted through the bustle and confusion of the docks. And in the offices around tables of polished mahogany sat the agents and ship owners themselves, planning new voyages.

But let a story of New London's whaling days be told here for the first time—the true story of the Italian sea captain who founded one of America's most unusual banks, an institution which became a national bank in 1863 under the national system and which is a member of the Federal Reserve System today. And it is necessary to go back not to the early history of New London, but to Venice, the Queen City of the Adriatic.

Venice was the home of the Lorenzo family which traced its ancestry back to the early days of the city which for centuries was the capital of the first maritime and commercial state in the world. The Lorenzos had gone to sea for centuries. Their ships were known in all ports of the Mediterranean and in the Far East. Their warehouses were filled with silks and spices of the Orient. Although the family fortune, descended from generation to generation, was made smaller because of the now nameless wars and piracy, the Lorenzos always were wealthy and were among the leading citizens of Venice. Turning the pages of the Lorenzo family history rapidly, we find that in 1750 the name was still highly regarded there. The Lorenzos were still ship owners and there was one who had more vessels than all the rest. He was the father of Guiseppe Lorenzo.

It was natural that Guiseppe Lorenzo should follow the sea. He was born January 12, 1788 in Venice. One can picture him a slender curly headed boy playing on his father's ships and talking with the sailors, as young Columbus. His father did not object to his son's fondness for the sea, although many Lorenzos had found their graves there or had lost their lives defending their property against pirates. So Guiseppe was allowed to go on voyages long before he was sixteen years old and at that age he sailed from Venice for America. The ship is believed to have gone to Baltimore, where, so far as is known, the Italian youth remained.

Young Lorenzo was an apt navigator, despite his youth, and while still in his teens became a ship's officer. He was in command of his own vessel by the time he became of age. Lorenzo, it appears, never returned to Venice, being content to serve under the Stars and Stripes. Certainly he did his share in those years after the Revolution in adding to the glory of the Yankee merchant marine. Out to China and the East Indies his ship went. Short trips never appealed to him; the long voyages to the other side of the globe and back to North Atlantic ports suited him better. Besides, he was naturally adventurous. And then again the voyages to the Far East were high-profitable.

However, no longer was he known as Guiseppe Lorenzo. Transalting his name literally into English, he had become Joseph Lawrence. The sailors on his ship—for he was a martinet in maritime etiquette—addressed him respectfully as "Captain Lawrence."

One day Captain Lawrence sailed his ship into New London harbor. There was a warm welcome awaiting him, as on a previous trip he had married there. This was in 1819. The voyages to the Far East, now that he had married, lost their attraction to the young captain who was only thirty years old. New London was to be his home until his death. And it was in the little town on the Thames that Lawrence found something that paid better than a captain's berth. And that was the whaling and sealing industry.

Long before this New Londoners had been interested in whaling but trips were confined mostly to near-by catches in Long Island Sound and the farthest known trip was to the Banks of Newfoundland. It was in the year of 1805 that the whaling industry really became a factor in New London and obtained the deep-rooted place from which it was not dislodged until nearly a half-century later. Lawrence became an important figure in whaling just as it started to be conducted on a wide scale and it did not take him long to assume aleading role in such enterprises.

The Joseph Lawrence not only could chart the courses of a vessel to any part of the world but was equally adept as a business man. It was not many years before he owned outright a fleet of fifteen whaling vessels, all of which returned him large profits. His business tact and daring enabled him to lay the foundation for a large fortune. His ships blazed trails. They were the pioneers in opening up new whaling fields. His brig the Atlantic, was the first American vessel to enter the Sea of Okhotsk, Siberia, and after this success was known, more than thirty American whalers entered those waters with success the following season. During his career as whaling merchant the Atlantic also netted him his largest production from a single voyage, returning from the Sea of Okhotsk with a cargo of 6,500 barrels of oil and 80,000 pounds of whalebone. The majority of the ships of the Lawrence fleet however, sought whale south of the Indian Ocean, the South Atlantic and off the coast of Patagonia. With seal oil in heavy demand in the states voyages were also outfitted to catch these animals which were common in those waters. Joseph Lawrence continued actively in business until 1847 when his sons, Francis W. Lawrence and Sebastian D. Lawrence succeeded him.

It was in 1832 that Joseph Lawrence conceived the idea of starting a bank in New London, which would satisfy the demand for increased banking facilities caused by the increase of the whaling industry. In partnership with Coddington Billings and John Brandegee, grandfather of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut—he established The Whaling Bank, which was conducted under state law. Lawrence was one of the leading stockholders and was chairman of the board until his death. Mr. Billings became first president and was succeeded by Peter C. Turner, who held office until 1863 when the bank became a national bank and Sebastian D. Lawrence became president.

Joseph Lawrence died at New London April 5, 1872. There are some pages in his life's history which are missing and which gave rise in the New London of his day and afterwards of surmises, as to his career previous to coming to New London. As was told he settled in New London in 1819, after the war of 1812. In that second struggle with England the British navy was able to drive American ships temporarily from the seas. There was only one way for the United States to retaliate and that was by privateer warfare. Empowered with letters of marque and reprisal, privateering was legal. It was rumored in New London that Joseph Lawrence not only fitted out privateers but commanded one himself during the war of 1812. If so, only another fact to be added to his unusual career.

There is a story that one day Lawrence went down to his wharves to inspect a whaler that had just arrived. He found the crew gathered anxiously around the ship's carpenter, who had struck his hand with a hammer, the hand bleeding considerably.

The sailors heard a snort of disdain and turned to find the owner.

"Nothing to get excited about, men," he said. "You should have been on a ship I once commanded. Then the scuppers ran with blood."

The Lawrence brothers, after taking over the business, continued to send out many whaling vessels from 1847 to the outbreak of the Civil War.

About 1847, however, the industry began to decline. Carried away by their great success many owners attempted to extend the trade beyond the limits it could successfully handle. The market was depressed and whales were scarce. The great blow came with the gold rush to California, boats being taken from the trade and transferred to carrying passengers around the Horn. There was a slight revival in 1851 but it was the last effort of a dying industry to keep alive. The use of camphene and later of petroleum as an illuminating oil killed the trade.

The Whaling bank was originally incorporated with a capital of 6,000 shares ($25 par value) and this $150,000 capitalization has remained unchanged up to the present day. Around 4,000 of the shares are owned in New London and Groton across the Thames river, while about 1,000 shares have found their way out west, principally in California, Ohio, and New York state. The market price is about $90 a share and the stock has a book value at present of around $115. Between 1879 and 1919 dividends were never less than ten per cent. In the latter years the rate became 12 per cent. and only on July 1, 1923 was raised to 14 per cent. There are about 140 shareholders.

His brother, Francis, having died, Sebastian D. Lawrence remained the last of the family. Inheriting the family fortune, he was until his death, which occurred in 1909, one of Connecticut's wealthiest men. It remained for him to send out whaling vessels long after the industry had practically disappeared. In 1881 the Lawrence barque Trinity left New London and sailed to the Indian ocean on a whaling cruise, only to be wrecked on Heard's Island, a tiny speck in mid-ocean. Every every to relieve the crew proved unsuccessful and finally government aid was sought. One of President Arthur's first official acts was to send a vessel for the relief of the seamen. The last vessel to carry the Lawrence banner was the Charles Colgate, which made a whaling voyage as late as 1887. This ship was one of the most successful that ever sailed the high seas in quest of whale and seal. Sebastian D. Lawrence was the last of the Lawrences. He left no children. With him the direct line passed away.

Another interesting fact about the bank is that it still occupies the same quarters as it did in 1832. The banking rooms were at first rented but the bank later bought the building. While there is every convenience necessary for modern banking no attempt has been made to modernize the interior which surprises visitors by its crudeness and quaint charm of an elder day.

On the walls are pictures of old whaling vessels and scenes from expeditions are painted on the walls. President Coppin's private office is in the rear of the building overlooking the broad and deep Thames.

Where in Joseph Lawrence's time one could look out of that window and see the whalers, one now sees navy submarines gliding swiftly out to sea and the big white Sound Steamer whose destination is not the whaling grounds but Modern Manhattan.

504-Pound Boy

A boy, aged 14, named Paul Merlaud, living in the Vendee village of Bernardiere, France, when weighed on his last birthday was found to tip the scale at 504 pounds and he is still growing. He has put on 42 pounds during the last year.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain — the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary trouble and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS GO INTO ACTION TODAY IN FIGHT FOR 1925 PENNANTS

New York, April 13—(By the A. P.)—Eight immaculate baseball battlefields are ready for war and sixteen well conditioned armies await the zero hour tomorrow.

America's national game, buried under football gridirons and board tracks during the winter months, bursts forth once again in all its glory—the sun pouring into the bleachers, the fans cheering and hooting at once, and the players, grimy and sweating in the conflict.

West meets West and East meets East in the bouts tomorrow, the first of a warfare which will endure for six months. The ranks in the early days will be depleted by injuries and illness, but will come to full strength when the sun is warmest.

As this seasonal conflict gets under way the eyes of a quarter million enthusiasts will be upon the foes. The New York Yankee's stadium, baseball's greatest structure, expected to receive the largest throng, for there Washington, the world champions of 1924—led by the indomitable young general, Stanley Harris—will do battle with the Yankees, for the three preceding years champions of the American League, and of the world in 1923.

Today's Games.

Meanwhile, the National League's champions, the Giants, encounter the Braves of Boston at the gigantic park in Allston, where another enthusiastic throng is predicted. The opening day games are as follows:

American League:

Washington at New York.
Chicago at Detroit.
Cleveland at St. Louis.
Boston at Philadelphia.

National League:

New York at Boston.
Pittsburgh at Chicago.
Philadelphia at Brooklyn
St. Louis at Cincinnati.

For the second time in three seasons the campaign will be started without the greatest of home run hitters, Babe Ruth, in the lineup of the Yankees. Two years ago Ruth was disciplined by Commissioner K. M. Landis for participating in barnstorming excursions after the regular season. He appeared after several weeks of the schedule had elapsed. Today, the Yankee outfielder lies on a hospital cot suffering the after effects of influenza.

Cobb and Maranville Out.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, for nine years the American League's leading batter, is also victim of illness, while the irritable Walter (Rabbit) Maranville, formerly of the Braves and Pirates, will be unable to take his position with the Chicago cubs, having suffered a broken leg in training. Denver Grigsby of the Cubs has a broken collarbone. Joe Hauser, first baseman of the Athletics, has a broken knee cap. Fred Heimach of the Athletics has a sprained right shoulder and numerous smaller injuries will handicap the clubs at the start.

Another face that has been familiar to baseball followers for many years will be missing—that of Stuffy McInnis, first baseman with the old Athletics, brilliant outfielder and a player who went through an entire season with only one error. McInnis has been released unconditionally by the Boston Braves for his refusal to accept a cut in salary and report to the training camp.

New Faces to be Seen.

But there will be new figures. Jim Poole, slugger of the Pacific Coast League, has come from Portland to take the maimed Hauser's place with the Mackmen and Gordon Cochrane, Boston University graduate, will be catching for the Athletics. Dick Cox may be in the Brooklyn outfield, Frank Walker in the Giants' gardens, and Hari Combs, injured a year ago, will be alongside Bob Meusel in the Yankees' outer defense.

The Phillies, in an endeavor to step out of the second division, have added several minor league stars, among whom is "Chicken" Hakkes, once a substitute first baseman for the Yankees. Brooklyn has purchased a clever American Association left-hander in Jess Petty. The Cubs, attempting to fill the shoes of Maranville, have obtained Jim McAuley, of Los Angeles.

Pennant Predictions.

Close followers of the game appear to agree in the prediction that the Yankees, Senators and Tigers will fight for the American League pennant, with the possibility that George Sisler will bring fire to a smouldering St. Louis club.

In the National League the Giants, Pirates and Dodgers with again a threat from St. Louis, are expected to race neck and neck down the stretch.

ST. LOUIS TEAMS ARE OPTIMISTIC OVER PROSPECTS

St. Louis, Mo., April 13—Confidence and optimism are the dominant characteristics of St. Louis' two major league teams this season.

Strengthened by the addition of seasoned veterans obtained in trades, by the promising performances of several youngsters, the Browns and Cardinals seem better fortified for this year's campaign than ever before.

Although deprecating the absence of Bill Jacobson, a holdout, George Sisler, manager of the Browns, believes that the improvement in four separate departments of his team will more than offset the absence of his star center-fielder.

His pitching staff, Sisler thinks, has been considerably strengthened by the acquisition of Joe Bush, Milton Gaston and Joe Giard obtained from the New York Yankees this winter, and by the improvement shown in the condition of other members of the staff. With the veteran Severeid, and the youngster Dixon, alternating behind the bat, the Browns' manager has a catching staff comparable to any. The third base problem seems well taken care of by Robertson.

The improvement in Sisler's own condition is a source of gratification. "Much stronger in a couple of positions and every man fit to go," was Manager Branch Rickey's summation of the Cardinals this year. Rickey also believes he has the best club this season that he had had in many years.

Rickey pointed to the improvement in his catching and infield, while his pitching and outfield, apparently is much stronger than last year. He commented on the excellent morale of his team.

PHILADELPHIA TEAMS IN FINE SHAPE FOR OPENING

Philadelphia, April 13—Despite injuries to some of their players, both Philadelphia major league baseball teams are in good condition for the opening of the season. Both have added new players and are confident of improving their standing in the race for the pennants.

Connie Mack's Athletics will open the American League season in their renovated park at 21st and Lehigh streets. The visiting team will be the Boston Red Sox. The Athletics have added a new battery that is reputed to have cost $150,000. It is composed of "Lefty" Groves, from Baltimore and Gordon Cochrane from Portland.

To off-set the injury to Joe Hauser who broke his kneecap in the spring series with Phillies, Manager Mack has signed Jim Poole of Portland. The American Leaguers also have several rookies of promise, including Fox, a young catcher, Smith a short-stop, and French and Bagwell outfielders.

The Phillies also have several new men. Manager Fletcher is much impressed with the work of Huber at third and is planning to use Fonseca at second base. In the outfield George Burns, formerly of the Giants and Reds, has won a permanent berth in the local line up.

"I am confident that my team is better than last year's combination, and hope to make a real fight for a first division berth," said Fletcher after winning the city title from the Athletics.

Connie Mack was rather reluctant to make predictions, but is looking forward to a good season. "Last year I figured on second place, and was forced to be satisfied with a second division berth," said Mack. "This year we are not making predictions but are planning to go out and win enough ball games to make the fans forget the years we have spent in the cellar."

WHITE SOX PROSPECTS BRIGHT, CUBS' ARE NOT SO GOOD

Chicago, April 13.—(By the Associated Press)—Sparkling prospects for the White Sox, and a staggering handicap of injuries for the Cubs are the opening day outlook for Chicago's two major league baseball teams.

With Eddie Collins, for almost 20 years star second baseman of the American league, as manager, the morale of the sox has reached its highest pitch since the revelations of the 1919 World Series scandal wrecked the team.

On the north side, despite the big winter trade of players with Pittsburgh, the Cubs open the season with Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, the star of the swap, disabled by a broken ankle and their infield plans wrecked. Grigsby, regular outfielder, will be on the sidelines beside the "Rabbit," with a broken collar bone.

Charlie Grimm, the ex-pirate first sacker, and southpaw Wilbur Cooper, the other principal figures in the trade, are in fine form, and with Grover Cleveland Alexander, the pitching mainstay of the Cubs fully recovered from his injured wrist of last season, the Cubs hope to be favored with effective twirling.

The White Sox pitching staff is little changed and their success may rest largely on the condition of the veterans, Red Faber and Charley Robertson, who had a disappointing season last year. The supporting cast of boxmen, however, have had the benefit of another year of major league seasoning and Cecil Thurston hopes to better his last season record of ten victories in a row.

The weakness in the Sox lineup last fall as shortstop has been remedied by the signing of Ike Davis, a veteran from the Columbus American Association team. The most promising recruit, Manager Collins believes, is Harris, a heavy hitting outfielder from the Southern association.

When the Cubs lost the services of Maranville temporarily, they located McAuley, star of the Los Angeles coast league team, to fill his place. Maranville plans to suplement McAuley's fielding by his presence on the coaching lines.

REDS HAVE TEAM OF SAME STRENGTH AS 1924

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 13,—(By the Associated Press)—The Cincinnati Reds embark on the 1925 championship season with a club whose strength is virtually the same as that which carried them to fourth place last year.

The shade of difference favoring this spring's outfit is due to the smoothly working quartet of infielders, Bressler, Critz, Pinelli and Cavency, generally conceded to rank with the best in the league. Defensively, the infield promises much and Bressler and Pinelli are consistently effective hitters.

Otherwise the Reds look much as they did in the midst of the 1924 scramble. Manager Jack Hendricks has at his disposal the same assemblage of capable pitching material. Mays, Rixey, Donohue and Benton went last summer's route in good fashion and, with good reserve material available for the rough spots, should be able to handle the season.

The outfield, headed by Captain Eddie Roush, is excellent. But the Reds are starting the race with an admitted deficiency in reserves. In Zitsman and Walker, however, Hendricks has two fast, clean hitting outfielders and a valuable addition to the batting order in Elmer Smith.

Barring difficulties, Hargrave and Wingo are amply capable of handling the work behind the plate. They came back from the training season in fine condition.

The Reds returned from the south in high spirits and despite the absence of reserve strength, the morale of the club is just good enough to indicate the Reds may better their season-end post of 1924.

RUTH WILL REMAIN IN BED AS YANKS BATTLE

New York, April 13—As the Yankees fare forth tomorrow in their opening drive for the American League pennant, the mighty bat of Babe Ruth will lie sealed in its canvas bag in the New York dugout, with its owner an unwilling prisoner-patient in the hospital.

Although the champion hitter of the circuit asked to be released for the initial game of the race, physicians, who found him with a temperature of 100, ordered him to remain in bed.

Instead of cheering his mates on the bench as he had hoped, he will be obliged to follow the tide of the diamond battle by telephone and then read the details later in the newspapers.

YOUNG BLOOD IN BOSTON TEAMS THIS YEAR

Boston, April 13—Liberal injections of new and younger blood resulting in a 50 per cent better showing by both baseball clubs on the southern proving grounds this spring, give promise that in the major league season opening Tuesday, Boston's cellar and near cellar performances of recent years may be succeeded by an upward swing. Neither manager would predict where his team would finish on the eve of the opening of the campaign.

Lee Fohl, Manager of the Red Sox of the American league, said that his pitching will be as good as a year ago and probably better and that the team's third base and shortstop defenses will be improved.

"We have added youth and speed to our team in so many new positions," said Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves of the National League, "that we are sure to be a more colorful, more interesting, and, I hope, more successful team than last season when we finished last."

The Braves will start six new regulars in the outfield and the infield and have little left to remind fans of the failures of other years. The new outfield includes Neis of Brooklyn, in left; Harris of the Piedmont league, in center; and Jim Welsh, who cost the Braves $50,000 when he came from Seattle in right. In the infield, Fred Lucas former pitcher is playing second, Mariot from Mobile is at third and Dick Burrus at first. Jess Barnes, Cooney, in the infield, Fred Lucas, former Pitcher, is playing second, Marriott from Mobile is at third and Dick Burrus at first. Jess Barnes, Cooney, Genewich, Graham, Kamp, Marquard; Benton and McNamara are pitchers.

For virtually every berth, the Red Sox have mustered two men. Ernie Vache of Dallas is a notable addition in left field. Bill Rogell of Salina, is fighting Connelly for second base. Ehmke will head the pitchers, who include Quinn, Ferguson, Ross, Winnfield, together with Ruffing, and Lucey and Kallio, newcomers.

MCTIGUE AND BERLENBACH MATCHED FOR TITLE BOUT

New York, April 13—Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, tonight signed a contract to meet Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, in a fifteen round match at the Yankee stadium, May 29, as the headliner for the annual milk fund bouts, according to an announcement by Tex Rickard.

The match will be for the world's championship. It will mark the first time since 1923, when McTigue fought Young Stribling in Georgia, that the 175 pound champion has parted the ropes to defend the title he won by outpointing Battling Siki in Dublin, March 17, 1923.

McTigue met Rickard this afternoon and immediately came to terms, accepting a far lower percentage than had been reported he would demand, Rickard said. Berlenbach, he said, signed a contract for the match Saturday.

Rickard will take the match before the state athletic commission tomorrow to seek official approval. McTigue was recently reinstated by the commission with the stipulation that he would meet any opponent the commission selected within 60 days of the reinstatement.

PIRATES UPSET BY INJURIES TO PLAYERS

Pittsburgh, April 13—With the opening of the baseball season one day away, Manager McKechnie, of the Pittsburgh Nationals, finds himself unable to select his lineup for the first game because of injuries or two regular players.

Niehaus, first baseman, and Moore, second sacker, hurt during the training season, may not be ready for the fray. Grantham, for second base, and Ens, for first, are favored to replace the regulars.

The Pirates have an untried infield but their followers believe the team will finish well up in the race if the youngsters make good.

Niehaus will make his start in fast company while Wright, shortstop, and Moore, at second, are serving their second season. Traynor, at third, is relied upon to play his usual sterling game.

Yde, Meadows, Morrison, Kremer and Adams form a dependable pitching staff. Aldridge has not yet signed a contract. Gooch and Smith will do the bulk of the catching.

McKechnie has a fleet-footed hard-hitting outfield in Carey, Bigbee, Cuyler, Grantham and Barnhart.

PHILLIES WIN QUAKER CITY DIAMOND TITLE

Philadelphia, April 13—The Philadelphia Nationals won the final game of the city championship series from the Athletics, 8 to 3, getting to Willis, a Mack rookie twirler, for seven runs in the first inning. In the remaining seven innings Andrews and Meeker held the Phillies to a lone run, but the Mackmen were unable to add to their three runs which were scored off Oeschger in the first inning. The final series count stands five to two in favor of the Phillies.

Score by innings:

Philadelphia (A) 300 000 000—3 8..0
Philadelphia (N) 700 001 00x—8 11 1

Willis, Andrews, Meeker and Cochrane, Perkins; Oeschger, Mitchell Knight and Henline, Wendell.

BULKELEY—SUB BASE GAME WAS POSTPONED

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 13.—Bulkeley remained inactive this afternoon. The scheduled contest with the Submarine Base nine at the latter's grounds was cancelled by the joint agreement of the two managers late today. The weather conditions which did not favor the playing of the game was given as the reason, and another being the indisposition of three of the first team players on the Bulkeley team which would make it impossible to have the high school nine enter its strongest possible lineup in the fray.

NURMI IS SUSPENDED BY WESTERN ASSOCIATION FOR FAILING AT ST. LOUIS

New York, April 13.—Paavo Nurmi, Olympic middle distance running champion, has been suspended by the Western Association of the Amateur Athletic Union for failure to appear at the Knights of Columbus games in St. Louis yesterday.

Word of action was received by the national president, Murray Hulbert, today from Robert Probts, chairman of the Western registration committee.

Nurmi, who suffered from a cold in his recent races in Ottawa and Detroit, is now at the home of a relative here. Secretary Frederick W Rubien, of the A. A. U. made a personal investigation and wired the St Louis officials that he was reluctant to insist that Nurmi make the journey.

President Hulbert, on receipt of the news that the Finn had been suspended, telegraphed a request that the Western Association reconsider its action. In case this move fails a vote of the national registration committee will be sought in order that the wonder runner may complete his schedule which calls for appearances on the Pacific coast.

CLEVELAND HAS STRONGEST TEAM SINCE 1921

Cleveland, April 13.—(By the A. P.)—Well protected in all departments, with prospects of the best pitching staff in several years, the Cleveland Indians form the strongest team which has represented this city since 1921, in the opinion of President E. S. Barnard.

Indications are, however, that three regulars, First Baseman Burns, Third Baseman Lutzke and Outfielder Summa, will be out of the opening game Tuesday, on account of sore arms or other disabilities.

Manager Speaker says he has the best array of left handed pitchers that ever wore a Cleveland uniform. He is also well supplied with substitutes. Predicting that Fred Spurgeon, New Orleans recruit, will prove one of the finds of the year.

Indications are that the pitching staff will be composed of Smith, Edwards, Shaute, Buckeye and Yowell. Miller or Clarke, left handers, and Uhle, Speece, Karr, Levsen and Lehr or Luther Roy, righthanders. All are in good condition, except Levsen who has not rounded into form.

Spurgeon is capable of playing short, second or third, is fast on the bases and a splendid fielder and batter. Bob Knode, first baseman, probably will alternate with George Burns when a right handed pitcher opposes the Indians.

The outfielders will be chosen from Stephenson, Lee and Smith, right handed batters, and Summa, Hendrick and McNulty, left handers.

"STUFFY M'INNIS IS GIVEN HIS UNCONDITIONAL RELEASE

Boston, April 13.—"Stuffy" McInnis, first baseman of the Boston Braves, who refused to go south with the National League Club this spring on account of a salary cut, has been unconditionally released, according to an announcement tonight by Emil Fuchs, vice president of the club.

In making his announcement tonight, Judge Fuchs said;

"In view of the long service of "Stuffy" McInnis and in order that he may give his services to any club which shall offer him the best terms and to his best advantage, and interest, the Boston National League Club has today given Player John P. McInnis his unconditional release."

The contract sent to McInnis at his home in Manchester, Mass., this season mentioning a smaller figure than was paid him in 1924 and he insisted that the former salary be restored. The first intimation that he was to hold-out came when the Braves' management announced on March 3, that he would not leave for the south on the training trip.

McInnis played with the Braves for two seasons, coming to Boston from Cleveland.

COBB BELIEVES TIGERS WILL WIN PENNANT

Detroit, April 13—(By the Associated Press)—Ty Cobb believes that his Detroit Tigers will win the American league pennant this year, basing his belief as much on the team's reserve strength as upon the regulars themselves. Johnny Neun, Tavener and Haney, Cobb believes, not only will be available for infield duty when needed, but also can be depended upon as pinch hitters.

The Tigers club is virtually the same that finished in third place last year. Heilman, Cobb and Manush will be in the outfield, Blue, O'Rourke Rigney and Jones in the infield, and Bassler and Woodall will catch.

An attack of influenza will probably keep Cobb out of the lineup in Tuesday's opening and either Wingo or Fothergill will replace him.

Manager Cobb announced at Louisville tonight that "Rip" Collins would start the initial game with "Dutch" Leonard and Earl Whitehill next in line.

MASCART TO BE BANNED IF HE FIGHTS DUNDEE

Paris, April 13.—Edouard Mascart, featherweight champion of Europe, who is now in the United States seeking a bout with "Kid" Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., faces disqualification in all the French rings should he meet Johnny Dundee June 2. Mascart has written home that a bout with Dundee is being arranged.

The French boxing federation does not desire to take action until contracts actually are signed for a bout between Mascart and Dundee, but the French boxer will be informed of the federation's decision immediately after he signs.

The French boxing federation does not consider the reinstatement of Dundee by the New York state commission as binding upon it. It is maintained that the disbarment of Dundee last January when he left the United States without having fulfilled a contract to meet Fred Bretonnel in Paris is still effective. Mascart has written to friends here that he has been given a match against "Young" Travers in Philadelphia and "Red" Chapman of Boston, and that if he survives in both these bouts he will be matched to meet Dundee June 2.

MUNN TO MAKE TOUR OF EUROPEAN CITIES

New York, April 13.—Wayne "Big" Munn, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship by virtue of a victory over Ed Strangler Lewis, is in New York to discuss contracts for a three months tour of Europe for a cash guarantee of $100,000.

Munn, accompanied by his manager, Gabe Kaufman, conferred with Max Kuhn, today relative to the tour which will start June 1 and continue until September 1 during which time Munn will be called upon to wrestle Europe's best grapplers without once risking his world's title.

Munn wrestles Zybyszko in Philadelphia Wednesday night, and meet Lundun in Boston on Thursday night. Munn said plans for a return match with Lewis at Michigan City, Ind., were indefinite.

RED SOX-BRAVES GAME OFF BECAUSE OF COLD WEATHER

Boston, April 13.—The Red Sox were deprived of a chance to avenge their 4 to 3 defeat at the hands of the Braves last Saturday when the second game of the city series, scheduled for Fenway Park this afternoon, was called off because of cold weather. The Sox leave tonight for their league opener at Philadelphia tomorrow, while the Braves tarry to welcome the New York Giants on their home grounds, if the weather moderates.

POETRY

"I Saw Two Clouds at Morning"

I saw two clouds at morning,
Tinged by the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one;
I wish that morning cloud was blest,
It moved so sweetly to the west.

I saw two summer currents
Flow smoothly to their meeting,
And join their course with silent force,
In peace each other greeting;
Calm was their course, through banks of green,
While dimpling eddies played between.

Such be your gentle motion,
Till life's last pulse shall beat;
Like summer's beam, and summer's stream,
Float on, in joy, to meet
A calmer sea, where storms shall cease
A purer sky, where all is peace.
—John Gardiner Calkins Brainard

Of an Orchard

Good is an Orchard, the Saint saith,
To mediate on life and death,
With a cool well, a hive of bees,
A hermit's grot below the trees.

Good is an Orchard; very good,
Though one should wear no monkish hood.
Right good, when Spring awakes her flute,
And good in yellowing time of fruit.

Very good in the grass to lie
And see the network 'gainst the sky,
A living lace of blue and green,
And boughs that let the gold between.

The bees are types of souls that dwell
With honey in a quiet cell;
The ripe fruit figures goldenly
Man's perfection in God's eye.

Love and praise in a country home,
Love and fruit; a man might come,
Were such meats, to walk abroad,
And in the Orchard talk with God.
—Kathryn Tynan.

WESTERLY

Harley P. Chase Post, No. 1265, of Pawcatuck, Veterans of Foreign Wars held their first annual Easter Monday ball at the State armory on Dixon street Monday night and the informal dance was largely attended. The drill-shed hall was decorated with flags, purple and white festoons. Beneath the balcony, in which the Crandall-Sutcliffe orchestra played for dancing from 8:30 to 12 o'clock, was hung an illuminated shield, of coat-of-arms, of the Foreign Wars Veterans.

The success of the evening gives the Veterans of Chase post encouragement to make the Easter Monday ball an annual social event for the post. Among the members of the committee in charge were Raymond J. Moore, chairman, E. George Marr, M. J. McCarthy, Thomas McGowan, Clarence Maxwell, James Reale, and Robert Kenyon.

The Pawcatuck Board of Trade held its April meeting in Vets hall in the Watlon block on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, Monday evening at 8 o'clock. SICK WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Can Be Carried Comfortably Over The Critical Period by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound —Note Mrs. Headden's Case

Macon, Georgia. — "During the Change of Life I suffered with my whole right side and could not lie on my left side. I was in bed about two months and could not get up only as my son would lift me. After doctoring without relief a man who was rooming with us told my son that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured his mother at the Change of Life, so I began taking your medicine. After taking it for two weeks I could get out of my bed by myself. I am now 53 years old and in better health and stronger than ever in my life. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to many suffering women, young and old, and you may use my name anywhere as long as you please. I will be glad to answer any letters sent to me." — Mrs. F. B. HEADDEN. 5 Holt Avenue, Macon, Georgia.

In a recent country-wide canvass of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, over 200,000 replies were received and 98 out of every 100 reported they had been benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Why the United States Rubber Company's New Flat "Low-Pressure Tread" on Balloon Tires Prevents Early and Uneven Tread Wear

Compare these two tread imprints— They tell the whole story of Balloon Tire performance on the road

THESE tread imprints were made by two Balloon Tires of exactly the same size. Both under the same load. Both inflated at the same air-pressure.

Yet one shows 22% more road contact than the other.

Here you see one of the outstanding advantages of the new flat "Low-Pressure Tread," one of the greatest achievements ever contributed to Balloon Tires. And exclusive with U. S. Royal Balloon Cords.

This is the first tread ever designed to properly conferm to the action of a Balloon Tire on the road.

It is designed specifically for the low inflations necessary to give real Balloon Tire cushioning.

This means that for the first time you get the full Balloon comfort without sacrificing mileage.

This 22% greater area of contact distributes the load better—lessens the weight on the individual tread blocks—reduces tread wear and movement, and does away with early, uneven and disfiguring tread wear.

It means that you do not have to over-inflate your tires to prevent this early tread wear.

It establishes a new standard of low-pressure inflation. It gives you better cushioning and longer service. It gives better traction, easier steering, and greater stability.

It gives better non-skid protection because the flexible outer row of tread blocks is now brought into full contact with the road.

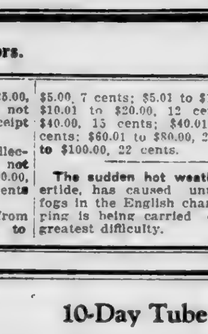
Imprint of the new, flat "LOW-PRESSURE TREAD"



What Actual Scientific Measurements Prove about Load Distribution on the New "LOW-PRESSURE TREAD"

Compare the two tread imprints above. Note the figures opposite each row of tread blocks. They represent the average load in pounds carried by each tread block in that row. They show how the new flat "Low-Pressure Tread" lessens the pressure on each tread block.

Here is the first Balloon Tire designed specifically to give maximum wear and service with the ideal low air-pressure.

It is the complete answer to all arguments for higher air-pressure in Balloon Tires in order to prevent quick and uneven tread wear.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn

Thousands who have piles have not to the same for you.

learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription is HEM-ROID, a tablet medicine, taken internally, that is now sold by druggists generally. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent, and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee A. Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands of people, and should do the same for you—it seldom fails.

10-Day Tube FREE

Mother! Be sure you get Pepsodent for your child's teeth

DO you want your child to have prettier teeth now, and better protection from tooth troubles in later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge mothers to use as modern science's latest attainment in tooth care.

• • •

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign — an invitation for tooth troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth. You must combat it. Ordinary dentifrices don't fight it successfully. Harsh, gritty substances are injurious to enamel.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old type methods failed to combat it. Men of science engaged themselves in discovering an effective combatant.

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied—combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, then gently removes it. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today: Mail the coupon.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

..Building operations in Norwich are holding up to the normal average, about 10 new building permits being granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton each week. During the past week there were 10 permits issued for a total valuation of approximately $40,000, the largest item being the Remodeling of the old Y. M. C. A. building on Broadway by Archibald Torrance for N. S. Gilbert and Son.

Contractor P. F. Sweeney has been awarded the contract for the remodeling of the old Norwich Gas and Electric building a the corner of Shetucket and Water streets for the Plant-Cadden Co. Work has already started on this project and the work of tearing out the partitions on the second floor is now under way.

At the Norwich State Hospital the H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden completed work on the new ward building on Monday. The new nurses home was completed several weeks ago with the exception of some minor interior work. Another building is to be erected at the institution but the contract has not yet been awarded.

Good progress has been made on other projects in the city and much work is being done on the smaller jobs in the city. The work on the Sellas block on Franklin square is practically complete, the workmen being engaged on the interior laying the tile floors and setting the windows in place.

The following building permits were granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton during the past week:

To Archibald Torrance to alter the Y. M. C. A. building on Broadway for N. S. Gilbert and Son into a modern furniture store. The permit calls for new brick and steel construction in the lowering of the floor levels and the taking out of partitions and making other necessary alterations. The work on this building has already been started in the basement and on the ground floor.

To Angelo Dellorso to make alterations to the building on Thames street for a restaurant. The front of the building will be changed into a plate glass store front and the floorin will be relaid.

To Tony Kowalczsink to erect a frame barn 18x24 feet, at 88 Higgins street. The barn will be of frame construction throughout.

To John A. Young to erect a garage on Watrous Avenue, for himself. The garage will be 12x14 feet and will be of frame construction throughout. The garage will accommodate two cars.

To Ludvik Mosing to build a four room house for himself at 32 Allen street. The house will be 22x27 feet with stone foundation. The specifications call for one and the ex[illegible] will be completed in clapboarding [illegible] The [illegible] and plastering.

To George W. Allen to erect a frame garage on Talcott street for August Hessel. The garage will be 10x20 feet with concrete foundation and wood frame.

To George L. Pfleger to erect a two and one half story frame house on Girard street for Mateo Tedesco. The house will be 21x35 feet with stone cement foundation and balloon frame. The one story will be used as a store and the rest of the building will be used as a six-room tenement.

To George E. Bowler to erect a [illegible] on North Main street [illegible] on the garage will be [illegible] with accommodations for three cars.

To Mrs. Ida Williams to add a piazza and one small room to the present house on Mt. Pleasant street. The piazza will be 6x20 feet and the room will be 8x10 feet. The construction will be frame to conform to the present house.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 16 sales of real estate as compared to 13 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $123,066 and $50,000.

There were 6 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, one less than for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,850 and $4,150

Building Operations in State

The spring weather of the past week has had its effect on building operations, as shown by the record of building permits. In the week just ended there were 266 permits granted for buildings costing $1,786,276, these figures comparing with 404 permits issued in the like week of 1924, for buildings costing $1,129,507, and 301 permits in 1923 for buildings costing $750,581.

New London

Plans have been completed for a building at the corner of Harris and Shaw streets to be arranged for a seven-room dwelling and a bakery shop. The building will be 28x45 feet, of frame construction, with steam heat and all modern conveniences. The bakery will be fitted with an oven, 11x21 feet and other bakery fixtures.

Ground has been broken for a house on Grove street, at the corner of Bolles avenue, for Freeman E. Kennerson. The proposed dwelling will be 30x35 feet, arranged for two families. It will be of the twin-cottage type of frame construction. The owner will have charge of the construction.

The N. & S. Bldg. Corp. have the contract for a new store front at 88 Bank street for S. Scherkoff. The alterations will consist of a new frame of steel girders, plate glass and copper show-windows and a new entrance.

Local contractors have the contract for rock excavation at Ocean Beach for Arthur G. Rudd. Mr. Rudd has plans for the erection of a large addition to his present bathhouses.

The Titus & Bishop Land Co., Goldsmith Building, have started work on a frame cottage at Riverside Beach at Mago, Waterford. The house, which will be offered for sale upon completion, will be arranged for six rooms. It will be 24x28 feet, provided with the usual improvements.

The Seabreeze clubhouse, located near Fisher's Island sound, has been sold by the members of the club to Antone Leverone, Ocean Beach. The building, which contains a living room and several sleeping rooms, will be remodeled for business purposes. The transfer was arranged through the agency of Ambrose Cassara, 194 Hempstead street.

Building Permits

M. E. Underhill, twin dwelling, Bolles avenue, $4,000.

S. Scherkoff, store front, 88 Bank street, $1,600.

F. E. Kennerson, twin dwelling, corner Grove street and Bolles avenue $4,000

S. Freeman, concrete garage, Cedar street, $2,000.

J. N. Lapoint, cement garage, Pequot avenue $1,000.

J. W. Rogers, addition, Jefferson avenue $400.

Sarah Costa, alterations, 42-48 Shaw street, $800.

Gertrude Dutton, frame garage, Ocean avenue, $400.

E. G. Swanson frame garage, 382 Broad street, $400.

Number of permits issued for the week, 8; estimated cost of buildings, $10,600.

Niantic

An extensive building development has been started at the Riverside Beach at Mago, Niantic. The recreation hall and restaurant being erected by Lawrence Larson, Waterford, has been inclosed and is ready to be plastered. Cottages have been started by LeRoy N. Darrow, Garfield avenue; J. F. Casey, of Norwichtown, who will build two houses; Lee Sherman, who is framing a six-room cottage and Harry H. Knowlton, 28 Thames street, who has started work on his third cottage on that tract. Gus Hublinette has plans for an addition to his restaurant, 20x28 feet, and Violet Skaling, 95 Montauk avenue, is remodeling and enlarging the restaurant conducted by her at Mago Point.

COLUMBIA

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church was held at the residence of Mrs. Edward P. Lyman Thursday afternoon, attended by twenty-four members. Plans and arrangements for a fair to be held in August were discussed.

Although rain has fallen and there seems to be a large amount of water in many places, still it is very dry in Columbia. The wells are filling very slowly and water must be used very sparingly, and in some cases carried quite a distance for stock.

At the next meeting of the Grange, it is to be a competitive program on the States and the Thins. A meeting was held Tuesday evening by the Stouts to make arrangements and decide upon the program to be given next Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson D. Merwin of Hartford motored to town Friday and spent the week end at their cottage by the lake.

A shipment of 500 chicks was received Friday by the Hay Mr. Stetson Post Hill. During the Spring many hundreds of chicks have been received by mail for farmers in town.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brown have returned from Dade City, Florida, where they have been residing during the winter and are now at their home by the lake.

Mrs. Abbott Little and son Horace who have been living in Hartford since last Fall, spent the week end and Easter Sunday at their home on Woodward Hill.

Some of the members of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Willimantic, who reside in Columbia, attended church there Easter Day. The church was well filled and the Rector, Rev. F. C. Williams preached an able sermon on the certainty of the immortality of the soul, taking as his text Job 14:14, If a man die, shall he live again?

Another thoroughly enjoyable dance, under the management of Bert Greene was held Saturday evening at Utley's Hall, the attendance being very large.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Lyman spent the week end and Easter Sunday at the home of Mrs. Lyman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. A. Utley, on the Green.

Mrs. W. H. Carpenter, residing temporarily at Muncie, Indiana, her sister, Miss Haywood, her mother, Mrs. Haywood also her brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs. Dowd, of Hartford, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Carpenter in Columbia, all returning to Hartford.

Miss Helen Brown, who during the absence in Florida of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brown, has been spending the winter in New Haven and Manchester, has returned to her home at Columbia lake.

A special musical service of much artistic merit, under the direction of Mrs. Fred A. Abel, was held at the church Easter Sunday evening. A chorus of a dozen young men and women accompanied by Mrs. Abel at the piano, also by Prof. A. E. Lyman and members of his orchestra, sang several hymns and choruses, the orchestra played several selections, there were several readings, also an address by Rev. C. C. Haun on the Resurrection of Christ.

The service was very devotional and inspiring.

For Y. M. C. A. Circus

The preliminary practice of the local Y. M. C. A.'s "Barnyard and Balehay's gym circus is taking place in the Y gymnasium where the various groups of amateur acrobats, gymnasts and other "white top" performers meet to try out the stunts which they hope to display "circus day". According to the Yees, Barnyard and Balehay's circus will be bigger and better than ever, and the young men and boys representing the different gym groups at the Y are working hard to devise some lively stunts for the occasion. Leaders who are in charge of special gymnastic and drill groups are Al Pineault, Dewitt Parsons, Howard Ludlow, Fred Handy, Floyd Lambert, Arthur Armstrong and James Falcone while other leaders have been appointed to take care of the music, sideshow and other features.

Intensive practice will be conducted under the direction of Physical Director Fritz who believes that the Yees will be able to give a good account of their varied ability when they assemble under the "white tops."

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

With the elections over, the people again turned to local things and for a week their interest was held by railroads, proposals for new lines, petitions for stock selling and the like. A fatal accident on the Norwich & Worcester line also provided interest for several days.

News of the week, taken in part from the Courier of 1850 is as follows:

Tuesday, April 9, 1850 — A serious accident occurred on the Norwich & Worcester railroad, Monday evening, John Galligan, brakeman, losing his life. The accident happened to the steamboat train in crossing a bridge of 40 to 50 feet in length, near Wilson's factory, about a mile and a half above Fisherville. While crossing the bridge the engineer on the train felt it sink beneath him and immediately he turned on the steam and succeeded in getting the engine on to firm ground across the bridge before the structure went down. The passenger coach and baggage cars were precipitated into the chasm. There were about 125 passengers aboard and a number of them were injured or shocked but as far as could be learned Mr. Galligan was the only man to lose his life. Other details of the wreck are missing.

At the city council meeting last evening a resolution was passed that the fence enclosing the large plain north of the house of General Williams be put into proper repair. This followed a request that the fence be removed as it was not in good condition and was an eyesore to people living nearby.

Application is to be made to the next general assembly to amend the charter of the Citizen's bank of Norwich so as to allow the same to go into operation without the payment of $5,000 as a bonus, and permitting said bank to commence business when $100,000 of the stock shall be subscribed.

Thursday, April 11, 1850—The Honeyville Manufacturing company, through H. A. Lathrop, it's agent, is offering for sale a large quantity of cotton machinery including [illegible] clothed, speeders, spinning frames one pair of mules and forty looms.

Meetings in the interest of changing the school system [illegible] continued to be held and much opposition was noted. Every meeting ended with the people in opposition to the change, winning out. At the same time talk of a high school began to spread but it was felt that this proposition should be handled separately from the public schools.

A Norwich man out in the Californian gold fields writes that a man recently uncovered at Stockton a lump of metal weighing 23 pounds, of which 60 pounds are gold. This, he writes, is the biggest find yet reported in the fields. He also writes that Col. Fremont is probably the richest man in the world as his gold mine in a few years, would be salable for at least $6,000,000 an acre. The government, he writes, also has much land that is fully as valuable.

Saturday, April 13, 1850—Applications will be made to the next general assembly, May next, for an amendment to the charter of the New York and Boston railroad company, authorizing the company to construct a branch to their road from some suitable point in the town of Hebron or Colchester, to Norwich, passing through the towns of Colchester, Lebanon and Bozrah.

There was a large attendance at Apollo hall last evening to hear Rev. Dr. Bethune deliver his address on Holland and the Hollanders.

The Norwich and Worcester railroad company is to petition the general assembly for an alteration to their charter so as to empower them to issue 4,250 shares of new stock, which may be bought by present stockholders at the rate of one new share for each four shares of old stock.

An idea of what may be expected this spring in the way of travel to California is obtained when it is learned that fully 6,000 people in Michigan have arranged to make the trip. Connecticut will also send several thousand to the gold fields.

Escaped Miami Tornado

Norwich friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hargreaves of Miami, Fla., former residents of this city, will be pleased to learn that they escaped from the tornado that destroyed seven large suburbs of Miami and killed and injured scores of people, causing one million and a half dollar damage, Sunday afternoon, April 5. The Hargreaves home was about a mile from the greatest damage.

MERROW

Miss Sarah Brown, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Phebe Wilcox, returned last Sunday to her home in Summit, N. J.

Mrs. Frank Thompson and daughter, Mildred spent a week with the former's parents in Massachusetts. Mr. Thompson went up for the week end.

Mrs. Merritt had as Sunday dinner guests for Easter, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Wilcox and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wilcox.

Mrs. Ellen Dimock moved up on her farm last week to stay for a little while, then he expects to go to Armenia, N. Y., where her daughter, Mrs. Alerton Kibbe lives.

Mr. and Mrs. Augusta Robinson are spending two weeks' vacation in Willimantic, on Pleasant street.

Charles Snow of South Willington was the guest of his cousins at Winding brook farm one day last week.

It begins to look like spring. The lawns look nice and green, housekeepers are busy cleaning house; farmers are beginning to clear up the ground for planting and the paper hanger and painters are at work.

YANTIC

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Daniels have been spending the past week in Brooklyn, N. Y., and New York City.

Andrew Warner has returned to Forest Hills, L. I., after spending the past two weeks in the village, with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Briggs have rented their farm in Lebanon and have moved to Yantic with their daughter, Ruth and Gladys. They are occupying the Bogve homestead, on Main street.

Millard Manning, of Trinity College, Hartford, is spending the Easter recess with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Manning.

Eugene Manning was a visitor in Hartford during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Reed were called to Hartford Thursday by the death of Mr. Reed's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Fishbone and son Gilbert of New York, spent the holidays in Yantic with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fishbone.

Mrs. H. H. Stowe has been entertaining her granddaughters, Ella and Ruth Arnold, of Pomfret.

W. F. Leary and D. Rainville had a successful morning Friday, trout fishing, returning with a very attractive string.

Mrs. Balsh and Miss Lucy Ladd of Manchester spent the holidays at Elmwood with their brother, Myron Ladd.

State police have been vigilantly patroling the local highways during the past week. Speeders have been warned—warnings to the people who have mud-covered markers to make them clear, and otherwise making the roads safe for travel.

Miss Jane Sullivan spent the week end in Manchester, with her aunt, Mrs A. Reynolds.

Miss Katherine Coughlin, of Laurel Hill, spent the week end in Yantic with her sister, Mrs. Thomas Sullivan.

John Lappie of New Haven was a recent guest of his brother, Herbert Lappie.

Mrs. James Counterman has been spending a few days in Fitchville with her daughter, Mrs. James Smiely.

One of Felix Garvan's team horses died during the week.

Workmen's Compensation

The following workmen's compensation agreement has been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

New Haven Dairy Co., New London, employer, and Joseph Wentworth, employe, infected fingers from cut, at rate of $12.50.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Eat PRUNES for BREAKFAST and enjoy a better day

You see, Prunes do more for your system than merely supply the vitamines, natural sugars and fruit salts which are likewise found in some other fruits. Prunes are also a "roughage" fruit—high in laxative properties. They provide, as few other foods do, that cellulose or tender fruit tissue so needed to add bulk to the diet and aid in elimination.

Here's a Rule it Pays to Follow

Serve Prunes often—for their healthfulness, economy and fine-flavor. And be sure you get the best Prunes! Insist upon SUNSWEET PRUNES—sweet, plump, thin-skinned fruit from California's famous orchards—grown, selected and packed by the growers themselves.

Protect yourself! Buy SUNSWEET PRUNES, always clean and fresh, in the convenient, new 2 lb. carton—or in bulk, from the regular 25 lb. box. Their uniform high quality will delight you.

A Quick Way to Cook Prunes

Wash Sunsweet Prunes, cover with hot water, and allow to soak one hour. Bring to the boiling point in the same water in which they were soaked, cover and cook until tender. Add sugar one minute before removing from stove. Allow one tablespoon to one cup of Prunes, measured before cooking or soaking. If a thick syrup is desired, remove Prunes to serving dish when tender, and boil the liquid until it is of the desired consistency. A little orange peel, lemon juice or stick cinnamon improves the flavor for some tastes.

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALE AT NEW LONDON OF TWO SEIZED RUM-RUNNING CRAFT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, April 13—Two rum-runners, seized in the waters adjacent to New London several weeks ago and which, at the time of their capture by coast guard craft, had several hundred cases of Scotch and rye whiskey and alcohol aboard, were sold this afternoon at a United States marshal's sale at the lumber wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company. The craft disposed of were the Elisabeth Wilson and the Acoma, the former bringing $600 and the latter $500. Both boats were purchased, it is understood, by men financially interested in the craft at the time of their seizure.

The fishing boat K-1487, hailing from New York, was captured in Long Island Sound, late last night by one of the United States Coast Guard patrol boats from the local section base, the fisherman having a cargo of approximately 150 cases of Scotch whiskey aboard. The boat was brought into port and this morning the crew of New York men were before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson at the customs house. The two men were released, but the boat and cargo are being held at the state pier.

Roland Brousseau of U. S. S. Seals, Mrs. William Darrow, Huntington Street; Miss Eleanor Moore, Montauk avenue; Mrs. Frank Brannan and infant daughter, Denison avenue, and Mrs. G. Allen and infant daughter, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Barbara Brandes, wife of a sailor who is on the bounding billows of the Pacific with the fleet which Uncle Sam has sent to the west coast, came to New London a few weeks ago and soon after took up her residence in Hebron street. She was a devotee of the dance and last Saturday evening tripped the fox trot with friends she made in this city. After the dancing she went to her room accompanied by friends and there they were talking over the jolly time in which the party had participated. Soon after, three policemen entered and escorted the party, three of them, to the police station where it was alleged Mrs. Brandes was maintaining an improper place. That charge was not pressed against her in the police court this morning however, for there were not facts to be produced which would sustain the charge. She was complained against as being a lascivious person and to that charge she pleaded guilty, her friends said, unwisely, for there was no evidence that she was guilty of any act that would establish such a character. But Mrs. Brandes was supposed to know, and her word was taken as sufficient to show she was guilty. When the officers went to her room she and two friends were enjoying themselves in a lawful manner, but they submitted to arrest and were content to answer in court. They did answer and then the court fined the woman $5 and told her that New London would be better off if she found another abiding place during the coming fortnight. This she agreed to do. She declared after the session of the court that she was complained against by a resident in the building who had a fancied grievance against her. Her male companions were not prosecuted.

Nick Pappas, a barber with a shop on State street at No. 9, was fined $25 in the police court today for violating the prohibition law in having intoxicating liquors in his shop which he proposed to sell. Indeed he was accused of having sold a bottle of stuff to Edward J. Lecky, a New Yorker here for installing electrical work at the home of Edward Harkness, at Great Neck. The pair were arrested in Groton by State Policemen Watson and Mugovero when the automobile appeared in the highway with defective headlights. In the explanation the officers came in close contact with Lecky and it was apparent that he had been indulging in liquor. He was questioned and declared that Pappas had sold him some liquor when a bottle was found in the car. This fact brought on a contradiction from Pappas and finally the story came out that the pair were inclined to take women out for a ride through this they failed in doing. When the shop of Pappas was visited a jar of wine was found, and this was exceeded in alcoholic content the allowance fixed by the Volstead act. Nick paid his fine and the acquaintance existing between him and Lecky terminated then and there.

Three drunks were stopped in by the police Saturday night and Sunday. They were of the harmless sort so they were not fined as they had not before been accused of intoxication.

The funeral of John Joseph Keating, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Keating, of 121 Willetts avenue and a former employe of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. The service was attended by an immense throng of mourners, among them being delegations of members of the Knights of Columbus, C. L. Ockford Hose company and West End Athletic club, which organizations also sent handsome floral tributes. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John J. McCabe, of Jewett City. The bearers were Frederick Finnegan, Angelo Croppelli, John Murphy, John Feney, Samuel Cammilucci and James Finnegan. The flower-bearers were James Kennedy and John Sullivan. Mrs. Henry McIntire sang at the offertory, "Ave Maria," and Edward F. Murray sang, "Some Sweet Day," after the final absolution. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Tina Schneider, 62, widow of William Schneider and mother of Mrs. Louis Cuneo of Brooks street, died late Sunday at the residence of Mrs. Cuneo where Mrs. Schneider had been in ill health for a long time.

G. R. Burdick, 24 Home street, reported to the police this morning that some time between 11.30 o'clock last night and 6 o'clock this morning his automobile was stolen from in front of his home. Later Burdick notified the police that he had found his car parked a short distance from the Burdick home and undamaged.

John O. Eno, of Willetts avenue, proprietor of the Crocker House barbershop, and Miss Blanche Chartier, of Ocean Beach, were married at 7 o'clock this morning at St. Joseph's church, the ceremony being performed and the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. Mr. and Mrs. Eno are now on a brief wedding trip and upon its termination will reside on Willetts avenue.

John Tasonia and Dominick Adio, both of Groton, were in the Groton town court this morning on a charge of breach of the peace. A fine of $5 and costs was imposed by Judge Cornelius C. Costello, but the judge remitted the fine, also ordered that Tasonia and Adio share the payment of the costs of the court, $2.50 each.

Elisha R. Haley, Center Groton, was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He pleaded guilty and drew a fine of $10 and costs of the first count and a suspended sentence of 60 days in jail on the second count. Haley was arrested last week while under the influence of liquor and abusing a horse he was driving.

William Byar, arrested last week, pleaded guilty this morning of a charge of breach of the peace and was fined $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $8.35. Byar's arrest resulted when he engaged in a row with Mrs. Byar at their home, Groton park.

An improvement is noticeable in the condition of Lafayette Starr, 55, formerly of Norwich, a patient at Lawrence hospital. Mr. Starr was struck by an automobile in Jordan several weeks ago, sustaining several fractured ribs and suffering greatly from shock.

Miss Frances Doll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Doll, Ocean Avenue, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, where she recently underwent an operation for appendicitis. Her condition is reported as improving constantly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bentley, Ocean avenue, are entertaining H. L. Tower, a student at Yale.

Announcement is made of the marriage the 9th inst., of Manuel Enes, 9 Stony Hill and Miss Ada C. Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Williamson of Waterford, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Charles Smith at Uncasville.

Mrs. Frederic C. Burrows is confined to her home, 17 Darrow street by illness.

The catch-basin cover at the corner of Bank street and Tilley street, was discovered broken today and in a condition to make automobiles liable to damage. The cover has been broken several times of late, presumably by heavy vehicles passing over it.

Lieut. Leslie Arnold, nationally-known ground-the-world flier, and former New London youth, is in this city, being the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Ganey, Williams street. Lieut. Arnold's visit to New London was for the purpose of attending the American Legion ball that took place at the state armory tonight.

Miss Ethel Morris, of Howard St., Mrs. Leonard Anderson, Waterford; Joseph Shifman, Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Leon Kanniski, Groton, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

The funeral of Martha, widow of Frank Bolton, whose death occurred at Norwich last week, was held this afternoon at Cedar Grove cemetery, when services were conducted on the city plot, where burial took place, by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of the B. P. Learned mission.

The Seagrave pumper of the North west Hose Company is back at the quarters of the company, having received repairs that place the machine in service again. The pumper was damaged several weeks ago while responding to a call from the town of East Lyme for a fire at Crescent Beach, which destroyed the Hotel Francelot. The speed at which the machine was driven, it was alleged, caused the pumper to be damaged.

The police probe, conducted by a special committee of the city council, appointed by City Manager William A. Holt to determine the efficiency of the police department and which was concluded several weeks ago yet no report of the finding of the committee has been made to the city manager, will cost the city about $1,000. The services of Mrs. Sadie Machol as stenographer, will entail an expenditure of approximately $900.

Mrs. Howard Sloan of Broad St., wife of Patrolman Howard Sloan, tonight complained to the police that an automobile owned by Leroy A. Nash, 119 Riverview avenue, backed against Mrs. Sloan's baby carriage on State street, wrecking the carriage and that the operator of the machine evaded responsibility by driving away without stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned. Later Mrs. Nash communicated with the police, stating that she was driving the automobile at the time of the accident and that she would pay for any damage that had been done.

By the will of Annie Mahoney, of New York, $500 is bequeathed Rev. Mother Alphonsa Lathrop, O. S. D., in charge of Cancer Home at Hawthorne, Sherman Park, N. Y. Rev. Mother Alphonsa formerly resided in New London and is the daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, famous novelist. Her life-work is caring for incurable cancer patients who are poor and friendless.

NORWICH TOWN

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church, held its meeting at 6 o'clock, Sunday evening in the chapel with special music by the members. Miss Ruth Avery was the leader. The topic was—What Does the Resurrection of Jesus Mean to Me? Corinthians 15:1-20, 49. (Easter meeting.)

In the church auditorium at 7.30 a chorus of mixed voices presented a sacred cantata for Easter, "Crucifixion and Ascension," by Fred W. Peace.

Organist Herbert L. Yerrington directed the cantata which was given by the following voices: Miss Bernice Underwood, Mrs. Walter Hitchon, Jr., Miss Mary Wattles, Mrs. Leonard Lovett, soprano; Miss Louise P. Bailey, Miss Helen Avery, Mrs. Charles Schwenk, altos; Frank E. Sterry, Walter Hitchon, Jr., Frederick H. Wyant, tenors; Clyde M. Beebe, Leonard Lovett, and Harold Bailey, of Hartford, bass. Throughout the cantata the tenor solo parts were taken by Mr. Wyant, while the bass solos were given by Mr. Bailey.

The quartet numbers were given by Miss Underwood, Mrs. Schwenk, Mr. Sterry and Mr. Beebe. The various numbers were:

Quartette, chorus, recitative, solo, bass and chorus, tenor solo, chorus, On the Road to Calvary; chorus, quartette, quartette; bass solo, quartette and chorus; chorus, quartette, tenor solo; quartette, tenor solo; chorus; final chorus.

The concert closed with the Mispah benediction. The church was decorated with lilies, daffodils and flowering plants, arranged by Miss Grace Mitchell, the flower committee.

Following the exercises the flowers were sent to the shut-ins of the neighborhood. Those in charge were Mrs. Richard Carter and Lewis Aldrich.

The mid-week prayer service of the Congregational church, scheduled for Thursday evening, is to be omitted on account of the lecture by Dr. Honline in one of hte Norwich churches.

Every Ready Circle of the King's Daughters is to hold a meeting Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Jesse E. Hyde of Washington street, instead of at the home of Miss Sadie J. Dawson.

Mrs. Lena Gardner Taylor and Frederick R. Gardner of New London, with their guests, Mrs. Havens and daughter, Miss Dorothy Haven, also of New London, motored to Norwich Town Saturday afternoon and were caller at the home of Mrs. Thurston B. Barber, at Peck's Corner.

Miss Ruth Avery of Canton, Miss., is spending a week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery.

Mr. and Mrs. Olmstead Skinner Peck (Jessie Balfour Browning) of Andover, motored to Norwich Town and were Easter guests of Mrs. Peck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Browning of Plain Hill, also attended the morning worship at the First Congregational church.

Sidney P. Avery of the General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y., returns today (Tuesday) after passing the Eastern recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Avery.

Stanley Vaughn, a student at Lehigh University, Penn., returned Sunday evening after passing a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Vaughn of Bliss place.

Harold Bailey of Hartford, has returned after passing Eastern with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon P. Bailey at the Congregational parsonage.

Elmer Browning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earle E. Browning, returned Sunday evening to regume his studies at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., after passing a week at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hart of Wethersfield, entertained over Easter week end. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague of McClellan avenue, Mrs. Tague is aunt of Mrs. Hart. The trip was made by automobile, Mr. and Mrs. Tague accompanying their son George as far as Hartford, the last mentioned continuing on to spend Easter at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Ward of Springfield, Mass.

The Dorcas Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church held a Lenten service on Good Friday at the parsonage. The president, Mrs. J. B. Aldrich, presided at the business meeting. The program, in charge of Mrs. G. L. Randall, opened with singing, "In the Cross of Christ is Glory." Rev. J. B. Aldrich offered prayer. The hymns, "Never Further Than Thy Cross" and "O Love Divine, What Hast Thou Done," were used.

In connection with the responsive readings, three short poems, were read. "Alone in Gethsemane," Miss Florence M. Bennett, "The Way of the Cross," Mrs. Herbert Mitchell and "The Empty Tomb," Mrs. J. B. Aldrich.

Mrs. F. H. Bushnell and Miss Florence M. Bennett sang the duet, "The Old Rugged Cross."

Mrs. A. G. Miner read, "The Message of the Cross," Mrs. L. W. Brown, "Decision Day," Mrs. F. H. Bushnell, "About My Girls," and Mrs. George Manning, "Prayer."

At this time there was a period of intercession for the missionary society and its work. Mrs. Aldrich read, "The Lemen Gift." An offering was taken and after the hymn, "Saviour, Thy Dying Love," all joined in the Mizpah benediction.

Dog and Home Brew

Even a dog is unable to withstand the evil effects of home-made liquor reports Dr. William MacNider of the University of North Carolina, who has been systematically feeding dogs with alcohol in various forms. On the other hand, dogs given a quantity of pure grain alcohol suffered no permanent ill effects. The lesson he drew from his experiments was that the increasing use of home-brew by humans will probably greatly increase the number of cases of diseases of the kidneys.

It requires very little space—yet is large enough for the average family. It is attached to an ordinary electric socket. There are no water connections to make. It can be easily moved—if you move to another home.

Frigidaire—convenient and dependable electric refrigeration—brings new delight to housekeeping. It will make you entirely independent of an outside ice supply. It keeps food perfectly,—preserves the flavor of meats, the fresh juiciness of fruits, the crispness of lettuce, the sweetness of milk, cream and butter. It safeguards health. It makes ice cubes and delicious frozen desserts. Its operation, in your home, will probably cost you less than you now pay for ice.

There are Frigidaire models for homes, apartments, stores, restaurants, clubs, schools, hospitals, etc. Come in and let us tell you more about them

Perhaps you have a good ice box in your home now,—one of the standard makes. If so you can easily convert it into a Frigidaire as follows:

1. The frost coil, shown above, is placed in the ice compartment of your refrigerator.
2. The condenser is placed in the basement or other convenient location.
3. The frost coil and condenser are connected by two small copper tubes and a connection made to your electric cable.

That's all. Your refrigerator becomes cold and stays cold. You have Frigidaire electric refrigeration.

Frigidaire is a product of The General Motors Corporation, is made by the Delco-Light Company, and is backed by a nation-wide organization of trained sales and service representatives, whose business it is to see that Frigidaire always gives you the kind of service you expect.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, April 13.—Rallying price tendencies characterized the opening of the new week in the stock market. The demand centered largely in the specialties and the motors, several of the latter attaining new peak prices for the year. Further weakness cropped out in the northwestern rails, but the selling of these issues failed to unsettle the rest of the list. For the fourth full session since election day total sales fell below one million shares.

Strength of the motor issues was predicted on reports of heavy spring sales. Maxwell Motors B was bid up nearly four points to a new high record at 67 1-2 and then sagged about 1 1-2 points from the top. Maxwell A duplicated its recent high of 104 but slipped back later to 103 for a small fractional loss. Hudson was bid up over two points to a new top at 46 7-8 while net gains of a point or two were recorded by Jordan, Pierce Arrow preferred, Willys Overland preferred, Stromberg Carbueretor, and Nash, the last named reaching the record figure of 357 and then reacting to 352.

Strong buying support made its appearance in American Can, which was run up five points to 171, evlosing just below the top. Strength of United States Steel common, which closed a point higher at 115 1-8, attracted considerable attention because of the recent shrinkage in unfilled orders last month. Baldwin closed more than two points higher at 115 1-4. Strength and activity of American Sugar, which jumped four points to a new record high for the year at 71, was in anticipation of higher commodity prices and dividend resumption.

Ludlum Steel responded to reports of increased earnings by advancing two points to 25 1-4. Other strong spots in the industrial list included American Woolen, common and preferred, Famous Players, General Electric, American Agricultural Chemical preferred, American Linseed preferred, American Safety Razor, Beechnut Packing, Mathieson Alkali, New York Dock and Savage Arms, all of which sold from 2 to 5 points above Saturday's final quotations.

Revival of selling in Chicago and Northwestern, which was hammered down to a new low at 47 3-8, took place in the face of reassuring statements regarding the safety of the dividend by officials of the road. Weakness of this issue brought about sympathetic selling of other western carriers, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Chicago Great Western and the Western Pacific issues closing fractionally lower. Ann Arbor preferred was bid up over 4 points to a new 1925 peak at 51 3-4, reviving unconfirmed reports of early dividend action. Good buying also was noted in Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

Call money opened at 4 per cent. and then dropped to 3 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Foreign exchange trading was extremely quiet because of the widespread observance of the Easter holiday abroad. Rates held relatively firm, demand sterling being quoted just under $4.75 and French francs around 1-2.

Insurance and Bank Stocks a Specialty were the smallest of any full day session this year, and reflected ebbing speculative interest in the market.

Weakness of French bonds, attributed to the delay in forming a new cabinet and the necessity of legislation to legalize the excess note circulation, was the outstanding feature of trading.

Many of the governmental, municipal and railroad issues sold at the lowest levels of the year, but the extreme losses of 1 to 2 points were partially retrieved before the close.

Selling of the Northwestern Railroad stocks depressed the market for th ebonds of these carriers, many of which declined fractionally. Price movements in the rail list generally, however, were mixed. In contrast to the heaviness in Northwestern, Omaha, Northern Pacafic and St. Paul liens a good demand developed for Baltimore and Ohio 4s, Toledo Division, and some of the New Haven, Union Pacific and "Katy" issues.

United States government obligations displayed a firm tone in keeping with the comparative ease of the time money rates. The treasury 4s crossed 101 for the first time and other issues held around their 1925 high levels.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, April 13.—Assertions that likelihood of a general strike of English mill hands would have a depressing effect on the Liverpool wheat market tomorrow did a good deal to make price downturns in Chicago today severe, nearly six 6ents a bushel in some cases. The Chicago wheat market closed weak, May $1.56 1-2 to $1.56 3-4 and July 5 3-4c under Saturday's finish, with corn 2 1-4 to 3 3-4c off, oats 5-8 to 7-8c down, and provisions varying from 20 to 23 cents decline to 7c advance.

Earlier, the market had been weakened by rains which were widely distributed over the domestic winter wheat belt and which were generally taken to imply a better crop outlook, notwithstanding that except for once the United States wheat crop is at the lowest April condition ever known.

Heavy profit-taking sales was one of the outstanding features of today's transactions. In some quarters, too, selling was stimulated by opinions that the decrease of 2,190,000 bushels in the United States visible supply total today failed to indicate any acute shortage of wheat by the end of the crop year.

Corn and oats were affected chiefly by the course of the wheat market, eastern shipping board demand for corn was only fair, active seeding of new oats continues.

Provisions averaged lower, sympathizing with big values, and with grain.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks firm; motors at new highs.
Bonds irregular; French issues touched new lows.
Foreign exchanges steady; holidays abroad restrict trading.
Cotton higher; insufficient rains.
Sugar featureless.
Coffee firm; better spot demand.

Chicago

Wheat weak; beneficial rains southwest.
Corn easy; sympathy wheat.
Cattle higher.
Hogs lower.

Establishment of trade schools in a number of cities in the state of Ceara, Brazil, is contemplated by the legislature of that state. Fred C. Eastin, jr., American vice consul in charge at Pernambuco, suggests that American firms handling machine tools, shop equipment, and trade-school supplies address proposals in the Portuguese language for supplying such materials to the president of the state, Fortaleza, Ceara, Brazil.

CURB MARKET

New York, April 13.—Strength of the public utility shares featured today's irregularly higher curb market. Adirondack Power and Light was bid up 3 points to a record high at 59 and National Power and Light touched a new peak at 250. Southern Power and Light jumped four points to 63 and American Power and Light closed nearly two points higher at 55, most of the other active issues in that group improving fractionally.

Oils held relatively firm, reports of increased production in the Smackover field being offset by heavier gasoline consumption. South American isues were firm, revival of activity in Venezuela Petroleum following publication of the annual report shawing current assets of $ 18,175, in cash with no liabilities outside of the 551,125 shares of capital stock. The company's properties are being developed by the Standard Oil Company of California and Gulf Oil Corporation on a royalty basis.

Motor issues moved up in sympathy with the strength of the automotive group on the "big board." Ford Motors of Canada was bid up 15 points to 490 on a few odd lot sales. Doehler Die Casting lost ground on the omission of the quarterly dividend. Trading in the radios was extremely quiet with price changes largely nominal.

BOND MARKET.

New York, April 13. — Bond prices fluctuated within narrow limits today as the pace of trading slackened. Total sales of approximately $7,000,000

Norwich Bulletin

1925

NORWICH, CONN., TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin
Norwich, Tuesday, April 14, 1925

WEATHER

Conditions

Pressure is high from Quebec to Florida. There have been local rains or snows within the last 24 hours in New England and the interior of New York.

The temperature was somewhat lower Monday in southern New England and the middle Atlantic States. At Yuma, Ariz., a maximum temperature of 102 degrees was registered Monday afternoon.

The indications are for showers almost generally east of the Mississippi river Tuesday or Tuesday night. The temperature will rise Tuesday in the north Atlantic states and it will be somewhat lower on Wednesday, except along the immediate coast and in the extreme south.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Increasing southeast and south becoming fresh to strong and weather generally fair on Tuesday followed by showers Tuesday night.

Forecast

For Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness and warmer Tuesday followed by showers late Tuesday afternoon or night. Wednesday mostly cloudy; cooler in interior.

Observations in Norwich

TAFTVILLE

Miss Mildred Kloss of Lorenzo St has returned from spending the holidays in New York, where she was registered at the Hotel Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree of Goodyear were holiday guests of Mr. Pingree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Young of North Third avenue have been spending several days in Boston, Mass.

George N. Beardow of Providence street has been a recent visitor in Hartford.

John W. Brierley of South Fourth avenue, William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue, Joseph Wood of North B street and Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue have been in New York for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lambert of North B street have had as holiday guests Mr. and Mrs. Emile Dubeau and Miss Rose Dubeau of Plainfield.

The Community sewing class held their weekly meeting in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building Monday evening.

Mrs. Joseph Gladue of South A street has been in Brockton, Mass., visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Deshay.

The regular monthly meeting of the Army & Navy club was held at the clubhouse on Dion street Sunday afternoon with the president, Arthur J. Roy presiding. It was planned to give a whist and dance in the near future, and the basketball team was disbanded for the season.

Desores Legare of Central Village and Mary Smith of Norwich have been holiday guests of their aunt, Mrs. William T. Delaney of South A street.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Beival of North B street have returned from New Bedford Mass., where they have been the guests of relatives over the easter holidays.

George J. Meyer and George W. Meyer of Lisbon have returned from New Bedford, Mass., where they spent a short time with friends.

There were no sessions at the Sacred Heart School, Monday.

Grand Knight John J. Daley presided at the semi-monthly meeting of Ponemah Council, No. 34, K. of C. held Monday evening at the council rooms on Providence street.

The Easter service at the Taftville Congregational church was in the usual and fitting of the day. The anthems and hymns had in them the note of victory. Rev. Mr. Crowdis spoke from the words of St. Paul in I Corinthians, If Christ be not risen our faith is vain. The flowers were beautiful and added much to the spirit of hopefulness and cheer of the Easter service. The Young Peoples meeting was held at 7 p. m., the leader being Robert Schmidt. The topic was, What Does the Resurrection Mean to Me. The meeting was well attended by the young people. In the afternoon the choir of the church under the direction of Miss Nellie Howie gave the Easter music at the Backus hospital with Easter hymns and solos rendering a very pleasant program.

Herbert Renard of Norwich avenue spent a short time this week in New Jersey.

POQUETANUCK

Good congregations were present at services in Saint James' Church on Easter Day, and the music was well rendered by organist and choir. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants. At the later morning service the offertory anthem was "Let us join our voices" by Dr. Muhlenberg, the duet portion being nicely sung by Mrs. F. D. Miller and Mrs. A. E. Smith.

Spoke at Radiator Co.

The subject Rev. Charles H. Ricketts presented at the noon meeting of the Richmond Radiator plant was The Evidence of the Resurrection in Human Conduct or The Victory of Life over Death. The meeting was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

VOLUNTOWN TREE CHOPPING CASE AGAIN BEFORE SUPERIOR COURT

The Voluntown tree chopping matter that was before Judge Hinman in the superior court in January last in the suit brought by Thomas W. Corcoran against Walter C. Tanner for chopping down and carrying away trees from the Corcoran land, is again before the superior court at its present session before Judge Dickenson in another and different suit brought by Walter C. Tanner for $1,000 damages against Albert R. Dawley as the administrator of William H. Dawley, deceased. In the trial of the Corcoran suit against Mr. Tanner, he denied that Corcoran owned the land where the trees were cut and claimed that William H. Dawley, in his life time stated to Tanner that he, Dawley, owned the land and trees in question and gave to Tanner the right to cut and take the trees and that he, Tanner, cut and took the trees upon the request, assurance and representations of William H. Dawley to him.

In the Corcoran-Tanner suit in January, Judge Hinman decided that the land and trees belonged to Corcoran and ruled against all the claims of title and right to the trees set up by Tanner in his defense against the Corcoran suit. Judge Hinman rendered his decision in that case in favor of Corcoran to recover $635 from Tanner for cutting and taking the trees and Tanner later paid to Corcoran the amount of the judgment rendered by Judge Hinman amounting in all to $889.13.

Later Walter C. Tanner brought a suit for $1,000 damages against Albert R. Dawley, administrator of William H. Dawley, deceased, that is now pending in the superior court before Judge Dickenson. In this suit Mr. Tanner claims the right to recover from William H. Dawley's estate all loss he, Tanner, sustained by having cut the trees at the request, on the assurance of ownership by William H. Dawley and claims to have repaid to him the judgment for $889.13 he had to pay in the Corcoran suit. All his losses Mr. Tanner claims were due to misstatements and misrepresentations about the title to the land and trees made to him by William H. Dawley in his life time, on which he, Tanner, says he relied and acted.

Thomas M. Shields, who represented Corcoran in the tree cutting case, represents the Dawley estate in the present case before Judge Dickenson. Mr. Shields, in the pending case of Tanner against the Dawley estate at New London, filed a demurrer to the complaint claiming for various assigned reasons that, admitting all the statements in the Tanner complaint to be true, they furnished no ground in law to establish any legal claims whatsoever against the estate of William H. Dawley or against his administrator, Albert R. Dawley. The case was argued before Judge Dickenson at length by Thomas M. Shields in support of the claims of the demurrer and by Jeremiah J. Desmond, counsel for Tanner, against the validity and sufficiency of the demurrer. Judge Dickenson sustained on four grounds the demurrer to the complaint and ruled that no legal ground was stated in the complaint sufficient to allow the recovery of any damages whatsoever from the Dawley estate or from Albert R. Dawley, the administrator.

The following is the written decision of Judge Dickenson on the demurrer filed in the case:

"The complaint amplified by a more specific statement sets up in substance that the defendant's intestate agreed with the plaintiff that he might cut timber on certain land which the defendant's intestate said was his, the plaintiff (Tanner) to have part of the wood so cut and the defendant's intestate to have so much of it as he 'should desire to take.' Further that the plaintiff cut down and took away part of the timber and the defendant's intestate took as much as he desired. Further that one, Corcoran, has brought suit against the plaintiff in the superior court for his acts in 'cutting, destroying and carrying away the aforesaid trees.'

There is no allegation of fraud, no allegation that the land was not the defendant's intestate as represented, nor does it appear that the plaintiff has suffered any damage other than that he has been made the defendant in a law suit.

The demurrer is sustained on the first four grounds and overruled pro forma as to the others.

DICKENSON, Judge.

As the case stands at present, it is decided that Tanner has no cause of action against the Dawley estate. What further action Mr. Tanner may take in the matter is not known, but so far no steps by way of appeal or otherwise have been taken in the matter.

NAVY SCECETARY WILBUR WILL BE BANQUET SPEAKER

It has been announced that a member of President Coolidge's cabinet—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur—has been secured as the chief speaker at the annual convention banquet of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Hotel Bond in Hartford on the evening of May 7. This will be the first time that Secretary Wilbur has ever spoken to any audience in Connecticut.

It is expected that the next annual convention of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce—its twenty-sixth—will attract 600 leading business men to Hartford from all parts of Connecticut. There will be a two-day session comprising the banquet on the second evening, a speaking programme the first evening, and a series of departmental meetings each day at which there will be speakers on trade and commerce, banking and insurance, public utilities and commercial organization work.

Governor Trumbull, at the banquet, will extend greetings to the assembled business men on behalf of the state of Connecticut.

The chief humorist at the banquet will be C. M. A. Azoy, Jr., who is contributing editor to "Life" and who kept 600 advertising men in an uproar at Hartford last fall at the convention of the New England Association of Advertising Clubs.

DR. CAMPBELL ON COMMITTEE FOR PENN ALUMNI DINNER

Dr. H. B. Campbell of the Norwich sanatorium is one of a number of prominent New England alumni of the University of Pennsylvania who are arranging for a dinner in the Hotel Taft, New Haven, at 7 o'clock on Saturday, April 18, when leading educators from Pennsylvania will be the guests of honor.

There are more than 200 University of Pennsylvania alumni in this section of New England and the majority of them are expected to be present at the affair on Saturday.

Dr. Emory R. Johnson, dean of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania, and former member of Pennsylvania's Public Service Commission; Dr. Cheesman A. Herrick, president of the Girard college, Philadelphia, and Ernest B. Cozens, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania will be the speakers.

MOOSE HAVE TWO SPECIAL EVENTS COMING

Norwich lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., will have a gathering of special interests at its postponed meeting this week as officers are to be elected. Another event of unusual interest will be the installation of officers banquet and frolic which is to be held Sunday May 3. The committee in charge anticipates that the Moose home will not be large enough to accommodate those who will attend this special occasion and it is probable that other quarters will be secured for that day. Moose from all parts of the state will travel here to attend this special event.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY AND BIRTHDAY ARE CELEBRATED

The celebration of the 38th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lacy's marriage took place last Tuesday evening at their home at 169 Mt. Pleasant Street, over 40 relatives and friends attending. The occasion was also arranged to celebrate the birthday of Mr. Lacy.

Mrs. Lacy received a number of gifts including cut glass, silver and linen. Refreshments were served. The occasion was arranged by their daughters assisted by Mrs. Eudora Randall.

Holiday Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Elkin Smith have been entertaining over the holiday, Dr. and Mrs. Ellis Bonime of Forest Hills, L. I., Herbert Bonime of New Gardens, L. I., and Lawrence Bonime, Groton Academy, Groton, Massachusetts, at their hospitable home on Canterbury Turnpike.

ELK'S MORTGAGE BURNING WILL BE JUBILEE EVENT

Exercises in the Elks' lodge room, which begin at 7 o'clock, a street parade at 8.35, followed by a banquet and entertainment at 9.30 at the Elks home comprise the programme for the mortgage burning by Norwich lodge, No. 430, on Wednesday evening.

Mayor Milo R. Waters and members of the common council, Fire Chief Howard L. Stanton and a few other special guests have been invited for the mortgage burning ceremonies at the home, when the mortgage deed, which has now been paid off and released, will be burned on a silver platter.

ENDS HIS LIFE IN MOOD OF DESPONDENCY

William Edward Manning, postmaster at Yantic for over 20 years, and proprietor of the general store at Yantic until April 1st, was found dead in the attic of his home Monday morning, following a self inflicted wound. Mr. Maning had been in poor health for some time and on Monday morning his wife took his breakfast to him and then left to go down stairs. Returning later she found the bed empty and an investigation resulted in his being found lying in the attic of the house, his throat cut by a razor. Mr. Manning had been in bed for a week having suffered a nervous breakdown following the disposal of his business on April 1st.

Mr. Manning was born in Lebanon, October 1, 1866 the son of Edward and Lucy E. (Robinson) Manning. He received his early education in the schools of Lebanon and on June 3, 1891 at East Greenwich, R. I. was united in marriage with Miss Grace Harriet Fuller.

In winter of 1894 Mr. Manning went to Bozrahville and entered the employ of Peckham and Waterman and at the death of Mr. Peckman, eight years later, Mr. Manning took over the business. He was made postmaster of Bozrahville and conducted his store there for many years. In 1898 he went to Yantic and conducted the general store there until April 1st of this year. On January 1 1901 he was appointed postmaster of Yantic and held this office at the time of his death, having retained it after he sold out his business.

While in Bozrahville Mr. Manning was a member of the Goshen church and upon making his home in Yantic he transferred his membership to Grace Episcopal church. Thoughout his life he took much interest in church work and at the time of his death was vestryman of Grace church. He was a member of St. James lodge No. 23, F & A. M., Franklin Chapter, Franklin Council and Columbian Commandery, Knights Templar. At the time of his death he was secretary of the Yantic Fire Engine company and a vice president of the Norwich Building and Loan association.

Mr. Manning was a man of fine qualities and was interested deeply in the welfare of the community in which he lived. He was charitable and ever a willing giver, taking interest in the welfare of his many friends. He was a man devoted to his family and in his death a beloved member has been removed. The giving up of his duties at the store was caused directly by a general breakdown and his many friends will learn with profound sorrow of his sudden death. To his family is extended the sincere sympathy of the community.

Mr Manning is survived by his wife, one son, Frederick F. Manning of Norwich, a daughter, Lois A. Manning of Yantic, three brothers, E. Melville of Lebanon, George E., and Arad R. Manning of Yantic, and two grandchildren, Edward and Harold Manning.

THROUGH TWENTY STATES IN 5,600 MILE TRIP

Connecticut and Norwich in particular looked mighty good to Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Gallup and their daughter, Miss Sue L. Gallup, of 127 Washington street, who returned on Thursday evening of last week after a trip of seven weeks and two days, by automobile through nearly half the states of the union.

The party left Norwich by automobile on the morning of February 17th and during their long trip passed through 20 states and the District of Columbia, covering over 5,600 miles in the trip, with Miss Gallup at the wheel. Practically no trouble was experienced and remarkably fine weather was enjoyed, there being a brief shower while they were in Virginia and another while stopping off in New Orleans.

The first stop was made in New York after which they went to Philadelphia and then to Baltimore, Md., and Washington, D. C., in which city they spent Washington's birthday. Continuing on they passed through Fredericksburg where they visited Marie Heights, Richmond, Va., where they went out to the site of the Battle of Seven Pines fought between McClellan and Lee, stopped at Petersburg and then went to Durham and Queensboro in North Carolina. Anderson, S. C., was followed by stops at Athens, Ga., and practically all cities on the eastern coast of Florida ending with Miami and St. Augustine. The trip back through Florida was by the west coast to Orlando, Tallahassee and Pensacola and from there to Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans, La., where a stop of about a week was made. Passing through Mississippi they went to Memphis, Tenn., and then to Arkansas and Missouri.

The next stop was in Illinois and soon afterwards in Indiana where they saw the towns wrecked by the tornado which took a toll of nearly a thousand lives. Red cross tents, Salvation Army tents and rescue tents of other organizations were seen in these towns amid the wreckage of homes.

Leaving Indiana they went to Dayton, Ohio, thence to Wheeling, W. Va., and to Washington, Pa. Stops were made in several of the mining districts and then the trip was continued to Philipsburg, N. J., Elizabeth, N. J., New York city and back to Norwich.

In describing the trip Mr. Gallup said that one thing that impressed him was the good roads and protection to drivers here in Connecticut, in general the roads of Connecticut, he said, compared most favorably with those in any of the states visited, 20 in number. Another thing which Connecticut has that other states did not have was fences to guard the roadsides, with signs warning of dangerous places. In many states passed through there were signs, he said, but no guard rails at bridge crossings and around bad turns.

Speaking of the gasoline tax he said that most every state had a tax and in some it ran as high as three cents per gallon.

In speaking of Florida, Mr. Gallup mentioned that much northern capital is being poured into that state because of inducements. No state income tax or inheritance tax makes Florida a fine state for investment of outside capital.

Another thing that interested Mr. Gallup was cotton mills. In North Carolina, he said, a few years ago the number of cotton spindles in operation ranked third but now North Carolina has more cotton spindles in operation than any other state in the union. Wages are less there, he said, hours are longer and there are no strikes. Small rents prevail and there are few people of foreign birth. In many cities of the state are fine new mills.

In answer to a question about business conditions of the south, Mr. Gallup, said that the people seemed prosperous but that there was a slackening in the cotton industry, though not as marked as in the north. Lumber business is fine in the south but it struck him that lumber from that section of the country would run short in not many more years as there is no reforestation. Everywhere in the south planting is going on at full speed and good crops prevailing. At Hammond, the strawberry center of the United States all the hotels were filled with buyers from all parts of the country.

In general the party enjoyed the trip to the utmost and the combination business and pleasure trip was a success from all sides, but the home-coming to Norwich and meeting of friends once again was enjoyed equally as well as any joy experienced on the long tour of the country.

GOVERNOR GUEST FOR FISH AND GAME BANQUET

Members of the Norwich Fish and Game association are particularly interested in the notices for the annual banquet which have been sent out by Secretary W. W. Ives with the announcement of three prominent guests at that time. These are to be Governor John H. Trumbull, who is a nationally known sportsman; Hon Frederick K. Walcott, president of the American Game Protective association, and chairman of the state fish and game commission, and Hon. John W. Titcomb, superintendent of the state commission.

The banquet is to be held on Thursday evening, April 23, in Odd Fellows' hall with the catering by Rebekah lodge.

A week before the banquet the annual meeting of the association is to be held at the chamber of commerce rooms.

The Pacific telegraph cable from Vancouver to Australia and New Zealand, by way of Fanning Island, Norfolk Island and Fiji, is more than 7,000 miles long and one stretch of the line is the longest in the world—a distance of 3,458 miles.

MOHEGAN PARK WORK PLANNED FOR SEASON

President Henry F. Parker presided at the annual meeting of the board of park commissioners, held Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the court house.

A number of routine matters were acted upon and Superintendent Frederick Krohn reported that general work in Mohegan park is going on nicely and that he and his assistant, Louis Tringo, are in the midst of the annual spring cleanup, roads, and pathways being put into shape.

A new feature is the footpath that has been built along the north shore of the lake and work has been started on the road which will encircle the lake when completed. The section of road now under construction is at the north end of the lake, but this will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible, with a view to having the road completed by another year, thus giving people the pleasure of being able to drive around the lake on a well constructed road.

The animals and birds have come through the winter in fine shape and the herd of 10 deer is in excellent condition, the same being true of the monkey family, pheasants, duck, rabbits, geese and peacocks.

The park has been growing more popular each year and everything possible is being done to make it one of the real beauty spots of Eastern Connecticut.

The annual election of officers took place resulting as follows:

President, Henry F. Parker; vice president, John M. Lee; secretary, William A. Norton.

Following the election of officers President Parker appointed the following committees for the year:

Finance, Henry F. Parker, William A. Norton, Henry D. Johnson.

Care and Management—John M. Lee, Henry D. Johnson.

Development and Improvement—William A. Norton, Harry M. Land, James C. Macpherson.

Auditors—Henry D. Johnson, James C. Macpherson.

BICYCLE HITS AUTO ON MONTVILLE ROAD

James Monghan, 17, who lives in the Pequot section of Montville, received injuries to his left arm and both knees Monday afternoon about 2 o'clock when the bicycle he was riding, struck the left rear mudguard of an automobile driven by Charles F. Whitney of Norwich. The bicycle was not damaged but the automobile received a dented mudguard.

The accident happened at the intersection of the New London turnpike and the road by the side of the residence of Dr. John J. Donohue. Young Monahan was riding down this road on his wheel and the automobile was coming from New London. As the two vehicles reached the corner together Monahan seemed to lost control of his bicycle and failed to turn to the right until just as he reached the machine, passing along its left side and hitting the rear mudguard with the handle bars. The rider and the bicycle were thrown into the road by the crash.

FRED SMITH CONTINUES IN SERIOUS CONDITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, April 13.—Fred Smith, formerly of New London, now under treatment at Norwich state hospital, where he had been employed several months as a cook, is suffering from three fractured ribs and general shock to his system as a result of being run over by an automobile several days ago. It is not likely that he will recover for it became known today that the man has failed to respond to treatment and is in an extremely depressed condition. At the hospital it was with difficulty that he recognized acquaintances who called upon him.

No relatives of Smith have been located, although it is known he has been employed in various markets in Danielson prior to making his home in New London and that he has a wife and two sons residing in or near Danielson. He is a member of the Knights of Pythias.

MOCK TRIAL FUN AT BROTHERHOOD MEETING

The April meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of the United Congregational church was held Monday evening at the Community house, with a supper served at 6.30 o'clock by women of the church. A short business session in charge of President Walter F. Lester followed the supper and routine business was transacted.

The entertainment for the evening was in charge of Charles F. Wells, chairman of the entertainment committee and a mock trial, with all its fun was in store for the members. The case to be tried was Potter vs. Thompson, for breach of promise, Pansy Potter, the plaintiff, charging that Tiny Thompson had met her while they were traveling together in a show in 1924, that they agreed to marry and that she had let Tiny have a 10 spot to buy the ring.

In the testimony offered before the court it was shown that Tiny Thompson, Edward Harris, quit his job in a restaurant when Pansy Potter, Joseph French, agreed to work to support them both. Thompson could see no reason for the suit as he had agreed to supply Pansy with washing enough to provide money for their living. Damages of $500 were asked by the plaintiff.

Judge John H. Barnes occupied the bench and the plaintiff was represented by John J. O'Rourke and the defendant by Walter F. Lester. The testimony offered for the jury and court was of questionable nature and caused no end of laughter as local cracks were made. Those appearing on the witness stand were Tiny's boss, Job Smith, proprietor of the restaurant where Thompson worked, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Pansy's brother, Gus Potter, William Bottomley; Squire Jones, boss of the Daily Grunt, Alfred Bliven; the jeweler, Joseph N. Weymouth.

The trial wound up when the jury returned with the verdict which still remains in question, reading as follows: "Verdict is for $135, with the understanding that each juror be given a donation of $10 by the plaintiff for his hearty co-operation." The verdict was not upheld by the court, Judge Barnes claiming that the most important thing had been overlooked—no arrangements had been made for the judge to get his share.

The entertainment proved most enjoyable and it is likely that similar trials will be held at future meetings.

HEARING ON THE REVISED SO-CALLED WHEELER BILL

House Chamber in the Capitol Was Not Big Enough to Hold Audience Interested in Proposed Drastic Enforcement of the Present Liquor Laws—State's Attorney Alcorn Explained the Changes From the Original Wheeler Bill—Quoted Bishops Nilan and Brewster as Favorable to the Measure—Arthur M. Brown Spoke at Length in Support of the Bill—F. W. Cole of Hartford Led the Opposition, and Also Attacked the 18th Amendment.

Hartford, April 14—The house chamber at the capitol this afternoon was not big enough to hold the audience which gathered for the legislative hearing on the so-called Wheeler bill drawn to secure more drastic enforcement of the present liquor laws.

All predictions that the citizens of the state would show interest in this bill were fulfilled. Several score of men and women found themselves unable to get in the house of representatives chamber long before the judiciary committee took up the bills, which had a hearing on the present enforcement laws.

The bill which was the chief subject, was that known as Senate bill number 633 prepared at suggestion of Chief Justice George W. Wheeler by a committee of the state's attorneys of which had certain outstanding characteristics such as search and seizure not in the present law, and the making of a buyer of liquor unlawfully as culpable as the bootlegger. A substitute for the original bill has been placed before the committee the outcome of much criticism of the original draft and it was this substitute bill on which arguments for and against were made. About two hours were given over to the proponents and an equal length of time to the opponents but as the latter presented their side without a definite plan some of the arguments were made while people were going out of the chamber or moving about. The proponents were marshalled by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, of Hartford, and arguments were made without much repetition. Many of the objections to the bill, however, gave much time to expression of opposition to the 18th amendment.

The hearing opened with a statement by Mr Alcorn to the effect that most publicity had been sought for the original bill so that when it came before the legislature there would be an understanding of its aims. He said that it was not the idea of the framers of the bill to hamper industry or individual pursuits. Said he: "We have come to the point where the law in support of the 18th amendment should be strengthened." He said the substitute bill as compared with the one explained changes made in a redraft, taking section by section, saying that criticism which was based on reason had been recognized, and that the substitute bill stood, he thought, as one to which few objections could be offered by a fair minded citizen.

Mr. Alcorn read a long list of persons and organizations which had declared in favor of the so-called Wheeler bill, Churchmen were headed by Bishop Nilan, of the Hartford diocese and by Bishop Brewster, of the Connecticut diocese. Mr. Alcorn said the time had come "for enforcement of the law to the limit, so those who break the law shall feel the full effect of the law." He read a letter from E. G. Buckland in support of the bill.

Joseph H. Thurston, of Hartford, state's attorney of Hartford county, made the main argument for the bill. He said that enforcement of the liquor laws had certain handicaps and one of them was the proposition of certain people who oppose the 18th amendment and the 1921 law to enforce it to nullify the amendment. These people want no change in the present law that they may be able to say that the legislature gave the people a mandate to ignore the law.

The prime object of the amendment is to spread a net to catch the man who violates the law. The bootlegger, he said, is a criminal any way and what is needed is a law to get the man who abets the bootlegger. Mr. Thurston claimed that there was nothing oppressive in the bill. The section which gives the right to seize liquor, he said, was the right the state had always had to seize unlawful property. Taking section by section Mr. Comley explained the import of each. He pointed out that the "double jeopardy" clause of the bill had been stricken out.

Views of Arthur M. Brown

State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown, of New London county, followed, pointing out that the oath of office requires allegiance to the constitution of the United States, and that members of the legislature also took the oath to obey the law. He believed it the duty of every member to support the law and to set a question now of a man or a state prohibition," he said. "That question is the discard. The legislature of 1921 recognized the 18th amendment by passage of an enforcement law and the state's attorneys now come to you for a law which will make it possible to rigidly enforce that amendment. There is nothing in the bill which a law-abiding citizen may fear. Is there any logical reason why a man who buys liquor of a bootlegger should not be liable? The law says that a man who receives stolen goods is as guilty as the man who steals those goods. If I take a $10 bill and buy liquor of a bootlegger, am I not as guilty as the man who sold it to me? I believe, gentlemen of the committee—"

There was hearty laughter and Mr. Brown said that the slip of the tongue was through habit. He claimed that a great many men would not buy liquor if it was against the law to buy liquor. Bootleggers take the risk, even to murder, because there is always some one to pay the price," he said. He closed the way to put the bootlegger of business was to close his market.

Hon. John Buckley, United States district attorney, said that he was not interested in applause which the audience had been giving to speakers. He said: "You must take the theory that if prohibition is to be enforced in Connecticut it must be through the state courts and not through the federal courts.

"Another question is," he said, "if you propose to amend the existing law, is whether personal and property rights are protected in the substitute bill. I had exceptions to the other bill but I am in sympathy with this one, and it reaches out to get the buyer of liquor which is "right but rough." The importer of liquor is a violator of the federal laws as related to customs and duties; the transporter is a violator of the federal laws, and the purchaser is a violator of the law because he is in "possession of." Regardless of how "rough and right" it may be, why not spend money to eradicate the situation which produces the other violations."

Buckley Suggests Change

Mr. Buckley said he did not like the search and seizure section of the bill because it read that a warrant "may issue on information or belief." He preferred the federal law wording on that point. With this exception, however, he said he was in favor of the bill. He suggested a change so that forfeiture of vehicles used in liquor running might be made where a party defaults a bond. Mr. Buckley said it was not a question of belief or disbelief in the 18th amendment but whether you will have a state law to cope effectively with the conditions which cannot be met by the federal government.

W. B. Boardman, of Bridgeport, Suffragan Bishop E. C. Acheson, of Middletown, Prof. Irving Fisher, of Yale, and several women spoke for the bill. Senator Mrs. Mead after declaring for the bill read from a paper a declaration of her stand which was that obedience of the law was more important than enforcement of the law, and expressing he felt that if more attempt was made to enforce law the greater might be the disrespect for the law.

Rev. Dr. Lackey, of Hartford, E. A. Bramhall, State's attorney T. F. Keane, of Rockville, also spoke in behalf of the bill.

F. W. Cole Opened Opposition

Opposition to the bill was opened by F. W. Cole, of Hartford, who not only was opposed to the substitute because of "objectionable features" in it, but declared he opposed any effort to stiffen the present unenforceable law" He told the committee that the state cannot say that "all buyers of liquors are criminals." He was not interested in the hearing because it might deprive him "of a drink" but because he believed the 18th amendment was unsound, not essentially a part of the constitution, and because it was a sumptuary law. He said that he saw about him state's attorneys who "theoretically who were compelled to enforce the law and yet themselves were not obeying the law." He said the law was unsound because it could not be enforced, and it would be a mistake to adopt any such bill as the one before you."

Attacked 18th Amendment

Mr. Cole attacked the 18th amendment and said: "I condemn violation of the law but people of this country will ultimately solve the problem without more law to create disrespect for all law."

Joseph H. Thurston, of Hartford, spoke against the bill, also former Senator C. M. Bakewell, of New Haven, who said it took courage to oppose the measure "in face of the many state's attorneys about me." He said that the problem is to get at the cause of existing conditions. He quoted from remarks of Dean Brown of Yale and Chief Justice Taft to the fact that they did not like the 18th amendment, but now that it is part of the constitution it should be obeyed. Senator Bakewell said that the remedy would be to change the enforcement law to make it more in accord with public opinion. He said that the bill would make something a crime which is inherently not a crime. The senator went on to say that Christian people can not read their Bible and say it is wrong to use wine. The audience laughed, and the senator said that even the Master made wine, and there was more commotion in the audience which led Chairman Ailing to bang his gavel.

Disagrees With Prof. Fisher

Senator Bakewell said the committee "ought not to listen to people who make a fetish of the law." He could not agree with Prof. Fisher who had said that the 18th amendment was in constitution to stay and that the Volstead act would not be materially changed.

J. J. Regan, legislative agent for the Federation of Labor, and former Senator John N. Brooks, of Torrington spoke against the bill.

"FORTUNE" OF A RECLUSE PROVED HALLUCINATION

New York, April 14—A fortune which its owner, the late Calvin Armory Stevens, recluse, believed to run into millions of dollars, faded to a minus quantity when the estate was appraised in surrogate's court. Stevens believed mining properties he held in Nova Scotia, New Mexico and Virginia were worth about $5,00,000, and to hide his supposed wealth lived for years in poorly furnished quarters in a Manhattan office building. The appraisal valued these properties at $76,-000 and threw hole estate at $113,821, but against it were claims of $129,266, leaving an indebtedness of $15,445.

MISSING BIOLOGIST HEARD FROM IN QUEENSLAND

Adelaide, Australia, April 14—Captain George H. Wilkins, biologist on the Quest expedition to the Antarctic and a member of the Canadian Arctic expedition under the explorer Stafansson, who has been missing since November last when he was at Crocodile Creek in Arnheim land, travelling around the northwest coast, has just been heard from. He recently passed through Townsville, Queensland, on his way to Brisbane and Adelaide.

Lament Guest of Honor

Rome, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—Thomas W. Lamont, of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company, was honor guest tonight at a brilliant banquet given by the Italian-American chamber of commerce. The banquet was attended also by Frank W. Stearns of Boston, close personal friend of President Coolidge.

TRIAL OF PRESIDENT'S RIGHT TO REMOVE A POSTMASTER

Washington, April 14.—A picture of the White House with a "to let" sign hung out, was drawn in the supreme court today by Solicitor General Beck in closing argument in the Myers case through which the president's right to remove a postmaster without obtaining the senate's consent has been challenged.

The solicitor general presented the president's position as opposed by the senate through Senator Pepper, Pennsylvania, in the controversy resulting from the appeal of the estate of Frank S. Myers, which is suing for back pay on the contention that his removal as postmaster at Portland, Oregon, was illegal.

Congress should not be permitted, Mr. Beck declared, to "place the president in a strait jacket" by encroaching upon his prerogative to remove government office holders. There are 800,000 such employes and the president, he argued, should be unhampered in his right to remove any or all of them.

Mr. Beck held it highly essential in the proper administration of the government that the president should be unrestrained by congress in exercising this right. If deprived of it, he contended, the work of the president would be so impaired and be rendered so ineffective that it would be well to close the White House.

Insisting that the Constitution intended to create a "strong executive," he protested against" congressional despotism," declaring that unless the court intervened the executive's power might ultimately be strangled by congress.

Emphasizing that the present struggle was not between the president and the senate, but between the legislative and executive branches, Senator Pepper in closing his argument begun yesterday, asserted that the constitutional duty of the president to see that the laws are faithfully executed included a mandate to respect those made by congress creating offices and prescribing the conditions under which they should be filled. Employes of the government are not servants of the president, the senator declared, but are representatives of the people.

NO HEARING ON CHAPMAN APPEAL BEFORE OCTOBER

Hartford, April 14—Legal steps taken by Gerald Chapman today indicated that he will not die on the gallows on June 25 for the murder of Patrolman James Skelly, of New Britain. An appeal from the refusal of Judge Newell Jennings to set aside the verdict, brought to the supreme court today cannot possibly be heard until the October term of the court in Hartford, in such a case it is customary for the governor to grant a reprieve pending the action. There is no capital case on record in which when appealed to for a reprieve during the pendency of an appeal, the reprieve has not been granted by the governor.

The bandit filed his appeal through his junior counsel, Nathan O. Freedman, and claimed, among other things that the court erred in allowing testimony of evidence to go before the jury which tended to show the commission of other crimes. This reason for appeal is really directed at the arsenal of ammunition and guns, the books of counterfeiting, the two bottles of nitro-glycerine which were spread before the jury by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn in the presentation of his case. Mr. Alcorn's argument also forms one of the reasons for appeal, it being set out that in his closing argument he appealed to the jury's passion, prejudice, and partiality to influence the jurors against the accused.

The appeal filed today is the beginning of an attempt to save by legal action Gerald Chapman from the gallows. It was accompanied by a petition to Judge Newell Jennings to extend the time for the filing of the request for a finding and a draft for a proposed finding on which Mr. Freedman is now working.

N. H. ROAD CONSIDERING SCHEDULE OF PENSIONS

New Haven, April 14—The New Haven railroad, it became known is considering plans for a new schedule of pensions which would include all employes of the road. Provisions of the proposed schedule, it is said, call for the company and the employes to join in putting aside amounts monthly into a pension fund. The proposition, it was said, may be laid before the board of directors of the road at a meeting to be held here April 21. Should it be adopted by the directors, it is said that the plan will be submitted to the employes on May 1 for a referendum vote. Should the employes accept it, it is understood that the plan will become effective at once.

While details of the plans have not been made public, it is reported that employes of the road would be pensioned off at the age of 65. According to the annual statement of the road for 1924, a total of 31,461 employes would come under this plan if it is approved. The amount to be set aside each month for the pension fund is said to be based on the annual payroll which, according to the 1924 statement, amounted to $56,567,855.43 for all classes of labor paid directly.

It is reported that the proposed schedule calls for the payment into the pension fund of one and one half per cent of the earnings of the employes. The railroad, for its part, reports state, will agree to add to the fund 75 per cent of the amount paid in by the employes. Based on the figures of the last annual report, the employes would pay into the fund $848,517.78 yearly and the railroad company would add $636,388.34.

DIED IN HOSPITAL AFTER QUARREL WITH BROTHER

Bridgeport, Auril 14—Michael Cox, 58, died tonight at Bridgeport hospital, where he was removed from a house boat after a quarrel with his brother Peter, who is charged with assault and probably will face charges of murde ras a result of the death.

Peter Cox is held without bonds by police, who have been unable to learn what caused the quarrel. Both men were intoxicated, police say.

Rum Ship Was Seized 20 Miles Off The Coast

British Schooner Was Captured After a Number of Shots Had Been Fired Across Her Bow.

New York, April 14—Uncle Sam's rum chasing forces added $250,000 to the value of recent liquor seizures in this vicinity, with the capture of the two-masted British auxiliary schooner Madeline Adams 20 miles off the coast.

There was some mystery about the capture of the craft, which had in her hold 3,700 cases of assorted liquors, including champagne, in addition to 100 barrels of alcohol on her decks Captain W. E. V. Jacobs, commandant of the New York division of the coast guard, assured questioners that the schooner was taken "twenty miles off Fire Island." But the fact that the Coast Guard Cutter Seminole spent twelve hours in the chase lent color to reports that the pursuit took the speedy government boat from 150 to 200 miles out to sea, and that a number of shots were laid across the fugitive's bow before the capture.

The capture was made late yesterday. The Madeline Adams, a sleek-sided vessel of 95 tons, tonight was anchored off the Statue of Liberty, a coast guard prize crew aboard in charge of her captain, John Gillan, and seven members of her crew.

Captain Jacobs said that two of the schooner's crew had sought to bribe the crew of the government's rum chaser, C. G. 203, to take 500 cases of whiskey aboard last Saturday. The government men pretended to accede to the proposal. Captain Jacobs related, and piled the contraband on the boat's deck, only to discharge the cargo at the United States barge office at the Battery and place the two men under arrest.

It was then that Captain Jacobs said he broadcast orders to all his chasers to "get the Madeline Adams, if you have t ochase her to the British three mile limit."

The $250,000 valuation put upon the prize's cargo brings the value of contraband intoxicants taken in this vicinity by the government in the past four years to almost a million dollars. Liquors found in a cache near Montauk Point last Saturday and Sunday were valued at $500,000, bootleggers' wholesale prices.

This seizure has exposed a scandal among members of the state police, Assistant District Attorney Petty of Suffolk county asserted. Investigation so far had developed indications that at least half a dozen troopers were in league with rum runners getting their contraband liquor into the country by way of Montauk Point, he said.

United States District Attorney Greene, in charge of all of Long Island, has gone to Washington to confer with Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement.

HINDENBURG FAIR GAME FOR POLITICAL OPPONENTS

Berlin, April 14—(By the A. P.)—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is now fair game for his political opponents, says Vorwarts, the Socialist organ. The newspaper declares the Republican parties in Germany for the past five years had scrupulously lived up to a gentlemen's agreement which prescribed "a closed season," for the venerable field marshal.

It was understood, says Vorwarts, that Von Hindenburg was not to be dragged into controversies over the loss of the war or the conduct of the war, and that the halo which popular acclaim placed over the head of the hero of Tannenberg of the republic would keep Von Hindenburg out of politics, a condition which Vorwarts declares now has been violated and which therefore deprives him of further immunity.

The Socialist organ then proceeds to reprint an extract from a protocol drawn up at great headquarters at Pless early in January, 1917, when Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg attempted to head off Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare. The chancellor apparently wavered in the face of the determined attitude of Von Hindenburg, General Ludendorff and other army leaders who demanded ruthless application of the U-boat weapon. The protocol represents Von Hindenburg as being quite as resolute as the other U-boat advocates; he even brushed aside Bethmann-Hollweg's plea for its abandonment because of the attitude of the United States, declaring the submarine program took all eventualities into consideration.

LIBELS AGAINST THE GAS SLOOP "NORTH STAR TWO"

New Haven, April 14.—Individual libels against the gas sloop "North Star Two," and its cargo of 500 cases of alcohol were filed with the clerk of the United States court here today by Assistant Federal Prosecutor Cohen.

The vessel was captured as an alleged rum runner on April 2 by the coast guard cutter 188. The sloop was first sighted five miles off Block Island and was overtaken by the coast guardsmen 11 miles southeast of Sandy Point light.

The vessel is owned by Archie L. McNeil, Jr., of Wakefield, R. I., according to the information contained in the condemnation papers.

The "North Star Two" is one of more than a dozen vessels against which libel proceeding are now pending in the United States court of this district. Pending decision of the court, the sloop is held with the others at the coats guard base in New London.

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE KING BORIS OF BULGARIA

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—King Boris of Bulgaria had a narrow escape from death today at the hands of alleged communists, while General Gheorghieff, one of the leaders in the movement which overthrew the Stambouilsky government in 1923 was killed in the streets of Sofia.

The king's automobile, which was traveling in the direction of the capital, ran into an ambuscade and was fired upon. The king was not hurt, but two of his attendants are reported to have been killed, and the chauffeur wounded. One of the slain men was a naturalist, letcheff.

Almost immediately after the attack, the king's assailants fled. Troops went in pursuit and serached the entire district, but without avail.

Revolt In Colombia Nipped In The Bud

Army Officials, Who Planned Capture of Government, Were Arrested and Thrown Into Prison.

Bogota, Colombia, April 14—A coup d'etat was frustrated Sunday when a group of army officials who planned to take possession of the palace and the government, were arrested and thrown into prison.

The conspirators purposed to take advantage of the absence of President Nel Ospina from the capital. The president has been on a visit to various departments of the republic, but suddenly returned Sunday. The arrest and confinement of several army officials and some young officers of lower grades stationed in the capital, followed.

An investigation was immediately begun to ascertain the ramifications of the plot in the country outside of Bogota. The newspapers expressed the belief that the movement extends throughout the army, by reason of the fact that there have been strong protests during the past four months by some of the most influential army officials to congress against investigation of the conduct of the war department.

The protests were resented by congress, which asserted that the military officials had exceeded their authority.

TO PRESS THE RUMANIAN RELIEF DEBT QUESTION

Washington, April 14—Steps to press the Rumanian relief debt question to early settlement have been initiated at Bucharest by the Washington government.

The amount involved aggregates nearly $42,000,000, principal and interest, and the loan is viewed at the state department as a purely relief transaction, not to be confused with the general war debt problem.

Views of the Washington government have been presented at Bucharest by Minister Jay in a formal communication. It calls attention sharply to the fact that Rumania has negotiated refunding agreements with several other governments covering similar loans, negotiated after the American loans had been made and for smaller amounts, but that the obligations to the United States have thus far been ignored.

The note also emphasizes that the loans were not made as war measures but to relieve urgent necessities of the Rumanian government and people after the war. On that ground, the Washington government holds that the loans should be given priority in repayment over any strictly war financing operations.

Mr. Jay, who has been appointed ambassador to the Argentine republic, will remain at Bucharest indefinitely to conduct negotiations as to loan refunding.

YOUSSOUPOFF HOPES TO RECOVER VAST ESTATES

New York, April 14.—Prince Felix Youssoupoff, head of an erstwhile wealthy royal family of the old regime in Russia, still hopes to recover his vast estates, he testified today at the second day of trial in the supreme court of his suit against Joseph E. Widener, of Philadelphia, for recovery of two Rembrandt portraits. The estates now held by the bolsheviks, before the revolution were estimated to be worth $350,000,000.

Prince Youssoupoff, a debonair figure, held the witness stand the entire day in his legal battle to regain the two Rebrdants, "A Gentleman With a High Hat," and "A Woman With an Ostrich Feather," which Mr. Widener acquired from him in August, 1921, by payment of 1,000,000 pounds sterling. Prince Youssoupoff, who values the paintings at 300,000 pounds, today told of having refused offers from the late J. P. Morgan and the late Senator William A. Clark, of 200,000 and 225,-000 pounds respectively. He contends that the transaction by which they passed to the Philadelphia financier and art collector was really a chattel mortgage, which Mr. Widener holds that he bought the art treasures outright.

CHARGED WITH USING MAILS IN $1,000,000 SWINDLE

New York, April 14.—Eight men were charged with using the mails in a $1,000,000 swindle in two sealed indictments opened today in U. S. district court. The men, it is alleged, sold to persons throughout the country worthless stock in a company organized to manufacture bullet-proof glass.

The indictments named Adolphe Topper, of New York; Harry L. Gold, Los Angeles; Irving Sass, Englewood, N. J.; Abraham A. Lichtman, Brooklyn; John S. Concannon, Yonkers, N. Y.; and Samuel I. Krantz, Hartford county jail, Hartford, Conn. Two others are fugitives from justice.

According to the indictments, the men represented that the federal government was a large purchaser of the glass manufactured by their company. They appropriated more than 60 per cent. of the amount received from sale of stock for salaries, expenses and commissions for themselves, it is alleged.

Assistant Federal Attorney Mattuck said that the company has sold some glass to the government for the battleship Arkansas, but that it was manufactured by such a costly process that only a small quantity was ever made.

FORMER HEAD BULGARIAN ARMY ASSASSINATED

Sofia, Bugaria, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—General Gheorghieff, fformer noted army leader, was assassinated tonight. He had retired from the army and was a deputy. He took a prominent part in the movement to overthrow the Stambouilsky government in 1923.

GOVERNMENT TO APPEAL ITS ANTI-TRUST SUIT

Washington, April 14—Attorney General Sargent announced that an appeal would be taken to the supreme court from the decision of federal Judge Westenhaven at Cleveland, dismissing the government's anti-trust suit against the General Electric company, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and the Westinghouse Lamp company.

PAINLEVE CONSIDERING FORMATION OF CABINET

Has Accepted in Principle President Drumergue's Invitation to Form a New French Cabinet—Has Asked For Twelve Hours Delay Before Making a Definite Reply—Desires to Consult His Political Friends—M. Briand Had Declined to Form Ministry—Public Refuses to Get Ruffled in the Worst Crisis of the History of the Country.

Paris, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—France is in the throes of one of the worst crisis in the history of the third republic. Politically, economically, financially, there is a widely divergent current of opinion between the chamber and senate. It has now become an open conflict and this underlies all the present difficulties.

The dissolution of parliament, which a few days ago was mentioned only in whispers, is the rallying cry of all discontent and is being openly discussed in the lobbies of the chamber and the senate.

Confusion reigns supreme in French political affairs, but the French nation refused to get ruffled. The economic situation, involving the status of the franc in the world's exchange market, remains unchanged.

Who is to become premier to succeed M. Herriot is by no means certain. Paul Painleve, president of the chamber, is the latest unwilling candidate for the premiership. Albert Sarraut has refused the task of cabinet making, and Aristide Briand, who is undesirable to the socialists, has followed suit.

M. De Monzie, the present finance minister, and M. Renoult may be summoned by President Doumergue, but whoever assumes charge of French political direction, the French public feels that its institutions will be restored if the bank of France can present an honest legal bank statement Thursday.

The situation tonight remains exactly like that created by the defeat of the Herriot government. M. Briand, after temporizing for several days awaits the decision of the socialists as to whether they would collaborate with him and his government, finally announced tonight, after the official refusal of the socialists had been made public that he would no longer attempt to form a cabinet. He suggested M. Painleve whom President Doumergue invited to Elysee Palace after M. Sarraut had again declined, and the president of the chamber is now considering whether it is worth while for him to abandon his safe and sound present position for the uncertainties of the premiership.

"I do not want to put a socialistic halter around my neck," M. Briand said as he emerged from Elysee Palace after consulting with M. Doumergue for the last time in the present ministerial crisis. "My friends, the socialists would like to support me as a hangman's rope supports an assassin."

M. Briand expressed the opinion that the questions foremost in the interest of France were financial and economic not political.

"France can wait a few days for a government," he declared, "but it cannot wait twenty-four hours for bank notes."

He added that the bank of France would be authorized tomorrow to raise its circulation to the actual outstanding notes.

A series of ephemeral ministries is likely during the next few months, with M. Briand always to the front as a possibility if the various combinations of the left group fail.

The financial situation is virtually settled for the time being. M. De Monzie acting in behalf of the Herriot government, has been entrusted with the task of looking after routine affairs and will put through the chamber at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and the senate—convoked in special session—at five o'clock on agreement for ratification of the bank of France's authority to increase its circulation to 45,000,000,000 francs.

Parliamentary circles in both chamber and senate express much rancor over reported official utterances both in the United States and Great Britain on the ministerial situation. President Coolidge's reported reference to M. Herriot as a "peace maker" is especially objected to. The nationalist groups are of the opinion that fear of a Poincare ministery has caused American and English official circles to depart from their usual noncommittal attitude.

M. Colrat, who was a minister in Poincare's cabinet, said tonight; "The Ruhr now belongs to Americans and Englishmen. It would be folly to install a government in France which might cause prejudices to Anglo-Saxon investments."

Painleve, Briand, Renoult and Sarraut conferred for a long time tonight in the chamber of deputies while M De Monzie and M. Robineau, governor of the bank of France, and other bankers also were in lengthy conference.

FOUR FATALITIES IN GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT

Providence, R. I., April 14—Three women and a man are dead and a fourth woman is in a critical condition at the Rhode Island hospital following the wrecking of an automobile in which they were riding at 7 o'clock tonight by a passenger train on the Pascoag branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, in the town of Smithfield where the tracks cross the Farnum Pike. The victims were members of a family party that was on its way back to Worcester after visiting relatives in Providence.

The dead are:

Mrs. Frank Paul, 45, Institute Road, Worcester; Mrs. Charles Dahlin, 4 Earle street, Worcester; Mrs. E. C. Potter, Boylston, Mass.; and John Lindblad, 84 Stanton street, Worcester. The injured woman is Mrs. Maude Reisa, 26 School street, Worcester.

Mrs. Paul and Lindblad were killed outright when the engine crashed into the middle of the touring car in which they were riding. The three other women were placed aboard the baggage car of the train which made a non-stop trip to Providence to get them to a hospital. Mrs. Dahlin died during the trip and Mrs. Potter died at the Rhode Island hospital shortly after her arrival there.

ASKED TO FROM A NEW BELGIAN CABINET

Brussels, Belgium, April 14—Emile Vandervelde, socialist leader and former minister of justice, has been the task of forming a new cabinet to take the place of that headed by Premier Theunis, which resigned April 8. He is undertaking this work at the request of King Albert, and with the consent of the general council of the socialist party, but the socialists make it conditional that a socialist congress must be responsible for the composition of a socialist government and for the government's program.

E. Vandervelde, it is asserted, will find difficulty as premier, as the socialists are not in the majority; so that if he forms a homegeneous socialist ministry, two groups, Catholic and liberal, will be in a position to unite and overthrow him at any moment. His alternative course would be to secure the support of the democratic elements in these two groups.

WHOLESALE MURDERER BEHEADED AT SUNRISE

Hanover, Germany, April 14—Fritz Haarmann, wholesale murderer, will be beheaded at runrise tomorrow.

Haarmann, a local butcher, was sentenced to death by a Hanover court on December 19 last for slaying of 26 persons.

Hans Grans, his accomplice, received a like sentence.

"I go to the decapitating block joyfully and happily," declared Haarmann just before sentence was passed. He appeared unconcerned when the extreme penalty was imposed.

Haarmann lured men and boys to his lodgings and killed them and threw their bodies into the river.

Allenists testified that Haarmann was sane.

REPRIEVE GRANTED THE SLAYER OF POLICEMAN

Springfield, Ills., April 14—Governor Smal today reprieved Bernard Grant, of Chicago who was sentenced to hang Friday, until August 14. He was convicted of murdering a policeman.

POLITICAL WARFARE BY N. Y. ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

North Adams, Mass., April 14—Political warfare was declared on United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, by Arthur J. Davis, superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League, in a law-enforcement address here tonight before the 93rd annual session of the Troy conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"The anti-saloon league of New York," he said, "here and now gives notice that it will take every lawful and proper step to oppose the re-nomination and election of the leading exponent of the fundamental principles of the association against the prohibition amendment, Senator James W. Wadsworth.

"The anti-saloon league waited for some act on Senator Wadsworth's part which removes from debateable ground the fact that he was wet. After Senator Wadsworth was elected by the voters of the state in 1924, by his statement deliberately designed to make them believe that he was dry, the anti-saloon league waited patiently. But now he has made his wetness so evident as to leave no ground for debate.

"He not only has given the use of his name but has allowed reproduction of his picture as a lithograph for solicition of funds and members for the association against the prohibition amendment.

WOMAN SLAYER OF SON NOT GUILTY OF MURDER

New Haven, April 14.—After deliberating for 18 minutes, a jury in criminal superior court hearing the charges of murder against Mrs. Jennie Zarzychi, 26 years old, returned a verdict of not guilty on the ground of insanity. She was committed by Judge Christopher L. Avery to the asylum for the insane at Middletown for seven years. Mrs. Zarzychi, on the morning of January 14, fatally slashed the throat of her seven year old son Edward as he lay asleep in the Zarzychi home in Chapel street here.

Testimony in the case had been completed at one o'clock and when court convened at 2 o'clock, State's Attorney Arnon A. Alling briefly summed up the case. The testimony consisted chiefly of the statements of Dr. Mailhouse and Dr. Thompson, alienists.

Mrs. Zarzychi, who had been sitting in the rear of the court room, during the trial, sobbed when Judge Avery committed her to the state institution in charge of Jailer Frank C. Baldwin and Anna Baldwin, assistant matron at the county jail, Mrs. Zarzychi was led from the court house through hte side door and was taken back to the county jail pending her removal to Middletown.

CANADIAN CANOEIST IS STRIVING TO WIN WAGEF

Genoa, Italy, April 14—Hoping to reach Rome on April 25, one day before the time limit expires for winning a wager on paddling his canoe from England to Rome, George H. C. Smythe, Canadian canoeist, left here early today after an enthusiastic reception by Genoese sportsmen. Late this afternoon Smythe had arrived at Spezia, 50 miles from Genoa.

The Canadian paddler said his canoe, which carries about 120 pounds of baggage, is holding up well after its long passage across the English Channel, through the rivers and canals of France and along the Mediterranean coast.

Smythe set out last August from St. John, N. B., to paddle to Rome, except for the trip across the Atlantic.

WILLIMANTIC

A lively session of the Willimantic Rotary club opened at noon Tuesday, President John F. Ahern in charge. Following the luncheon, Ray Parker, on behalf of the losing team of the recent attendance contest presented President Ahern and the retiring presiding officer, Harry Standish pretty nosegays. President Ahern was formally introduced as the new man at the helm of local Rotary. He reciprocated with a brief talk on Fidelity and a box of the best cigars. For the April 28 meeting of the Middletown Club, President Ahern appointed as an On-to-Middletown committee, Roland B. Jordan, chairman, Dr. R. E. Jones and G. E. Lessel. Dick Dodge reported that nine members had filed intentions of attending the spring conference at Pittsfield. The report of Doc Jones on Ladies' Night to be held this month was tabled for one week. The club assisted James P. Bath, vice president, and Mrs. Bath in observing their 35th wedding anniversary. With remarks by President Ahern, they were presented ten beautiful pieces of solid silver, in behalf of the club.

Note was taken of the leave-taking of Charles W. Alpaugh, one of the most popular members who leaves today (Wednesday) to make his home in Cincinnati. Charley was bidden a warm farewell and attended the good wishes of the members. It was voted to contribute a sum not to exceed $5 for the Boys' Week Fund.

It was announced by Dick Dodge, as chairman of the program committee that a joint meeting of the committees and directors would be held next Tuesday evening. The meeting next week will be in charge of the three older members recently elected, Gerard E. Lessel, Rev. Arthur Wheelock and P. D. Donahue.

Secretary Lessel's history was given by Edward P. Jordan and was considered a model. It was the most honest and unexpurgated history ever heard. The secretary went into some detail in the experiences of his youth and business ventures at the conclusion of course at Exeter Academy, when he entered the automobile field in partnership with the late John Jewett.

Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, was the speaker, his subject "Florida The Land of Opportunity" based on experiences and statistics which he gathered during his tour of that state during the winter. How Florida was "discovered" by the United States Department of Agriculture and how it now sees a future of opportunities unparalleled anywhere were matters touched upon in his optimistic prophesy for the southern land. The speaker was given a rising vote of thanks. Adjournment was taken at 1:30 o'clock.

HUMANE SOCIETY ACTS— MANSFIELD DEPRAVITY CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, April 14—Antonia Mantery, 28 and Nellie Fuller, 15, were before the Mansfield Town court Monday on respective charges of carnal abuse of a femal child under sixteen years of age and of being in manifest danger of falling into habits of vice. Mantory, a woodchopper, was arrested after an investigation by Agent George W. Williams of the Connecticut Humane Society. A warrant was sworn out by Grand Juror Frank W. Millard and served by State Policeman Henry Heinold. Justice of the Peace Alexander Telfer of Spring Hill was on the bench. Mantory admitted his guilt in the matter and Justice Telfer found probable cause. Mantory was bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court under bonds of $1,50 which he could not furnish. The Fuller girl was committed to the Long Lane Home for Girls at Middletown for an indefinite term. The girl's father is dead and the mother lives in Massachusetts. The child lives with her grandfather, Henry Bishop in Mansfield. Bishop rented the basement of his home to woodchoppers Mantory being one of them. Mantory had relations with the girl which were later discovered and brought to the attention of the humane society.

STATE'S ATTY. C. E. SEARLES ILL, ATTY. BRADFORD PROSECUTOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, April 14.—Judge Leonard J. Nickerson, of Cornwall, was on the bench at the opening of the criminal side of the April term of the Windham county superior court, in this city Monday forenoon at 10.30 o'clock. Attorney Howard Bradford of Putnam represented State's Attorney Charles E. Searls who is ill at his home at Pomfret Center. Attorney Bradford was sworn in as assistant state's attorney by Judge Nickerson, for the duration of the present term. Prayer was offered by Rev. Andrew S. Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist church.

Thomas Sylvain of Lewiston, Me., and Providence, R. I., charged with breaking and entering the store of Benjamin Eisenberg, at 55 Church street, this city, April 2, and with the theft of $1,409 of clothing, which was recovered, pleaded guilty to the first county. The second count was nolled. Sylvain was sentenced to not less than 18 months nor more than three years in the state's prison at Wethersfield. It is believed that evidence recently discovered will lead to his presentation later for breaking ad entering in Taunton, Mass.

Jerome J. Hurley, said to reside in New York city, pleaded not guilty to a charge of transportation of liquor. He later changed his plea to one of guilty and was sentenced to two months in Brooklyn jail and a $200 fine. Hurley was arrested by County Detective William E. Jackson in Coventry, April 4, when 46 gallons of whiskey were found in his car.

Leon Russell, of this city, was charged with breaking and entering the Hebrew synagogue on Bank street here and theft of a Victrola. He pleaded guilty to theft but not to breaking and entering, saying that a man who was with him and whom he does not know did the breaking. The victrola and records taken were valued at $160 and were recovered. Russell was sentenced to the state reformatory at Cheshire where he had served a previous term.
